Fattening Cattle on Potatoes.

The probabilities of a very large crop of potatoes, not only on this continent but in some of the countries of the world as well, will result in low prices for that commodity.

In view of this, and of the poor-ness of some of the grain crops in places, the coming winter will afford an excellent opportunity for feeders to experiment with cooked potatoes as part of the ration for fattening cattle. As will be remembered, in our last issue we gave an account of the successful results obtained by M. Girard, a French feeder, in his experiment with cooked potatoes as a feed for fattening both cattle and sheep. In the ration which he fed, no grain was used at all, only potatoes and hay and a little salt, the proportions per head, per day, for cattle being, potatoes 55 lbs. 1 3/4 oz, chopped hay 6 lbs. 9 3/4 oz, long hay 13 lbs. 3 3/4 oz. The preparation of the feed was done by spreading successive layers of hay and potatoes sufficient for the whole lot of cattle for one day, mixing them with a shovel, and allowing the mixture to remain in a heap. A slight fermentation was thus created, and the animals eat it greedily. The long hay was fed by itself.

The gains made by the cattle were surprising, when we consider that no grain at all was fed. The experiment lasted from the beginning of November, '94, till January 6th, '95, and the increases of weight per animal ranged from 172 lbs. to 180 lbs, while the percentage of carcass to live weight averaged from 56.92 per cent in the case of three of the cattle to 61.94 in the case of three others. The sheep, too, gave excellent returns. The carcasses of these averaged from 52.87, in the case of two sheep, to 55.12 per cent in the case of two others.

Another feature was the excellence of the meat, which for quality was considered equal to the best grass-fed beef, and gave a large percentage of lean. It must be borne in mind that the potatoes were cooked for the cattle; and that far poorer results were obtained when raw potatoes were fed by M. Girard to a pen of sheep during the period of this experiment.

The results obtained are certainly very encouraging, and feeders who have potatoes to spare, or who can buy them cheaply, should try this ration on a small scale this winter. Those doing so will confer a benefit on us if they will report the results.—Farming.

A BAD STORM

Passed Over this Vicinity Tuesday Night.

One of the worst wind storms ever known here occurred last Tuesday night, the wind continuing to blow a hurricane for over an hour. Much damage to buildings, trees, fences, etc., being done. The house of Richard Evans, of East Tawas, was blown off its foundation, and badly wrecked, also one belonging to Joseph Blust, on the Meadow road. The large barn of William Mills, on the Townline road, was blown down. The barn was filled with crops, and the loss is estimated at $1,000. Several other barns and buildings on the Townline road were blown down.

At the fair ground several stalls, a large amount of the fence and a portion of the roof of the grand stand was blown off.

Several thousand feet of lumber was blown from the H. & E. L. Co.'s dock into the bay, but nearly all washed ashore and was recovered.

The smoke stacks was blown off the plaining mills in both Tawas City and East Tawas, and many chimneys were blown down in the two cities, and shade and fruit trees were broken and uprooted in large numbers.

So far as reported the damage done to vessels was very light. One loaded schooner at Alabaster, received a severe pounding, but escaped serious damage. A few others had their sails and top masts carried away.

One of the remarkable things about the storm was the fact that it lowered the water in the bay nearly four feet.

