of the "crap", no one got boozed and started a scrap, no one got run in for taking a horn, nobody buried and nobody born. Oh! for a racket, a riot, a fuss.
Someone to come in and kick up a muss;
something to stir up the peace laden air,
somebody's come to give us a scare, somebody thumped within an inch of his life, someone run off with another man's wife; someone to come in and pay up his dues, anything, anything just so its news.—Ex.

The Fair.

Wednesday and Thursday of this week occurred the 19th annual fair of the Iosco County Agricultural Society.
The weather for both days was all that could be asked for. The attendance was small, which can probably be accounted for by the hard times and the fact that the society gave no special attractions.
While the stock show was not up to the average in numbers, it was represented by some excellent animals.

The display in floral hall was very slim, excepting the fruits, vegetables and farm produce. The display of these articles was one that would compare favorably with any county in the state.

While the display of small fruits was not large it was one that show very conclusively that Iosco county can be made one of the best fruit growing counties in the state.

The races were confined to local horses, and caused considerable sport.
Owing to lack of times we are obliged to omit a more extended notice.

Entered at the Postoffice at Tawas City, Michigan, as second-class matter.

The difference between the British House of Lords and the U. S. Senate, is that the Lords vote and do not talk while the senators talk and do not vote.

The scarcity of sugar is due to the fact that the American market is controlled by a single combination of corporations—the Sugar Trust. Raw sugar has no tariff duty on it and can be admitted freely from abroad, but there is a duty on refined sugar which gives the Sugar Trust control of the market. Great is the McKinley law.

Up to September nearly seventeen million dollars had been paid in bounties to sugar growers, under the provisions of the McKinley bill. How do the farmers of Michigan like the idea of having this amount of cash paid to a few sugar growers, while they labor to raise wheat, corn, potatoes, etc. and get no bounty for doing so. This is one more outrageous law put upon our statutes book that will be repealed by the democratic congress.

If Michigan women are foolish enough to believe that the republican legislature intended to give them a chance to vote, they are not wise enough yet for the ballot. The municipal suffrage act was merely a little meaningless "taffy." The legislature knew that the way to give the women the right to vote was to amend the Constitution and they intended that the supreme court should kill the women suffrage act, as it undoubtedly will.—Petoskey Democrat.

The Livingston Democrat confronts the Republican of the same town with some hard facts on the matter of prices, the latter of course claiming the present low prices being due to fear of change of the tariff. The Democrat, taking the figures from the Republican's market, says that just after the passage of the McKinley bill wheat sold for 96 cents and the day before the last Presidential election, sold for 70c. The Democrat's club knocked the Republican man out of the ring.

The Kalamazoo Telegraph complains that the democratic majority in congress is not returning the generosity of the republicans in kind. It thinks the democrats should concede a good deal on account of the willingness of the republicans to vote for the repeal of the Sherman act. Does it think they should be paid for being patriotic? The repeal of the Sherman act is a national and not a party measure. Besides the republicans passed the law and should be willing to remove the evils they have inflicted upon the country for the reward of a good conscience.—Times Press.

The state tax levy for the years 1893 and 1894, according to a recent announcement by Auditor General Turner, aggregate $3,620,850.58. This is the largest direct tax ever levied by any state administration for the expenses of the government for two years. The next largest levy was in 1887 and 1888, during the first term of Gov. Luce, when the total levy for the biennial period was $3,408,551.20. It is, however, when compared with the Democratic administration of 1891 and 1892, when but $2,863,051.22 was levied, or $757,799.36 less, that the difference is apparent.—Cheboygan Democrat.

