Union Cooperage Co.

The articles of the Union Cooperage company were filled with the secretary of state, and county clerk, on Nov. 10, 1896. The company has paid up capital of $11,000, and the stock is held by the following gentlemen: John Frazier, of St. Louis, 500 shares; Anthony Gaus, 500 shares and Henry E. Carr, 100 shares. Mr. Frazier is president, Mr. Carr vice-president and secretary, and Mr. Gaus, treasurer.

The company are the proprietors of the hoop factory in this city, and are engaged in the manufacture of hoops and staves.

Preparation is being made to start up the factory again within a few weeks. Since closing down some weeks ago, a large amount of improvements have been added to the works. Arrangements have been made for heating by steam, and we understand that it is the intention to keep the factory running the year round.

The factory has been a great benefit to our city since its location here, employing as it does 60 hands.

Oscoda Bank Affairs.

Last weeks Oscoda Press contains considerable banking news.

On Tuesday of last week, a report got started that the Iosco County Saving Bank had "busted," and there was a lively scramble of the depositors to get their money, but after several thousand dollars had been withdrawn and plenty of money was yet in sight, the scare soon abated.

It is announced that the bank will go out of business within a few days, however, as the banking business in Oscoda and AuSable has become so light that there is no profit for a bank with a $50,000 capital. It will be succeeded by a private bank under the direction of Messrs R. K. Gowanlock and R. S. Doods.

Since its organization in May, 1889, the Iosco County Savings Bank has had a remarkably successful career, being regular in its payment of five per cent semi-annual dividends, and its stock being worth $1.15 per share.

The Age of Rush.

Americans take too little rest.—They concentrate all their strength upon a few years' struggle for wealth and when they have attained success they find that they have exhausted their vitality. They have been prodiga. of their energy. their endurance and all the splendid powers of youth and prime. When it is too late, they discover that they have risked health for what is no recompense, and that they have really thrown away the opportunity of enjoying a long existence. But the fault is not all that of individuals. The exactions of these latter days make men slaves. They have so many things to do and they have to do them in such a rush that they have no chance to recuperate.—They are victims of conditions that are undermining the nation.—Omaha World-Herald.

Calumet Baking Powder

has turned the tables on high price baking powders. The directions on High Price cans are the same as on Calumet cans, viz.: 2 teaspoonfuls to a quart of flour, but they say that one can of High Price will go three times as far as any other. Can any claim be more ridiculous? The frantic cry of adulteration, danger and poison made by the high price baking powder people is a blind to intimidate the public and induce them to pay fancy prices for their goods—also to divert attention from this defect in their own goods.

Calumet Baking Powder is safe. Food baked with Calumet is absolutely free from Rochelle Salts, Alum, Lime, Ammonia or any injurious substance.

Monopoly must yield to moderation—
Impurity must improve or go under.
Calumet is the standard.

THE great six day bicycle race was finished at Madison Square Garden, New York, at 12 o'clock Saturday night. It was won by Edward Hale, who covered 1,910.8. Twelve riders broke the previous record of 1,600, which was made in 1893. Out of the 28 starters, 15 finished the race.

ONE of the severest criticisms made by men in other occupations upon the farmers is that they do not use business methods in farming. This subject will be on the program at our farmers' institute on Friday evening, Jan. 8, and will be introduced by Mr. Roland Morrill, of Benton Harbor. Mr. Morrill is a practical farmer and fruit grower, and will speak from that standpoint. He has also been a great success, and is himself a fine example of his topic. It will pay every farmer in the county to hear this topic, even if he cannot attend any other sessions of the institute.

AN old postoffice inspector says: "Money never should be inclosed in letters for transmission through the mails. In the first place, it is unnecessary to do so; because no money orders are so cheap; and, in the second place, money in a letter offers a constant temptation to those who handle mail. It is practically impossible to place money in a letter so that the postal clerk into whose hands the letter falls will not instantly detect it. Paper money has a peculiar odor unlike anything else on earth, and the clerk, who is dishonest, uses his sense of smell in spotting valuable letters, rather than the sense of touch."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, DEC. 14, 1896.

