Postmaster Kelly has been notified by the postoffice department that rural route No. 1 from this city has been extended to take in about 35 families residing in Baldwin township. The new service will begin February 1. This brings to an end the controversy which has been existing for the past couple of years over the establishment of a new route to include Baldwin and Wilber townships or an extension of our route No. 1. As a result the people of Wilber will have to get along without rural delivery for some time.
Rep. Oppenborn of Alpena has introduced a bill in the state legislature which appears on its face as a mere measure to perpetuate deer in the Michigan woods. It prohibits the killing of female deer for a period of five years. The prime motive that actuates the introducer of the bill, however, is the protection of human life. His idea is that if the hunters are required to wait long enough to determine whether the game is a buck or a doe, there will be plenty of time to ascertain whether the proposed target is a man or a deer, incidentally the provisions of the bill will help perpetuate the game.

The farmers of Michigan have received about $5,500,000 for the raising of 9,500 tons of sugar beets, which will be converted into beet sugar by the 16 factories of this state.

The case of Benj. Mackin, against J. T. McInerney, John Henry, John Corrigan, A. O. McInerney, saloonists, and their bondsmen, has been on trial in the circuit court since Monday. Mackin, who resides in Alabaster, was thrown from his wagon in September 1909, while intoxicated, and sustained injuries to his back which have proven to be permanent. The suit is for damages. C. A. Jahraus and Edwin Rawden are attorneys for the complainant, while Frank Eames, of Detroit, E. E. Anneke, of Bay City, and A. W. Black looked after the defense. The case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon. After being out all night, a verdict of "no cause of action" was brought in at 7 o'clock this morning.

Bicycles in Slam.
One of the most popular modes of locomotion in Bangkok is the bicycle; the city covers a very large area, the public offices are far from the residential portion of the town and the roads are excellent. The customs report for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1910, shows that 708 machines were imported during that year, an increase of 240 over the previous year, amounting to $18,613, an average of $26 a bicycle. Machines may be bought locally from $15 upward, the English makes ranging from about $30 to $75. Parts of bicycles were imported during the last fiscal year amounting to $2,940. Of all the bicycles imported during the last year 587 are credited to the United Kingdom, 34 to Denmark, 33 to Germany, 31 to Singapore, 16 to Belgium, 8 to France, 1 to Italy and 3 to the United States.

The Force That Makes The Wheels Go Round.

Many misconceptions about advertising exist in the mind of the reading public; but it is such a vital force . . . that certain simple facts about it should be clearly understood.

Advertising is to business what electricity is to the city—light and power. It is at once a gentle force that makes things clear and an irresistible force that makes things go, method of the past generation to the scrapheap to keep company with the tallow dip and the horsecar. Founded on the most abstract of sciences, it concerns itself with the most concrete of facts. Wasteful and haphazard in its crude beginnings, it has revolutionized business because in its later development it has proved the most economical and efficient method of selling goods. Today manufacturers split pennies to find profits and split hairs to find costs. The old idea that an article is more expensive because it is advertised is exploded. As intently as water seeks the lowest possible level, modern business seeks economical method of marketing its products. An advertised article is cheaper than one which is sold to consumers by tallow-dip, horsecar methods.

Advertising is a salesman that is always at work, but never wears a customer; that calls on the same man until he is convinced, but never annoys him with its insistence; that wastes no time, wastes no words, and that can always gain an audience and a hearing. Alone among salesmen, advertising has free access to the libraries of President Taft and Mr. Morgan; it marches unchecked past the secretary of the big merchant and enters without hindrance the store of the retailer. When it cannot tell its story to a man in his office it can always gain his attention in his home. The door of the housewife is never slammed in its face. No country is so remote, no village is so dead, that it does not go there for orders and get them.

The advertising pages of the periodicals are the great world-market in which every one may display his wares on equal terms and secure customers in fair competition, according to the merit of his goods and the brains in his arguments. A trust may rent all the choice city corners, but the little manufacturer may rent even choicer ones in the periodicals and so beat monopoly at its own game.