A DISPATCH from Washington, says the Democratic members of the ways and means committee are making progress with the tariff bill. The ground-work is understood to be free raw materials, with compensatory reductions in other directions. Chairman Wilson is said to be puzzled over the demand of many Democrats in his state for the retention of the coal and iron duties, but he looks to other schedules where reductions will more than up any loss, real or anticipated. As an instance of compensatory reduction several staples in Michigan are cited. Here are largely produced iron, copper, salt and lumber. There is also talk that in making reductions that sufficient duty will be levied to yield a revenue to the increase importations, affording more money than the present tariff. But the increase of the free list will offset this increase in duties by reducing the duty on articles to the revenue point. The customs revenues with the present internal revenues taxes will not, therefore, suffice to meet the increased expenditures, even if the sinking fund is not provided for. There is a growing impression that the deficit will be met by an increase in internal revenue taxes on whisky and tobacco. This matter is in the hands of a sub-committee, of which Mr. McMillen, of Tennessee, is the chairman. Secretary Carlisle is understood to favor an increase in the case of whisky to $1.10 per gallon, calculating that each cent of tax added to the present tax, ninety cents, will afford a million dollars additional revenue. Nothing has as yet been decided upon, the members of the committee insist, but it seems to be the feeling that if the present idea that controls the committee prevails this will be the outcome.

The underlying principle of the protective tariff is dishonesty. Appeals in its behalf are always made to the sordid qualities of man. Certain classes desire to get more for their products than they would obtain under the free operation of the law of supply and demand, and so they set up false pretenses for the obstruction of trade by taxation. They want to get something for nothing out of their fellow men, and so pervert the entire purpose of honest government, which is the greatest good of all, into a machine for special benefits to a class.—Jackson Patriot.

Cause And Effect.

In the campaign of last year a direct issue was made on the tariff question, and one of the arguments widely used by the national republican committee was addressed specially to workingmen as follows:

"Protect your homes! Free trade reduces wages! Free trade will close American manufactures. Free trade serves the interests of Europe.

"Protection insures fair wages and regular employment. Protection serves the interests of this country.

"These are the issues."

As with every other high tariff enacted since 1816, when protection for the first time was made the leading purpose of tariff legislation, the McKinley act of 1890 has been followed by hard times. This is a logical result of taxing the people to prevent trade and to benefit monopolies. Sheltered by the tariff 157 trusts are now rifling the pockets of consumers. We do not claim that the tariff is the sole cause of present troubles. Combined with its twin evil, the gold unit of value, we find in both these eastern methods, now dominant in legislation, enough to bring disaster to the most productive and prosperous country on earth.

What is the result to workingmen in protected industries? Thousands upon thousands are out of employment, and yet for every economic law upon the statute books the republican party is responsible. It wiped out silver as a standard money, and increase taxes in both state and nation. It impaired trade by placing higher taxes on the exchange of the products of labor and established the gold unit of value. It is under the operation of such laws that present financial troubles have come.

Go back to 1877 and is it not a matter of history that since then labor troubles have been on the increase? Labor has been compelled to organize for self-protection. The protection promised by the tariff utterly failed. Wherein could the condition of workmen be worse than it has been and is under the highest protection ever enacted by a civilized country? The idea that legislation which may or may not take place in the future is responsible for present conditions is absurd. Causes are found in the past and not in the future.—Jackson Patriot.

A CONTRAST.

The Condition of the Treasury at Two Periods.

When Grover Cleveland, at the close of his four years' administration in 1889, handed over the administration to Benjamin Harrison, there was a large surplus in the treasury, the one-hundred-million gold reserve was intact, and no one dreamed of a necessity for the issue of bonds or the suspension of gold payments.

With the national finances in this satisfactory condition, with business active employment well supplied the country prosperous, what a splendid opportunity was at the command of a political party holding full possession of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government.

The economical expenditures that had been established though four years of clean administration, and the increasing treasury surplus, put it in the power of the government to at once reduce taxation and relieve the people of the heavy burden they had so long borne unnecessarily. The confidence of capital, the easy circumstances of the general people and the healthy condition of trade suggested a wise and liberal policy of reciprocity with other nations and progress and improvement at home. The efficiency and integrity of the public service made easy a practical civil service reform, which would have ensured capacity and fidelity in all the branches of government.

