There is one matter wherein the county newspaper labors at a disadvantage in time of money stringency as compared with the manufacturer. The publisher never finds time when he can shut down his plant and lay off his employes, excepting when he reaches a point where he becomes a "busted commodity," so to speak. The paper must be turned out every week and the expense continues right on just the same as when money was plentiful.—Lyons Herald.
Taumer Terpinning, a farmer living six miles out of Brown City, while out hunting Saturday met with a very serious accident which may prove fatal. The breech pin of his gun was blown out while shooting, striking him in the forehead, tearing out a piece of his skull as large as a twenty-five cent piece and exposing his brain. He walked to his house over a mile distant from the accident, hitched up his rig and drove six miles for treatment, remaining conscious until one mile from town. Doctors say there are some hopes of his recovery.
Mud is the newest skin beautifier, the latest fad for the improvement of the complexion. The use and application of common, every-day, unromantic mud, is one which the summer girl has reviewed. Not a new thing, by any means, this daubing of the face and throat with dampened earth, but new to a great many people. The early settlers borrowed this mud idea from the Indians, who valued it for its medical effect. The mud treatment costs nothing, and is far more healthful than a series of Turkish baths. The principal is precisely that of the facial mask, both of the ancient Roman times and the present day,

There is nothing very startling or new in the latest fashions. Sleeves are worn smaller at the top and wrinkled at the wrist, even when the material is a heavy one. Skirts are not quite so simple, but a goodly number are pleated in front as well as the back. The favorite materials for this winter are double cashmere and hopsack. The favorite color, scarlet.
A BOY WANTED.
A play of this name is coming and the boy represented on the paper is one with his hat on the side of his head and a cigar in his mouth pointing upwards in the direction of a leering eye. This may be the style of boy wanted in some places, but if any youth imagines there are many places where that type of boy is demanded, let him rig himself out thus and call on the business men of this city and the other towns in the vicinity. He will soon discover that he is not wanted outside of a saloon, and we doubt if he would be allowed behind the bar there. If the demand is active, that type of a boy may be employed to pile slabs, split wood or drive a horse, when his employer or the foreman is around to watch him. In the other walks of life and when employment is scarce, the boy described will find himself terribly handicapped in the struggle of life.
What kind of a boy is wanted?
Looking at the culture the average boy is getting and the spirit of his environment, we feel reluctant to tell the truth and say the best type is not numerous enough to establish the certainty that is has a monopoly of the output. In relation to kinds of boys as well as kinds of apples, we feel that the demand regulates the supply, to quite an extent.
As a generality, something like the glittering generality expressed in relation to the quality of men in the declaration of independence, we say good boys are wanted; but what exertion is made to produce them? Every parent wants to produce that kind of a boy, if he has any sense of goodness himself, but many pay so little attention to the training of their children that the product is not of a very high quality. The boy is often left to his own environment and hereditary tendencies and meets with very little encouragement for the right kind of growth.
Suppose he has the right kind of a disposition and sets out to be clean, pure-minded, polite, courteous, and generous. The chances are about four to one that when he goes among other boys of his age he will be dubbed a "sissy," or something else indicative of contempt for refinement of manners and gentleness of disposition. The boy who swears, swaggers, and smokes cigarettes, as though he were conscious of his own degradation and anxious to reduce the general level of morality and refinement among his associates, derides those who abstain from such habits from a sense of their lowness and attempts with sneers and derision to induce them to descend to his level. A good deal of decision of character and moral courage are needed to enable a boy to hold resolutely on the way toward the attainment of refined and gentle manners and a clean, manly character, amid an environment that makes for degradation rather than refinement and uprightness. So many boys are left to fight this battle alone that the polite, courteous and generous boy is a good deal scarcer than he ought to be. Yet he is the boy that is first wanted, because he is the best disciplined boy, of the best habits, of the strongest will, of the most strength of character, as a general thing; for boy who yields the most readily to his environment when a boy will be the one with the weakest will and the most likely to succumb to evil influences and besetting opportunities and enticements when he enters the business world. He that rules himself is greater than he that overcometh a city, says the proverb. The boy that is wanted, is the boy who has himself under control of his will and whose

Compliments To Saginaw.

