We owe it to the community in which we live to do everything we can in every way possible that will be to its advantage. Our neighbor's prosperity means a great deal more to us than someone's who lives elsewhere. We should bear this in mind in buying our goods. We can afford to pay our home man a firm price for his wares rather than send our money away, knowing as we do that every dollar our own citizens make will help in sustaining our schools, churches and public institutions. It pays richly to patronize home industry.

In these days when a united effort is being made to advance Northeastern Michigan, it should be remembered that nothing does more to advance a county than a good fair. LAST COUPON.

The last coupon entitling the children to free rides on Indian ponies at Young Buffalo's Wild West Show appears in the Tawas Herald this week.

Young Buffalo's Wild West Show and Texas Rangers, which exhibit in East Tawas, Saturday afternoon and evening, August 20, on Newman's addition, will arrive over the D. & M. railroad Saturday morning, August 20, in a special train of 20 big show cars. A parade is scheduled to leave the show grounds at 10 a. m.

The matinee performance starts at 2 p. m. and the night show at 8 o'clock. The program according to the management, will contain all the cannonading, "whoopies," "whoopias," cow punching, stage-coach hold-ups and dare-devil feats of horsemanship that ever made the West "wild and woolly" in its halcyon days of "blood and thunder."

More than 300 people and the fiercest outlaw horses, bucking bronchos and fighting steers have been assembled from Oklahoma, Wyoming, Texas, Montana and New Mexico to provide thrillers for the show.

A picturesque and interesting feature of the exhibition is the weird performance of the Indians. They are full-blood sioux from the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

Decked out in flaming regalia of blankets, beads and feathers, these grim warriors, many of whom have seen active fighting in the Indian uprisings of earlier days, add a vivid touch of realism to the performances by their mimic massacre exhibition and their strange ceremonials and ritual dances.

The feats of horsemanship which made the "pony express" renowned in the early days are an interesting event in the show. A feature eagerly anticipated by the spectators will be the attempts of the cowboys to ride bucking bronchos, or "broncho busting," as it is known in the parlance of the plains.

In addition to the rapid fire of dramatic events portraying incidents in the careers of the pioneers of western travel and civilization there will be presented illustrations of the sports and pastimes of the cowboys and cowgirls of frontier days.

Boys, Be Gentlemen.

When we see the boys on the streets and public places we often wonder if they know that business men are watching them.

In every bank, store and office there will soon be a place for a boy to fill.

Those who have the management of the affairs of business will select one of the boys; they will not select him for his ability to swear, smoke cigarettes or tip a beer keg.

And the social "society swell" who is daft about little social functions and is happy in the conceit that he is "just the article" that young ladies find indispensable on all occasions, is also given the "glassy stare" quite as often as the beer guzzler or cigarette smoker.

Business men may have a few loose habits themselves, but they are looking for boys that are as near gentlemen in every sense of the word as he can find, and they are able to give the character of everybody in the city.

They are not looking for rowdies. When a boy applies for one of these places and is refused they may not tell him the reason why they do not want him, but the boy may depend upon it that he's been rated according to his behavior.

Boys cannot afford to adopt the habits and conversation of the loafers and rowdies if they ever want to be called to responsible positions.—EX.

Bringing Trade to Town.

The Warsaw Times states a truth when it says: "No town will become a good business center so long as its business men rely on a few merchants to make the effort to bring trade to town. Too often the men in a few lines of trade are about the only ones that reach out after custom. Other merchants wait until these men induce the people to come to town and content themselves with trade that comes to their place. A public spirited man should ask himself if he is doing his part to attract people to come to town to trade, in helping the entire business community, and no town is a success unless all lines are working to extend the trade as fast as possible and trying to bring a larger territory in the business center."

Why Advertisers?

The modern merchant who never advertises escapes a lot of trouble. He may keep out of some of it without intending to do anything of the sort, but he escapes it just the same. He gets rid of the trouble of preparing advertisements and of course has no worry about changing them and keeping them fresh and up to date. He is not bothered about the way his advertisements are printed, nor the position they occupy. He can say, with much truthfulness, that it is no trouble to show goods, for he is seldom asked to show any.

But his greatest saving of trouble is in not having to sell goods to people who stay away, but who would come to his store if he advertised. Then, as he sells few goods, he has few goods to buy, and there is more trouble saved. He never has the trouble of selecting and paying a large staff of assistants. He gets rid of the trouble of having to pay for advertising. Finally, he never has the trouble of enlarging his store, or of removing to a bigger one, and it is very little trouble to count his money. Strange, what a lot of trouble a merchant makes himself by advertising.—Retailer and Advertiser.

Something Doing Every Minute at State Fair.

Education and entertainment seem to be the province of the modern state fair, and these two things will be the main ideas found throughout all the exhibits, displays and attractions of the coming Michigan state fair, Sept. 19-24th.

Michigan fairs of years gone by have been good judging by the support given them, but the fair of 1910 will outstrip all its predecessors in every particular. This is made possible and probable by the liberal expenditure of money, the broad-gauge plans and the careful preparations being made for the big show.

