Wednesday, June 14, has been designated as "Flag Day," at which time it is urged that all patriotic citizens, societies, schools and others observe the 134th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the flag of our country. At that time all houses, public buildings and business places should be decorated with the colors of our country, and when possible programs in keeping with the day should be carried out. Charles W. Boston writes to a Western Michigan editor from Tacoma, Washington, under date of April 6, as follows: "Now dear people of Michigan, stay where you are. I have been from coast to coast and you are in one of the best states I have been in. If you want to buy land buy it at home, farm it, and farm it right, and you will get better results than the Western farmers. To the working man I wish to say stay where you are. These advertisements you read if rightly worded would read 'Come west and get stung.'" The new game law makes some changes in the open season. One noteworthy feature is that it extends the length of the hunting season for deer and other game on the theory that if the period in which hunters may be in the woods is longer there will not be so many hunters at the same time, and therefore less chance of accidental shootings. No hunter may kill more than two deer, however, nor will his hunting license run for a period longer than 25 days from the date of issue. The open season for deer runs from Oct. 15 to Nov. 30.

PLEASING EXERCISES.
Memorial Day Observance in This City a Big Success.
The beautiful weather and the general interest manifested by our citizens combined to make the observance of Memorial Day in this city one of the best ever held here. The line of march was formed at the court house at 8:30, with the old soldiers, their wives and soldiers' widows as guests of honor in conveyances, and proceeded to the schools where the pupils joined and marched to the cemetery. The program, in charge of Supt. M. E. Valentine, of the public schools, was carried out in a most pleasing manner. The graves of the soldier dead were decorated with wreaths and bouquets by a committee of little girls, after which the program of addresses was carried out. Short addresses were delivered by Rev. Hugh McCarroll, Rev. O. E. Moffet, Rev. Frederick Seivers and Rev. J. Dibley. The singing was led by the pupils from the Lutheran and public schools and was of a high order. Special features of the exercises were the address in German by Rev. Seivers and the singing of the German national hymn, "Die Wacht am Rhein," by the pupils of the Lutheran schools, under direction of Teachers Greber and Wanderssee. One of the remarkable features of the day was the number of flags represented in the persons of the speakers who were born under them. Rev. Seivers represented the German, Rev. Dibley the English, Rev. Moffet the Stars and Bars of the Southern Confederacy, and Rev. McCarroll "Old Glory."
Death of Mrs. Gearing.
At the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. L. Shien, in this city, on Thursday, June 1, 1911, occurred the death of Mrs. Charles Gearing, after an illness of six weeks. Agnes McLean, was born in county Antrim, Ireland, July 7, 1828, coming to America with her parents when two years of age, the family settling in Genesee county, New York, and later removing to Saginaw. The deceased was united in marriage to Thomas VanWormer. Of this union one daughter, Mrs. Shien, was born. The deceased came to AuSable in 1866 and resided with her sister, Mrs. Harris. In 1869 she was married to Charles Gearing, who survives her. Besides the husband and daughter, two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Crawford, of AuSable, and Mrs. Moses Harris, and two brothers, Hugh and Robert McLean of Saginaw, survive her. The deceased was a life long member of the Presbyterian church. The funeral will be held from the home of Mrs. Shien Sunday afternoon at 1:30 standard time. The remains will be taken to AuSable for interment, a special train for the accommodation of the family and friends leaving this city at 2:30.
Sauve-Kayga Nuptials.
At St. Edwards Catholic church, Omer, on Monday, May 29, at eight o'clock in the morning, was celebrated the nuptial mass of Emil B. Sauve and Miss Delia Kayga, both of Twining. The bride wore white mull and carried white carnations. The bridesmaid, a sister of the groom, wore pink satin. The groom was attended by Chas. Matuzak, of Omer. Mrs. Sauve and Miss Eva, mother and sister of the groom, sang "Landamuste" and "O Sanctissima" during the mass. Miss Gladys McDonnell played Mendelssohn's Wedding March. A goodly congregation assisted at the mass and many friends of the young people accompanied them to the 10 o'clock train with best wishes and the usual signs of esteem and good will.—Turner Press.