By the Ladies of Tawas City Who Were Here last Week.

The following is from the Saginaw Evening News, of Nov. 2:

The following letter just received by Mayor Baum is a pleasing acknowledgment of the enjoyment the D. & M. excursionists had here last week:

Tawas City, Oct. 30, '96. To Mayor Baum and the ladies of the reception committee, Saginaw:

The ladies of Tawas City, who so recently enjoyed the princely hospitality of the citizens of Saginaw, cannot allow the occasion to pass without some little acknowledgment of our appreciation of your many courtesies. To say that we enjoyed our visit to your beautiful city very feebly expresses our feelings. We thank you all most heartily.

We are especially proud to think that one who could so gracefully and intelligently give the address of welcome should be a woman, and we are sure that there was not one of that large audience but heard every syllable that Mrs. Estabrook uttered, and no one but carried away a pleasant recollection of her gentle womanly address.

Where to Economize.

A mother who was particularly successful in keeping her children at home evenings—so much so that it was with difficulty they could be induced to accept an invitation to spend an evening away from home—was asked if she had any particular secret to make home attractive. She replied that she could think of none except that she always kept her sitting room and parlors very light. "In the evening," she said, "we always have all the light we want; we put the gas on till both back and front parlors are brilliantly lighted, and then we keep the house comfortably warm all over. This is the only secret, if it is a secret." When the objection was made that this must be very expensive, she replied: Oh, well, we will economize in something else, if necessary, but a cheerful light in the evening will have."

Her remark was very suggestive, not only of the great difference between the cheerfulness of a well lighted house and the gloom of one where the light is poor and stunted, but of the choice there is in matters of economy. In these times nearly everyone has to study economy in some directions, but in family life it ought to be directed and exercised in anything rather than the curtailing of family comforts. This is especially true of food, warmth and comfortable clothing. Better to wear the plainest outside garments, better to have no extra suit, better to put up with the old and patched furniture, than to deprive of real comforts especially the children. Warmth and light are among the most essential of these. They are the attractions used by saloons and

Plenty of good, warm underclothing, good stockings, and stout, well-fitting shoes will make comfortable the plainest dress. If economy must be studied in children's clothing, let it be in the direction of reducing ruffles and trimmings and articles of outside show, and not in those things which give warmth and comfort.—The Interior.

MACEO SAFE.

Message Direct From His Camp.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—A special messenger from Cuba, who stopped in this city yesterday, brought the first reliable news from the camp of Gen. Maceo that has been received since Gen. Weyler left Havana for the front, two weeks ago.

Gen. Maceo sends greetings to his friends, and the friends of Cuba, and assures them that his band and himself are safe, and able, at least for a time, to take care of themselves, no matter what efforts the Spanish forces may make. The official message, which is directed to the New York junta and signed by Gen. Maceo, is as follows:

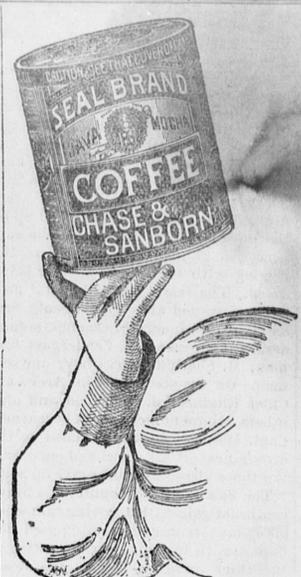

"We have withstood the enemy in many encounters, and are prepared for any move he may make. We have rendered him much injury, and will be able to withstand any of his attacks for some time to come. Assure our noble friends in the United States that the cause of liberty will not suffer in Pinar del Rio. To those who are friendly to our cause I send greeting."

