Chase S. Osborn says Michigan needs a political house cleaning, but that it ought to be done by a republican. Is that so? Two years ago, Dr. James B. Bradley, auditor-general of Michigan, a good and strong republican whose position made his statement that a house cleaning was necessary to carry the weight of conviction, wanted to clean the house as a republican, and Mr. Osborn gave five hundred dollars to a campaign fund to prevent him from doing the cleaning.

"The Northeastern Michigan Advocate," is the name of a handsome 16 page monthly which has made its appearance at St. Helen. It is published monthly by John Carter, and its aim is to advance the interests of Northeastern Michigan. If there is one man in Michigan who can make the Advocate a success it is John Carter, and if there is one who deserves success it is he. He is a booster who boosts. Here's success to the new paper, for it certainly is worthy of it.

The Fair.

The 36th annual fair of the Iosco County Agricultural Society closed last night. It was the best held in a number of years. The exhibits in the grain, fruit and vegetable department were good in numbers and extra fine in quality.

The stock department was much better than for a number of years, but was not up to what it should be. The domestic and fancy work departments show a decided improvement. Taking all together much encouragement has been handed the society this year.

One noticeable fact is that many new exhibitors are here this year, while many of the exhibitors of former years are absent. Does this mean that the success of the fair depends on the new settlers of the county?

"Rollo the Limit" gave two performances each day of the fair. This young man put on a feat that is one of the most nifty ever seen, and while lasting but a fraction of a minute it is the most exciting minute of the day.

There were a number of non-competing exhibits at the fair this year which were worthy of special mention a number of fine specimens of grain were furnished by the farmers of Plainfield township. J. A. Campbell, of Whittemore, had a extraordinary exhibit of the Burpee seed products, many other of these exhibits were made by others from various parts of the county.

The East Tawas band furnished excellent music Wednesday and Thursday. Tawas City beat East Tawas in a game of base ball Wednesday by a score of 9 to 4.

The farmers' running race on Wednesday was won by Percy Scarlett's grey, "Gypsy Girl" Arthur Latham's "Broncho" taking second and Samuel Bradford's horse third.

Tawas City High school defeated the East Tawas High Thursday afternoon by a score of 24 to 4.

The free-for-all trot was won by Will Grant's Ethel Chimes, Wm. Charters took second with "B. C.," Chas. Curry got third, and Lewis Binder captured the fourth money.

The free-for-all running race proved to be the race of the fair. Four horses started, and it required seven heats to decide it. Dr. Schmaller's horse got the first two heats, Percy Scarlett's grey mare the next two, and then Arthur Latham's "Broncho" came away and captured the next three and the race. The Scarlett horse took second and the Schmaller third. The fourth money went to Roy Charters.

The Klondike placer mining district in Alaska has produced $150,000,000 in gold since 1898, and mining experts estimate the amount yet to be mined will equal that already produced. Consul Dole, of Dawson, states that the gold output for 1910 will exceed that of 1909 when more than three and a half millions was produced. Most of this gold, he states, was shipped to the United States. A small quantity went to the new Canadian mint. Consul Cole reports that rich deposits of copper ore have been discovered in the southern part of the Klondike district.

ART OF WRITING VERY OLD

New Discoveries Carry Back Existence of Written Documents Centuries Beyond Phoenician Record.

The revelations made at the remains of a great prehistoric palace at Knossos, in Crete, which is believed to be the original of the fabled "Labyrinth," would seem to carry back the existence of written documents on Greek soil some eight centuries beyond the earliest known monuments of Greek writing and five centuries beyond the earliest dated Phoenician record as seen on the Moabite stone.

These discoveries, therefore, place the whole question of the origin of writing on a new basis. It is thought that the Cretan hieroglyphs exactly correspond with what, in virtue of their names, we must suppose to have been the pictorial originals of the Phoenician letters on which the alphabet is based.

Among these are Aleph, the ox's head; Beth, the house; Drieth, the door, and so forth. This contravenes the old theory of De Rouge that the Phoenician letters were derived from early Egyptian forms signifying quite different objects.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Sept. 30, 1910

Northeastern Michigan Exhibit at State Fair.