Tawas City won its first game from East Tawas quite handily last Saturday, 7 to 4. The hot sun stopped the ambitious spurts of the pitchers, both Brabant and Kunze being hit freely. The only redeeming feature of the game was Tawas City's base stealing, 14 sacks being pilfered.

AuSable showed its very superior work over that of Oscoda on Decoration Day by winning with a score of 10 to 7. A large crowd of rooters for each side was a great help. Scholar, of AuSable, is a wonderfully improved pitcher.

Tawas City got ample revenge from East Tawas for the 16 to 1 defeat of last year, Wednesday afternoon, in the last game of the school series, by defeating them 17 to 0. Hosbach held East Tawas to two hits for six innings and Brabant gave them none in the other three. Features of the game were the base stealing by Tawas City and the hitting of Moore. Only one stolen base was made for East Tawas, that by Schill.

The percentage as it now stands is different than it has ever been in the county school league—three teams tied for first place. Next comes the playing off of the ties.
Thirty-Third Annual Encampment.
The thirty-third annual encampment Department of Michigan, G. A. R. is to be held in Ypsilanti this year on June 21st, 22nd, 23rd. All ex-soldiers, survivors, families and friends are cordially invited and will meet with a generous welcome from Ypsilanti people. Gov. Osborn is to make the big speech at the camp fire, and his subject on this occasion will be "Michigan's War Governor." There will of course be other addresses by military and civil men of affairs.
The Newspaper Reporter.
A real newspaper must be something like the Apostle had in mind when he said, "Be all things to all men." The reporter may not be personally a champion of card parties, base ball dances, or other amusements, yet they must be recorded; neither is he necessarily a church member because he mentions the good work of revivals, favors all reforms, but prints all things of all kinds of news. Personal quarrels, scandals, or ordinary drunks are not news, and ought not, as a rule, be scattered broadcast as news.
The Man Who Buys Outside.
The man who runs a store account several months buying in small quantities, should never go away from the store that accommodated him, in case he should have $25 or $50 to spend, and then come home with his purchases and say he can do better at some other place than at home. It is always to be presumed that a man who is making large cash purchases can drive a closer bargain than one who makes small purchases on time. We do not believe there is a town anywhere in the state where goods are sold on a smaller margin than in our little city.
Are Good Roads a Benefit.
Good Roads may not increase the productive power for the land, but it will give the farmer a better outlet for their marketable stuff, and it will lead to an increase in population. An increase in population means increased demand for the farmers' products. Good roads will open for settlement and cultivation land now lying out of the radius profitable farming and the improved transportation facilities and large population will cause close farming. In other words, while good roads may not increase the power of the farmer to produce, they mean a more profitable business and an increase in land valuations.—Ex.
"The tilling of the soil is the first of professions, the king of trades. There is no danger line in land culture, no shipwrecks, no collisions, or derailments, no explosions, no risks or hazards to insure against. With industry, common sense and water the harvests are sure.—Ex."

WOMAN IS BALLOONIST.

Charlotte Granville Wants to Try For the Lahm Cup.

MISS CHARLOTTE GRANVILLE.

