WASHINGTON LETTER.

OCTOBER, 4th, 1897.

"Cuba; it ought to be and it shall be free." That is the motto on the flag which the friends of Cuba, many and influential in Washington, have nailed to the mast. The new campaign for free Cuba was opened with a big mass meeting, under the auspices of the Woman's National Cuban League, participated in by many prominent men, including a number of Washington's foremost ministers of the gospel. Other meetings are to be held, not only in Washington, but in all sections of the country, to give that hearty sympathy for Cuba known to exist, a chance to express itself in such an emphatic way that the leisurely and uncertain steps of the administration will have to be quickened, whether it be agreeable to the government of Spain or not. At this meeting a picked choir of sixty voices sang for the first time in public Joseph Adams' "Ode to Cuba," which he dedicated to the League. There was great enthusiasm, and those who are in charge say that it is going to continue to grow until it becomes irresistible. These people believe with the Cubans that nothing short of freedom for Cuba will be accepted, and that the administration scheme of pacification for Cuba under a continuance of Spanish rule is bound to be a failure.

Ex-Governor Hoadley, Chief Counsel for the intending purchasers of the Union Pacific Railroad, has been in Washington for the purpose of securing the official consent of the administration to the deal made by his clients with the Cleveland administration. He secured it, of course, and the road will be sold next month, notwithstanding the protests of the Senate Committee on Pacific Railroads and the charge by reputable citizens that the sale is a job to do the government and the private creditors of the road out of millions of dollars.

It pays to be the President's doctor. Dr. Newton L. Bates, a medical director in the Navy, who was the private physician of Mr. McKinley when he was in Congress, and who has occupied the same position since he became President, has been appointed Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery in the Navy Department, although he was not next in line for promotion.

An Ohio republican who would not allow his name to be used because it figures on an official pay roll and he wishes it to stay there, has been telling the inside facts about the highhanded way in which Boss Hanna's man Dick has been walking rough shod over the Froaker republicans in the state. He has been in the state recently and knows. He said: "There has never been anything like it before in Ohio politics. The supporters of Senator Foraker supposed that when the deal was patched up, largely through Mr. McKinley, by which Mr. Hanna was to be supported for the Senate and Gov. Bushnell re-nominated, that factional differences were to be shelved for the time and the campaign made harmoniously. They soon discovered that the harmony was to consist of constant humiliations put upon the Foraker men by Hanna, his man Dick, and their henchmen. It has been steadily getting worst ever since the campaign opened and the end is not yet, although Senator Foraker became so disgusted that he left the state with the intention of remaining away until the election. Mr. McKinley has persuaded Senator Foraker to return to Ohio, and promised him that if he would go ahead and make speeches he would that Hanna and Dick gave him and his friends better treatment. Foraker accepted Mr. McKinley's promise and left Washington today for Ohio, but he knows that Hanna considers himself McKinley's master, and he hasn't much confidence in that promise. Foraker will have a personal day of reckoning with Hanna, as sure as you live, whether it be on the floor of the U. S. Senate or in the state of Ohio."

There is an unusual lot of growling among the office seekers in Washington because of the little time that Mr. McKinley devotes to them. They go to the White House every day but few of them get an opportunity to see Mr. McKinley, and those who do see him do not get much satisfaction. He makes some appointments nearly every day, but lots of them are men whom he knows personally or wishes to reward for personal work done for him. As a result there is some plain talk in the hotel corridors from those who believe themselves entitled to official recognition and who have been led to suppose they would get it. Slowly, but surely, an anti-McKinley sentiment is growing among republicans.

There is an especial interest just now in the carrier pigeon as a postal department. Messages have already been received from the Klondike by means of homing pigeons, and undoubtedly the first report of Professor Andree's success, or failure, to reach the North Pole will be brought back on the wing of a pigeon. A comprehensive and timely article on "Economic Homing Pigeons" is contained in Demorest's Magazine for November.

Every young person who is now attending school should form this resolution. Spend every moment in your school room with hard persistent study. Don't waist a moment, for time idly spent is worth nothing. Spend every day in harmony with the resolutions and then the year will result as you now hope it will. Parents should visit the schools. This encourages both teacher and pupil. Let parents and friends of the school do all possible to make the school year one of real growth in intellectual strength for all the young members of our community.

It is told of a certain young man who last Sunday took his wheel and went to see his "fariest" far out on the Hemlock. Old Sol. had long gone to rest ere. he thought of returning, and when he did start he had gone but a short distance when an accident befell his steed and one of the wheels refused to turn. Several miles seperated him from the "paternal roof" and walk he must. His wrath can better be imagined than described, when on his arrival home, he found a little stick had become entangled in the spokes and caused all the trouble.

Education of the Farmer

In former times the education of the farmer was sadly neglected along commercial lines. A few years ago he was not supposed to know much about the market value of even farm products, and much less could he have any definite knowledge of the world's commodities and of the law of trade and commerce which govern the same. But the Grange, through its associated efforts and co-operative methods, enables the farmers to obtain a knowledge of the market value of every farm product and of every article of supplies for the farm and the house hold, from a paper of pins to a mowing machine or self-binder; and more than this, he has been taught to estimate the amount of farm products in this and other lands, to study the laws of supply and demand, to investigate the manipulations of the market and to apply his knowledge as best he may to his own conditions of farm life.—Southern Cultivator.

Watering Horses.

"A Practical farmer" pleads, in the Gettysburg (Pa.) Compiler, for plenty of fresh water for farm horses in hot weather. He has been among horses all his life and thinks, if they had their way, they would drink as often as men do. Yet, as a rule, they are fed dry hay and grass at night and the same again in the morning, getting no water until taken out to work after all the chores are done. Then some farmers will leave their teams in the field at 4 or 5 o'clock p. m., go to the house and eat supper return and work their horses till 7 or 8 o'clock, the horses getting no water till reaching the barn. The writer's custom for years has been, during hot weather, to give his horses water the first thing in the morning, just loosening them at the head, and letting them run to the trough. They relish it greatly after being in the hot stable all night. Then give them their hay and grain, and on starting for the day's work let them have water again. If the rule is once adopted to water the last thing at night and the first thing in the morning, no human farmer will depart from it.

The Hog.

The hog grows the cheapest on the pasture and beside the field that grows his grains. He is most profitable as a subordinate department, because he cannot consume the coarse fodder of the farm. He furnishes the best market in which to sell the by-products of the mill and dairy. He assimilates more of the most concentrated feedstuffs than any other animal of the farm. Quicker returns come from him than farm horses, cattle, or sheep. He pays the rents in European countries, lifts the mortgages in the northern states, and in conjunction with the cow, he will redeem the worn-out cotton and tobacco fields of the south.

Avoid permanent residences for the hog; move him about, so that his environments may be clean and uncontaminated by germs that develop rapidly where they have suitable media. Avoid close breeding, as it intensifies predisposition to disease. Select your breeding from good milkers, as this is the best indication of fecundity.—Ez.

Great Music Offer.

Send us the names and addresses of three or more performers on the piano or organ together with ten cents in silver or postage and we will mail you ten pieces full sheet music, consisting of popular songs, waltzes, marches, etc., arranged for the piano and organ.