Cabbages four feet in circumference, clean white celery that looks like Kalamazoo's finest, squashes and pumpkins that must have been hoisted into the building with a crane, characterize the exhibit of the Northeastern Michigan Development bureau, which occupies one whole corner of the administration building at the state fair.

Because they have never seen an exhibit of the bureau at any previous fair, thousands of people are asking what this organization is that shows such a mushroom growth, but whose showing is by no means mushroom in its consistency.

It's a short story. The people of northeastern Michigan got tired of hearing their lands referred to as "pine barrens" and "sand plains," and determined to show outsiders the truth. So men in 17 counties, who are interested in the development of that part of the state, banded together to organize the Northeastern Michigan Development bureau, which is analogous to the Northwest Michigan bureau and the Southwest Michigan bureau, and which has for its object the advertising of the capacities of the country from which it draws its membership.

The 17 counties are: Alcona, Alpena, Arenac, Bay, Cheboygan, Clarendon, Crawford, Gladwin, Iosco, Midland, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle, Roscommon and Saginaw.

The bureau has been in existence about a year, and already hundreds of people have been attracted to northeast Michigan and thousands of inquiries have been received about farm and stock lands.

O. F. Barnes, chairman of the board of supervisors of Crawford county, is one farmer, stock-raiser and land-owner who has such faith in his district that he has come to the state fair to boost it as much as he can.

"The trouble was that our country was once entirely controlled by the lumber interests," he explains. "They discouraged settlement; they did not want to pay taxes for schools and roads. So they said that our land was worthless except for forestry and lumbering, and people believed the report because there were few to contradict it. Now the lumber interest is passing and the farming interest is prospering on these 'worthless' lands. We want to show that the old reputation of the northern part of this peninsula is false."

They are doing it in this way. The bureau is advertising the advantages of northeastern Michigan, and every inquiry that comes to the bureau is sent to its 150 members, who thereupon deluge the inquirer with information concerning every part of the 17 counties where there is good land for sale.

This has been the result. Land that once could not be sold for $5 an acre is now bringing $20 to $30. Land that was once considered fit only for jack pine is growing 200 bushels of potatoes to the acre. "The barrens" and "sand plains" are pasturing 200 sheep or 25 cattle to the quarter-section—pasturing them from the time of melting snow in March to the time of heavy snow in December, more economical pasturage, perhaps, than in any part of the United States.

The state fair visitor can see for himself just what is being done in northeastern Michigan, for on long tables are spread sample products of the region. Not by counties, in confusing duplication; but an exhibit from northeast Michigan as a whole.

There are plenty of men to answer questions about what particular district furnished the individual products; and they do it, too, without blowing their horn too strongly over their own territory. They are plugging for the whole 17 counties.

The Northeastern Michigan Development bureau will have a big exhibit at the United States Land and Irrigation congress, which will be held in Chicago from Nov. 19 to Dec. 4. They have contracted for 900 square feet of floor space.

"We'll show 'em," is the enthusiastic prediction of the men from the seventeen counties of northeast Michigan.—Detroit News.

Notice to the Public.

Those going on the Detroit & Mackinac Rv. Annual Fall Excursion, September 27, and the public in general, are respectfully requested to inform friends and relatives in Ohio, Indiana, Southern Michigan and other states that the country located on and adjacent to the Detroit & Mackinac Rv. in Northern and Northeastern Michigan has thousands of acres of fine farm, ranch and wood land for sale at very low prices and that on October 4 and 18, November 1 and 15 and December 6 and 20, 1910, home-seekers rates will be named from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other states; special low rates will be quoted from Chicago, Michigan City, Benton Harbor, Niles, South Bend, Sturgis Hillsdale, Jackson and Toledo to the following points on the D. & M. Rv.: Aloha (Mullet Lake), Aldena, Au Gres, AuSable, (Oseoda), Black River, Cheboygan, East Tawas, Harrisville, Hillman, Lincoln, Linwood Park, Metz, Millersburg, Onaway, Ossineke, Prescott, Rose City, and Tawning. Home-seekers tickets are limited to eight days. The general Passenger Department will be pleased to give information in regard to home-seekers rates into Michigan.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless tonic medicine. Mr. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c. at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s and Jas. E. Dillou.