It was dated at Maceo's camp, near Las Pozas, at the extreme western end of the Rubnic chain of mountains. The messenger, whose identity is concealed, saw the fight at Artemisa, which was reported as a great Spanish victory.

"One of the greatest of the Cuban victories was won at Artemisa," he said: "Maceo did not use his entire force against the Spaniards, but the latter, who numbered between 6,000 and 8,000, were driven back from the foothill and many of them were slain upon the hard plateau before the town. As night came on, Maceo ordered two batteries to the brow of the hill and shelled the town.

"Fires began in various places in the city and the effect of the cannonading was something wonderful. The two dynamite guns did fearful work, some of which I had a chance to witness a few days ago, when I passed through the city on my way to Havana.

"Artemisa was almost destroyed. You would be surprised at the work of our cannon. The walls of the city were torn apart and many of the big houses were completely demolished. I learned that many were killed during the four hours' bombardment. The loss of the enemy in the city alone was in the neighborhood of 150, according to those with whom I talked

Fox & Pennick have closed down their heading and stave mill for four weeks, while a new blower is being put in, to aid in the burning of the refuse from the mill.

The topic for the Christian Endeavor meetings next Sunday evening is, "How to get good out of trouble." Everyone is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Will Waterbury arrived at manhood's estate last Friday and celebrated the event by giving a number of his friends a pleasant birthday party at his home that evening. A most enjoyable time is reported.

While engaged in boring a well at Turner this week, W. D. Wingrove of this city struck at a depth of about 50 feet a fine vein of gypsum rock twelve feet in thickness. The bed lays between two layers of other rock and is easily mined. It promises to be a bonanza for Turner.

The Woodmen Circle Dramatic club, of Oscoda, which were advertised to appear at the East Tawas opera house last Wednesday evening, will be on hand Thursday evening, Dec. 3, and present the comedy, "The Afflicted Family." They have a good entertainment and should receive a good house.

Emil Buch's new market building is rapidly nearing completion, and will be a model of convenience. The rear end is built for an ice house, while the work room will be in the middle, and the market in the front, which with the large refrigerator will make one of the neatest and best arranged markets to be found any where.

When a man rushes wildly into a newspaper office to see the editor about an article that he imagines reflects on himself, and in five minutes comes limping out the door, with his ribs sticking out through his vest, his front teeth falling out, and a big gory spot where his left ear should be, you may safely conclude that he has seen him.

The country dealer may be very much "out of the way," the newspaper gets there and gets attended to. The canvasser may ring in vain, but the housekeeper is always "at home" to her favorite newspaper. The buyer may have been out of town that day, but somebody's advertisement was in his pocket, and before that advertisement gets down town, his ad has interviewed thousands of possible purchasers.

Will S. King, of East Tawas, was united in marriage to Miss Nellie Morgan, at the bride's home in Howell, yesterday. The happy couple will arrive at East Tawas, today, where their pleasant home is awaiting them. Will is one of the most popular young business men of East Tawas and a warm welcome awaits he and his bride, by his numerous friends. May they live long and prosper.

The revival services which have been conducted for the past two weeks by Rev. Hills, of Oberlin, Ohio, will close next Sunday. The services next Sunday will be held in the Baptist church. The meetings have been well attended and many have been converted. Mr. Hills is an able and earnest speaker and his efforts are sure to meet with success. He will conduct meetings at East Tawas for a few days after closing here.

If you have a home and are out of debt, don't fret and worry yourself and good wife into the grave for the sake of making money, sensibly says an exchange. You have but one life to live, and it is brief at best. Take a little pleasure and comfort as you go day by day, and do a little good to others. A morbid, insatiate desire to possess the earth, to grab everything in sight, is at the foundation of more misery than anyone thing. Wealth alone will never keep your memory green after you are gone; a good life and kind actions will.

