The June Woman's Home Companion contains practical and varied suggestions for a celebration on the Fourth of July, which, if put into effect, would save arms, legs and lives in your community on the fourth of that month. ## Says Michigan Has Best.

A Lansing dispatch says; Secretary A. C. Carton, of the public domain commission, has just returned from a trip through several western states, and he asserts that Michigan has the best policy of conservation outlined of any of the states he has visited. "We are making real progress here, but those states are not sure whether they are or not," said Mr. Carton today. "Our soils are better adapted to reforestation, and Michigan offers far greater opportunities in the settlement of waste lands than do those states. Michigan loses nothing by a comparison with any of them."

A Decision After Six Years.

The government of the United States won a signal victory in the United States supreme court Monday when a decision was handed down in favor of the government and against the Standard Oil company. This case has been dragging its weary way through the federal courts of this country, since 1909. The case was first argued before the supreme court in March, 1910. It was then restored to the docket for reargument which was heard January, 1911, last, before a full bench. The government claimed that Standard Oil was born and reared in fraud and oppression, and hung over the country like a threatening cloud.

This case put the Sherman anti-trust law to its severest test. The supreme court holds it good. A warning is therefore sounded to other combinations of trade which, patterned after Standard Oil, would seek to drive the independent out of business by unfair methods.

It Brings Varied Emotions.

The advent of May Day produces varied emotions. To the sentimental young lady steeped in folk lore and Tennyson it brings thoughts of garlands of flowers and the crowning of the May Queen. The thoughts are of a less romantic and pleasant character that come to the householder who sees his household effects piled on a furniture van and who in the hard experiences of moving is uncertain where he shall sleep that night.

To the employers of labor and to the business world generally May Day means anxiety because in these days of disputes between labor and capital it is the day when strikes and lockouts are usually inaugurated. Such proved the case in several of our large cities this year. It means thousands of men out of work, machinery idle, mills and factories closed, and loss of capital. It also means great inconvenience to the general public.

Fortunately in this country no violence or disorder has occurred, thus showing that labor is learning self-restraint and patience. In so far as the demands of labor are just and reasonable (and that is usually the case perhaps) public sympathy is with it. But strikes on the one hand and lockouts on the other are, after all, but crude and barbarous ways of settling disputes that arise between labor and capital, and they generate much bad feeling. Seeing how essential both are to each other, some method ought to be devised whereby the issues that arise may be amicably adjusted without any workman laying down his tools or any employer locking his factory or mill.

Saved Child From Death.

"After our child had suffered severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. T. Richardson, of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicine seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy." For coughs, colds, hoarseness, laryngitis, asthma, croup and sore lungs, it's the most infallible remedy that's made. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and Jas. E. Dillon.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

Conducted by the Twentieth Century Club of Tawas City

Clean up—clean up—clean up. Public health demands that our ditches be cleaned. Various authorities deny their responsibility in the matter. Two ditches are particularly noisome. Localities need not be mentioned—trust to the evidence of your nose. "Nuff sed." "A word to the wise is sufficient."

We notice with considerable pleasure that many unsightly spots about town have been cleaned up. Let the good work go on.

What's the matter with the Auditorium project?

Have you noticed? That the city hall needs painting? That our river is being filled with refuse?

That the few trees along our water front add greatly to its appearance?

That mosquitoes breed in stagnant ditch water?

That waste paper fails to find its way into the street basket?

That said baskets are not properly cared for?

The increasing tendency to throw banana and orange peel on the sidewalks?

That we have a court house lawn to be proud of?

Will you try?

To let the grass grow clear to the sidewalk on the corners?

To keep all rubbish off the streets?

To keep your premises clean?

To live up to our motto and try to make "A More Beautiful Tawas?"

The Subscriber That Gets Sore

Every once in a while an official gets sore because a newspaper criticizes his conduct and forthwith stops the paper under the apparent impression that he is retaliating by crippling the income of the publisher. It may be a mistake of the publisher in thinking he has been done a favor, says the Jennings (La.) Herald, but as a rule whenever a newspaper loses one subscriber on account of pique there are usually two or three others gained for the very reason that the one feels aggrieved. The experience of the editor of this paper is such that he considers it a lucky omen to have a subscriber walk in and order his paper stopped because something it contained did not suit him. He is convinced that he has said something, and whether or not he is always right, the broad minded and intelligent subscriber will recognize the fact that it is only the negative quality in life that never crosses the feelings of anybody.