Were Well Taught.

The children of an infant school in Wales are taught very much by signs. The hand of the teacher sloped signifies "oblique;" the hand held flat, "horizontal;" the hand upright, "perpendicular." One of the Welsh bishops was preaching one day in behalf of the school, when, observing several children whispering together, he held his hand upright in a warning manner, meaning thereby to impose silence, on which almost the whole school, in the midst of the sermon, shouted out, "Perpendicular!"

It Saved His Leg.

Then Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured it, sound and well." Infallible for skin eruptions, eczema, salt rheum, boils, fever sores, burns, scalds, cuts and piles. 25c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s and Jas. E. ANOTHER PRESIDENT ABROAD

How General Grant Was Received During His Triumphant Tour Around the World.

In the free city of Hamburg the senate especially honored Grant; the king of Sweden pressed invitations upon him to visit his majesty at the superb palace of Drottningholm. In Russia the general was received by the prime minister, and an imperial yacht was placed at his disposal, while royal salutes were fired whenever he appeared. A grand audience was arranged for the ex-president by the Emperor Alexander in St. Petersburg. A like function was arranged for him in Vienna by the Emperor Francis Joseph. King Alfonso (father of the present king) gave him a truly Spanish welcome in Madrid; and when General Grant reached Lisbon, the king of Portugal, putting aside all etiquette, came to meet him. The two had many other meetings, punctuated with receptions and banquets.

From Europe and Africa the general proceeded to India, where he was entertained by the viceroy and by countless maharajahs. In Siam the king eagerly invited him to the palace, where a state dinner was given and the royal elephants were displayed. In China, almost more than anywhere else, was he the recipient of extraordinary honors from viceroys, princes and statesmen, including Li Hung Chang; while in Japan the imperial cabinet and the emperor met him and gave him a sight of a military review at a time when few people were aware of Japan's growing power in war. The most picturesque festivals and popular fetes crowded his days in Tokyo, where the emperor at the imperial palace gave him a personal farewell. Thence the general returned across the Pacific to San Francisco, where all California seemed to have assembled in his honor.—Bookman.

HE REFUSED TO BE FOOLED

Planter Who Declined to Be "Stung" by Any Fresh N'Orleans Railway Agent.

The Frisco's city passenger and ticket agent is Mark Anthony. The freight agent at the terminal station is George Washington. Napoleon Bonaparte Hoskins is the Frisco's selling agent.

One afternoon a sun-burned, honest-looking man, who probably is an up-state rice planter, came into the ticket office opposite the St. Charles hotel, and questioned Anthony about some household goods that were overdue, exhibiting Napoleon Hoskins' card as the man he had given the business to. "You don't want this office," the city ticket agent told him. "Go down to the terminal station at Basin and St. Louis streets and ask for George Washington."

"George Washington," said the honest shipper in surprise. "Well, who shall I say sent me?"

"Why, Mark Anthony," said the ticket agent.

The planter fixed Anthony with his eye for a minute or two, and then, turning on his heel, tore up Hoskins' card and threw it on the floor. "Young man," he called out as he reached the door, "you needn't try to string me. You N'Orleans people are too fresh to do business with me, anyhow."

"Caesar," called out Anthony to the porter, "sweep up the gentleman's card. And Caesar did.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Concrete lasts forever. The lasting qualities of cement make its use most desirable for this purpose. Concrete has no apologies to offer other materials as compared with granite or marble, equal to cut stone, of just as beautiful finish as granite or marble at a fraction of the cost. Thousands of graves today are unmarked in any way, not because of lack of respect or sentiment, but many of the people are unable to pay the high price of cut stone, marble and granite. There are hundreds of people in this community who would gladly erect a fitting monument to their dead if it could be done within their means. Send me your address and I will send you designs and prices within reach of all. All work in this line guaranteed. Also water troughs, supply tanks, mangers, feed troughs building blocks, silo blocks or anything in that line.

the season without having on any wear to speak of, either over or under.