Before the true power and function of advertising were clearly understood, either by the merchant or the public, it was supposed that advertising must do good by stealth and sell goods by indirection. It was taken for granted that the readers of a periodical glanced at the advertisements against their will and were cajoled by them into buying when they were off their guard. Today advertisers understand that direct statements and clear arguments not irrelevant foolery and twaddle, sell goods. The advertising pages are no longer casually met by the reader as he goes through his periodical, but they are deliberately sought by an increasingly large number of men and women, because they contain information on a hundred subjects that people want to know about—information that will save them time, trouble and money.

In learning the important facts about their own business, advertisers have discovered certain related facts about the publisher's. They know now that a periodical must not only have circulation but that there must be buying power in that circulation. Permanent buying power—which is the only kind worth while to an honest advertiser—is the out-growth of three things: It begins when a magazine is bought on its merits—that is, when it is bought for what it contains and not for something that is given away or sold with it; it grows as the magazine finds increasing favor among the honest, hard-working and moderately prosperous classes of the country; and it reaches its highest development when over a term of years, the magazine has merited the confidence of those classes in its essential honesty of purpose. This all takes time. Confidence is a plant of slow growth.

While the advertiser is waiting for the value of a periodical to be established by the publisher is losing money steadily; and the faster his circulation is growing the more money he is losing. Yet, getting circulation is his only chance of winning out in the end. When you meet a successful publisher you may be certain of two things about him—he is a good loser and a good stayer.

It is easy to see now why so many promising magazines fail. The early history of those that have succeeded is a story of standing off the printer, the papermaker and waiting in hope on the president of the bank; for few men of ample capital are willing to venture their money on the uncertain hazard of a new magazine.

It is perfectly plain, too, that every popular periodical must be considered as a whole and not as two parts—one reading and the other advertising matter. These two things are simply parts of a circle, each necessary to the existence of the periodical.

Advertising is not only light and power, but it is also a live wire guarded, carries great potentialities for evil as well as good.

Editor's Note:—The above extract from an article which appeared in The Saturday Evening Post of Dec. 17th, is of vital interest to every business man.

The Presumptuous Few.

"There are men in America who conscientiously believe that the prosperity of America is tied up with and identical with the prosperity of certain great financial interests. I am not at liberty to say anything derogatory to the character or the honesty of such a man. But he cannot think in terms of America; he thinks in terms of the influences with which he is connected. And a man who cannot think in terms of America cannot represent any portion of America."—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, in characterization of James Smith, Jr., editor of the Newark Star, and Wall Street candidate for the senatorship.

It is reassuring to know that a man who could utter sentiments like those can be elected to the governorship of New Jersey, even under a false impression as to his opinions. It is equally comforting to know that he has discovered enough voters in the legislature to confound the Wall street interests, its newspapers and its candidates. Gov. Wilson confined his remarks on this occasion to American prosperity. He might have added that American manhood, and American happiness, which do not depend upon prosperity, are not tied up with nor identical with the character and practices of a few special interests.

The prosperity, the manhood and the happiness of the American people were all established before the aforesaid special interests were ever heard of, and doubtless will continue long after those noisy interests have joined Croesus, Crassus, and Midas in the dust of obscurity.—Detroit News.

Boquets.

The Tawas Herald, published the last 18 years by Len J. Patterson, has entered upon its 28th year. Mr. Patterson and his paper are among the leading pushers in the development of this part of the state.—Gladwin Record.

The Tawas Herald of last week was No. 1 of volume 28, of which for 18 years it has been conducted by our former townsman, Len J. Patterson, who is a practical printer and an all around good citizen. It is among our brightest exchanges, well edited, and always advocating whatever may stand for the proper advancement of the city or county, therefore deserving the liberal support which it evidently receives.—Graying Avalanche.

The Tawas Herald last week started its 28th year, 18 of which the present publisher, Len J. Patterson, has been at the helm. Len is one of the best known publishers in Michigan.—Standish Independent.

