YACHT RACES.

September 3d, 4th and 5th are the Dates.

Arrangements have about been completed now for the yacht race to be held on Sept. 3rd, 4th and 5th and yachtsmen from various towns and places have signified their wish and intention of being present.

The races will be three in number, one for boats of 24 feet or under and one for boats above that length and a third race for the D. & M. cup, in which all will participate, the cup going to the boat which shall win it three times, whether she be big or little. The first race for the cup will take place on Saturday, the 4th, wind and weather permitting, if for any reason any race is postponed, then the matter is to be decided on the 5th or 6th. The prizes, outside of the cup, will be $25 for the first prize and $10 for the second prize in the larger class and $15 and $10 in the smaller class, and there must be at least two boats in each race to entitle to one prize, and three boats to entitle to the two prizes.

An allowance of 2 seconds per foot to each mile sailed will be made to each boat, should she be less than her competitor in length, all manner or any amount of sail will be allowed, and a crew of one man to each five feet of length allowed for each boat.

The rules of the Detroit Boat Club, as nearly as possible will be followed as to sailing, and each boat if there should be more than six, will be provided with a number, cut out of dark cotton, which must be pinned to the sail within two feet of the peak of the gaff.

The course will be eight miles, starting from a line running from the steamboat dock in East Tawas, thence to and around a buoy in the bight of the bay, thence around the can-buoy, thence to and around a buoy off Hale's dock in Tawas City, thence up along the shore in front of both towns to place of beginning, thus allowing all persons and everyone to see the race in full and to the best advantage.

The matter has been planned to meet the wishes of the most people of both towns and the wishes of the railroad company officials who have so kindly donated the cup, and it is hoped and expected that there will be no croakers who will spoil the sport by local jealousy and efforts to belittle the matter as a local effort for either town. The race is intended to be a good old fashioned yacht race, to furnish fun and pleasure for those taking part and for those who witness it, and with that end in view, local prejudice should be dropped for the time being, and if it is not a success, do the kicking afterwards.

An entry fee of one dollar will be charged in each of the money prize races, and fifty cents in the race for the cup.

As a second prize in the cup race, Mayor Murphy, of Tawas City, will present a valuable yacht compass, or its equivalent in money.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

The mean temperature for the week ending Saturday, August 21st, 60.9 degrees, averaged 5.0 degrees less than the normal. There was a slight excess on the first day of the week, but a decided drop carried it below the normal on Monday and it ranged from 3 to 8 degrees below during the remainder of the week. Light frosts were reported from nearly every county in the state. The highest temperature, 85 degrees, occurred at Hillsdale, Hillsdale county, on Sunday, August 15th, The lowest temperature, 32 degrees, occurred at Lake City, Missaukee county, on Friday, August 20th.

The average weekly precipitation, 0.56 of an inch, is 0.06 of an inch more than the normal. Generally the rain falls have been quite light in the southern counties, but weekly amounts ranging from 0.75 of an inch to 1.43 inches, over the northern counties and upper peninsula is what has brought up the general average. The greatest amount, 1.99 inches, occurred at Marquette, Marquette county. The least amount, 0.06 of an inch, occurred at Big Rapids, Mecosta county.

The sunshine has averaged 56 per cent of the possible amount.

The cool weather which has prevailed during the entire week has greatly retarded the growth of all crops, and they have made very slow progress toward maturity. Several light frosts have occurred in nearly every county of the state, but the damage resulting was exceedingly light and confined to low ground. In the southern part of the state the dry weather has also affected crop growth. The reports regarding corn, beans and buckwheat, are however, very encouraging, and show that those crops remain in a promising condition. Corn is beginning to glaze, and although it has matured slowly the cool weather has helped toward a more perfect development of the ears and will probably add to the weight of the crop. Beans and buckwheat are in good shape and buckwheat is filling well. The oat harvest is nearly finished in all sections of the state, but showery weather in the northern counties has delayed securing it. Fall plowing is being pushed in all sections of the lower peninsula, but farmers are beginning to complain that rain is needed to soften the soil. Reports regarding orchard fruits indicate poor yields of nearly all kinds, particularly apples, which continue to drop very badly. Clover is seeding fairly well, but needs more rain, as also do pastures. Late potatoes that have been well tended are now looking fairly good, but this condition is not general; most reports say that potatoes promise very poorly.