Institute Prizes.

The Iosco County Farmers' Institute Society will give the following list of prizes to children under 16 years of age, for exhibits to be made at the next annual institute which will be held at Whittemore in January 1912. ## I. C. S. A. A.

Well, summing it all up, Tawas City is in third place, having lost Saturday's game to Oscoda.

The boys journeyed up to the north end with a goodly supply of rooters, determined to do or die, and although they all got back home safely they brought the short end of the score, 7 to 5, with them. Even with the short end on hits, errors lost the game. In the fourth inning four errors and one hit netted three runs, unearned, for their opponents, that did the business.

The hitter of the day was Martin, of Oscoda, who got three doubles. J. Brabant followed with three singles. Murphy in the eighth rapped out a good double, which, followed by Mark's single, gave Tawas one of its two earned runs.

A feature of the game was the base running of Brabant and the absence of Oscoda's base stealing. Adair's pilfered base was made on a passed ball, but having started before the ball was missed, it counted. Three Oscodaites died trying to rob the sacks.

The boys wish to thank the rooters for their good work.

The June Woman's Home Companion.

The June Woman's Home Companion is interesting and useful in a great variety of ways. One of its splendid features, particularly valuable and entertaining at the present time, is a description of a number of "safe and sane" celebrations of the Fourth of July which actually took place last year. These reports are full of ideas and suggestions which, as fast as they are put into effect, will save legs, arms and lives. And the great point is that the children who enjoyed these celebrations had a better time than they ever had in the old way. The new forms of entertainment that have been devised and are reported in the June Companion, are really amazing in extent and ingenuity.

There are six other special articles in the number. One of these is on the "Etiquette of Weddings." Another is on Infant Mortality. All of the articles are full of practical suggestions. One very interesting article is called "My happiest Vacation."

The fiction in this month's Companion is notable. There is a splendid story by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, the last piece of work written by this famous author shortly before her death a few months ago. Other stories are contributed by Marion Hill, C. N. and A. M. Williamson, Zona Gale, Fannie Heslip Lea and others.

The special departments in the magazine, now numbering eleven, added to the great fashion and household sections, which particularly distinguish the Woman's Home Companion, complete the number for June. All of the famous regular contributors to these household and fashion departments—Grace M. Gould, Margaret E. Sangster, Fannie Merritt Farmer, Evelyn Parsons and Kate V. Saint-Maur—are represented.

Church and Open Air Work.

The fifth annual conference on summer work in the church and open air will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 6-8, 1911, in Chicago, Ill. The opening session will be held in the Moody church, La Salle and west Chicago Ave. The music will be a special feature of the conference. A large chorus choir will attend the evening sessions. There will be sessions morning, afternoon and evenings but so arranged that visitors may have the opportunity of attending the regular morning lectures in the institute. Street and shop meetings will be held, and gospel wagons used each day. There are several prominent speakers expected from abroad and the meetings promises to be one of the best of its kind ever held.

What an Exchange Says.

An exchange sizes up the mail order situation in the following terse and truthful style: "If the local merchants would advertise as the mail-order merchant, the former could snap their fingers at all the mailorder houses on earth. No man will send to Chicago for goods if he can be supplied as well at home, and if he can be supplied at home it is the business of the local merchants to let the man know."

TAWAS CITY, MICH. May 19, 1911

What in certain circles passes for high art is usually regarded by decent people as very low morality.

The man who says he doesn't care for anybody, and whose life bears out his assertion, is likely to find that nobody cares for him.

Apparently in some instances good laws are made to satisfy good people and remain unenforced in order to satisfy bad people.

The condition of party politics in the country resembles the breaking up of the mighty deep. Not unlikely a readjustment of forces may result from it.

Fruit growers succeed in increasing the size of strawberries and other berries, but no genius has yet arisen to increase the size of the boxes in which the berries are sold.

The glad summertime is the season when the man who rocks the boat takes the place of the man who mistakes a man for a deer. Each vies with the other in taking toll of human life.

What a blessing the American schoolhouse is to the nation. It means larger intelligence, knowledge, strength, and influence. It is the most potent single factor in putting the country in the front rank of nations.

The following germs have been found on milk and other tickets: streptococci, staphylococci, pneumococci, and the pseudo-bacillus of Loeffler. The germs must indeed be dangerous if they are more formidable than their names.