Miss Charlotte Granville, a young Englishwoman who has made fifty or more balloon ascensions, wants to test her skill and endurance against the same qualities possessed by American men. In other words, she wants to try for the cups offered for long distance flights in gas bags. Miss Granville is duly licensed as a pilot and is a member of the Royal Aero Club of England. She can't take part in the James Gordon Bennett race because the entries for that contest must be made by a club, but she is eager to make a flight in competition with Messrs. Hawley and Post, who won the cup last year and established a world's record when they flew from St. Louis into the wilds of Canada. Ballooning possesses a great fascination after one tries the sport. Miss Granville says, and she is surprised that more American women have not tried it. She does not regard the danger as being greater than that taken daily by occupants of automobiles. The delights of sailing through the air she describes as much greater than those of homing over a country road in a touring car. Miss Granville began her ballooning as a pupil of C. S. Rolls, the young English nobleman who was killed while making an aeroplane flight in England last summer. White Tulle Bridal Veil. Prospective June brides will be interested in the accompanying illustration of a bridal veil. It is of tulle decorated with orange blossoms. Fashion in bridal veils are never radical, but the one shown is up to date and could not help but please any bride and add to her attractiveness. Useful Present For a Bride. Instead of the usual shower friends of a bride who was recently married and went at once to housekeeping gave her a box labeled "the things you've forgotten." In it there were balls of different kinds of twine in holders by which to cut the string, a bottle of fountain pen ink, balls of various widths of tape, cards of buttons, including shoe buttons and the cord by which to sew them on (the kind with tags on the end), several lead pencils, pads of paper of different sizes, a corkscrew, a tack hammer with claw, tags and labels for bottles, boxes and packages, spools of thread of various sizes and papers of needles, a bottle of muck and a tube of glue, several sheets of wrapping paper and some other day needfuls.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., June 2, 1911

State legislatures are now adjourning in several states, and in some cases, at least, there is a general feeling of relief.

It is true that all things come to him who waits, but it is clear that some do not always recognize that for which they have waited when ultimately it does come.

The corrupt politician is willing to sacrifice principle for the sake of his party while the true politician is ready to sacrifice his party, if need be, for the triumph of principle.

From every man however obscure, there radiates some influence. It rests with himself whether that influence shall be good or bad, lifting a fellow man up or dragging him down.

The peculiar character of the decisions rendered by some of the jurists of lower courts upon matters affecting combines and trusts will have a tendency to strengthen the movement for judicial recall.

Marriage would not so often prove a failure if there was more of comradeship between husband and wife. The lack of this breeds coldness and unsympathetic attitude and too often it results in divorce or separation.

An eminent Chicago divine says that a man should always marry his ideal. That is good advice, but what if the ideal refuses to marry the man to whom she is the ideal? Probably it would help matters, and certainly it would benefit the man, if he would try to live up to his ideal.

It is said that the trusts now under indictment or that have been in fear of it find many encouraging loopholes in the decision of the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case. Color is given to that statement by the favorable manner with which that decision was received in Wall street.

It is sometimes well to remember that life does not proceed by leaps and bounds, but step by step. This fact seems to be lost sight of by those who instead of taking up and discharging the duties close at hand spend their time in contemplating what they shall do next month or next year.

Scotland has been losing thousands of the best of her young men from the rural districts. Wealthy landowners have evicted tenants and bought up farms to enlarge their deer forests and hunting preserves. The loss of so many of the old yeomen stock of the country shows how greatly the land laws need reforming. At present those laws are strongly feudal in their character.

There are merchants in almost every town whose methods of business are much the same as merchants followed before the days of newspapers and advertisements. They never advertise, or but slightly, and therefore goods remain unsold upon their shelves while the merchant has plenty of time to sit in the doorway and watch people enter the doors of his rivals who use twentieth century methods and prosper accordingly.

At one time party pledges incorporated in party platforms were for campaign purposes only. But the new temper of the people demands that pledges be kept. Of course, that is an outrageous idea in the minds of the professional politicians, who are now learning that promises, unlike piecrust, are not made to be broken. It is this fact that is causing some of the state legislatures to pass measures the people have long demanded.

The Children's Welfare exhibits already held in New York and Chicago, and which probably will be taken up by other cities, are of great public benefit. Not only do they call attention to the bad, unwholesome conditions in which multitudes exist, but they show how to better those conditions. Many thousands of children die in their first year because of insufficient or unwholesome food. That is a veritable "slaughter of the innocents" due to ignorance, dirt, disease and impure milk. And the strange thing about it is that so many are indifferent to it all.