Registration of Deaths.

Public Act No. 217 of 1897, entitled, "An act to provide for the registration of deaths in Michigan and requiring certificates of death," will take effect on August 29, 1897.

Under its provisions undertakers and all persons superintending the burial of the dead are required to have a certificate of death filled out and certified to by the attending physician, if any, as to cause of death; on presentation of this certificate of death to the local registrar of deaths, a burial or removal permit will be issued. This permit must be obtained in all cases before the interment or other disposition of the body. All necessary blanks and instructions may be obtained from the local registrar.

The local registrar is (1) the Township Clerk in townships; (2) the Village Clerk in incorporated villages; (3) the City Clerk or City Health Officer in cities—cities having registration of deaths under this boards of health continue in the same manner as formerly.

The law has been carefully framed to avoid cases of possible hardship in rural districts, where communication is sometimes difficult, and will, if thoroughly carried out, give the people of the state of Michigan accurate registers of deaths that will be of the greatest value to individuals (in affording evidence in pension cases, insurance claims and the like) and will, moreover, contribute materially to the improvement of the public health. For this reason local boards of health are required to aid in the enforcement of this law.

I therefore trust that the people of the state will heartily co-operate with the authorities charged with the execution of the law, and will take especial pains to supply all data called for in the certificates of death.

Six Cars of Cattle.

Since the opening of the Detroit & Mackinac, the freight business through the city has increased along certain lines never thought of before. Six car loads of live stock were carried by the D. & M. over the F. & P. M. tracks last night, shipped near Posen, Presque Isle county, straight through for Buffalo. A train similarly loaded passed through here a week ago Saturday. The new railroad seems to be given a great impetus to cattle raising in the northern part of the state, as it enables stock buyers to ship cattle direct to their destination.

The D. & M. will push their line still farther north. Last week a party of surveyors from this city went north, and during the last ten days 57 carloads of steel rails have been shipped into Presque Isle county. The extension is being pushed towards Rogers City.—Bay City Times.

Throwing Rice and Slippers.

In the September Ladies' Home Journal Edward W. Bok notes the abuse of the pretty custom of casting a small parcel of rice or a dainty slipper after a departing bride and groom—an unspoken Godspeed. "The dainty slipper," he also says, "has been transformed into the old shoe of doubtful origin, and thrown with force and accuracy, causing no end of discomfort. And this is what two pretty customs have degenerated into. They have been vulgarized, and, therefore, the sooner they pass into disuse the better. The sentiment of the customs has been lost. Rice and shoes are no longer omens of good luck. The modern thrower of them has transformed them into missiles with which to annoy and mortify the bride and groom. The better class of people have already begun to substitute a shower of rose petals, and this new and far more beautiful idea is rapidly being followed. We might have preserved the old customs, but we have not. Henceforth, promiscuous rice-throwing and the casting of old shoes at weddings will be left to the bores our modern society, into whose hands these acts have fallen, and who seem happiest of olden times into practical jokes."

THEY have no terrapin in the Klondike, but bat-eared bull pup stew is the reliable gout producer of that region.

THE national treasury, under the administration of the prosperity-bringing McKinley, went $11,000,000 in the hole last month.

THAT Chicago bigamist was by no means a quitter. He was about to begin the eighth inning when his seventh wife invoked the law and had him ruled out of the game.

It is a laughable spectacle to see the poor old Free Press abuse the republican party for the Dingley tariff bill, in one column, and pat them on the back for their financial policy (?) in the next.

If the great St. Mark is defeated in Ohio it won't settle Hanna. There is a saying somewhere, "That one's deeds live after them." Three and one-half years of nightmare remain for those who voted Mark's ticket, and we are sorry for it. Surely their sin doth find them out.