There is a great deal more in the announcement that the republican members of the House committee on ways and means have begun work on the tariff bill, which they are to attempt to pass at the extra session of the next Congress, to be held early in the spring, and that the committee are to grant hearings to manufacturers at once, than appears upon the surface. There are reasons to believe that this announcement was hurried up as a part of the plan to elect republican Senators enough this winter to make a majority for that party. The republican steering committee of the Senate succeeded in getting Mr. Hanna to undertake this job of electing senators in Kentucky, North Carolina, South Dakota, and Washington, and everybody knows that the only lever Mr. Hanna relies upon for success is money. By giving the men who expect to get big profits through the "protection" of a republican tariff bill hearings before the committee they can be shown that they are to get what they want and thus be put into the humor to furnish what Mr. Hanna wants—more cash.

The same talk about a "moderate tariff" which is now being given to Newspaper men was prevalent when work was begun on the McKinley bill. The result will be a bill that will probably be more radical than the McKinley bill was. It is true that many of the republicans would really like to see the bill moderate, but it is equally true that the men who made republican success possible to Washington to present him with a bill of damages, for failure to full fill his promise, not of marriage, but of a restored throne.

The populists in Congress are a little shy about expressing for publication any opinion about the rumpus between Senator Marion Butler and Tom Watson, but it is plain that some of them, especially those from the South, believe that Butler will have to do something to show his resentment or lose his influence with the populists of that section. A Georgian, who is not a populist, said about the recent phase of it: "There were fighting words in that signed article of Watson's and when I was a young man it wouldn't have been a question of publishing a similar attack upon the other party. To have said that a man 'tells an untruth merely for the casual pleasure of having deceived' would have meant dueling pistols and an early morning meeting in the vicinity of Bladensburg in the good old days." There is no idea that Butler will do anything more than to call Watson another.

If McKinley is half as wise as his admirers think him to be he will quickly let it be known among the republican Senators that Proctor, of Vermont, is not to be the administration leader in the Senate of the next Congress, a position now assigned him by rumor. Senator Proctor is a nice enough man in his way, but he has not, either as a member of Harrison's Cabinet, or as a Senator, shown any of the qualities needed for successful leadership, and there is no reason to believe that he possesses them. There are already a number of republican Senators who do not feel over cordial towards McKinley, and if he isn't very careful, he will be in hot water as soon as he is in the White House.

The House made a fairly good showing for the first week of the session, having passed the pension appropriation bill, a number of postal bills, a bill against the sale of liquor in the Capitol building, and a whole batch of private Pension bills. The Senators held only four sessions during the week, and it has very little to show for them. At one of these sessions some commotion was caused by a motion made by Senator Allen to take up the Dingley bill. The motion carried, but the only result was the killing of a few minutes time, at the expiration of which the bill went back to the calendar under the rules.

Senator Teller has been quite a busy man since his arrival in Washington. One of the first men he had an extended conference with was Senator Jones, of Arkansas, and the subject of the conference was the future policy of the silver men in congress. Both Senators declined to be interviewed on the subject and no public announcement is expected until after the conference of silver leaders, shortly to be held, and it may not be deemed politic then to announce any formal program.

Sugar Beets.

The project of raising Sugar Beets on the "stump lands" from which the pine timber has been removed, is again being agitated in this section. We have in Tawas City and East Tawas locations for sugar factories that cannot be excelled in the United States. An abundance of good water, cheap fuel and good railroad facilities are essential for a successful sugar factory. We have all these in perfection, and as to the soil for raising the beets, experiments made in growing the sugar beet in this county a few years since, it was proved beyond question that we have thousands of acres of the finest sugar beet soil in the world. Now all we need to induce capital to engage in this great industry, is some legislation providing a bounty for a few years to start this enterprise and give employment to thousands, and with Hazen S. Pingree, the "farmers friend" as Governor, the advocates of raising sugar beets are in hopes that the coming legislature will pave the way for the cultivation and improvements of the vast track of land in this part of the state, that is now almost a barren waste.