A bit of Fall is as nice a thing As I know anything about—

When the pumpkin pie is ripening, And the time is opportune for kraut.

When the hunter gets his trappings out, Awakened by the time of year,

And the farmer, furious without, And hot within, begins to shout,

"Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!" "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here—dadbame your skin!"

Ah, that's the proper time to sigh— When the squirrel gets his goodies in

Against the winter by-and by. When the bending reaches of the sky.

Are very soft and very near, And the farmer, with a watchful eye, Begins to hop around and cry,

"Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!" "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here—you blanky-blank!"

Ah, that's the season of them all— When winter bangs upon the flank

Of the wild goose passing in the fall. When the plaintive quail begins to call

Across the golden fields and sere, And the farmer, bursting from the tall

With leaps and bounds, begins to bawl; "Get ou-u-u-u-t of here!"

The melancholy days will come, and the pheasant will intone his curran upon the sad and drowsy wind in the solemn manner of his kind.

The booming frog will sniff the breeze and fall to digging on his knees, and the buckwheat cake will take a crack at this fool thing of coming back.

It may be Jeffries and his strain are never quite themselves again, but the pickled pig's foot and the rest are always equal to the test.

They never dissipate a bit, but spend the summer prime and fit, and let the frost succeed the dew, and they're there, you bet, as good as new.

The doughty oyster on his shell, the chitlin looking strong and well, and clear and resolute of eye, the hardy brands of winter pie.

The applebutter, juice and flake, the same that mother used to make, and the crackling of our youthful lot the cock and captain of the pot.

The football season will revet, and center rush will paw the dirt, He'll wake the natives with his roar, and bawl for victory and gore.

The piled-up dieing and the dead will mass against his butting head, and he'll spin the planet in his rage just like a squirrel in his cage.

Alas for those who calmly sit devising to denature it, and all the college renegades who think to temper it for maids! The students and the teachers bow, and the rooters and the bleachers yowl, and damnd be he who does not rise and kill somebody twice his size.

The aeroplanes will cruise the air above the old-time county fair, and the lucky winner will be he who wins the best two falls in three.

The farmer in his limousine will tool around upon the green, and the hired man will seize the chance to wear his other pair of pants.

The softer weather will defy The blandishments of June, And the month will give us by and by

The officehunter's moon. A chop will cost four bits a pound, And beef a buck a bite, And the wolf will wear a groove around

The cabin every night. The 418th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus will be celebrated on the night of the 14th by the seven Guggenheim brothers.

Mr. Roosevelt will be stage manager again this month. The villain will be the Demon Rum. Mr. Bryan will be the father of the stolen child, and Mr. Cannon, who made the password Hell last month, will change it to read Hell-p!

And the November will return With cold and chilly draft, And the wild goose going down the line

With Winter biting aft. "Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by Red Cross Pharmacy.

When Ada Went Away

It was the first time the Gartmanys had been separated since they were married. Mrs. Gartman said it was perfectly dreadful to leave Harry, and she didn't see how on earth she was going to do it when the time came, but her people simply insisted on her going to visit them.

Gartman bore up heroically. He said it would seem mighty strange with Ada away, and it would be hard to bear it, but he would do his best to endure the separation, inasmuch as he did not see how he could leave his business just then.

Yet down deep in his heart, unconquered even to himself, he looked forward to enjoying his little vacation. Of course he loved his wife and was perfectly happy, but he knew it would seem good to hunt up the boys and stay as late as he wanted to at the club without having to watch the clock.

It would be fun, too, to have smokers and Dutch suppers at the house and not have to remember about not scattering cigar ashes on the porch. Such things wouldn't matter, because nobody would see them but himself before the maid swept. He would get Likemore to come over and stay with him.

Likemore and he had been chums before his marriage, and of late they hadn't seen much of each other. Ada called Likemore sarcastic instead of clever and amusing, and somehow she and Likemore did not get on well together.