THE Detroit Journal claims that the Dingley tariff bill is the cause of the advance in the price of wheat, and consequently must also believe the same bill is the cause of the short crop in Europe. But then no one would look for anything more reasonable from the Journal.

THE Republicans did lower some of the duties. For instance, the duty on diamonds, under the Wilson law, was 25 per cent. In the interest of the toiling masses, who were unable under the Wilson law to purchase very many diamonds, the Dingley law reduces the tariff to 10 per cent.

THE annual report of State Treasurer Steel, submitted to Governor Pingree, covers the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897, at which time there was a cash balance on hand of $783,888.04, as against $912,422.43 at the close of the previous fiscal year. The total treasury receipts for the year were $3,603,129.57 and the disbursements $3,731,663.96.

McKINLEY's new high tariff and the gold standard are now on deck. If they bring substantial business prosperity to the country they are what the people want. If they don't bring prosperity, the bosses will take a move as soon as the voters get at them. But the prosperity demanded must be something more substantial than editorial gush in Hanna organs. —Albion Mirror.

THE goldbug press are making the most of the advance in the price of wheat to strengthen their claim for the arrival of prosperity. All classes of citizens hail with delight the advance and are perfectly willing to admit that it will cause an improvement in all classes of trade. Yet no man who is honest in his convictions, and of ordinary intelligence, will claim that the revival will be permanent under our present financial system. Neither will they claim that it is due to the Dingley tariff bill.

WITH enormously enlarged productive capacity, a circumstance which is partly responsible for the greater depression of prices the past few years, we have deliberately closed the outlet which has been built up at the cost of so much enterprise and effort. Protectionists maintain that it is only necessary to look to the domestic consumption, but the time for that has passed in spite of our 73,000,000 of population. Our great iron furnaces and steel works and machine shops have capacities far in excess of the consumption of our most prosperous period. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Strange Chuckling.

The chuckle of delight with which the gold standard press are quoting the figures which show how much the government of the United States has lost on the depreciation of silver since it first began the purchase of that metal in 1879 is one of the most nauseating instances of the glorying in one's own shame that history affords. If there is any party in the country that ought to be interested in hiding these figures and saying nothing about them, it is the gold and not the silver party.

The total quantity of silver which the government has purchased both under the Bland-Allison act and the Sherman act has been 459,946,701 ounces. At the time the government began the purchase of this metal the silver in the dollar was worth about 93 cents. It is now worth about 42 cents. The coinage laws assume the value of silver to be $1.29 an ounce; as a fact, the average price which has been paid for all the silver purchased has been a little more than $1. To be exact, we have paid for the whole quantity named above $474,210,263. If we were to dispose of this entire amount at the existing market value, it is computed that we would not get more than $252,225,572 for it. Indeed it is not likely that we should be able to get even this sum, for the sudden throwing upon the market of such an enormous amount would depress the market away below any point that it has ever reached. It is published with great flourish by the goldbug press that in the last 18 months the government has lost $66,000,000 in the depreciation of the silver in its vaults.

We are quite willing to admit that these figures prove that somebody has been doing an idiotic piece of business. But will our gold standard enthusiasts point out where and how this responsibility rests upon the advocates of the free coinage of silver? When silver was demonetized in 1873 the silver in the dollar was worth 3 cents more than the mint valuation. Silver was worth so much in that year that if the mints had begun to coin the dollar it would not have circulated by reason of its superiority to gold. Now, did the silverites take the first step toward knocking the value out of this metal? Have they done a single act since that has tended to depress the value of this asset of our government? Not one. There has not been a blow given to silver that has not been dealt by goldbugs, here or abroad. In all these years, when the value of this government property has been slowly departing from it, has a goldbug ever been known to lift a finger or to make a suggestion that would maintain the value of the property? This is the first case on record where the owner of property has gone into hysterics of delight over the fact that he has been able to squeeze out of a magnificent property more than half its value in a few years. —Detroit Tribune.

We are pleased to see that Mr. Gravel, who is one of our best citizens is doing well. He is one of a syndicate who expect to buy a quart of whiskey on Saturday night.—Klondike Lyre.