How did the Republican party with the Presidency, the Senate and the House of Representatives in their hands, use these advantages, the fruits of four years of honest Democratic administration?

When Benjamin Harrison, at the close of his term in 1893, handed over the government to Grover Cleveland, the treasury was bankrupt, every dollar of the surplus had disappeared, the one-hundred-million gold reserve had been encroached upon, a deficiency existed, and a confiscation of the reserve and an issue of bonds seemed inevitable.

What different condition the country was in then to that prevailing in 1889. Under the peril of national bankruptcy capital had become alarmed, business was suspended, labor was thrown into idleness, the banks closed their vaults, fear prompted hoarding there was a currency famine and ruin to star the nation in the face.

How different was the task before the Democratic party on the 4th of last March from the prospect before the Republican party in 1889. It had to labor to save the country from disaster, instead of enjoying the opportunity to lead it on to a prosperity greater than it ever reached before. With the Presidency and House of Representatives in its hands, but with a meager majority in the Senate, it was called upon to stop the downward career of business and credit, and to avert national financial ruin.

The Democratic administration has not flinched from the work and thus far has done well, but the labor is Herculean, and it is embarrassed in the most important step, by the unpatriotic action of the Senate minority. But it has thus far guided the national finances safely through the troubled waters into which incapacity, charity and dishonesty had led them. The reserve has been protected, no bonds have been issued, and the government has sturdily proclaimed its determined to maintain the national honor and credit by gold payments.

There are yet obstructions and difficulties in the way of entirely restored confidence and prosperity although under Mr. Cleveland's wise and firm administration no one can doubt eventual success. But, when the condition of the country at the close of Mr. Cleveland's first administration is contrasted with its condition when Mr. Harrison retired from office, how farcical it appears that anyone should scribe the existing business and financial troubles to Democratic success and not to Republican rule.—New York Evening World.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spotsylvania C. H., Va.

The New York Weekly World $1.00 per year, Subscriptions received at the HERALD Office.

Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Goodale leave to-morrow for Colorado, where they expect to spend the winter.

The fireman's ball at the opera house last evening was well attended and a most enjoyable time was had.

A very enjoyable time was had at the apron social given by the ladies of the Baptist church last Saturday evening.

Mrs. C. D. Hale, Mrs. Keavy, Mrs. Hubble, and Miss Pauline Biszette, are among the World's Fair visitors this week.

Rev. C. B. Steel moved his family to Detroit yesterday. During their three year residence here, Mr. and Mrs. Steel have made many friends here who wish them prosperity in their new home.

Deputy Sheriff, of Bay City, Rivard who is also one of the deputy game wardens, was in town a few days last week. While here complaint was made to him against Charles and Nathaniel Bertch for shooting partridge out of the season, also of training a dog on partridge. Warrants were sworn out for their arrest.

Michigan Crop Report.

Lansing Mich., Oct. 3.—The report of the Michigan weather bureau for the past week shows a mean temperate of 10 degrees below the normal. Rain has fallen in all sections, but the average for the state is less than half an inch. The crop reports are as follows:

Northern section—The weather during the past week has been dry and cold, with frosty nights. Farmers have been mostly busy with fall work, digging potatoes and husking corn. Considerable seeding has been done. Frosts damaged tender vines and plants, and in some counties damaged potatoes. Pastures are improving steadily. A fair crop of potatoes will be secured in Mason county and in the Upper Peninsula.

But slight changes have occurred in the conditions of the crops since last week. Reports indicate that potatoes, corn, buckwheat and beans will be short. The area sown to wheat is small on account of the drought and hardness of the ground. All kinds of fruit, except apples have had a good season, and the yield is largely in excess of an average crop.

Young Cattle in The Fall.