"I wish you were going, too," said Mrs. Gartman, tearfully, when her husband put her on the train.

"So do I," said Gartman, dutifully. "But business," he added firmly, "simply will not let me!"

"I know," agreed Mrs. Gartman, resignedly.

Gartman walked out of the railroad station briskly. Ada would have a nice, restful visit, and meanwhile he had to get home to greet Likemore. They had dinner together and Gartman was surprised to find that Likemore was strikingly devoid of tact. Likemore said outright that he didn't care for that kind of lemon pie—and it was Ada's favorite recipe, which she had taught the cook. Then they smoked and talked on the front porch and watched the moon, and both of them yawned before 9:30 o'clock.

"Let's turn in," said Gartman. "Tomorrow we'll have in some of the fellows and have a real old talkfest! I'm tired tonight!"

Six of the old crowd gathered there the following evening and there was a lot of laughter and fun, and Gartman enjoyed himself hugely till they left and he surveyed the house.

"Consarn them!" he grumbled to Likemore. "Look at the place! Reminds a residence struck by a cyclone. Here is a cigar stub that has burned right into the mahogany—who was fool enough to lay it down there, I'd like to know? Ouch! Who left that pitcher on the stair step? Well, the maid can clean up tomorrow. I'll make it all right with you. I never remember the crowd's being so careless before!"

"Why, I didn't notice any difference," said the surprised Likemore. "It was just like old times!"

"Was it?" asked Gartman, dubiously.

They went to the club the next night and when Gartman thought it must be about three o'clock in the morning and they started for home he found it was 10:30.

"Well, there weren't many there we knew," he told Likemore. "And then there wasn't anything to do but billiards."

"You used to say you never could get enough of the game," said Likemore. "You kicked frightfully last time at stopping because you had promised to be home at eleven."

"Did I?" asked Gartman, unbelievably.

After that he and Gartman had a hard time thinking up things to do. They went to a summer garden and walked around lonesomely and Gartman said the music was very slow. They stayed home and yawned in each other's faces and Gartman got snappy. He had never noticed before how feeble was Likemore's wit. The house looked queer. He jumped at the stillness of it. Whenever he went into the living room he mechanically looked to see Ada in her accustomed chair, and then scowled and pretended he had come to open the cigar jar. Besides, there were two days when he did not get a letter.

Exactly a week after Mrs. Gartman had left Likemore came in and found Gartman packing a suitcase and trying heroically to look self-sacrificing.

"I've decided to run down and join Ada," he told Likemore. "You see, I—er—am afraid she'll get too lonesome. She's so dependent on me for company. Hate to leave you, old chap, but I kind of feel it is my duty—what are you laughing at?"

"You never could guess!" said Likemore.

O. T. Roosevelt has come back to the west!

Of all the rough riders his luck was the best.

He rode from Dakotah to San Juan hill, and he found him the spaniards he wanted to kill.

Shouting, "Into 'em, Teddy, An' into 'em deep!"

And the men of Granada Went down in a heap.

He rested his broncho and fed him his fill, and then he rode yelling up Capital Hill. He wasn't expecting or asking a thing, but he landed right in the political ring, shouting "Into 'em, Teddy, and into 'em plump!"

and the poor politicians went down in a lump.

He watered his pinto and fed him some oats, And then he remounted and hunted for goats.

He found him some people who didn't argee

With all of his notions, and gave a whoop-pee,

Yelling, "Into 'em, Teddy, An' into 'em hot!"

And he knocked them all into. The pitiless bot.

He hobbled his charger and gave him some grass, and then he went after someone in his class. He put up a lion with blood in its eye, and he clapped on the spurs with a terrible cry, saying "Into 'im, Teddy, an' into 'im hard!" and the lion passed on to his final reward.

He breathed his good mustang and looked him around,

But further adventure was to be found.

So he pulled up his trousers and pulled down his vest,

And slowly rode back to his old-time West,

Shouting, "Back to 'em Teddy, An' back to 'em proud!"