All research and experiments designed to safeguard the lives of miners should be followed with sympathetic interest. For that reason the action of the United States government in buying a coal mine which will be worked by experts with the object of discovering the safest methods of mining will meet with general approval.

The principal bond of attachment between any community and its absent sons and daughters is found in the local paper. Wherever they may be, it goes to them every week, or often, as a letter brimful of news of their home town. Through it they learn of the doings of their friends of early days and of many other things that occur from day to day. In so doing, the paper keeps fresh the memory of the absent ones and keeps alive the fire of devotion to the old home.

School year in most sections of the land is nearing its end and a mighty host of jubilant boys and girls will be set free to enjoy the long summer days. To that large army of teachers who have toiled with such faithfulness and success vacation will be equally welcome. Probably most people do not sufficiently realize the wonderful tact, patience and other qualities a teacher normally displays, nor the extent of the nervous strain imposed by the responsibilities of his or her position.

It looks as if the amendment to the constitution providing for direct election of United States senators is within measurable distance. Everything points that way, for the opponents of the movement by their actions have unintentionally helped it forward as much as its advocates have done so intentionally. Its adoption would not necessarily produce a political millennium, but in all probability it would result in the choice of senators more representative of the people and more responsive to their will.

To the veterans, both in the north and south, who took part in the civil war, time has passed swiftly since the opening gun announced the beginning of that great conflict. Doubtless many an old soldier today as memories of the past flood over him, will "shoulder his crutch and show how fields were won." But the fifty years that have rolled by have brought about many beneficent changes. Mistakes have been rectified, there is a more generous recognition of the sincerity of both sides in that struggle even as there has always been a mutual recognition of their valor. And in the oneness of sentiment now happily prevailing a country united in peace and good will is showing in the way it grapples with and solves great problems that "Peace hath her victories, no less renowned than war."

It does not do to prejudge criminal cases that are before the courts. But speaking generally every outrage committed by men, whether organized or not, upon their fellow men meets with the utter condemnation of the American people. Violence, outrage and threatening find no favor with them; they are out of harmony with the spirit of justice, fair-mindedness and liberty for which this nation is noted. In barbarous or semi-barbarous countries such deeds of violence may have some palliation, but not in America.

A good deal is said about the "City Beautiful," and that is well, for the more attractive the people make their home surroundings and the general appearance of their city the better it is in every way. Yet it is well to note that, while esthetically a city may look very beautiful, it may morally and politically be very corrupt. In truest sense that city is the most beautiful in which external beauty and cleanness of character go hand in hand. In working for one kind of beauty citizens should also work for the other.

Great Britain has marched a long distance from individualism to paternalism in government during the last fifty years. The old idea that the internal function of government was mainly to perform police duty is discarded entirely by all sections in parliament. This was conclusively seen in the favorable reception accorded the government measure of insurance against sickness and non-employment by which 14,000,000 of people will be affected. Conservatives, nationalists and laborites vied with the liberals in their enthusiastic support. The experiment will be watched with great interest on this side of the water where the question of sickness and non-employment among working people, even if not so pressing as in England, is one of increasing importance. Anyway, the new collectivism with its solicitude for the welfare of the masses is infinitely better than the old system which practically ignored them while it favored the aristocracy with its feudal power and usages.

School Days.
 Country schoolmasters have peculiar experiences unlike their city cousins. A rural pedagogue relates that one day he received from a small boy a slip of paper which was supposed to contain an excuse for the nonattendance of the small boy's big brother. He examined the paper, and found thereon the word, "Cepatomgotaturing." Utterly unable to decipher the puzzle, he appealed to the small boy, who explained that it meant that his brother had been "kept at home to go taturing"—that is, to dig potatoes!

Is there anything in all this world that is of more importance to you than good digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and converted into blood. When the digestion fails the whole body suffers. Chamberlain's Tablets are a rational and reliable cure for indigestion. They increase the flow of bile, purify the blood, strengthen the stomach and tone up the whole digestive apparatus to a natural and healthy action. For sale by all dealers.