In the agricultural and associated lines of endeavors the displays and premiums offered insure a bigger variety of exhibits than ever before seen. The addition of thousands of dollars worth of equipment in the way of new buildings, re-modeled buildings, ground improvement and other things needed insures the utmost comfort to the visitors this year. All the exhibits will be the last word as to arrangement and spic-and-span condition and both city and country folks will find it a pleasure to visit the live stock departments, the horticultural and educational displays, the dairy department and the dozens of other attractive exhibits.

REGAIN YOUR NERVE FORCE FREE

It is the natural desire of every man to be vigorous and strong. If you are devoid of that strength and virility that is your rightful heritage, let me aid you. Age is not always a bar to recovery. I am 77 years of age and enjoy the good health and vigor that I did at 40.

I have spent 52 years in the continuous study and practice of medicine and am, therefore, fully qualified to advise you upon all ailments peculiar to man.

I have two prescriptions that I base my reputation upon as a physician and specialist. The one is for men under 50, and the other for men over 50. These stand today, in my opinion, absolutely unrivaled in their curative properties. I believe there is no treatment that has more genuine restorative powers or more cures to its credit than the one I submit you.

For loss of vigor, chronic diseases, all forms of nervous debility, loss of memory, lack of energy, indigestion, etc.

In placing your case in my hands, you may have the utmost confidence that you will be given the personal benefit of a lifetime of study in the special disorders of men. Do not be discouraged by your past failures in search of health, for I am confident that should you entrust your case to me I can give you that benefit you have so long sought in vain.

My medicine acts as a perfect tonic to the nerve centers, upbuilding and toning up the system. Recall that vigorous constitution and nerve force that is the physical and natural attribute of man. If you are seeking lasting results that will make the future a life of pleasure instead of a burden that it has been in the past, consult the MAN WHO KNOWS. Write without further delay and I will mail you my $5.00 RECIPE FREE.

ANDREW B. SPINNEY, M. D.
4 Adams Ave. West, Detroit, Mich.

The implement and machinery division, under the direction of V. V. Greene, of the Union Transfer & Storage Company, of Detroit, will this year take on an added interest because of the new machinery building, which will be completed by fair time. In this handsome structure, which is known as the "first unit" of what will eventually be a machinery hall of mammoth proportions, will be seen the latest things of interest to the farmer. All the most modern machinery, the almost human devices now in use on the farm for lightening the labors of the agriculturist, will be seen under ideal conditions. There will be power furnished for all the exhibitors in order to run their machines and interesting demonstrations of almost every known human invention for farm purposes, will be made constantly.

In the implement department there will be added interest also because of the good roads exhibit which is being planned on generous lines under the direction of a good roads engineer from the agricultural department at Washington. Here samples of good roads will be seen, the materials used will be prepared in front of the visitors and competent people will be on hand to explain the methods used in modern good roads building.

The automobile building, another new structure being provided this year, will contain an automobile show second to none in the country and one calculated to meet the demands of Michigan, the foremost motor producing state in the union. The wide-spread interest in automobiles and accessories made this building necessary and the Detroit and Michigan manufacturers and agents welcome the chance of making a creditable display. Both city and country people will flock to the automobile show by the hundred and will be rewarded by an exhibition seldom seen no matter in what part of the country they may go.

The preceding paragraphs do not begin to outline the educational features which will be enjoyed at the big fair; they merely mention a few among the many.

As to amusements, the state fair management feels that it has been unusually successful in its plans, and that a statement that the Michigan state fair for 1910 contains the best possible assortment of entertainment is a conservative one.

Thousands of dollars will be spent on all sorts of entertainment. Big free attractions have been booked, such as the Wright brothers' aeroplanes, of the most marvelous exhibitions in the world today, showing the progress that has been made by man in conquering the laws of nature and controlling flight in mid-air. Four daily flights will be made by two Wright machines and this alone is sufficient to draw thousands of people who might otherwise pass up the advantages of the fair.

A midway with free attractions as well as the best class of tent shows, has been secured. The Flying Banter, a troupe of aerial performers, known throughout the United States and Europe, will give several exhibitions on the flying rings and trapeze at one end of the Midway, while Mamie Francis and her diving horse will also appear frequently in another part of the Midway.

More attractions will be announced from time to time, but it can be readily understood from the foregoing that Michigan's state fair this year will be something worth while seeing.

The remains of Mrs. William Tretzler arrived here Tuesday from Flint, where she died from typhoid fever, and were taken to her former home near Prescott for burial. They were accompanied by the bereaved husband and three children.

The funeral of P. J. Schmidt, who died at his home southwest of Twining, on Wednesday of last week, was held from the Omer M. E. church Sunday, Rev. G. H. Smith, of this village officiating. The deceased was about 46 years of age and is survived by a wife, three sons and three daughters.

