Special Attraction.

As a special attraction to afford the people of East Tawas and Tawas City a genuine musical treat, the Alpena Harmony Society Orchestra of twenty-five instruments, will give a concert in the opera house, East Tawas, on Friday evening April 28th, beginning at 8 o'clock standard time. This organization includes ten violins and a bass, clarinets, cornets, trombone, baritone, French horns, piano, and drums and traps. This will be an entertainment well worthy of your time, so do not fail to come and bring a friend. Seats 25 cents. Come early and avoid the rush.

When you hear a man sneering at the paper because it is not big, cheap and newsy as the city papers, you can safely bet he does not squander any of his wealth in assisting to make it better and that generally the paper has done more for him than he has for it. The man who cannot see the benefits arising from a local news paper is about as much value to a town as a delinquent tax list.

Constipation is a very simple thing, but like many simple things, it may lead to serious consequences. A Distinct Hit.

"A crowded house greeted the Alpena Harmony Society Orchestra and it was a satisfied audience that reluctantly departed when the curtain dropped after the final number had been given. A mixed selection of twelve numbers were down on the program, but as every number was encored, some of them several times, the entertainment was lengthened by half. The orchestral selections, the instrumental and vocal solos, and the readings were all skillfully executed and were received with hearty applause. It was a musical treat and whenever the young people of the "Cement City" decide to come this way again they will certainly be welcome.—Alcona County Review, Harrisville.

Someone has said that rogues thrive when honest men know not how to live. That is only partially true. In the long run the rogue usually fares badly while the honest man comes to his own.

Every now and again vegetarians and meat eaters have to indulge in a warm controversy on the food question. But the solution is no nearer than that other as to whether a robin sings or chirps.

That is but a spurious patriotism that contents itself with showing the national colors and waving the national flag at stated periods. What is needed is life and action worthy of the nation.

There is nothing more potent to cheer and brighten life than kind words. Rightly spoken they frequently put new heart into a downcast man and enable him to face the world with new hope and courage.

Life is one great opportunity and the way in which any man deals with it determines his success or failure. Life should mean for every man continuous progress, and that progress is attained if life is used aright.

The deep interest caused by the tercentenary of the English Bible shows something of its strong influence upon the English speaking world. Not the least is its influence upon English speech and English literature.

And now it is said with some probability of truth, that the reports of the ravages of the plague in Manchuria are greatly exaggerated and have been circulated by Russia as a pretext for sending an army into Manchuria.

To most people it is a far more congenial task to point out and endeavor to mend faults of others than it is to remedy their own defects. Yet this is one of the many things where it is best for a man to begin with himself.

The business man who refuses in his business to make mountains of trouble out of trifles is on the high road to success. The man who frets and worries over little losses or other trivial things that may happen, shows that he is lacking in judgment and business balance.

It is well known that party names given in derision have sometimes been accepted by those at which they were aimed, as titles of honor. Thus "Christian," "Methodist," and "Paritan" may be cited as examples. And now women, who have always been blamed for the giving of the apple to Adam by Eve, have adopted that fruit as a symbol of honor, progress and political advancement—at least some women who are enthusiastic and successful apple growers have.

There are a good many fads about the right training of children, and usually those people who have none of their own are the most ready to give advice in such matters. Doubtless some of the theories are helpful, but after all there is nothing in the training of children that can equal the gentle refining influence of the mother and the strong, wise guidance of the father. Given these and the future of a child is practically assured.

The annual ordeal of house cleaning is now in full swing in most parts of the country. When the man of the house gets home from his daily task he feels like that dove sent out from the ark and which found no place for the sole of its feet. But the average man under such circumstances is not in a dove-like frame of mind, especially if he is asked to beat a carpet or tack one down. Housecleaning is one of those trials of the flesh that one has to bear once or twice each year. The experience is a trying one but fortunately it is soon over and the house looks better and smells the sweeter for it.

A change of balance of power from one party to another in the popular branch of Congress fails to cause the money market a single quiver. That is due to two reasons at least, one of which is that our national government is so firmly rooted in the convictions of the people that no change of legislative or administrative power can affect. The other reason is that all parties are equally patriotic, having at heart the good of the country and seeking in various ways to advance its interests. To be sure in the heat of a political campaign each party predicts untold calamities in event of the other party winning, but that is for election purposes only, and few are deceived by it.

The creators of legitimate wealth, such as the man who cultivates the soil, who makes the land give forth its treasures, and who converts raw materials into finished products for the benefit of mankind—these are the strength and substance of a nation, even as the speculators who prey upon the unwary are a curse and weakness.