Bury the croaker out in the woods in a beautiful hole in the ground, where the bumblebee bums and the woodpecker pecks and the straddlebug straddles around. He is no good to the city to trust, too impracticable, stingy and dead; but he wants the whole world and a part of the crust, and the stars that shine o'er his head. Then hurry him off to the place of the dead, and bury him deep in the ground, he's of no use here, get him out of the way, and make room for the man that is sound.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

Each year every local paper gives from $500 to $5000 in free lines for the benefit of the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor in proportion to his means, does more for his town than any other man, and in all fairness, man with man, he ought to be supported—not because you happen to like him or admire his writings, but because a local paper is the best advertisement a community can make. It may not be crowded with great thoughts, but financially it is more of a benefit than both teacher and preacher. Today editors of local papers do more work for less pay than any men on earth. Patronize your local paper, not as a charity, but as an investment.—The Buckeye Informer.

The Teachers' Institute.

It must be apparent to every one familiar with our schools, that the most pressing want is enthusiastic, well-drilled and efficient teachers. The institute proves a healthful stimulant to all classes of teachers, especially to those whom no other agency can reach. A proper conception of its true function and of the methods to be employed in it, is of vital consequence to our schools. It should be so conducted as to give those attending it not only clearer views of the importance of teaching and of its underlying principles, but it should be so directed as to kindle the inspiration for further acquisition, and for higher and broader work.—Hon. S. M. Inglis, State Supt. of Public Instruction, Illinois.

OUR FARMER CORNER.

Hints for our Country Readers, which if Followed will Save Dollars.

Green Food.

The best way to supply green food for fowls that are confined in yards is to have two yards for each flock. In one of them may be grown any kind of green food, such as oats, rye, wheat, corn, mustard, millet, etc. Such food need not be grown more than a few inches high. Turn the fowls on the green food, and then sow the other plot, so as to permit it to grow during the time the hens are consuming the green food on the first plot. In this manner a large amount of green food can be provided at a small cost. It is not only the large animals that improve and give good results on grass, vegetables and clover, but the hens will also be benefited as well as if given the liberty of the clover field. It will not be necessary to feed fowls in the summer if clover is plentiful, and the early crimson clover is superior to rye for them. It is well to give a grass-plot, but nevertheless a grass-plot in which clover predominates is better than one of mixed grasses. The large proportion of nitrogen and lime in clover will induce the hens to lay through the whole season until they begin to molt.

Cut Worms and Fall Plowing.

It is said that meadow, clover or bluegrass sod plowed in early fall (for corn) does not give the farmer occasion to complain of a cut-worm eaten crop, as their "means of production" are destroyed—plowed under so deeply that the effect of the clayey subsoil is quite detrimental, if not death yielding to them. And judging from experience I believe this to be true. I have plowed all kinds of sod, in fall and spring, and I discover that, viewing the matter from an anti-cut-worm standpoint, fall plowing is the proper procedure. Spring plowing does not check the cut-worms' progress as does fall plowing; the former simply turns them under, where the earth is warm, and there they remain till it is convenient to come out. But the latter "gets close to their backbone;" it turns their eggs under, where the cold earth has its say with them; they are so far beneath the surface that they can't "hatch out"—the "environment" is not favorable to their nature. But the eggs, nearly ready to hatch out, plowed under in late spring, or corn-planting time, when the ground is warm and mellow, soon send forth their crawling creatures. Then corn-plants having rooted into the soil, an inch or two are found and traced to the plant, and level with the surface the worn applies his sword of destruction.

Some may not agree with me on this point, but I cannot be convinced of the fallibility of my position against actual experience.—Journal of Agriculture.

Cleanings.

Don't try to keep all the different varieties of poultry. Two or three varieties of the best are plenty.

The milk from heifers is neither so liberal in quality or rich as that from the same cows as they grow older.

Never neglect the calves. A calf which is half fed when young will never be the most profitable animal to keep.

The agricultural department, after long experiments with lawn grasses, declares that creeping bent is the finest lawn grass known.