F. Eugene Hale, of Caladonia, and Miss Elizabeth McLean, were married at the residence of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, in East Tawas, Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 25, Rev. J. H. Johnson, officiating. The contracting parties are both well and favorably known in the Tawas, the groom being for a number of years one of the leading merchants of East Tawas, removing to his present home about one year ago. The many friends of the happy couple join with the HERALD in extending to them the best wishes for a prosperous wedded life. They left for their future home on the evening train Wednesday.

Houses on Wheels.

Bycyclists need no longer dread the approach of rent day. Houses on wheels is the latest idea. According to an English cycle trade paper, an enterprising genius is at present busily engaged constructing a house with steel tubes, and a collapsible upper story for passing under bridges. It is said that the inventor hopes to have his wonderful machine "on the go" within a few weeks. The motive power is to be a paraffine, and, if you believe the builder, which probably some persons have done, there is any amount of possibility about his idea. Cyclists will doubtless await its development with much interest, although to the uninitiated that collapsible upper story appears as if it might prove a bit awkward at times.—National Recorder.

Midland Monthly.

"The Coming "First Lady in the Land," is the leading feature of the December Midland Monthly (Des Moines). Before the recent campaign closed the publishers of this popular magazine commissioned Mrs. C. F. McLean, of Cincinnati, to visit the McKinleys at Canton, and obtain pictures and date for a sketch of the then probable "First in the Land," and of her family and home. The visit was entirely successful, and the well written and profusely illustrated article in the December Midland is the result. A description by N. Tjernagel, with full page pictures, of Gethsemane, and the Mount of Olives; an illustrated sketch of Fairhope, the Alabama colony of single-taxers, by J. Bellange, the well-known single-taxer. A Christmas sketch of fifty years ago, a prize poem, stories of love and adventure, and an editorial sketch of "Ian Maclaren" are included in this number. Thus closes the sixth volume of the re-reputative magazine of the middle west.

Grant's Game of Mumble-the-Peg.

An old citizen of Gagetown, Ohio, relates the following incident: "A favorite game with the boys of John D. White's subscription school, at Georgetown, was mumble-the-peg. Grant couldn't play the game very skillfully, and the peg always got a few clandestine licks every time he was to pull it. On one occasion it was driven in so deep that the boys thought Lys could never get it out. He set to work with his forehead down in the dirt, the sun beating hot upon him; and the crowd of boys and girls shutting out every breath of fresh air. The peg would not move. The red-faced, shock-headed, thick-set boy, with his face now all over mud, has forgotten his comrades and saw only one thing in the world, that was this stubborn peg. The bell rang, but the boy did not hear it. A minute later, after a final effort, he staggered to his feet with the peg in his mouth. The old schoolmaster was in the door of the schoolhouse, with his long beech switch—the only person to be seen. There was glee inside at this new development—here was fun the boys had not counted on. Imagine their surprise when, as the boy came closer, and the stern old schoolmaster saw his face, he set down the switch inside the door and came outside. One boy slipped to the window, and reported to the rest. The old man was pouring water on Lys Grant's hands and having him wash his face. He gave him his red bandanna to wipe it dry. What the school saw a minute later was the schoolmaster coming in patting this very red and embarrassed boy on the head.—Howland Garland in McClure's Magazine for December.

A CHURCH WAR!

A Score of Heads Cracked in a Sunday Battle.

Bay City dispatches say that the rival factions of St. Stanislaus Polish Catholic church indulged in a pitch battle last Sunday afternoon, in which several persons were more or less injured.

High mass was celebrated at 10 o'clock, by Fr. Bogacki, in the presence of a crowded congregation. The priest took occasion to severely denounce the action of many members of the church, enemies of the former pastor, Fr. Mathowski, for purchasing several acres of land in their own names for a new cemetery. He characterized their action as open rebellion against the rules of the church, and assured them that Bishop Richter would never consecrate the ground.

The anti-Matkowski people became much excited over the firm words of the priest that those who had rebelled would never be allowed to see the books and papers, over which the dispute was started.