DIAGNOSING A JOKE.
 It Seemed Easy at First, but the Case Proved Hopeless.
 The name of the author of the following story is better known for poetry than prose. However, here is what S. E. Kiser perpetrated at a convention of American humorists:
 Paw and maw were sitting in the sitting room one evening, and pretty soon paw began to laff.
 "What's wrong?" maw ast.
 "This is one of the best jokes I ever saw," paw says.
 "Lissen and I'll read it to you: 'Why is the mistake of a doctker not as bad as that of a dentust?' Do you know?" paw ast.
 "No," maw told him.
 "Beoz," paw red, "one fills six feet and the other fills an aker."
 "How do they do that?" maw ast.
 "Beoz they made A mistake," paw ansered.
 "Which does?" maw says.
 "Both of them," paw told her.
 "That's why the mistake of the doctker izent as Bad as the dentust's."
 "Why not?" says maw.
 "The doctker only fills Six feet," paw told her, "and the dentust fills An aker."
 "I don't understand About the feat," maw sed, "Why does he fill six of them and What does he fill them with?" Paw began to look kind of glassy out of his eyes, and he Red the joke again to himself So he would be sure he Didn't make enny mistake. Then he says:
 "Why, you see, if a doctker would make a mistake it wite be fatle, and so he would fill six feet of earth with a man, because the man would Be about six feet tall, you no."
 "I don't see mutch to laugh a bout such a joke," maw told him. "May be it mite'n be a man at all. Or he mite be short."
 "Oh, well," paw says, "they just pretend He would be a six footer so as to Make it come in with the aker."
 "Why do they want to do that?" maw ast.
 "That's the joke," paw says.
 "Which is?" maw told him.
 "Why, the aker," paw ansered.
 "Where are they enny Joke about that?" maw ast.
 "The dentust fills it, you no," paw sed, but he Didn't seem to be very sure about it By that time.
 "Yes," maw says, "but you red that he made A mistake."
 "Don't you know what an aker is?" paw ast. "A tooth that You fill is an aker, and They have akers of ground."
 "But where does the mistake come in?" maw sed.
 "Why, he fills the rong one," paw ansered, Wiping his forrid and kind of looking Around like if he was trying to see if the escape was all cut off.
 "Well, then, how does He fill the aker," maw ast, "if the tooth he fills is the rong one And duzzent ake?"
 Then paw got up and tore the Almannick in two and Threw it in the waist basket and sed:
 "They are no use Trying to bring enny sunshine into This famby. Let's drop the subject. The man that rote the joke Was a fool and the one that printed it was a worse one, but I'm not going to rong Either one of them by unjust suspishens. Mebby they didn't every try to tell it To a woman."
 New York Post.

He Ate the Hay.
 There are still some mighty eaters left. Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook for a wager to put away at one sitting six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, six pounds of potatoes and twenty-two pounds of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.—London Globe.

Heavy Rollers at St. Helena.
 If the sea were to break on the shores of Coney Island in time of calm weather with the same force as it does on the shores of St. Helena sections of South Brooklyn would be uninhabitable in all likelihood. They have at St. Helena what are known as calemmas, or heavy rollers. These rollers are particularly bad in time of calm weather. They strike the island with such tremendous force that the spray is sent over Goat Pound ridge, which is several feet above sea level. Scientists are of opinion the calemmas are caused by seismic disturbances beneath the ocean.—Exchange.

His Record Not Clear.
 Charles Smith, a jovial negro, was arraigned before Judge Fawcett in the county court, Brooklyn, on a minor charge.
 "Smith," asked the court, "did you ever commit a crime before?"
 The negro pondered for a moment.
 "Well, yo' honah," he answered slowly, "Ah can't zaactly say, but Ah done got married one time."
 New York Times.

Plenty of Company.
 "Yes, she went crazy over bridge."
 "A sad case."
 "Oh, no great harm done. They put her in a fashionable sanitarium, and she is playing a better game than ever now."

Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau Notes.

The Bureau has dispatched five thousand pieces of mail in the last month of which probably half has been letters to people throughout the United States.

Several thousand two ounce souvenir barrels of sugar have been prepared at the Bureau offices, for distribution, calling attention to this great farming industry in our district. Two thousand of these were distributed by the Field Manager at the meeting of the Supreme Court I. O. F. at Toronto. This meeting assumes an international character, delegates being present from all parts of the United States, every province in Canada, England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The barrel showed a map of Michigan with this district in red with the "Compliments of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau." They created a great deal of favorable comment and were eagerly sought for by the delegates and visitors. This little stunt has brought this section of Michigan to the eyes of a good class of men covering a wide territory. Of course, California was on deck with a souvenir made from the wood of orange trees, in the shape of a bell. These live ones are always on deck. California and Michigan were the only states taking advantage of the occasion. A man from Vermont, remarking on the occurrence, said, "I like the enterprising spirit displayed by you western fellows. Now here is Michigan and California here with a nice little souvenir calling attention to their states, while we easterners stay dead."