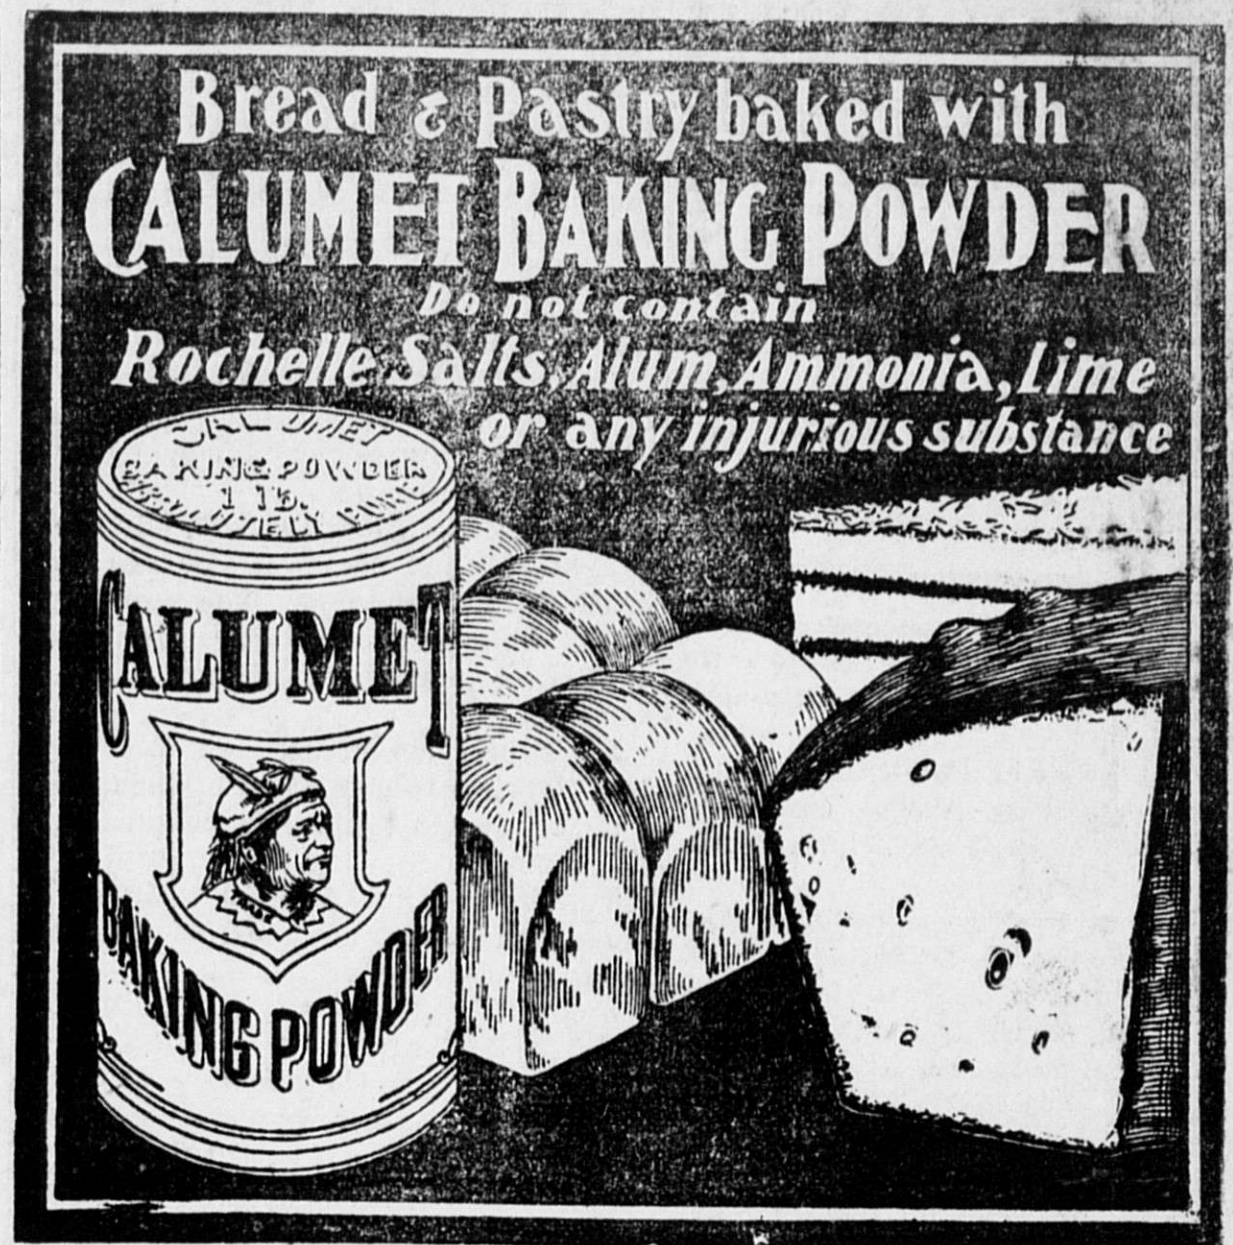

The damage done in this locality will amount to several thousand dollars.

Care of Orchards.

Now that autumn is approaching, we should not fail to see that our orchards are in proper condition to enter the winter. It is presumed the pruning has been done in the proper season and the water sprouts removed. Also the cultivating, fertilizing and mulching, was, as it should be, done early in the summer; and from now we should not encourage any new growth, as the tender shoots are liable to be winter-killed.

I find it a very good practice to cover the ground, as far out as the limbs extend, with strawy manure, when the ground is hard frozen in winter. This is especially good for pears, peaches and the Japan plums, as it keeps them from blooming too early in spring.