And they gathered about him And solemnly bowed,

He rode in his saddle, and rode on his head, and he put all the tenderfeet under the bed. He dashed to the East, and he dashed to the West, and he halted before them, expanding his chest, saying, "Three cheers for Teddy, the pride of the West!" and they took a great pleasure in doing the rest.

October is from the Latin octo, meaning eight, and it was formerly the eighth month of the year. This brought the football season around at a time when there was a grave danger of being suffocated before the ball was even put into play, and there was a great deal of dissatisfaction at the old Greek and Roman universities. A change was frequently talked of, but it remained for Numa Pompilius, who was one of the early friends of education, to do anything about it. In 713 B. C. he moved October along to its present place in the calendar, and now the quarterback on a football team always says before snapping the ball.

Numa, Numa, B. C. Come seven, One, three!

After which the roote, who reached a very high state of proficiency in the latter days of Numa, recite, or whatever the name of the school is, as you may hear them doing any time this month by following the riot wagon when it passes.

Numa, Numa, Boomalooma, Come seven, One, three, B. C., Whoopee! Siwash!

Until the 23d of the month, October will be under the influence of Libra, the Balance, which is the seventh sign of the zodiac. This will enable everybody running for office to keep on the fence pretty well as to the real issues of the campaign, but when the sun passes out of that constellation on the following day they will begin dropping on one side or the other, and it will be easier to make out who the true friends of the people are. After the 22d we will be influenced by Scorpio, the Scorpion, which is almost meaningless now, but in early times typified the manner in which the north wind stung the old Greeks, who were in the habit of going until very late in

What do you include when you think of home-keeping? If you take it to mean merely the work of the house-hold, could be accomplished by a hired servant, then perhaps it does not matter that you should miss such things as opportunity for thought, daily reading, etc., says Home Notes. But if you make home-keeping mean home-making and home-keeping, the formation of a home into a center for the life of the soul and spirit as well as of the body, then you must cultivate your mind, not keep it always to the level of the mundane things of life.

She Deserved a Lathering.

Shall we, or shall we not say "hollo" to our neighbors in Grant, Burlington and Turner, also be connected with the long distance line, was the question of importance discussed at a meeting of our citizens in the town hall last Friday evening and by the interest manifested, will be answered in the affirmative in the near future. Another meeting will be held in the town hall Tuesday evening, October 4, when all should attend and help to establish one of the greatest necessities of modern times, a live telephone line.

Slightly Modified.
Little Viola had developed the habit of holding her thumb in her mouth, even while eating. Mother had resorted to all sorts of methods to correct the child and finally in desperation said:
"Viola, the first thing you know you will swallow your thumb, and then what will you do?"
"Well, mother, I should hate to swallow it because I'd have a heaven of a time without it."
"Why, Viola," said the astonished mother, "where did you hear an expression like that?"
"Well, vell," hesitated the little girl, "I didn't hear it exactly like that, mother, but I thought it would sound better."

Change in Man.
Men are not the same through all divisions of their ages; time, experience, self-reflections, and God's mercies, make in some well tempered minds a kind of translation before death, and men to differ from themselves as well as from other persons. Hereof the old world afforded many examples to the infamy of latter ages, wherein men too often live by the rule of their inclinations; so that, without any astral prediction, the first day gives the last; men are commonly as they were; or rather, as bad dispositions run into worse habits, the evening doth not crown, but sourly concludes the day.—Sir Thomas Browne.

Habit.
Habit is the deepest law of human nature. It is our supreme strength, if also, in certain circumstances, our miserableness weakness. Let me go once scanning my way with any earnestness of outlook, and successfully arriving, my footsteps are an invitation to me a second time to go by the same way; it is easier than any other way. Habit is our primal fundamental law, habit and imitation; there is nothing more perennial in us than these two. They are the source of all working and all apprenticeship, of all practice and all learning in the world.—Carlyle.

Before and After.
The young Prince Tsal-Tao, during his visit to America, welcomed criticism of Chinese customs, and retorted politely with counter criticism of the customs of the United States.
The prince, at a fashionable luncheon in New York, sat beside a lady prominent in a rich and rather fast set.
"Prince," said this lady, "I think it's dreadful that in China a bride never sees her husband before the wedding day."
"Well," said the prince, with a grin, "here in America you never see him after it."