Secretary Marston, in response to an invitation from the Detroit Board of Commerce, for members of the bureau to attend the noon day luncheon of the members of this enterprising body, requested Executive Committeeman H. A. Savage, of Saginaw, and Field Manager Johnston to attend this function and tell the men of Detroit of the country represented by the bureau, also of the bureau itself, its organization, aims and accomplishments. The luncheon was served at the Newcomb-Endicott Cafe and about two-hundred of Detroit's representative business men were present and listened attentively to the story of the agricultural history of Northeastern Michigan from the lumbering days to the present time, as told by Field Manager Johnston. Mr. Savage followed with a history of the organization of the bureau and what it had done during the first year of its existence. He dwelt forcibly on the fact that the development of this great northern country meant "A Greater Michigan and a Greater Detroit," which remark brought forth the applause of the entire assembly. When he assured them that the "score boards were watched as eagerly for Detroit's success by the people of Northeastern Michigan, clear to the straits of Mackinac, as in Detroit itself," he established a fraternal tie that will endure many shocks and paved the way for active interest being manifested in the future career of this district by the business men of that metropolis.

HOW THE EYES ARE ABUSED

Headaches, Which Often Mean Eye Strain, Put Down to Liver or Indigestion.

Many a woman who takes great care of her diamonds lets her eyes take care of themselves, often to their lasting injury. Seldom, too, are the eyes of young people watched as they should be. Headaches, which may and often do mean eye strain, are put down to liver trouble or indigestion, and home remedies are administered for these ailments when what is really needed is a visit to the oculist. And going to an optician merely is not enough, since his business is to suit the eye with glasses only—which they may or may not need. The oculist suits the treatment to the eye, and it is better to err on the side of going to him without reason than to stay away when there may be need to go. Considering the delicate mechanism of the eye, it is astonishing how much abuse it bears. Women go about peering through veils of heavy and intricate patterns, most harmful to the vision. Both men and women read constantly in street cars, than which nothing is worse. Children are allowed to read in insufficient light and in the gloaming. And seldom indeed does anyone take care, when reading or working, to be in the right position with regard to the light.

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

"No, never. It's foolish to fear a fancied evil, when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, bayous and lowlands. These are the malaria germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the bones and muscles and may induce deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out these vicious germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Fretwell of Louisiana, N. C., "and I've had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy, only 50c at J. E. Dillon and J. M. Wuggazer & Co.

Wanted to Be Sure.

Bret Harte at one time used to plunder the people from the rostrum in the way of 50-cent lectures, says a magazine writer. During a trip over the Pennsylvania circuit he found himself one evening in a small town, the very atmosphere of which was depressing. Turning to the committeeman who awaited him at his room in the hotel, Harte said: "Is this a healthful climate?" "Passably," responded the committeeman. "What's the mortality of this city?" "About one a day," "About one, eh," said Harte, "come this way a minute," and he drew the committeeman into the recess of the bay window and then said to him, solemnly, "Is the man dead for today? I am going to lecture here tonight, and it would be a great relief to me to know that I could get through alive."

J. M. Howell, a popular druggist of Greensburg, Ky., says: "We use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our own household and know it is excellent." For sale by all dealers.

Old Skewers.

A novel present given to a bride-to-be at a housekeeping shower was a set of four old silver skewers. The handles were quaintly carved and always a matter of admiration and comment when drawn from a roast by the host.

So delighted was the giver by the success of her present that she has started collecting them in antique shops and on old farms and tumble-down houses on her travels. The advantage of such a collection is that it has not been done to death, so valuable finds are more probable.

A Burglar's Awful Deed

may not paralyze a home so completely as a mother's long illness. But Dr. King's New Life Pills are a splendid remedy for women. "They gave me wonderful benefit in constipation and female trouble," wrote Mrs. M. C. Dunlap, of Leadhill, Tenn. and Metz for $7.50; Millersburg, Onaway, Aloha (Mullet Lake) and Cheboygan for $8.00. Tickets will be issued with return limit to leave destination not later than eight days, including date of sale, and to reach original starting point not later than midnight of the ninth day, including date of sale.