There are 'fashions and fashions in the matter of dress. Some at once commend themselves by their neat and graceful appearance and for the comfort they give. But then there are others so outrageous in design, so decidedly uncomfortable to wear, so offensive to good taste, and so repellent to good judgment, that one wonders how any woman can bring herself to wear them. There is the "hobble skirt." It is well named, for any one foolish enough to assume the garment cannot walk—she hobbles. There is nothing more graceful or more healthful than a good carriage and firm, elastic step, but that is impossible when one disfigures herself and hampers her movements with a hobble skirt. It has not one redeeming feature about it, and probably those who wear it do so in obedience to any arbitrary decree of fashion or because they seek notoriety.

Everybody recognizes the evil of the depletion of the country districts. Political economists have pointed out the bad economic and social results that follow this loss of population, and plans and suggestions of all kinds have been made to remedy it. So far these efforts have had but indifferent success or no success at all, for the drift citywards goes on with undiminished force. Nevertheless this failure hitherto does not mean that failure will always follow. The way out will be discovered in time and the flow be towards the land even as it is now from it. Only by experimentation can the solution be found. For this reason every well considered proposition should be favorably received and thoroughly tested. The plan that Minnesota is about to try with community schools thoroughly equipped and with able instructors who will make a specialty of giving instruction in manual training, home economics and agriculture, may or may not bring about the desired end, but it has many points in its favor and its operation will be watched with keen interest by all who seek the welfare and repopulation of rural communities.

Wonderful.
It is a poor accountant who can't show a balance where a deficit was before, or vice versa. So familiar is the circumstance of a department showing a book balance where the revenues, expenditures, loans, special funds, and all are fairly complex, that Postmaster-General Hitchcock will be required to come forward with a great deal more detail before the general public will accept at one gulp the extraordinary announcement that instead of the customary sixteen millions deficit the postoffice department is this year going to show a balance of $1,000,000. Just where has that $1,000,000 been saved? Has some of it been saved in the Detroit office. Has it been saved on railway mail contracts? Has a penny been saved by the establishing of a parcels post?

The whole matter is as yet a profound secret. Has Mr. Hitchcock performed a miracle of economy, or has he just mastered the corporation method of making annual reports? If the former he will win great credit for the administration. If the latter he will earn a post as a Wall street financier. The country is in suspense.—Detroit News.

Kill The Domestic Fly.
The American Civic Association gives a number of practical hints as to the best methods of ridding houses of flies, and they deserve to be known and put to a practical use. The circular says: "Provide screens for houses and food. Keep garbage receptacles covered. Remove stable manure every three or four days or disinfect with lye, chloride of lime, or crude carbolic acid. To clear a room of flies heat a shovel or any similar article and drop thereon 20 drops of carbolic acid; the vapor kills the flies. A better and cheaper plan is to put a spoonful of formalin in a gill of water and expose it in the room. Another is to dissolve one drachm of bichromate of potash in two ounces of water, add a little sugar and place the solution in shallow dishes about the rooms."

A campaign conducted on these lines will do much to rid a household of this insufferable and dangerous pest.

A Charming Woman
is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But it is hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c at J. M. But Three in State.

Detroit, St. Clair and Port Huron are the only Michigan ports of entry through which Canadians can enter the United States and be eligible to naturalization, according to a new ruling of the department of commerce and labor, at Washington, reported to Clerk Charles J. Potter of the United States district court last week. There are 53 other points at which Canadians may enter the country, strewn all along the border line of the two countries, but these are the only ones in Michigan. Twelve points, and 12 only, are scheduled through which Mexicans can enter the country and become eligible to citizenship.

The secretary of the department states in his letter of notification, that any person, Canadian or Mexican, entering the United States except through a recognized port of entry, of which there are a total of 68 at their disposal, will not be considered as having entered the country at all. He urges friends in this country who are to be joined by friends from Canada or Mexico, to have them make sure of a proper route. The rule henceforth is to be rigidly enforced.—Grand Rapids Herald.

The Out-of-Door Life.