We wish to congratulate the Tawas City Herald and the West Branch Herald-Times on the celebration of their birthdays last Friday. The Tawas Herald is 28 years old. Eighteen of these years it has been published by genial Len J. Patterson, the secretary of the N. E. Mich. Press association. It is a news sheet, plainly edited with the view of being "the paper of the people of the Tawas." Accept our best wishes for another prosperous year for the Tawas Herald and the Herald-Times.—Cheboygan Tribune.

Old Soldier Tortured.

"For years I suffered unspeakable torture from indigestion, constipation and liver trouble," wrote A. K. Smith, a war veteran at Erie, Pa., "but Dr. King's New Life Pills fixed me all right. They're simply great." Try them for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Only 25c at J. M. Wuggazer and Co.'s and Jas. E. Dillon's.

Wipe Out the Deficit.

Lansing, Jan. 17.—With Gov. Osborn and the majority of the ways and means committee of the house and finance and appropriations committee of the senate determined to make a clean sweep of the state deficit, it may be predicted even this early in the session that Michigan this year will have the largest budget in its history. Everyone in authority in this matter seems of the opinion that the time for playing politics with the budget is at an end. Last year the flat statement was made on the floor of the house that the appropriation was sufficient to wipe out the deficit, but the auditor general found himself some $630,000 to the bad. It has been the habit of every legislature to get out from under on the matter of state funds. Each sought to make a showing on a small budget.

It is expected this year's budget will aggregate between ten and eleven millions. Of this probably some $700,000 will be appropriated to cover the deficit that has been growing from the so-called economy of the past.

Michigan Wealth $2,000,000,000.

Auditor General Fuller is of the opinion that the state board of equalization which will meet in Lansing, August 21, 1911, to equalize the state tax will boost the assessed valuation of Michigan over $2,000,000,000. This board meets once every five years and is composed of the lieutenant governor, auditor general, secretary of state, state treasurer and state land commissioner.

At present the total valuation of all property in the state amounts to $1,734,100,000, but the investigations of the state tax commission during the last few years makes evident the fact that an increase is necessary and it is thought that the valuation will be fixed at $2,000,000,000.

Big Inheritance Tax.

Auditor General Fuller received $82,053 in inheritance taxes Friday from the estate of the late Quincy Shaw, of Boston, Mass., who was an extensive owner of stock in the Calumet & Hecla mining company. Along with it came $16,000 in interest, the payment being the largest inheritance tax ever received by the state. Shaw owned $8,000,000 worth of the Calumet & Hecla stock.

When questioned about the tax Mr. Fuller stated that it was no extraordinary matter except in the size of the amount paid, adding that a similar tax has been collected from the estate of all persons owning stock in Michigan corporations, if the ownership was known.

Saves Two Lives.

"Neither my sister nor myself might be lying to-day, if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery," writes A. D. McDonald of Fayetteville, N. C., R. F. D. No. 8, "for we both had frightful coughs that no other remedy could help. We were told my sister had consumption. She was very weak and had night sweats but your wonderful medicine completely cured us both. It's the best I ever used or heard of." For sore lungs, coughs, colds, hemorrhage, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough, all bronchial troubles,—it's supreme. Trial bottle free. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by J. M. THE NEWEST IN HOSIERY

Stockings Beaded Across the Instep and Up the Ankles are Most Novel.

The newest hosiery shows many charming effects. Stockings beaded across the instep and up the ankles are perhaps the most novel, while others embroidered in vinelike designs appear more graceful than those with the pattern scattered indiscriminately in an all-over or loose pattern.

A design describing a circle just above the instep is new, and there are innumerable drop-stitch weaves. The colors are unusually varied and can be found to match any gown. Some are of a most beautiful changeable effect in silk, while others are so closely embroidered that they have a two-toned effect without being actually woven in that way.

Plain stockings, of lisle, silk or gauze, still hold their popularity with women of conservative taste for all except elaborate occasions or for home use with dainty house gowns or lounging robes.

PRETTY SILK VOILE WAIST

This pretty waist is of lilac-green silk voile trimmed with bands of beautiful English embroidery set in by gogoting.