Saved Child From Death.

"After our child had suffered severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. T. Richardson, of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicine seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy." For coughs, colds, hoarseness, lagrippe, asthma, croup and sore lungs, it's the most infallible remedy that's made. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and Jas. E. Dillon.

A MEDIEVAL LOVE STORY

A Tryst, a Duel and a Flight on Horseback.

The Lady Agatha stood in the green-wood listening. She was the daughter of one with royal blood in his veins, and in such families it is well known that love plays no part in marriage. Yet Love had come unbidden to the Lady Agatha, and she was playing with one of his sharp arrows. A young soldier came through the trees and joined her.

"I have bad news for you. My father announced to me today that I was to wed Count Alfred."

The young man quailed as if struck by a blighting wind. "To lose you, and to him, my bitter enemy!" he moaned.

"Herbert, be strong, for my sake!" And, throwing her arms about him, she wept on his shoulder.

"There is no hope?"

"There is. Count Albert will not force me to marry him if I tell him that such a marriage would be repulsive to me."

"He will follow his inclination. Agatha, choose now between me and him. If you choose me, meet me here tomorrow evening at sunset and be ready to go with me. I have found favor with the king, who, if we are once married, will give me preferment and his influence with your father."

She hesitated a moment, then whispered: "I am yours. I will meet you here."

That evening the earl, her father, summoned her to his apartments. There with him was the Count Alfred. "Agatha," said the earl, "this is your betrothed. I leave you with him, trusting that your first interview may result in your being mutually pleased with each other." With that he withdrew. Agatha threw herself at the count's feet.

"Your highness," she said, "I am going to trust myself to your mercy. I do not love you. I love another. Tell my father that you resign me."

"What you ask is impossible. Our union will heal a breach between two important families. The king desires it."

"The man I would wed is in favor with the king. We will go to him for his consent."

"When?"

"Tomorrow evening. Give us but till then and all may be well with us."

"Give me your confidence, and I will help you."

Agatha gave the hour and place of meeting, but resolutely refused to give her lover's name.

The count withdrew muttering: "I have a delicate role to play. I must find out who the lover is, then take means to get rid of him without appearing in the case."

The next morning Count Alfred told the earl of his interview, and the Lady Agatha was locked in her room. At sunset Herbert repaired to the green-wood and waited impatiently. It was past the hour set and the twilight was deepening when a figure concealed in a long robe came toward him. He wondered how Agatha could look so tall. The figure came on and stopped before him. Then suddenly the robe was thrown off, revealing Count Alfred.

"I came," he said, "intending to conceal my identity, but since you are the man who intends to thrust yourself among those immeasurably above you I have stepped out of my disguise to give you the chastisement you merit."

"Nothing could be more welcome."

Both drew rapiers and placed themselves on guard. A full moon shone above the horizon, giving sufficient light, glistening on the polished blades, which gave the sound of steel against steel. It was a short fight. Count Albert was so accustomed to contempt for his inferiors in birth that he was not as careful as his wont, but he was a good swordsman and fought well. Herbert fought with a hope that the issue might give him the girl he loved. At last a ray of moonlight reflected from his adversary's sword shone in Count Albert's eye, momentarily blinding him. Before he could recover Herbert's rapier had pierced his body. He would have fought on, but loss of blood weakened him, and he fainted.

Herbert, turning from him, saw his robe lying near and, putting it on, went toward the castle. Boldly entering, he asked where was the Lady Agatha. "In a chamber in the round tower," was the reply. Going there, he saw a woman sitting at the door and demanding entrance.

"Certainly, your highness," replied the woman, who had seen Count Albert go off in the cloak she had herself provided, and she opened the door.

In a few minutes the man came out, dragging Agatha, who feigned to go unwillingly, and, making an exit, the two went to the green-wood, where Herbert had brought horses, and, mounting before the eyes of the wounded man who had sought to prevent them, rode till near midnight, when they drew rein in the courtyard of the king's palace.

"What's this, boy?" said the king when Herbert had secured an audience.

"An elopement, for which I crave your majesty's pardon and sanction." And Herbert told the story of how he had won.

"We need young men of your pluck," said the king. "I will see what I can do for you."

The result was that the earl's consent was gained to the marriage of Herbert and Agatha, and Herbert was given the command of a company and later of a regiment of arquebushiers.