German Applicant for Citizenship Gives His Opinion of Subject of Polygamy.
Herman Seiferth, a wood turner from Germany, was among the first of a score of applicants seeking "papers" from a federal judge in Kansas recently. Herman had been in America seven years, and his conversation, albeit a trifle warped, was quite understandable.
So far, so good. The questions of law and morals proved a bit more difficult.
"What do you think of polygamy?" the assistant district attorney inquired.
"Vot iss?" parried the examinee, puzzled.
"Polygamy—polygamy," the interlocutor repeated. "Do you believe it is right, proper and lawful?"
Herman was stumped. There appeared to be no word in the lexicon of the Vaterland that sounded enough like polygamy to give Herman even a false start. The judge ventured a hint.
"What do you think of a man that would have several wives at the same time?" the court asked.
That was easy. Herman looked vastly relieved.
"Oh," he rejoined, postively. "I think such a man would be one great, large fool." And the court was so well satisfied with Herman's moral attitude and right intent that the "papers" were forthcoming despite the applicant's minor inaccuracies in history and geography.

Setting the Pace.
"Pacemaker at a banquet is what I should call the unique job," said the city salesman. "I met a man the other day who holds that title among the artistic eaters of the town."
"He doesn't make any money by it directly, but it pays for most of his meals. He got the job through his ability to chew at just the right tempo."
"He doesn't lag, he doesn't bolt. At all big dinners where persons of different habits are brought together some one with an even jaw movement who can set the pace in eating facilitates the progress of the meal."
"This man is not labeled pacemaker at those affairs, yet his air of knowing the polite tempo in mastication impresses the other diners and they try to imitate him. Laggards hurry, the swift delay. Waiters keep an eye on him, because they have been told, and when he finishes a course they clear the table."

Were Well Taught.
The children of an infant school in Wales are taught very much by signs. The hand of the teacher sloped signifies "oblique;" the hand held flat, "horizontal;" the hand upright, "perpendicular." One of the Welsh bishops was preaching one day in behalf of the school, when, observing several children whispering together, he held his hand upright in a warning manner, meaning thereby to impose silence, on which almost the whole school, in the midst of the sermon, shouted out, "Perpendicular!"

A Wary Chap.
There is a Milwaukee man who has been prosperous in business, and whose note is worth something with in reason that he is willing to write it for. Not so long ago he received a check from the United States government for ten dollars to his firm. He took it to the postoffice to have it cashed.
The clerk said he could cash it if the man would "indorse" it.
"Oh, no, you don't," the man answered. "I promised my partner when I went into business with him that I would never indorse any paper in the firm's name."
"Well, then, just write the name of the firm across the back; that will answer the purpose," the wily clerk persuaded.
"Sure, I'll do that," and he did.

HEARD AT THE TELEPHONE
Certain Class of Acquaintances Who Make Gray-Headed Men Foolish.
"There are certain acquaintances in whose presence I feel very self-conscious," said the gray-headed man. "They are people who talked with me over the telephone when some infernal racket that cannot be explained to outsiders was going on at my elbow. A lawyer called me up the other day when my wife's cousins from Mount Vernon, who always come to our house to adjust their matrimonial differences, were engaged in one of their periodical battles. The woman had the floor just then, and all the time the transmitter was open she continued to launch abuse at her husband. The next day I received a confidential communication from the lawyer setting forth his terms for getting a divorce."
"Then sometimes as a matter of accommodation, we take care of our neighbor's two dogs. The ringing of the telephone bell is the signal for them to yell and howl. I am convinced that many people think we run a dog's boarding house. A man asked me the other day if the price of dog biscuits had gone up along with the rest of life's necessities."
"Once when I lied for the women folks and swore that there wasn't a soul about the house but me some one struck up a tune on the piano just as I uttered that classic lie. As I said, those and other persons who have heard queer noises at our house over the telephone make me feel very foolish."