The sleeves are made with fine tucks and trimmed to correspond. The little gumples is of white lace.

Zebras for Domestic Use.

There is a big scheme on foot for the capture of zebras for domestic purposes. The animals, which are to be broken to harness and saddle, are said to be immune from the ravages of the tsetse fly, and in districts infested with that scourge they should prove much more valuable than either horses or mules. Although the zebra is one of the most difficult of the equine race to break, these beautiful animals are not infrequently seen on the South African veldt running with a span of mules in a transport wagon, while a few years ago one used to see a team of zebras being "tooled" through Hyde Park by a member of the Rothschild family.

Mrs. Barlow Brings Tommy to Tears.
"The camel," answered Mr. Barlow, "is chiefly found in those burning climates which you have heard described. His height is very great, rising to 14 or 15 feet, reckoning to the top of his head; his legs are long and slender, his body not large, and his neck of amazing length. This animal is found in no part of the world that we are acquainted with, wild or free; but the whole race is enslaved by man and brought up to drudgery from the first moment of their existence." Here the interest and concern which had been long visible in Tommy's face could no longer be repressed, and tears began to trickle down his face.—From "Sanford and Merton."

SHE TRIMMED HER OWN HAT

Half a dozen pretty girls were discussing millinery. Said one of them, in reference to an absent friend: "Her hats certainly are stunning and she trims all of them herself." Said another: "I hope she may never have such an experience as I had recently. My sense of humor enabled me to live through it, but I'd not like to see any one else have it. I, also, trim my own hats."

"This fall I designed one that I thought was about the most effective I ever had, though it was extremely simple. It consisted only of a feather and a twist of velvet around the crown of a big, stylish shape. The first time I wore it was to church. I felt gratified to think that the eyes of the whole congregation were resting, at one time or another, on that hat, because the style was one to challenge attention and nobody could avoid seeing it. That is, nobody within a radius of a mile or so. When I returned home and removed the hat there was a large white ticket dangling from almost the tip of the feather, and on it was marked in large figures "35c." The ticket had been cunningly concealed underneath the feather, so that all the time I was trimming the hat I never had seen it, but wearing the hat had jarred the ticket into sight. I had picked up the feather at a bargain counter. It was a showy one and really looked as if it might have cost two or three dollars. Of course, I had the pleasure of knowing that the whole congregation had read the price."

Something Michigan Needs.

When a farmer who left the famous Salt river valley district in Arizona to settle in Benzie county, Michigan, says he is making a bigger profit here than in the west it is time for those who are lured by the flashy advertisements of interested promoters to take thought. Very often the opportunity for wealth in the land is like Maeterlinck's Blue Bird of happiness—at home instead of far away.

The census statistics published early this month will serve as further proof of the solid worth of this state from an agricultural viewpoint. During the last ten years the number of farms in Michigan have increased by more than 3,000, or about 2 per cent. This is not much, but it is far better than Indiana's shrinkage of more than 7,000 and Iowa's of more than 12,000. The value of farm buildings in this state increased 79 per cent and the number of independent farmers, or men who own the farms they till and are not on the land as tenants, has increased by more than 3,000. It is evident from the figures that Michigan agriculturists are going at their work scientifically, for the purchase of fertilizer and farm machinery has made a marked increase.

The next legislature will be asked to co-operate with the federal government in a soil survey of this state, the commonwealth to appropriate $20,000 and the United States bureau of soils a like amount for the purpose. A mapping of the so-called region of light soils, which embraces much of the lower peninsula north of Grand Rapids and the greater part of the available fruit belt is particularly desired, so that this district may be rapidly opened up to settlers. Such a plan should meet the approval of both houses, pledge of the land suitable for farming would prove a great attraction to men discouraged by the unproductiveness of other states. It is notable that J. H. Byer, the man who found Michigan superior to Arizona, lives in Benzie county, one of the tier of counties in the upper half of the lower peninsula.—Grand Rapids Press.

The Primary School Fund.