Just now the eggs that produce the borer need our attention. They are deposited on the trunk near the ground, and sometimes just below the surface. I wash the trees with a good strong soap suds, make of one quart of soft soap to a gallon of water. Use this wash from the limbs to the ground, and very few eggs will escape this treatment. Any time in September, examine the trunks carefully near the ground, and if any borer has commenced work, there will be a small particle which looks like sawdust will have worked out. Probe this opening with a fine sharp pointed wire and you will kill the worm, or turn the end of the wire to form a small hook, and you can draw the destroyer from his workshop. If one of these borers should remain in a young tree during the winter, it might as well be dug out and a new tree planted in its place, for the trunk will be so badly damaged that when it come into bearing, it will be easily broken by winds.—Michigan Farmer.

CRIMSON clover makes a growth of two feet, and is a thing of beauty in its garb of red and green. It is a winter crop, and should be sown in July, August or September, and it can be cut for soiling by the 20th of the next April or it will yield a hay crop 20 days later and by the last of May will yield a seed crop.

ACCORDING to late reports, Europe has the largest apple crop in years. It was generally believed up to a late date that at least a part of our enormous apple crop would profitably find its way to European markets. A leading London fruit firm, which compiles statistics of this character, has just issued its annual circular to its correspondents. The outlook for Europe they detail as follows: England has the largest crop seen for many years, which is very evenly distributed all over the country. Both Holland and Belgium have large crops that are looking exceedingly well. France and Germany, too, report very good apple crops, and so does Italy. From the foregoing it practically declares there is no room for American apples, except limited quantities of their fancy sorts, such as Kings, Newton Pippins, Golden Russets, Ribstones, Gravensteins and large Greenings. It is, therefore, evident that low prices are assured for those that go abroad, as well as those sold here.

JOSEPH B. WALKER, of the New Hampshire forestry commission says: "It is now the opinion of all intelligent owners of forest property that the present methods of lumbering are faulty, and may be improved to the profit of all parties interested therein. That so far as possible every acre should be kept adequately covered with growing trees. That all forest products should be harvested from time to time as they mature. That, when properly managed, forest property will yield sure and fair returns and form a desirable investment of capital." Which is more good sense than forestry "experts" are usually capable of uttering. There is no doubt, there is a time in the life of a tree when its timber is better and more useful than either before or after. Then is the time it should be cut. We know of a number of tracts of oak timber in the older counties of the state, which have been left standing so long as to greatly depreciate their value. They would have brought more money to their owners ten or fifteen years ago.—Ex.

Splendid Occupation for Boys.

The breeding and rearing of fine fowls is a business which, if carried on successfully, must be attended to in detail. Success in all kinds of business is secured by attention to detail. The man who succeeds acquires his impression and habits in youth, and where is there a branch of industry so well calculated to stimulate a boy and which will impress him with the importance of attending to every particular department of the business more than raising fine poultry?—Farmers' Voice.

They Get But Half.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 17.—A very important opinion affecting fees in connection with the new state game and fish laws has been handed down by the attorney general. One clause of the law provides that residents of the state shall pay a license fee of 50 cents if they wish to hunt deer. There seemed to be a disposition on the part of county clerks to gobble this little rake off, which will amount to about $5,000, as it is estimated 10,000 licenses will be taken out by resident hunters.

County Clerk Smith, of Mason county, wrote the attorney general for an opinion, and the latter holds that one-half of the sum shall be paid to the county treasurer, where the license is issued, and the other half to the state treasurer, to be used in defraying the expenses of the game warden and his deputies for enforcing the law. The same disposition is made of the $25 tax paid by foreign hunters.

Another opinion handed down is in relation to who shall bear the expense of poor persons sent to the home for feeble minded and epileptic at Lapeer. In some instances townships care for their poor, regardless of the county. A case came up where such a person was sent to the home, and the expense charged to the county. The township had a fund, but refused to settle, and the attorney general was asked for a construction of the law. He holds that the expense is a charge against the county in all cases.

Character and Physical Conditions.