The man who lives an out-door life—who sleeps with the stars visible above him—who wins his bodily subsistence at first hand from the earth and waters, is a being who defies rain and sun, has a strange sense of elastic strength, may drink if he likes, and may smoke all day long, and feel none the worse for it. Some such return to the earth for the means of life in what gives vigor and developing power to a land like ours. A few generations of men living in such fashion store up a capital of vitality which accounts largely for the prodigal activity displayed by their descendants and made possible only by the sturdy contest with nature which their ancestors have waged. That such a life is still led by multitudes of our countrymen serves to keep up our pristine force and energy.—Dr. S. Weir Mitchell.

DINNER EPISODES.

Odd Happenings That Helped to Spice the Meals.

THE WORM THAT DIDN'T TURN

It Spoiled a Funny Story For a Woman Whose Pet Horror Is Anything That Wriggles—A Distracted Scientist and a Gastronomic Calamity.

At a dinner party one night my host and I were in the midst of an interesting conversation when I noticed a movement in the lace centerpiece which lay under a pot of growing tulips. The lace was pushed aside, and straight toward me wriggled a fat red earthworm. If I have a pet horror it is for anything that writhes. My host was nearing the point of a funny story when I caught sight of that strange intruder on a dining table. He reached the end of the story and laughed. I believe I laughed, but to this day I cannot tell what that story was about. I sat watching the gymnastics of that lively specimen of fish bait. In forty seconds it was due to tumble into my lap. There was no water near. The reptile was hidden from my host by a soup plate. The man at my right was absorbed in conversation with a woman beside him. The worm had almost reached the edge of the table when I had an inspiration. I turned a red wineglass upside down, for the waiter was approaching with a napkin wrapped bottle.

"Have you turned White Ribboner?" asked my host.
"For tonight I have." Where my voice came from I do not know; neither do I know how I ever sat out that meal listening to a host who tried his level best to entertain a dull guest and watching a frantic fishworm try to break its way out of jail. Somehow growing plants on the dining table have gone out of favor in our house.

A dear distracted old scientist I know keeps his wife on the anxious seat every moment when they dine out. She is prepared for any ridiculous thing he will do. No one ever possessed finer breeding or gentler manners than the good old professor, but his fits of abstraction are likely to descend on him at any moment. His wife tells of one notable experience.

"One night," she says, "I lectured John all the way home from a dinner I was trying to make him understand that pate shells were intended to be eaten. If it had been a caterer's meal I should have thought nothing about it, but our hostess was a fine cook, and she had just announced proudly that we were having some of her own puff paste. Everybody ate the pates except John. With the greatest care he scooped out the creamed chicken and left the shell. He was horribly distressed over it. 'If I had only known, my dear,' he said, 'that the thing was intended to be eaten, that it was really food and she made it, I should have shown my appreciation.'"
"Remember it next time, then," I said.

"A week later at another dinner John was seated opposite me. I glanced at him curiously after the dessert came on, for he seemed to be in the throes of a choking fit. Imagine, if you can, my horror. He was trying to masticate the paper case of a charlotte russe. There was only one thing I could do—call him to order as one would have done a child. I could not sit by calmly and watch him choke to death. Dinners are frequently stupid affairs, but that one was not after I had explained the situation to a tableful of people. Fortunately John is so brilliant that his absentmindedness is considered a natural adjunct to genius."

"My husband," said one woman, "is the funny man at a party when the mood happens to seize him. One night after playing bridge we fled out to the dining room, where we were seated about the table for supper. From the corner where my husband sat came gales of laughter. He had turned conjurer and was making everything disappear, from salt spoons to a water decanter. When things were found it was in the most remarkable places.

"A week later while searching his clothes for soiled handkerchiefs—that is a regulation Monday morning task in our home—I heard something rattle in his dress coat. From an inside pocket I drew two silver forks, three teaspoons and a salt spoon. They were marked with various initials. None of the stuff came from our sideboard. My husband was out of town, and I spent a few perplexed hours. An idea suddenly dawned on me. I wrapped up the silver, put on my hat and went straight to the hostess of our last card party. "Thank goodness," she cried. "I have nearly had nervous prostration over the loss of these things. Servants have been suspected. I hired a man to go over the garbage dump, and the whole house has been turned upside down in our search. If it had been my own silver it would not have been so bad, but it was borrowed, and I could not duplicate it anywhere in town. Wait till I see that husband of yours!"