The Turner Creamery Co. is increasing its out-put of butter each week and is proving even more of a success than at first anticipated. Fair treatment to its patrons is winning it friends in all sections. A new cream station has been established at Pine River and two or three more will be added within a short time.

A petition is being circulated which will be presented at the October meeting of the board of supervisors asking for the incorporation of the village of Turner. This is a move in the right direction and should receive the approval of every citizen. There are numerous advantages to be had by a village administration of local affairs.

During the past ten days twelve German farmers from Huron county have purchased farms in the vicinity of Turner and will take up their residence here. The many acres of excellent farming lands surrounding this village is being rapidly bought up by people who are making it into improved farms. No part of Arenac county is making more rapid growth.

Mrs. Caroline Jennings died at the home of her son William, at Saginaw, Tuesday morning, at the advanced age of 91 years. Grandma Jennings, as she was familiarly known, was universally respected by a large circle of friends who sincerely mourn her death. She is survived by four sons, D. E., of this village, William, of Saginaw, and Edward and James, of Pinconning. The funeral was held yesterday and was largely attended.

IT MADE A DIFFERENCE

The young woman in the pretty gown and displaying the becoming style of coiffure surveyed with some perplexity the young man who supposedly called on her because he wanted to gaze into her eyes and listen to her well-modulated voice. He was doing neither, however.

Ever since his arrival he had been burrowing in a heap of back numbers of a magazine popularly deemed attractive only to feminine intellects. "For goodness' sake, Albert," she broke forth at last, "what on earth causes you to be so fascinated by those magazines? What's the trouble?"

"I was just looking at the pictures," explained the young man earnestly. "They print such splendid views of houses sometimes. I was hunting them up."

"Houses!" cried the young woman. "I didn't know you were interested in architecture!"

"Oh," said the young man, "I'm not—just architecture. But I was trying to see if any one had any really clever ideas, you know, as to plans. Sometimes another fellow will come out with exactly the thing you have in mind and can't just figure out yourself."

"But why are you so interested in houses?" demanded the young woman, a little bored.

"Well, you see," said the young man, "I've had a lot for a good long time out in a suburb and I rather thought maybe I'd put up a house on it. You can always—er—rent a house, you know. It seems to me like a good way to invest money. Doesn't it to you?"

"Why, I suppose so," said the young woman, disinterestedly. "I don't know much about those things when you come right down to it—investments, I mean."

"Well, you'd know about a house, wouldn't you?" asked the young man, anxiously. "Whether it was right—and all that—things a man would never think about. You see, if I put one up I don't want it to be a failure. You could sort of advise me, couldn't you?"

The young woman wrinkled her brow delicately and strove to appear polite. It was difficult because she was a little resentful that he had not noticed the gown she had put on especially for his benefit.

"Goodness!" she cried. "My advice isn't worth anything! How could I tell?"

"Couldn't you tell from the plans?" inquired the young man.

"Those things always make my head ache," protested the young woman. "Like railway timetables and propositions in geometry, I can't make any sense out of them! Why don't you buy bonds or stocks or something like that? Then you won't have to bother. Isn't there always an awful lot of trouble about owning houses?"

"Oh, I don't know," said the young man, a trifle gloomily. "I'd rather build a house than buy bonds. I—er—oh, I can make a lot more out of it! This seems to be a nice house—look here!"

"Ye-es," said the young woman after glancing at the plan. "But isn't it awfully small? Only six rooms!"

"That isn't so terribly little!" protested the young man. "There's lots more room in a six-room house than a six-room flat, for example. Still, I don't like that hall. I like a good-sized hall that looks inviting when you come in—don't you?"

"I don't see," said the young woman a bit irritatedly, "why you should bother much about whether it's inviting or not when you're going to rent it. People rent anything. What do you care?"

The young man looked still more gloomy. "Oh, I like to have things right," he said. "Do you think the Hungarian style is more convenient or is an upstairs better? And is a porch on the side preferable to one right in front where everybody can break in on you when you're in the hammock, reading?"

"Mercy! I don't know!" cried the young woman. "Please talk to me and put down those old magazines!"

The young man discarded the literature. "There's nothing in them anyhow," he said. "That is, nothing I like any better than my own plan. You see, I've been sort of figuring it out in odd moments and have drawn up one of my own." He drew a carefully folded paper from his pocket and spread it out on the table. "It's like this—can't you take this chair where I can explain it to you?"

The young woman came over to the table with the air of a polite martyr.

"Oh, yes," she said after a little scrutiny, "that's very nice, I'm sure. Yes, I'd build it if I were you. I didn't know you had a lot."

"You don't seem interested in my house," said the young man in an injured tone.

"Why, yes, I am," declared the young woman, wandering away to the other side of the room.

"I had kind of hoped you would be," went on the young man slowly, fingering his pencil nervously, "because—well, you see, Adele, I've been hoping for so long now, that some time—when I asked you—you'd say yes—and the little house was to be—ours, you know!"

There was a little rush and the young woman stood beside him. "Why I didn't know—I didn't understand—give me those plans! Why, it's a perfectly beautiful house!"