The English House of Lords has met with cold comfort from the king in reply to its petition that he would not create new lords in event of a deadlock between the lords and commons over the veto bill. He told them that he would not surrender his prerogative and would trust in the wisdom of parliament. As a matter of fact the lords "have been weighed in the balances, and found wanting," therefore they had better accept the inevitable with good grace.

Abundance often leads to waste but it never justifies it. True economy, whether in the home, or business, or government, never means parsimony and decreased efficiency, but it does mean stopping of those leakages which prosperity with its abundance frequently produces. There is still a good deal of sound sense in the old proverb, "that willful waste makes woeful want." And it is a proverb that many an American family and institution may well take to heart.

More than 300 years ago Henry IV of France suggested a federation by which "all Europe might be regulated and governed as one family." It was a laudable aspiration, but the king was three centuries too soon. Whether or not the proposition to arbitrate all differences that may arise between this country and Great Britain is premature is uncertain. But one thing is certain, which is that humanity has gone forward a good deal since the time of Henry.

The old idea that earthly life is not to be enjoyed and that all joy is to be postponed until people get to heaven is now pretty much discarded, yet it lingers here and there. But the prevalent and right belief is that the more heavenly this present life can be made, the better. That doctrine involves every rightminded person doing his best to improve present conditions of life both for himself and others. To so do will not only have an immediate value but one that will be fully realized in the hereafter.

How to Gain Notoriety.
It is exceedingly easy to gain cheap notoriety if one sets himself to achieve it. If he is a clergyman of mediocre ability he has but to make some startling statements from his pulpit, by which he may pose as heretical, and his name and picture will speedily appear in the daily press and he will be lauded as a great and brilliant scholar.

A man may easily acquire a reputation as a genius if he affects some eccentricities of dress and habits. Similarly any professor in a college may get talked about far and wide if he but takes advanced position on ethical and social questions whereby he appears as a critic of well established and wholesome laws and customs. The thing is frequently done but the notoriety, fortunately, is not lasting.

D. & M. Constructs Fine Dock at Aloha on Mullet Lake.

The Detroit & Mackinac Ry. has just completed a fine dock at Aloha, on Mullet Lake, in connection with its picnic grounds; this structure is immediately back of the picturesque log station. The dock is 300 feet long and 8 feet wide, the flooring being of heavy planed planks; tight rows of deep-driven piles under, the inside being filled with heavy rocks and stones and it is believed the dock is sufficiently strong to withstand the heavy movements of ice during the winter and spring seasons. The water at the end of the dock is about 6½ feet deep. The Inland Route Steamers will use this dock.

Saved His Mother's Life

"Four doctors had given me up," writes Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., "and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. Electric Bitters is a priceless blessing to women troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache, weakness, debility, constipation or kidney disorders. Use them and gain new health, strength and vigor. They're guaranteed to satisfy or money refunded. Only 50c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and Jas. E. Dillon.

He was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consumption, but found no help in the climate, and started home. Hearing of Dr. King's New Discovery, he began to use it "I believe it saved my life," he writes, "for it made a new man of me, so that I can now do good work again." White Pine, Scotch Pine, Western Yellow Pine, Spruce and Western White Cedar.

These trees will be given parties who will plant them and see that they are properly taken care of. The only charge made will be for the expense of packing and freight charges from East Tawas to destination. It is especially requested that the farmers on and adjacent to the line of the Detroit & Mackinac Railway make requisition for these trees for the purpose of setting them out for reforesting some of the lands that they have out over on their farms.

The trees are ready for delivery any time now, and those interested should communicate as early as possible with Mr. C. W. Luce, General Superintendent, Detroit & Mackinac Railway Company, East Tawas, Michigan.

Sympathizing With the Chorus Man.
The chorus man who skips to the right and skips to the left in step with the chorus girl and sings sentimental ditties to her, imprinting a stage kiss upon her outer coating of grease paint at the end of the final verse, is sometimes college bred and usually a graduate of a high school, but the roughest and most illiterate "squab" shares with the showiest and best educated show girl a contempt for his calling, and when the contempt is not shown to the individual the case is exceptional.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

Conducted by the Twentieth Century Club of Tawas City

Arbor Day will soon be here. Can we not, this year, make a special effort to make it mean something to our city? Nature has done so much for Tawas it seems as though human enterprise might aid in making it one of the beauty spots of the state.

A few trees planted about the homes or by the roadside would in time work wonders in the appearance of the city. Trees are not only beautiful in themselves, but they furnish nesting places for our feathered friends. We are coming to realize more and more that the birds are public benefactors, and as such merit encouragement and protection.