THE PEOPLE'S BIBLE HISTORY

In this book alone can be found the information sought by every Bible reader, whether old or young, scholarly or unlettered. It is, indeed, a great work.

Recent discoveries in archeology have brought the world of today face to face with the men who lived, and acted, and wrote during the early periods covered by Biblical Historians. These discoveries have resulted in the triumphant vindication of the sacred volume from the charges brought against it by open foes and pretended friends. Every intelligent person will order the book, as the matter contained in it is of vital importance and cannot be found in any other book on earth.

Young Marsinski was under the influence of liquor the most of the week, and made several attempts to trade or sell a watch. Wednesday a search warrant was issued and when the home of his parents was searched, the watch and some of the cigars were found, he was then arrested. He had his hearing before Justice Hovenden, yesterday, and was bound over to the circuit court with $500 bail.

A Shame.

It is estimated by good authority that fully $3,000 has gone from Tawas City to Bay City and Saginaw during the past three months to purchase goods that should have been bought at home. How our citizens can expect to have a prosperous town with live merchants, when they will go elsewhere to buy, is more than we can understand. They pay more for goods bought elsewhere than they do when they buy at home, and get no better, and in many not so good.

One of our merchants who is responsible in every way says he will agree to duplicate any coat or jacket that has been purchased outside this fall, for from $2 to $6 less than it cost the parties now wearing it.

Another regrettable thing is the fact that people who today owe merchants for goods got in the past, take their, or rather money which rightfully belongs to our merchants, and go elsewhere and buy goods.

Just remember that the merchants of your own town are the men who pay the taxes to keep up our school, and public affairs, who aid in all public enterprises and are the men entitled to your money. There is not a merchant in this city but who will gladly send and get you anything which they do not have in stock.

Another fact to be remembered is that the home merchant can always be found, and is ready to make any mistake good, as his success depends on dealing fairly with his customers.

Remember that every dollar spent outside of your town, injures the town that much, and yourself, accordingly. A person who earns their money here and spends it elsewhere, is of no benefit to the town and their room would be preferable to their company.

To Taxpayers.

HERE'S YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

A New Eight-volume Encyclopaedia

At About Your Own Price.

Every one who has had occasion to consult the cumbersome old encyclopaedias for some needed information, effectually concealed in some long article, will be glad to know of the appearance of a new general reference work built along different lines, so that any child who can read may successfully consult it.

Such a work is The New Standard American Encyclopedia in eight large quarto volumes, and which embraces the substance of all the other encyclopaedias, besides a very large amount of new up-to-date matter none of them contain. It introduces a vast number of new words, names, facts, ideas, inventions, methods and developments. It treats, in all, over 60,000 topics, which is from 6,000 to 10,000 more than any other work. The publishers of the "Standard American" have also lavishly embellished the new work. There are over 3,500 illustrations, which cover every conceivable subject, lending new interest to the descriptions, and forming a succession of pleasing surprises. It also contains over 800 colored maps, charts, and diagrams, and constitutes a complete atlas of the world such as no other encyclopaedia has undertaken to present. This feature will be found of the highest value in the education of the young, for the pictures and colored maps will have a distinct fascination for them, and thus prove an important incentive to reading and study.

The professional or business man, whose time is money; the teacher, who is called upon to at once answer all sorts of questions; the toiling student and inquiring scholar, at home or the desk, will find in the new work the most useful and practical library in the world for quick and ready reference on all subjects. One who owns it will possess the equivalent of a score of other reference books which would cost many times the price of this.

Another feature in which the new work stands absolutely alone, is in its very full appendixes, which embrace over 100 subdivisions, including a Biographical Dictionary, a Dictionary of Technical Terms, a Gazetteer of the United States, Presidential Elections in the United States, Religious Summaries, State and Territorial Election Statistics, Statistics of the population of the world, and a veritable mine of information or thousands of subjects of universal interest and importance.