The state primary school fund is again open for discussion and a way is being sought by which the defects in its apportionment can be counteracted. Some districts in the state do not begin to expend for teachers' wages, the amount that is annually apportioned to them, and large sums are on hand and they are constantly increasing, with no prospect of the money ever being expended as it contemplated by the law. It is a ticklish subject to tackle, as the sentiment of the state is generally opposed to any alterations in the law which would for a moment contemplate the shutting off of the money from going to the benefit of the schools. The law specifies that the money must be used for the benefit of teachers' salaries and for no other purpose. Even with thousands in the treasury, some school commissioners are so niggardly that they would not pay a teacher as much as a common laborer can earn, yet they expect teachers to come to their schools equipped with a normal school training. These funds have been accumulating in some districts until there is now enough money to last fifteen or twenty years longer, even if not a penny more was paid over by the state.

Representative McNaughton has a bill before the legislature by which he hopes to correct the abuses that have crept into the system. His bill provides that those districts which have a large amount of surplus shall receive no more of the state school funds until the surplus has been exhausted. The amount thus retained by the state is to be apportioned among the other districts where it is needed. So simple and so evidently fair an adjustment of a troublesome question as this should gain recognition.

The bill has the earmarks of common sense, affording an easy solution of the question, but whether it will ever get through to the governor's hands is very difficult to say.—Bay City Times.

Solves A Deep Mystery.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble, and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and Jas. E. Dillon.

Washing the Windows of the Soul.

A woman was house-cleaning recently and as the last bit of woodwork was cleaned and the windows were shiny and clear she drew a sigh of relief and settled down for a minute of rest with a favorite book. She opened the volume at random and these were the words on which her eyes rested.

"If the windows of your soul are dirty and streaked, covered with matter foreign to them, then the world as you look out of them will be to you dirty and streaked and out of order. Cease your complainings, however keep your pessimism to yourself, lest you betray the fact that your windows are badly in need of something. But know that your friend who keeps his windows clean, that the Eternal Sun may illumine all within and make visible all without—know that he lives in a different world from you. Then go wash the windows, and instead of longing for some other world, you will discover the wonderful beauties of this world."

And then she said to herself, how true it all is, that some of us are so strenuously given to cleaning the woodwork and crevices of our homes that we never think that we need mental house-cleaning to get the unhealthy thoughts out of the corners of our brains.—Midwestern.

REMODELING PRINCESS GOWN

Discarded Frocks Can Be Worked Over Into Prevailing Styles Very Easily.

The princess gown is now so largely a thing of the past that women who have frocks of this character on their hands, or, rather, in their wardrobes, are casting about for ways of remodeling them in accordance with the prevailing styles. Here are two good suggestions, each worked out in the case of an actual gown.

In the first case, there was a front skirt panel which extended a little above the fitted waist line. The great object of course, was to give the appearance of a belt where no belt was; and this was achieved by the introduction of a large ribbon rosette at each side, with a loose fold of ribbon to match, connecting them at the back. The gown then seemed equipped with a girle which was only broken at the front panel.

In the other frock, the situation was complicated by the fact that the princess effect extended upward in bib fashion, and yet was too high to agree with even the present empire styles. The problem was solved by slashing the gown at the belt in a wide oblong, leaving only the front, as if it were a skirt panel, and then introducing a shirred oblong of the same material as the deep yoke on the blouse. Thus the gown seemed transformed to a tunic frock built over the yoke material. A strap of the skirt fabric, which had been cut out, was applied over the shirred material to complete this effect.

NLW HAT SHAPES

WOMEN GROW MORE EXACTING AS SEASONS PASS.

Many Demand Millinery That Follows Style Features of Season, but Embodies Original and Unusual Ideas.

So many hats must be made for so many women, who grow more and more exacting as the seasons pass! The majority of them want something which is popular, something to which they have become accustomed. Others demand millinery that follows the style features of the season, but embodies original and unusual ideas; and a small coterie wants the entirely new things, wishing to be the first to exploit them.