Fr. Bogacki was permitted to complete the services without disturbance but when he dismissed the audience and started for the parsonage next door, he was attacked by a large crowd who threw various small missiles at him and he was forced to take refuge in the church. The police were notified and upon arriving decided that it was best for him to remain in the church until the crowd dispersed.

At 2 o'clock the officers attempted to rush the priest from the rear of the church to the rear door of the residence. This precipitated a wholesale riot. Knives, clubs and stones were freely used. The priest was forced to return to the church where he was kept a prisoner for eight hours without food.

In the meantime the faction outside were engaged in a bloody battle in which many were seriously injured. The anger of the crowd was greatly incited by one of the priest's adherents appearing at the door of the parsonage and threatening the crowd with a drawn revolver. The prompt interference of the officers undoubtedly saved his life. As it was there came a shout to tear down the priest's residence, and the officer were barely able to stop the fury.

At 5:15 the crowd agreed to allow Fr. Bogacki to depart unmolested if he would leave the church premises, which he finally did, and by 7 o'clock in the evening comparative quiet was restored.

After the departure of Fr. Bogacki Mayor Wright addressed the crowd and induced the crowd to go home. Two officers were left to guard the priest's residence.

Fr. Bogacki was returned to his residence Monday and it required the entire city police force, under the command of Mayor Wright to keep angry men from attacking his residence.

A truce was temporarily made Tuesday, but further trouble is expected next Sunday.

Fr. Benning, Bishop Richter's secretary, of Grand Rapids, is in the city, and says he is vested with full power to effect a settlement of the difficulty. Mgr. Martinelli has also been appealed to.

Strong Soils.

It has been generally observed that some varieties of apples do best on bottom lands and strong soil. This season is a good test of these varieties since the abundant moisture, causing abnormally strong growth, places the sorts at their best, so that they hold their fruit most persistently. Those needing soils of an opposite character drop their fruit badly. It is a good time for planters to notice this habit and tendency in varieties and keep a classification of them in mind, so that in future plantings varieties may be given such soils as the trees need. If you have but the one kind for planting take a note now of what you ought to plant.

Oil Cake and Meal.

Arrangements have already been made with Texas oil mills to feed from 60,000 to 75,000 head of cattle. A cheering sign of the times is indicated by the evident disposition of the crushers to make the merits of meal and cake as feeding materials known as they should be. Several of the mills are advertising the fact that they have capacity to feed from 500 to 1,000 or more head of cattle, a circumstance which will render them practically independent of the export branch of the trade, if properly developed. It is a fact and a reproach to the spirit of American enterprise, that thousands of American farmers practically know nothing of cotton cake and meal as feeding materials.—National Provisioner.

Making Country Roads.

A report on road-making from the Ontario department of agriculture contains the following good points: Perfect drainage, first, of the foundation of the road bed; secondly, of the road surface. The points in road making on which too much stress cannot be laid. * * * Surface drainage is accomplished by open drains on each side of the grade, having sufficient capacity to drain not only the road-bed, but the land adjoining. With open drains and with tile drains make and maintain a free outlet to the nearest water course. In constructing a good road a dry foundation is the matter of first importance. * * * The graded portion of the road should be wide enough to accommodate the travel upon it, and not greater, the slope being uniform, not heaped in the center. The crown should be well above the overflow of storm water, and should have a grade sufficient to shed water readily to the open ditches on either side. Do not round it up so as to make the grade steep and dangerous, under the mistaken impression that better drainage will thereby be secured. Nor should it be so low as to allow water to stand upon it in depressions. Under ordinary circumstances one inch or one and a half to the foot is a proper grade; that is, a road-bed twenty-six feet wide, should be from thirteen to twenty inches higher at the center than at the side.

Making Hogs Pay.