Perhaps, after all, in our pursuit of harmony in our lives, we are not paying enough attention to physical conditions. Science pretends to have made great progress in interpreting the relations of body and mind. We have, on the one hand, the advocates of physical culture as the reconciliation of our disordered faculties, and on the other the zealots, who have a mind cure for every physical ill and disturbance. Training and diet for a specific and temporary purpose, like football contests or the ordeal of oratorical competition, we are familiar with. But anything like a broad scientific study of the results of specific diet has hardly been attempted. There are certain popular notions afloat on the subject, as that fish and celery are good for the brain. The moral reformers have forced us to consider the properties of tea, coffee, and alcohol, and the physicians unite in condemning or commending at different times the same article of diet in relation to the health of patients. But the effect of different kinds of food upon people in a normal condition, upon the power or quality of their brain work, upon their dispositions, upon husband's treatment of their wives, is hardly considered. We blunder along till we reach middle life, experimenting without any scientific programme, and at last, when the game is almost over, begin to learn what to avoid, and so mitigate the failures of our remaining years. We do not treat horses this way, or cows, or dogs from whom we expect any intelligent service in hunting.

We know that some plants are stimulants and some are narcotics; there is a belief even among savages that certain articles of food give courage and others make the eaters chicken-hearted. There is good reason to suppose that every sort of food vegetable or animal, has an action as specific as what we call drugs have, and a specific relation to human quality and capacity. We calculate roughly that such a thing is indigestible, or that another article of diet increases nervousness—the special disease of this period of time. But we do not study what diet will make a man kind, or truthful, or a lyric poet, or an honest historian, or a disinterested politician. We have got so far as to see that we much discriminate about medicines, but it would be as reasonable to expect a dozen persons with as many maladies to go to the drug shop and swallow the same kind of doses as is the spectacle of a dozen people at a dinner table, all unequal in mental gifts and habits and in physical status, helplessly eating the same things.

This demoralization of the taste is probably a sign of a deeper insensibility. We may not be able now to prove that a bad egg will produce a bad man; it may be that only a bad man will eat a bad egg; but as we know that a man's disposition is affected by what he eats, and that much of the evil in life comes from bad digestion, it is a fair inference that moral and intellectual qualities are transmitted in food. It is the business of science to make better men and women. It gives itself great airs about heredity, but hitherto has done little in the investigation of the subtle causes of the so-called hereditary qualities in our consuming relations to the animal and vegetable world.—Harper's Magazine.

CHURCH NEWS.

The church of England has for 83 years spent $45,000 a week upon her schools.

The Catholic Young Men's Mission National Union, is to hold its twenty-first annual convention, Sept. 24 and 25, at St. Louis.

Two thousand three hundred and ninety-six of Spurgeon's sermons have been printed, and their total sale has reached nearly one hundred million copies. And the demand is still large.

According to the recent edition of Batten's Directory, New York leads the list of states in the number of its religious publications, the number being 162. Pennsylvania comes next, with 147, and Illinois third, with 104. Idaho is the only section of the Union that is not credited with any.

Bishop Schereschewsky, although aged and infirm, is returning to China, where he was so long missionary and then Bishop, for the purpose of Superintending the work of printing his translation of the Holy Scriptures into the Wen-Li, the literary and unspoken language of China.

A Buddhist magazine in Japan prophesies that the greatest movement of the twentieth century will be an invasion of the East with "great armies of Christian missionaries backed up by the wealth of Christendom." It then proceeds to exhort all Buddhist to arouse themselves to meet this invasion.

The Established church of Scotland has contributed to the cost of evangelization in the home department about $330,000. At the present time 198 ministers and missionaries, said to be the largest number ever reported upon, are receiving aid from the fund also twenty-four churches and halls have been built or enlarged.

There is nothing narrow of sectarian in the pledge taken at the Baltimore convention of the Baptist Young People's Union, recently held. Listen to it: "I take God to be my father; I take Christ to be my Saviour; I take the Holy Spirit to be my guide; I take the Bible to be the rule of my faith and action; I take God's people to be my people, and God, being my helper, I will strive to win one soul to Christ during the coming year."

JAMES LA BERGE, EAST TAWAS.

A new temperance society, under the supervision of leading medical men, has been formed in France, the members of which propose to study the means of extirpating alcoholism, to exterminate its effects to propagate a knowledge of the evil in all social centers, to group the greatest possible number of citizens together who wish its disappearance, to raise public opinion against it, to set an example of temperance by abstaining from alcoholic drink and to teach children the principles of temperance.

From the time to its conception down to date the Y. P. S. C. E. has been condemned from some quarters as being detrimental to the church. There are those who still hold that it tends to turn the thoughts and activities of the young folk away from the customary channels of church life into less definite and less tried lines of religious life. A London paper recently decided to feel the pulse of public opinion on this much-mooted question, and so invited its readers to answer the question, "Does the C. E. Hurt the Church?" The result was that for four weeks the columns of the religious paper mentioned, were filled with interesting replies from ministers and Christian workers all over England. There was a unanimous indorsement of the movement, for out of several hundred letters published only three were against the Y. P. S. C. E.