The charming model, covered with velvet and trimmed with a pair of glorious wings, is not difficult to make—quite within range of the average milliner. But, when one considers that such wings bring $12 to $15 a pair and soar to $25 when made of rare feathers, it will be conceded that distinction is expensive again. This model may be copied with good effect using less expensive wings. The crown is large and round and the drooping brim bends out to a blunt point at the front.

AEROPLANE CURLS LATEST

Hairdressers Are Showing Unusual Novelty—Curls Are Small and Fluffy.

The latest comers in the world of fashion which the hairdressers are showing are the aeroplane curls to tuck beneath the aces of the new breakfast cap or under the frills of the Theatre Bravotte.

The curls are much smaller and fluffier than those which have been worn during the past year, and they are pinned lightly at either side of the face just to show beneath the lace ruffie which edges the cap.

Chanteclair curls they are called in Paris, and are worn not only under the cap, but in a cluster at the back of the neck.

They are, however, the only false hair which seems to be popular, and it is said that even these will be discarded after the feminine world has got used to the idea of going about showing the shape of their heads instead of wearing a haystack.

When you buy the curls be sure that they exactly match your own hair, for if they vary even so little they look false and spoil entirely the effect they are supposed to give.

HOW TO RELINE A JACKET

Simple Process is Explained So Any Woman, Handy With Needle, Can Do It.

Many women, otherwise clever with the needle, think it difficult to reline a jacket. It is in reality simple. Rip out one-half of the jacket lining for a pattern, cut a complete lining by this, leaving the other half attached to the jacket for a guide. Sew the lining together, leaving the underarm seams open. Now haste in one-half, fitting it smoothly along the fronts and bottom of the jacket; then rip out the other half of the old lining and baste in the same way.

Sew the new lining all around bottom, neck, and fronts. Any fulness will go into the armholes and underarm seams, which should be sewed last of all. Cut the sleeves from the old lining and attach at the top and bottom, finishing the armhole first. Be sure to have the lining larger than the sleeves, so as to allow plenty of room at the elbow.

Good Collar Support.

This new device consists of a tape pocket into which fits an ivory bone that slips out when the collar is washed. The tape is sewn into the collar, and as it is turned over at either end it prevents the bone from digging into the neck. When once adjusted the boning of the collar gives no more trouble, as it is only the ivory in and out. The width of the tape is little over a quarter of an inch, so that it is only slightly perceptible through the collar. Sizes vary from a quarter of an inch and range in length from two inches to three and a half inches. The invention is highly recommended.

Who Was There That You Knew?

In the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one, and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the War Department for $30,000; they were buried still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knicked from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Pierpont Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of hitherto unknown facts of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

WHY PRICE OF FURS IS HIGH Manifold Handling Enhances the Cost Many Times Over Their Original Price. The Siberian peasants, hunters and trappers of animals for fur in the vast marshy forests of Siberia have appealed through their communal village associations to their Russo-English board of trade and chamber of commerce with the request to extend to them some assistance in the establishment of immediate and direct trade relations with the English buyers of fur goods. The complaint is that they are completely dependent on the small buyer-up man and the forestallers, to whom they are compelled to sell for a trifle sable and other valuable and rare furs. These small buyer-up men and various middlemen sell goods later on to other dealers, and so on, until finally the furs are sold at Nishni-Novgorod and Moscow, for the resale again to the representatives of the large Leipzig firms, who, in turn dispose of them in the English market. The manifold handling of furs enhances their price greatly, so that by the time they reach the English purchaser the prices are colossal as compared with their original cost.

Room for Doubt. The cuckoo clock had just chirped the half-hour before midnight, and the girl in the parlor scene was weary. "Mr. DeBorem," she said, as she vainly attempted to strangle a yawn, "I heard something about you the other day that I'm sure is not true." "Indeed!" he exclaimed. "What was it?" "I heard some one say you were an easy-going chap," she answered.

Turner and Vicinity.