But it is in its treatment of recent subjects that the Standard American will be found of paramount value. All other encyclopaedias are from five to ten years old, and are silent regarding hundreds of topics that every reference work should contain. Such, for instance, as "The X-Ray," "Argon," "Horseless Carriages," "The Atlanta Exposition," "Color Photography," etc., etc. It also gives biographies of hundreds of people who have lately become famous, such as Prof. Roentgen, discoverer of the "X-Ray," Ian MacLaren, Dr. Nansen, the explorer, Rudyard Kipling, etc., etc. On account of its lateness in all these matters, as well as its accuracy, it has become the standard in Schools, Colleges, Courts, Public Libraries, and wherever important questions come up for discussion.

It would therefore seem that no professional man, artisan, mechanic, teacher, pupil, or farmer, can well afford to be without this most useful, practical and latest of all encyclopaedias, especially as its price has been so arranged as to make the work a great bargain, and render its possession possible to almost any one who earnestly desires to own it.

Detailed particulars regarding the work and how to secure it at practically your own price, may be found in an advertisement on another page of this issue.

OUR FARMER CORNER.

Hints for our Country Readers, which if Followed will Save Dollars.

Simple Method of Relief.

An English farm paper contains the following from a correspondent in a recent issue, which may be serviceable to some readers: "I have never known my method of relieving choked cattle to fail in giving instant relief. Cut a stick about four feet long and half an inch through at the large end, with prongs like fork times about an inch long at the end. The stick should be smooth and straight. Wind the prongs with yarn until well covered, and sew over and through this a piece of cotton cloth, making a ball several inches in diameter, securely fastened to the small end of the stick. Grease the ball well with lard, insert it in the animal's throat and push it down the length of the stick if need be, or until the substance is forced into the stomach. Withdraw the stick and relief at once follows."

This method of relieving choked animals is so very simple, and no doubt effective, that it recommends itself. Sometimes it happens that an exceedingly valuable animal chokes with a large turnip or piece of pumpkin, and dies before relief is found. The above method renders a loss from such an accident almost impossible.

Salting Down Pork and Hams.

For the past twenty-seven years I have used the following methods with entire success. For pork one of the best considerations is a clean barrel. I have used the same barrel for the past thirty years and have cleaned the barrel each year as follows: Put about three pails of water and a peck of clean wood ashes in the barrel, then put in hot irons enough to boil the water, cover closely, and by adding a hot iron occasionally, keep it boiling for a couple of hours. Wash the barrel thoroughly and it will be as sweet as a new barrel. Cover the bottom of the barrel with coarse salt. Cut the pork into strips about six inches wide, stand edgewise in the barrel, with the skin next to the outside, till the bottom is covered, then cover with a thick coat of salt so as to hide the pork entirely. Repeat in the same manner till the barrel is full or the pork is all in. Cover the top layer with salt thickly. Let it stand about three or four days and then put on a flat stone and cold water enough to cover the pork. After the water is on sprinkle one quarter pound best black pepper over it. An inch of salt in the bottom and between each layer, and an inch and a half on top, will be sufficient to keep the pork without making a brine. Some people make a brine that will bear an egg, but I never have.

For hams: I weigh the hams, and for one hundred pounds of meat I use four pounds of the best fine salt one pound sugar, and four ounces of saltpeter: mix thoroughly and rub it into the flesh side of the ham, not forgetting the shank, and place on a board or shelf, when the mixture has struck in, rub again. There will be enough to rub the meat three times. It usually takes about three weeks to complete the job. Hang up immediately and smoke. This recipe will cure the large and small hams just alike and just right for cooking, as the meat will not take in more than the right quantity. If these directions are intelligently followed, a first quality of ham will be secured. For bacon, use the same mixture as for hams.—Cor. Orange Judd Farmer.

Handling and Feeding.