If trees are not available for everyone to plant, can we not put in a few vines to clamber over unsightly walls, or conceal ugly fences. Wild clematis grows rapidly and is dainty and pretty. Woodbine is hardy and beautiful at all seasons of the year, besides being attractive to the birds. Wild cucumber vine if raised from the seed, should be planted in the fall, but roots are easily secured at this time of year. Once started the wild cucumber comes up each year from roots. The wild grape may well be classed as an ornamental vine, but the very fact that it is so plentiful and easily secured leads us to underestimate its value.

Arbor Day would be an excellent time for our city clean up day. We can clean up the accumulation of winter rubbish that make such unsavory looking spots about our premises and streets. Let rakes and bonfires be the order of the day!

"A more beautiful Tawas!" Let this be our motto, and may we on Arbor Day begin to live up to it.

Home-Seekers' Rates to Michigan

Summer Care of the Poultry.

By H. L. Kempster, Professor of Poultry Husbandry, of the M. A. C.

POULTRY should be raised on every farm. There is always a lot of waste material that a hen can make use of, and it is by the utilizing of this to the best advantage that one can make the most out of his work, and in the raising of chickens this end should be kept in view.

One of the problems that confront the farmer is the raising of young stock during the summer. It is really the easiest of his problems if he takes advantage of his opportunities. The trouble is that the chickens are generally kept up around the farm building where the grass gets tough and sour. This is usually the same yard chickens have had in previous years, and it is more or less filthy. A chicken cannot grow to a good advantage under these conditions, and, unless Summer Range Chicken House.

Conditions are different than upon most farms, both young and old are permitted to run together, which is a disadvantage for both. The thing to do with your young stock is to take it out away from the influence of the farm yards, where it can grow.

As soon as the chicks can take care of themselves put them in small portable houses that can be hauled from one portion of the farm to another. The orchard or corn field makes an ideal place to grow chickens. A combination sod and soil run is preferred to a complete sod, as chickens do better under those conditions.

Also see that the chickens have plenty of shade out on the range; the corn affords this, and also shelters from hawks. A hawk would have a hard time catching a chicken in a patch of corn.

The house can be almost any type one may desire. The one shown is 7½x12 ft., 4 ft. in the rear, 6 ft. in front. The windows, which are removed in the summer, are nine light, 5x12 glass, placed 18 inches from the floor. The house is built on 4x4 runners and can be hauled from one place on the farm to another. It makes a good load for a team, but one team can handle it all right if one uses judgment. Besides it is a convenient size for use as a breeding pen, so that it is a very useful house all the year.

About July 1, depending upon the age of the chicks, remove them to the range. Keep feed and water before them all the time. Keep their roosts free from mites, and clean the coop twice a week. The feed can consist of corn and wheat with a dry mash composed of equal parts bran, middling and corn meal. This can be fed in hoppers and kept before them all the time. One can make use of the wheat or barley fields during the summer, after the grain is cut, to a good advantage. Care should then be taken to see that shade is supplied and that the chicks have a place in which to hide from hawks.

By getting the chickens out away from the farm buildings they can be raised cheaper and better. They will be more vigorous and healthier, and one is surprised at the ease with which farm poultry can be raised under these conditions.

The orchard, corn field or portions of the garden can be utilized to a good advantage, and a crop of chickens can be grown on the same ground as another crop with a mutual benefit to both, and, while two blades are not growing where one used to grow, two crops are, which is equally beneficial to the person who employs this practice.

Get the Clover Habit.

There are still some farms in Michigan on which clovers are not grown as a regular part of the crop rotation. On some farms the meadows run from timothy to blue grass, forming a tough sod with small productive capacity. The soil becomes hard and lacks the mellowing effect of clover roots. Nitrogen is the most expensive part of fertilizers, and this is added to the soil by the bacteria which live on the clover roots.

Provided, further, That a copy of this preamble and resolution be published without delay once in each week, until the first day of May, next, in the Tawas Herald, Iosco Gazette, and Oscoda Press, newspapers published and circulated in said county.

Boys and Girls.

Can you raise corn? A prize of at least $10 is going to be awarded to the boy or girl in Iosco county who raises the best 12 ears of corn this year. The plan is by the Iosco Co. Farmers' Institute society, and at least $50 is expected to be raised to be distributed in prizes for the best corn grown by a boy or girl (age limit 16 years), during the present year. The first prize will be at least $10.00.

The terms of competition are that each competitor must plant at least one-eighth of an acre, must prepare the ground, except plowing, plant and do all the caring for the corn while growing. Some good dent corn must be used as seed.