Scott arrived home Wednesday from an extended visit in Ohio. Herb Hart, of Greenville, was a guest at the home of M. O. Collins over Sunday. Dexter King, of Mason, has sold his farm and is preparing to remove his family to Lapeer. Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bruce, of Burleigh, were guests at the home of F. B. Drummond Wednesday. Many the mistake in life which people make, but the worst of all is to live just for oneself. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lindsay, of Whittemore, were in the village Wednesday on business. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker went to Midland, Wednesday where Mr. W. will receive medical treatment. Lineman Flintoff, of Standish, was here Wednesday making improvements in the local exchange of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. Ben Trombly has purchased Mrs. J. C. Green's residence. Mrs. Green and family will leave in the near future for Monroe, where they will reside. A number of the stockholders and directors of the Isoco and Arenac Telephone Co. attended a meeting at the Sherman town hall last Monday evening. F. B. Drummond announces that he will begin the erection of a new store building adjoining his store just as soon as possible in the spring. The new building will be 25x80 feet and built of cement. We understand that it is already rented. The annual meeting of the Arenac County Fair Association was held at Standish Tuesday. James Dawson was elected president, Walter Gammon vice-president, C. R. Holden, secretary and Nelson Ireland treasurer. The financial report shows the receipts for 1910 to have been $715.35 and the expenditures $606.17 leaving a balance of $109.18. The fair next fall will be held the last week in September.

Tawas City Taxes. The tax payers of Tawas City are hereby notified that the tax rolls of the city are in my hands for collection and that I will be at my office every day during December and January for the purpose of receiving taxes. Pay your taxes before January 10, 1911, and save the four per cent. A. C. BROWN, City Treasurer.

BOY HAS SNAKES FOR PETS Takes Reptiles to School so Often They No Longer Cause Excitement. Snakes are the particular pets most favored by Edwin Whiffen, Jr., of New Rochelle. His father is a professor of science in a public school. On Saturdays and holidays Mr. Whiffen's recreation and pleasure is hunting snakes, and if the finds are particularly good he takes them home, where they are harbored and cared for by Mrs. Whiffen and all the little Whiffens. Besides Edwin Jr., who is the oldest, there are Eva, age six; Helen, age four, and Baby Robert, age two. All the children love the snakes and handle them as other children would handle kittens. They take particular delight in laughing at people who are afraid, yet whenever Edwin brings a snake to school he never takes it near the other children if they are afraid. However, the Weyman Avenue school has had so many visits from so many kinds of snakes that both teachers and pupils have grown to look for them, and now the snakes' visits are void of particular excitement. Most of the teachers or children would willingly handle the snakes, but the snakes know their master and kick back at the strangers.

The Major's Tip. When Maj. Banks was the best known figure around the race tracks of Cincinnati and the middle west, he was extremely generous in tipping off his friends to "sure winners." One man who enjoys his confidence and played the horses according to the major's advice, lost all his money and finally succeeded in reducing himself to the point where he had to sell out his grocery business.

Really Remarkable. "That fellow deserves to be encouraged." "Why, he's a wretched comedian." "I know, but he got through the skit without once referring to his feminine partner as 'kid'."

Speech. It shows an uncharitable spirit to speak ill of the man lower down and an envious one will speak ill of the man higher up.—Atchison Globe.

HEARD IN JUVENILE COURT
Judge Is No Match for Colored Mammy, Who Outwits Him at Every Turn. The judge of the juvenile court, leaning forward in his chair, looked searchingly from the discreet and very ragged pockmarked man before him to the ample and solicitous form of the culprit's mother, says the Youth's Companion. "Why do you send him to the railroad yards to pick up coal?" demanded his honor. "You know it is against the law to send your child where he will be in jeopardy of his life." "Deed, judge, I doesn't send 'im; I nebber has sent 'im, deed—" "Doesn't he bring home the coal?" interrupted the judge, impatiently. "But, judge, I whips 'im, judge, ebery time he brings it, I whips de little rascal till he can't set, 'deed, I does." "You burn the coal he brings, do you not?" persisted the judge. "Burns it—burns it—cos I burns it W'y, judge, I has to git it out ob de way." "Why don't you send him back with it?" His honor smiled insinuatingly as he rasped out the question. "Send 'im back, judge!" exclaimed the woman, throwing up her hands in a gesture of astonishment. "Send 'im back! W'y, judge, ain't yo' jest done been told me I didn't oughter send my chile to no sech dangesome and jeopardous place?"