Few farmers realize how greatly cows can be improved by judicious handling and feeding, and how much depends on kind and gentle treatment. One of the most important things is regularity in feeding says Farm, Stock and Home. The digestive apparatus is a wonderful machine and if we bear in mind that it must be supplied with the kind of nutrients needed for the elaboration of milk, and that if we compel it to work over a lot of material which it cannot use in manufacturing milk, we hinder the maximum amount of milk secretion. In order that all the energy expended in digesting will accomplish the best results we should carefully study the nutrients contained in the ordinary food stuffs, and see that cows are not allowed to fill themselves with worthless material, such as straw and frosted corn stalks. Early cut and well cured corn stalks and fodder corn are excellent feed if properly balanced with grain. The food of bodily maintenance for cows is very easily supplied by a daily feed of from thirteen to eighteen pounds of clover or corn fodder; and if this is run through a cutting machine and mixed with grain ration, composed of bran barley and oats, giving each cow as much as she will eat up clean, good results can be secured if a few points are watched closely.

Feed twice a day at stated times. Commence feeding the ration when the cow is fresh, and if the cow comes in in the fall, continue the same ration all winter, seeing that she is fed and milked exactly at the same time every day. By this method the flow can be kept up all winter. During warm days an hour's outing in the yard while the barn or stable is being cleaned short, they should be made perfectly comfortable and satisfied. Irregular milking causes well fed cows to lay on flesh. Dairy bred cows are more intelligent than ordinary stock, and on that account they are not satisfied with the kind of treatment that is measured out to natives. They will take offense at things which an ignorant scrub would be satisfied with. For this reason a man who thinks that all these notions about balanced rations, comfortable quarters, kind treatment and regularity feeding are nonsense had better not invest in good stock or ever breed to improve sires, for unless he is determined to adopt improved methods he will get little satisfaction out of improved stock. On the other hand, if he is willing to adopt better methods and study the art of breeding and feeding stock in such a way that the largest measure of success is assured, he will find that well bred dairy stock is about the most profitable thing on the farm. Dairy sires can now be secured at very moderate figures, and by securing a good one now in a few years' time a dairy herd can be built up which will yield double the return that can be secured from natives or grade beef stock.

Feeding For Manure.

I remember a field of corn, followed by oats; which we once grew, in the preparation of which we tried some experiments. On this field, which was a three-year-old sward, we applied, in the fall and winter, about fifteen loads of stable and yard manure per acre. We would manure a strip through the field with manure made from straw, corn stalks and corn for grain, the next one manured with that from the cow stable in which were fed ensilage, clover hay, wheat bran and cotton seed and linseed meals, these were alternated through the field. So writes Mr. Woodworth in Rural New Yorker.

As to the result, as far as could be seen, that field was a most instructive object lesson. The corn on the strips with the manure made from the more nitrogenous foods could be seen towering one-third higher, and was of a very much darker green color than the others, when harvested the grain yield was equally marked. The oats that followed the next year showed fully as much difference as did the grass that followed. I remember once when visiting Prof. Roberts at Cornell, we were going by a field of wheat that lay where we could see over it pretty well; there were narrow streaks running here and there, that showed the wheat taller and of a much darker green. When asked to explain, the professor said that was where the wagons had been driven with loads of manure made by the cows when fed largely on bran and cottonseed meal, and that a little had shaken off as the wagon had gone along. I have noticed a difference, also, in potatoes, but it has been most marked in the cereals and the Timothy following. It is, undoubtedly, due to the extra percentage of nitrogen that such manure contains. There is no greater fallacy among farmers than the notion that anything that comes from the barnyard (I hate that word) is manure. The putting of food through the stable, or the animal either, does not add an iota to its manurial value. It may take the plant food ingredients more available, but it adds nothing that it did not contain when fed, in fact, it has some of this value taken out, the quantity depending upon the animals to which it was fed. All farmers ought to be fully aware of this fact. When our farmers come to realize the importance of keeping up the fertility of their land, that the manure made by stock depends upon the manurial elements of the food fed, and that when judiciously fed, and the manure fed be saved here at home, and the rich manurial value for our farms practically for nothing, we shall see less and less of the rich feeding stuffs exported, thus robbing our farms, but all of them will be fed here at home, and the rich manures applied to our fields. It is a shame that we have allowed this wicked waste to extend so long.