Parasites affect the health of hens; the remedy is to give the hens sand or cinders, where by rolling they can clear themselves of vermin.

No one breed of poultry has all the good qualities. The best layers are not the best mothers, and the best table fowls are not the ones which supply the largest quantity of meat.

Keep little chicks at work if you want to keep them healthy. Put straw in the bottom of their pen and strew cracked corn or wheat among it. They will learn to scratch for it.

If the pasture lands can be divided into three fields, and the cattle turned into them in succession, and the sheep turned into the one last vacated, the third one can have a chance to recuperate.

Baked potatoes have their starch grains more thoroughly cooked than when either boiled or steamed, and for this reason; may often be safely eaten by delicate invalids who cannot touch them boiled.

It is claimed that a good treatment for decaying trees is to dig the earth from around the base for a depth of five or six inches and fill the space thus made with fresh wood ashes.

The ideal hog run is a pasture, a part of which is densely wooded with a stream of clear water running through it. None but running water is suitable for the purpose, unless it be a lake of sufficient size for self-purification. The ordinary hog wallow is a nuisance, and a small pond will soon be converted into a nuisance by the animals. Shade is necessary to the comfort of hogs in hot weather, and comfort is necessary to their health and growth. It is better to leave hogs without water, except for drinking, than have them revel in filth.

The Question of Manuring Crops.

By long odds, the most important question to every man who tills the soil is that of manure. No matter what he grows, whether it be the grossest staple or the most delicate fruit or garden product, his success depends more upon a wise system of manuring than anything else. It is also a question whose importance must increase rather than lessen. For by far the greater part of the agricultural lands of the country are yearly deteriorating, get poorer, under the treatment they get. At the same time competition is getting stronger and the necessity of the use of wisdom and economy in all agricultural methods becoming more imperative.

While my experience has lain mostly in fruit culture, I have for many years grown grain and grass crops as a rotation. My soil runs all the way from extreme sandiness to black muck in one direction and to the closest red clay in the other. My experience has covered summers so wet that even grass would not grow and so dry that it could not grow; and it has convinced me that the usual method of crop fertilizing could be greatly improved by following a few simple rules.

All stable or barnyard manure should not only be saved, but saved in such a way as to lose no part of its value. Manure in horse stalls I leave untouched till it is hauled out and broadcasted on the land. Cleanliness is preserved by adding bedding as needed. If the stall is dry and enough litter used, the accumulating manure soon packs firm enough to form a good floor, which is yet so absorbent that not the least quantity of the liquid manure is lost. Manure saved this way has fully twice the value of that treated in the usual manner. Thorough composting is, of course, excellent. But where one man composts manure properly, twenty carelessly throw it out either to heat and fire-land or to be leached by rains; either process rendering it nearly worthless.

Manure from the milk cow stalls, which have to be kept clean, should be composted with kainit or some good absorbent as fast as removed. The barnyard proper should be so arranged and protected from drippings, that the accumulating manure will not lose by leaching. Straw or litter of some kind must also be liberally used.

But comparatively few farmers depend upon the above manures alone. Most of them buy more or less fertilizers besides.

When fertilizers are used in connection with manure, it should always be as supplement to that article, and their ingredients should be such as to supply the properties in which the barnyard manure is deficient. Where a moderate quantity of this manure is used in connection with green manuring (the turning under of rye, peas or clover) little ammonia (the most expensive ingredient of fertilizers) need be bought. What will be needed will be the comparatively cheap ingredients, potash and phosphoric acid.

On all soils and especially on sandy soils I find potash to be what is most needed and what gives the quickest and largest returns. It is the height of unwisdom to use either stable manure or green manuring without it.

One hundred and fifty pounds of kainit or 100 pounds of muriate of potash and 100 pounds dissolved bone, well mixed and sown and mixed with earth in the drill before planting pays its cost many fold on any crop and on any soil that I have ever tried it. It is also an excellent spring top-dressing for all kinds of grain as well as for grass and clover. It will usually pay to use it much more liberally for this purpose, and where no stable manure is used to add 100 pounds or more of nitrate of soda.—Country Gentlemen.