"The story got out, and sometimes a hostess in facetious mood insists on counting her silver before my better half goes home."—Isabel Gordon Curtis in New York Tribune.

Must Publish Financial Statement.

A bill was passed by the legislature at the recent session requiring township boards to publish in a newspaper printed on the week before the April election a complete, itemized statement of the receipts and expenditures of the township. Copies of the statement must also be furnished by the board for circulation among the voters on election day.

The law required the financial report to be published in a newspaper printed in the township, if one be published there, and if not, then some newspaper of general circulation within the town.

The law is mandatory and imposes a fine upon a township board for neglect to perform this duty.

This law will require township boards to make their settlements in plenty of time so that their financial statements may be published the week before election.

The purpose of this law is to do for the townships what the law has always required of villages and cities—to publish complete itemized statements of expenditures of public money; only in this case it is all done at once instead of being published in installments in connection with the proceedings of the common council of villages and cities. The belief was expressed by members of the legislature, a large number of whom had been township officers, that the publication of the financial records of the townships with full details would tend to promote greater interest in township affairs by the taxpayers, increase the general knowledge of what the township was doing as an organization, and result in far greater economy in public expenditures.—Ex.

What Makes The Difference.

When Russians want to indulge in the cruel sport of Jew bating, which is quite often, they can always find an excuse to stir up evil passions by spreading a false story to the effect that Jews have murdered a Christian boy and offered him up for a sacrifice. In Russia among the orthodox, ignorance, superstition and devotion go together and as a consequence they are always ready to rob and kill the Jews.

What a contrast to such treatment is that accorded the Jew in this country. It is because the people are intelligent and, as a matter of course, their religion, both of belief and life, reflect that intelligence and corresponds far more nearly to the teachings and acts of the Nazarene, who hated narrowness and bigotry and commanded his followers to show love to their fellowmen.

To be sure, even in America there is not absolute freedom from prejudice against the Jews. Now and again in so-called high society and in clubland there is an offensive snobbishness, but that spirit does not characterize people generally.

And the Jews are quick to recognize the difference and to show their appreciation. The other day one of the wealthiest Jews of Chicago, a leading merchant, offered $50,000 toward the erection of a Y. M. C. A. building, and in so doing was but duplicating a former gift for the same purpose. In his address he spoke eloquently and feelingly of the work of the Y. M. C. A. Such true catholicity of spirit, reflecting the same spirit which the Y. M. C. A. and other institutions display towards all races and religions shows how greatly the spirit of brotherhood and of true religion is spreading throughout the land.

Man Decides to Take Partner and Briefly Outlines What He Expects of Helper.

"Here's the whole thing in a nutshell," said Brown to me. "I am now twenty-eight years old, have my own business, have brought it to such a state that I have decided to take a partner."

"Take one," answered I. "There's the rub," he gave back. "My partner must be such an all-around knowing one that I'm afraid I'll have hard work to fill the position."

"My partner must be able to make laws and to enforce them; must be able to carry out complicated chemical work, must be a skilled mechanic, must know something of economics, must be able to buy wares of all kinds with due consideration of my finances, must be able to do tailoring, of a kind, if necessary."

"Hold on, Brown," said I. "Are you dippy, as the vulgarians say?"

"No," replied he. "I want a wife. Look around among your friends and see if any one man among them could do all that a good housewife should be able to do. She must make just laws for the family and enforce them."

"She must understand the complicated processes of cooking. Making, mending, washing, ironing and otherwise caring for the clothing of a family requires mechanical skill. Bringing up a child properly requires far more knowledge and wisdom than selling dry goods of standard makes and prices year after year."

"Where is more science and skill required than in the sick room? And if the wife does not know how to do all these things how can she direct the work of her paid help, especially if the help knows less than she does."—American Magazine.

School Days.