Improve Tone of Violin. Violin making is an ancient art, yet new things may be learned about it. Two makers of musical instruments, one in Brussels, the other in Boston, have recently announced their belief that the material of an instrument has nothing to do with its tone. One of them made experiments only with wind instruments, but the other tried innovations in violins and violoncellos, substituting tin and aluminum for post and bridge, with an actual improvement in tone. It is his belief that distribution of mass is far more important to good tone than the material used. This theory is contrary to all previous opinions on the subject, and it true will search out much of the romance of the search for and treasuring of old violin timber.—Youth's Companion.

MYSTERY OF THE UMBRELLA
Pittsburg Shopkeeper Wondered About It for Many Days—Simple, After All. In the midst of a driving rainstorm one day recently the owner of a small store on a North side street corner was startled by the violent opening of the door and the sound of rushing feet. Hastily dropping the work she was doing in the rear room, she hurried toward the front of the store just in time to see the door slammed shut and a strange man running away at top speed. When she reached the door he had disappeared; but when she turned to investigate she was astonished to behold a handsome gold-handled silk umbrella, dripping with moisture, lying on the showcase. Surprise, alarm and complete mystification were mingled. What possible explanation could there be of a stranger dashing into her place in the midst of a drenching downpour, leaving his fine umbrella without a word of explanation, and rushing forth into the rain without it? The more she thought about it the deeper grew the mystery. She related the incident to her customers. Not one of them could offer a plausible solution. She finally concluded the man was crazy, and she felt profoundly thankful that he had done no worse. Then one day a second stranger appeared. He was almost as mysterious as the first. He produced a letter and handed it to the storekeeper. It was dated Chicago and read: "Dear Tom; I left your umbrella in the little store at the corner near your house. Just had time to grab a car, so failed to explain to storekeeper. Left it on showcase. Hope you recover it O. K." "Well, I declare," was all the little storekeeper could gasp as she produced the umbrella. "How simple it was, after all."—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Taking No Chances. "Someone has discovered that if the hand of a sleeping person is placed in salt water that person will reveal the secrets of his past life," said the hostess, and the visitor immediately began a hurried search for his hat. "Where are you going?" she asked in alarm. "Going home to hide the saltcellar," replied the visitor, who knew something.—Stray Stories.

Exceedingly Conscientious. Mr. Mokeby (the prospective groom)—Now, we'd like to git de knot tied in youah own house, pahson if you hab no objections. Parson Black—Suttainly I habn't, Mistah Mokeby; what makes you think I might hab? Mr. Mokeby—I done heard co often dat marriage am a lottery, I thought 'praps you might hab scruples about conductin' dat kind ob gamblin' on youah premises.

Holding Their Own. What about all this young-man-for-the-world's-work business so vehemently preached by the great moral force and others so short a time ago? Only a few days ago an 88-year-old Ohio farmer kicked because the navy would not take him as a recruit, and now a 92-year-old Chicagoan gets married.—Milwaukee Daily News.

Gives Honor to Columbus. "If there was ever a doubt as to the courage of Frithjof Nansen, the explorer, diplomatist and professor," says a letter from Christiania, "it would have been removed when the versatile man lectured before a large audience, including the king and many dignitaries, and declared that he did not agree with his countrymen, who for hundreds of years believed that Norwegians and not Columbus discovered America. His discourse occupied two hours, and in the course of its delivery he shattered the Saga of Eric the Red, and said that 'Vinland,' which the hero of the saga is said to have discovered, was 'the American continent'—it was in fact a land which existed only in imagination."

All the Difference. "I understand that the smart set is snubbing the De Bucks because they have a skeleton in their closet." "Not at all. The snub is because they didn't keep it there."