There are live stock men, a good many in all, who make but little effort to have their young cattle keep up a steady gain. These men feed well at some periods, but supply only an inferior quality and a scanty quantity of food at others. Their animals gain flesh at one time only to lose it at another. Growth is also made irregularly; sometimes it is rapid, at other times it is entirely suspended. It requires but little knowledge of animal physiology to show one that a course producing such results cannot be profitable to the owner of the animals. Experience, too, that able but costly teacher, has plainly indicated that in order to obtain the best returns from young cattle it is necessary that they be constantly kept in a thrifty condition.

In the fall many young cattle that have gained rapidly during the summer cease growing and even fail to hold their own, as far as flesh is concerned. This, because they are kept too long in the summer pastures. However luxuriant the grass may have been early in the summer, it is not very abundant or very nutritious late in the fall. A considerable proportion of the grass which has not been used has, with the approach of maturity, become hard and unpalatable, while that of more recent growth has been badly injured by the autumn frosts. Consequently, young cattle that are kept in the summer pastures "until snow flies," or anywhere near that period, have a hard time during the last weeks of their stay. Their owner would also have a hard time if he attempted to figure out any profit from keeping the stock in this manner.

Cows usually have much better care than the young cattle receive. The owner thinks that the latter are hardy, and that they will do a good deal toward looking after themselves. But he knows that if the former are not fed well every day there will be a decided falling off in the quantity of milk which they will yield. This will make a diminished income, the effect of which will be felt promptly and severely. In order that such an unpleasant consequence may be avoided, the grass in the pastures is supplemented by green fodder, which the owner grows for the purpose, or by hay or grain. In making provision for the needs of his cows the owner does well. If he would be equally careful in looking after the interests of his young cattle he would enlarge the sphere of his profitable action.

In many cases the young cattle are kept at such a distance from the barn as to make it unadvisable to attempt to supply extra food while they are in the summer pastures. In such instances the animals should be taken to the home fields at a reasonably early time and be fed from the stacks or the barn. Keeping them in the pastures up to the latest possible moment will save a little straw and hay, but it will prevent a gain which might easily be secured. This is equivalent to a loss, though it comes in an indirect manner. In many cases there is, in addition to this, an actual decline in value, thus practically making two losses on the same animals. They are losses, too, which, as they are easily preventable, no farmer should allow himself to sustain.—American Farmer.

ADOLPHSTINHART,

JOHN ALLEN'S VICTORY.

A Bad Case Made Good by a Profound Opinion from the Classics.

"Private John Allen," of Mississippi, who became the wit of the House of Representatives with the death of Sumner, tells a good story on himself of how he came to be a profound lawyer.

A party of members were telling yarns in the cloak room of the House, and when Allen's turn came he told this one:

"I want to tell you of the greatest legal victory of my life," said Allen, as he lighted a cigar and propped his feet against the wall in true Southern style. "It was down in Tupelo, during the trying period just after the war. I was at that time a practicing lawyer—that is, I practiced whenever I had any cases to practice with. One day old 'Uncle' Pompey, one of the old negroes of the settlement, came into my office and said:

"Mars John, I want's you to clear me. Ise gwine to be 'rested for stealin' of two hams out'en de cross road store."

"Well, Pompey," I asked, "did you steal the hams?"

"Mars John, I just took 'em."

"Did any one see you?" I asked.

"Yar, Boss," said the old negro, desolately, "two old white buckra's."

"Well, Pompey," I replied, "I can't do any thing for you under the circumstances."

"Now, Mars John," said old Pompey, "here's ten dollars. I just want you to try."

"Well, I consented to try," said Allen. "The case was to be heard before an old magistrate named Johnson. He was totally uneducated, and was moreover a perfect dictator; and no negro ever came before him who was not fined the maximum penalty and sent to his field to expiate the crime in the sweat of his brow.