Country schoolmasters have peculiar experiences unlike their city cousins. A rural pedagogue relates that one day he received from a small boy a slip of paper which was supposed to contain an excuse for the nonattendance of the small boy's big brother. He examined the paper, and found thereon the word, "Cepatomotogotaturing." Utterly unable to decipher the puzzle, he appealed to the small boy, who explained that it meant that his brother had been "kept at home to go taturing"—that is, to dig potatoes!

WATER AND SEWAGE ON THE FARM.
By C. E. MARSHALL,
PROFESSOR OF BACTERIOLOGY OF THE M. A. C.

SUCH a close relation exists between water and sewage on the farm that to consider the one without the other is practically impossible. Contaminating agencies removed, the securing of pure water is a simple matter. Our methods of life, habits and practices, however, make the conditions as we find them, and we are likely to continue under present systems for some time to come. Our hope lies in modification from time to time of the situation as it now exists. The advance of civilization and the progress that we make only emphasize the importance of more sanitary measures. Sewage from the home must be safely disposed of, and the waters must be cared for in such a manner as to eliminate all avenues of contamination to the water supplies.

The Menace.
We labor under the apprehension that the United States ranks among the most civilized countries of the world, yet, measured by the amount of typhoid fever (associated with typhoid fever, other diseases which would increase the number of sufferers from unsanitary conditions three to five fold), our country falls much below first rank. It is true that this standard represents a single denotation. It does measure, however, our ability to care for our water supply and to dispose of sewage in a way to avoid danger. Our appreciation of these matters is growing rapidly, it is true, and the result of education along these lines is gradually working out through cities and towns, where the greatest danger has existed heretofore, to the rural districts where the greatest danger now exists. At the present time, the percentage of typhoid victims and allied diseases is greater in the country districts than in cities and properly-managed towns. The explanation for this may be found in the fact that it is easier to control one water supply for 100,000 inhabitants than to control 20,000 water supplies for the same number of inhabitants.

How Water Is Contaminated.

The accompanying figure illustrates how well water may become contaminated by means of cell pools, vaults, barn yards and other means. This illustration is taken from C. A. Davis' "The Conditions Existing at Oxford, Oakland County, Michigan," published in Water Supply and Irrigation Paper No. 182, United States Geological Survey. (A) represents the house, (1) the house well, (2) the cess pool opened below. Into the cess pool runs a sewerage tile from the house. The soil is of a nature which allows the sewage and wastes from the house to enter and is so porous as to permit the material to find its way to the well in a short time. The well, on the other hand, dips below the ground water level into a coarser stratum of gravel. Some distance below at (b) is the town well. It is only a matter of time when the sewage at (2) will pass to well (1) and from well (1) to well (b). The soil, as a rule, makes a good filter if the stratum is perfect, and there is no constant impact of sewage against it. On the other hand if there are imperfections in the soil, as usually exists, and, further, if sewage is allowed to soak constantly into the soil, the filtering action may be regarded as more or less imperfect and dangerous. The organic matter must be destroyed. To do this, suitable conditions must be furnished. Air must be allowed to penetrate from time to time, and the organisms which destroy the organic matter must be restored. If the sewage remains on the surface of the ground, and constantly forces its way into the soil, the soil soon loses its power to destroy the organic

Very Special.
A young medical student was being quizzed by one of his teachers, "In what will you specialize?" he was asked.

"Diseases of the nostril," replied the student.
"Good!" said the professor enthusiastically. "Which nostril?"—Success.

It being Memorial Sunday the old soldiers were invited to march in, only two responding, showing how the ranks are broken. Rev. J. B. The barn was practically new having been built to replace one which was burned to the ground a few years ago. It was 45x128 and built at a cost of about $3,000. For the Children

A Baby Lima and His Knee Braces.

In an attempt to cure a bad case of knockknees a unique mechanical experiment is being performed upon a valuable baby lima at the Cincinnati zoological garden. He persisted in rubbing his fore knees together. Various ways to correct the fault were tried, but not until the steel forms with their straps were made and applied was any success noted. The little fellow now walks and frisks about with the braces on without having his knees bother him. The mechanical device will be continued until he has outgrown the fault.