At a meeting of the Kentucky Swine Breeders' Association, Mr. C. M. Powell, in an excellent paper, said: "Careful and judicious breeding and handling of young hogs is more to be depended upon than all treatment. We all understand that prevention is better than cure. Every successful raiser does not trust to luck, but provides, pens, sheds and feeding places that will enable him to keep his sows and pigs comfortable, Sunlight fresh air and exercise are the safest tonics and appetizers for all dams and pigs. With such accommodations and judicious feeding of sound, unferrmented feed, pens clean and dry, there is little danger of scours, but should this appear, change feed at once. Feed dry bran and wheat, adding a little charcoal and copperas occasionally. "Every breeder should have a hog-house easy of access, properly constructed feed troughs, and above all clean quarters and perfect situation, fresh water, shade in abundance, and lots large enough for plenty of exercise. By providing the above, kept clean with disinfectants, the fight is half won. "Regarding care and sanitation, the best preventives of disease, keep a quantity of lime, a preparation of crude carbolic acid, and use freely as a disinfectant. Do not permit hogs to have foul wallows, fill them up, using lime freely. Remove the bedding often, burning it. Disinfect pens and sleeping places. Care is the best preventive. Clean troughs, correct kind and amount of feeding, controlling the times of eating, with sanitary conditions of lot and pen, we can grow pigs less subject to disease. "In closing I give the following preparation as a preventive of cholera, highly recommended and used by me with good results, and no doubt familiar to most of Suggestions to Housekeepers.

An exchange says that eggs dipped in a warm, strong solution of borax and packed away in a dry, cool place, will keep perfectly for a long time. The "Preservatives" so widely advertised for use in preserving meats etc., are largely made up of borax and salt in equal quantities. Naturally there is an immense profit in their sale.

A good many alleged hair mattresses are made of purely vegetable matter, though the buyer pays for the best hair. The fibers of the soap root (chlorogalum) are used in avoiding too much luxury and longevity on behalf of the mattress. Soap root has a large bulb, full of strong brown fibers which is not infrequently used by rural Californians as a substitute for soap, while the soft portions, separated from the fibers leaves them to be stung into a mattress case.

In purchasing fruit, vegetable, meat or fish put up in tin cans, not the condition of the tin. If bulged outward, don't have it, even as a gift. The bulging means that air has been left in the tin in canning, and that the contents, even if not actually spoiled, will not be as good, while the process of decay may have set in. Remember too, that anything put up in tin should be emptied into glass or earthenware as soon as opened. The oxygen of the air at once begins a chemical change on the tin, which tends to make the contents of the can unfit for food.—Ex.

Winter Care of Horses.

As winter comes on many of the farm horses that have worked faithfully six days in the week from the opening of spring are released from labor three or four months, says Farmers' Advocate. The question arises. How can these be best and most economically wintered? It goes without saying that an abrupt cessation from heavy labor is altogether opposed to health in man or beast. The thing to do, then, is to lower the diet and divide the last portion of the season's work among all the teams, gradually lessening the labor of those we wish to "turn out" for the winter. To prevent excessive stocking for a few weeks after labor ceases is not an easy matter. It may be prevented from reaching a harmful stage by reducing the amount of grain fed and by feeding boiled oats, with considerable bran, in the place of the ordinary evening meal, along with which a tablespoonful of Glauber's salts may be added three or four times a week, except the animal be in low condition, when a tonic should take its place, such as iodine of iron, in dram doses, every night for a week or ten days. Some green food should also be given, such as carrots or turnips, at noon during the winter months. Stocking can also be materially lessened by gentle pressure of bandages from the fetlock up to hock, apply at night and remove in the morning. It is also well to turn the horses out two or three hours daily when the weather will allow. In all cases the object in view is to acquire the maximum of strength and buoyancy of spirit with the expenditure of the minimum amount of money and labor. Keeping an animal in good condition means that the body and limbs are in the most vigorous and healthy form. This can be accomplished only by observing hygienic rules. He should have comfortable quarters, good grooming, good food, and proper exercise. These, however, he is not likely to receive on most farms; nor, perhaps, is so much care profitable, especially the grooming, except in the case of high priced breeding stock and speeding horses that have come in from a season's campaign, to enter upon it again the following spring.