The Art of Pleasing.

To please is an art which all girls should acquire. If a girl would study the likes and dislikes of her friends and those who surround her, each one would find in her very companionable if not interesting company. If a friend is an enthusiast on any subject and enjoys talking about it, she should, while in his company, try to be interested in what he says; and if she cannot converse on the subject, because of lack of knowledge, she should at least try to prove a very interested listener. Nothing seems to flatter a person so much as appreciative listeners and undivided attention. To laugh when the speaker laughs and to be serious when he is serious in his conversation, lies the charm of being agreeable.

No matter how pretty a child may be, if she is not interesting company, her friends are few and far between. If a friend is especially pleased to see you in a certain dress, or enjoys hearing you play a favorite piece of music why not indulge him in his notion? It will add so much to his estimation of you. Of course there are people who could never be pleased; no matter what was done for them it could not satisfy. Such persons you will not discover; be indifferent if you wish, but do not immediately turn about and show your disagreeable side, because that would only tend to make things worse.

If a girl would read, not indiscriminately, but with a view to obtain a varied knowledge of things past, present, and future, so that an intelligent conversation may not be utterly foreign to her, it would be a wonderful aid toward attraction.

If a girl plays an instrument well, if she sings sweetly, or can be a help in any way in the entertainment of company, let her not have a refusal ready when asked to contribute her share. It is very tiresome to coax and be coaxed, and as for the company, they will not form a very flattering opinion of you, be assured.—Prarie Farmer.

How Dr. Miles' Nervine Restored One of Kentucky's Business Men to Health.

NO DISEASE has ever presented so many peculiarities as LaGrippe. No disease leaves its victims so debilitated, useless, sleepless, nerveless, as LaGrippe. Mr. D. W. Hilton, State agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Kentucky, says: "In 1889 and '90 I had two severe attacks of LaGrippe, the last one attacking my nervous system with such severity that my life was despaired of. I had not slept for more than two months except by the use of narcotics that stupefied me, but gave me no rest. I was only conscious of intense mental weakness, agonizing bodily pain and the fact that I was hourly growing weaker. When in this condition, I commenced using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In two days I began to improve and in one month's time I was cured, much to the surprise of all who knew of my condition. I have been in excellent health since and have recommended your remedies to many of my friends." Louisville, Jan. 22, 1895. D. W. HILTON.

Married, Wednesday evening, Sept. 18, 1895, Rev. S. G. Taylor to Miss Henretta Eickhoff, at the bride's parents by Rev. J. J. Willits. The happy couple left on the train for Cheboygan, where the revered gentleman will preach for the ensuing year. A large circle of friends extend congratulations.—Graying News.

Last Friday, Daniel Wright, an old gentleman who has for some time been an inmate of the county house, was gored by a bull, in such a manner that he died Monday. It appears that he was in the habit of teasing the animal, and had repeatedly been told not to do so, but failed to heed the warning. He was 79 years of age.

Those who were not present at the Congregational church last Wednesday evening, missed what they will not have a chance of hearing again in many a day. The concert given by the Mehan Lady Quartette, was beyond question the finest musical entertainment ever given in this city. The well trained voices of the ladies blended together in perfect harmony, which could not fail to please all lovers of sweet music.

They will burn a kiln of 60,000 brick as an experiment, and if they prove as good in quality as present indications indicate, they will continue the manufacture on a large scale. The experiment is being watched with much interest, and should it prove a success, Tawas City will have an industry which will be of much benefit to her.

Alderman J. W. King of the third ward is authority for the statement that a certain physician from Alcona county, is in this city, and has a horse that can throw dust in the eyes of anything in this locality. We doubt it.

The following from an exchange applies so favorably to Tawas City, that we hope at least a portion of our people will profit by reading it: "Either run a town with or just sell out and leave it," says an exchange. "Men who are all the time trying to get out of town will never build up the town or their own business. One or two things must be done—run the town for all it is worth, get up steam and keep it up, or quit the whole thing, slide out and let nature take its course. Do you want trade? Bid for it. Do you want a prosperous town where people can come who are disposed to make homes? Then do away with personal feeling, and view a man on his merits, whether he be a saloon keeper, a lawyer, or a clerk; bury from sight all spite work; work no more for the interest of a few individuals, but all work together for a mutual benefit. Don't work with fear and trembling, but take it for granted that blood will tell.