It should be remembered that last year the prize offered in Ingham county was won by a 12-year-old girl. Watch the Herald for more particulars.

To hope is one thing, to desire is another, and to do is another. Hope never built a tabernacle, desire never bridged a chasm, but action has surmounted obstacles that were all but impossible. The men who do are those who reach success; it is the men who act that rise above the surface of society and become leaders among men.

THE NEW TREASURY VAULT.

Uncle Sam Now Has the Largest and Finest Safe in the World.
The United States government is now in possession of the largest and finest safe in the world. It is located deep underground below the United States treasury building at Washington, and in this huge strong box it is the intention to keep in storage at all times not less than $500,000,000 in currency. Of course this new governmental depository of wealth is not a "safe" in the ordinary interpretation of the word, but rather a vault, nearly fifty-four feet in length, close to twenty feet wide and about sixteen feet in height.
The exterior walls of the new vault are of the heaviest steel construction, and the door and portholes provided for ventilation are closed by heavy steel doors fitted with the latest approved locks of the heaviest and most intricate construction, but the main safeguard for this subterranean wealth lies in an electric protective system which cost $9,000 and which enmeshes the entire vault in a close drawn network of electric wires—more than seventeen miles of wire in the aggregate—which sounds alarms at any interference.
This system is tested every fifteen minutes day and night. The only means of reaching the new vault is by a secret elevator, guarded by treasury watchmen.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

HE DIDN'T CO-OPERATE.

Lloyd George Balked When He Heard the Conditions.
A celebrated explorer recently approached the chancellor of the exchequer with a view to obtaining treasury assistance and support for a forthcoming expedition.
Lloyd George met the inquirer by stating that the proper course to pursue was first to obtain help from outside bodies of citizens, such as the Stock Exchange, and then to apply, if necessary, to his majesty's ministers.
The explorer accepted the advice, but was quickly back in Mr. George's room at the treasury.
"Well, have you been successful?" asked the chancellor.
"Partially so," replied the explorer.
"How much money have you got from the Stock Exchange?" said the minister.
"Only $250," was the answer, "but with the prospect of a great deal more on certain conditions which require the co-operation of the chancellor of the exchequer."
"What were those conditions?" Mr. George inquired.
"There were two," said the traveler. "One was that the $250 would be raised to $125,000 if I took you with me to our destination on the ice, to be increased to $250,000 if I left you there."
—London Letter in New York American.

The Wood in a Ship's Deck.

With the laying of the keel of the Europa, the biggest ship in the world, now under construction, comes the news from abroad that the gross tonnage of all the ships flying the Hamburg-American line flag has passed the 1,000,000 ton mark, or, to be correct, 1,022,452 tons. For years the Hamburg-American line has held the tonnage record for ships sailing under one house flag. Some idea of the enormous size of the Europa may be gathered from the order which has been given for 2,000,000 feet of Oregon fir to be used for the decks alone. For months this lumber has been drying near Portland, Ore., before being shipped to Germany. Special care is taken to provide only clear, vertical grain wood.—Christian Herald.

At a Psychic Dinner.

"Have you been to a psychic dinner yet?" asked a pretty girl at a studio tea. "No? Then you have missed the latest development of an idea adopted by those who always keep up to the very last scream in metropolitan life. It seems that real food is served, just as at any ordinary dinner, and one has to pay for it in real money, but everything has a psychic, soulful atmosphere. At one held recently a woman, presumably happily married, told of having met in her travels one of her past husbands—that is, a man to whom she is sure she was married in some previous existence. Isn't it a wonder what some people can do when they try?"—New York Press.

What Tree Planting Did.

Between 1863 and 1878 trees were planted on 19,500 acres of the mountain Ventoux in Provence, France. The mountain is stony and the land seeded of no value. The forests which have grown are now yielding $10,000 a year, and it is figured that in five years the yearly yield of timber will be worth half as much more. The springs have reappeared in the country, the lands at the foot of the mountain have increased in value, and the villages have become prosperous.

Twelve Miles Up.

Aviators who are striving for altitude records could be frozen stiff in their seats if they were to go up as high as twelve and one-quarter miles. Kites have been sent up that high, or about 65,000 feet. They were equipped with recording thermometers, which showed that the temperature was 80 degrees below zero F.—New York Press.

Why They Don't Build Docks.

It costs $3 to get a trunk from a ship anchored in the harbor at Pernambuco, Brazil, to the shore. The authorities will not permit the building of docks because, they say, it would "knock the harbor boatmen out of a job."