"The magistrate heard the case. Every possible proof was brought to show that Pompey stole the hams. There could be no doubt of it from the testimony. I did not put a single question to any of the witnesses, but when the testimony was all in I arose, and in my most dignified manner addressed the magistrate:

"May it please your Honor, it would be useless for me to argue the position he holds, and before one who would adorn the Superior if not the Supreme Court bench of this grand old Commonwealth. And I may say that those who know you best say that you would grace even the Supreme Court of the United States, the highest tribunal in the land. It will be useless to dwell upon the testimony. You have heard it, and know the case as well as I do. However, it may not be out of order for me to call your Honor's attention to a short passage in the old English law, which clearly decides this case, and which, for the moment, your Honor may have forgotten."

"Then I fished down into my pocket and drew forth, with a great flourish, an old copy of 'Julius Caesar.' I opened it with great dignity to the first page and read the line which is familiar to every school boy: 'Omnia Gallia in partes tres divisa est.' 'That decides the case,' said I, throwing the book upon the table. 'That clearly acquits the defendant.'

"With great dignity and solemnity I then took my seat. The old magistrate was completely nonplussed. He looked at me a moment quizzically and scratched his head. Then turning to Pompey, he raised himself to his full height and said:

"Pompey, I know you stole them hams, but by the ingenuity of your lawyer I've got to let you go. Git out," said he, as he planted his No. 9 in the seat of Pompey's pants, "and if you ever come here again, lawyer or no lawyer, you git six months."—Atlanta Constitution.

An Oscoda man and his wife were caught stealing potatoes. The man jumped the town, but the woman stayed at home, was arrested, paid her fine, paid for the potatoes, and has sent her husband money to pay his return fare.—Free Press.

All the indications point to limited operations in the woods the ensuing winter, and very few camps have been started in the Saginaw district. Lumbermen who derive their supplies from the Georgian bay have nearly all started camps there.

Rev. Munday, of Alpena, was awakened by the crash of glass, and investigation disclosed the fact that a ruffed grouse had come in through one of the transom lights over the front door. But for his dog the gentleman could have had a game breakfast, but the animal swallowed the bird whole.

Wm. Mitchel has a castor oil plant on his premises that would be a credit to a tropical country. Planted in June it has reached a height of nearly six feet. The monstrous leaves are from a foot to two feet wide and one measured 23 inches across. The stalk at its base is 2 1/2 inches in diameter. It is an object of curiosity to all who see it and ought to go to the fair.—Harrisville Review.

A. W. Wright lumber company will cut 15,000,000 feet of logs in Roscommon county and bring them by rail to Saginaw. Col. Bliss will also lumber near Coleman. The firm of Charles Merrill & Co. usually put in 22,000,000 feet on the the Molasses river in Gladwin county, and on the Twin Lake branch, and will put in enough to stock their mill. These are about the only firms left at that end of the Saginaw river that own timber to great extent in the Saginaw district.—Bay City Times Press.

A few weeks ago a band saw in the South Manistique mill broke and coiled partly around Grideon Grisdale's head, cutting through the scalp, the skull, and penetrating the brain so that some of his gray matter escaped, the wound extending from temple to temple. The surgeons said he could not live, but for the purpose of making the funeral more attractive, drew the scalp over the canyon in his skull, and sewed it up. At no time was Grisdale wholly unconscious, and he commenced to gain in a remarkably short time, and is now able to go out for a walk.—Cheboygan Democrat.

BALD HEADS

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald.

SKOOKUM ROOT HAIR GROWER

Is what you need. Its production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Knowledge of the diseases of the hair and scalp led to the discovery of how to treat them. "Skookum" contains neither minerals nor oils. It is not a dye, but a delightfully cooling and refreshing Tonic. By stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads. Keep the scalp clean, healthy and free from irritating eruptions, by the use of Skookum Skin Soap. It destroys parasitic insects, which feed on and destroy the hair. If your druggist cannot supply you, send direct to us, and we will forward prepaid, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; 6 for $5.00. Soap, 50c per jar; 6 for $2.50.