The Admiral and the Sentry.

When Admiral de Horsey, who some years ago had command of the British fleet in the Pacific, was admiral of the north Atlantic squadron he was one evening dining on shore at Port Royal, Jamaica. On returning to his boat his way led across the barrack square. A black sentry of one of the West India regiments halted him at the gate with "Who comes der?" Great was the admiral's annoyance to find that he had neglected to get the password before leaving the ship. "That's all right!" he said carelessly, hoping to overcome the man's scruples by indifference. "You know who I am." "Dunno nobody, sah," replied the soldier sternly. "You can't pass here." "Why, I'm Admiral de Horsey!" The man evidently thought he was being made fun of, and he replied quickly: "Well, you can't pass. I don't care if you're Admiral de Donkey!" And the windup was that the admiral had to get the order of the officer of the guard to pass him.

A Pearl Diver's Peril.

We all love pearls, yet few of us realize the perils of diving for pearls. The successful diver must be courageous, active and have great presence of mind. A diver once engaged in pearl fisheries in the gulf of California tells this story of one of his many experiences: "I had filled my bag with oysters and was about to ascend when, looking up, I saw a big man eating shark watching me. I knew that to rise to the surface would be fatal, so I moved quickly to the opposite rocks, stirred up a great cloud of mud, rose in the darkness and reached the side of the boat just in time to escape the jaws of the big fish. Had I hesitated an instant in doing what I did I would have paid the penalty with my life."

Little Things.

Little things are sometimes important. Here is an instance: There was cold weather and then a little warm weather and then cold again in York, Pa. An icicle formed on the water-spout of a certain house. The weather turned warm again. The icicle fell in the night and made a loud noise that awakened one of the sleepers. The awakened person found that the house was full of coal gas that was escaping through a hole in the stovepipe and that might have killed the whole family if one of them had not been aroused by the fall of the icicle.

The Game of Menagerie.

All the players take the names of animals. If played indoors they sit in chairs, if outside on benches. A leader then tells a story about animals, bringing in some of the names chosen. When a name is mentioned the owner gets up, gives the sound of the animal and sits down, but if the word "menagerie" or "animals" is used all must get up and give the sounds of the animals they represent. A new leader is chosen after awhile by the old leader, who is blindfolded and then feels about until he touches some one.

To Suspend a Needle in the Air.

Place a magnet on a stand to raise a little above the table, then bring a small sewing needle, containing a thread, within a little of the magnet, keeping hold of the thread to prevent the needle from attaching itself to the magnet. The needle in endeavoring to fly to the magnet and being prevented by the thread will remain curiously suspended in the air.

The Hilltop Road.

The road that ends against the sky I love the very best. It starts near by the open square. Exactly like the rest. But then it winds and winds uphill As far as it can go And stops just where the sky begins And where the poplars grow. I wish that I might live up there, So close against the sky. To touch the little stars at night And watch the moon go by. —Youth's Companion.

Twining and Vicinity.

Jno. Peck, of West Branch, is visiting his sister, Mrs. John Finerty. Frank Sovey and Ray Pearson, of Bay City, spent Tuesday in the village. Bert Mosher, of Bay City, was the guest of his parents here last week. Mr. Aldrich, of Fairgrove, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Geo. Kelly. Ray Johnston is employed at the depot during the absence of E. B. Sauve. Joseph Wideman has so improved in health that he is able to appear on the streets. Herbert and Harry Lloyd, of Bay City, spent the last three days in the village. The Cedar Valley ball team will meet the Twining team on the latter's diamond next Sunday. Mrs. John Waxson, of California, is spending a few days with her brother, John McLaren. The pupils of the public school gave an entertainment at the school house last Friday evening. Miss Lena Herman has been employed as principal of the public schools for the coming year. Mr. and Mrs. Herman, of AuGres, attended the commencement exercises last Monday evening. The ball given by the base ball team at the Maccabee hall last Friday evening, was well attended. Prof. Warriner, of the Saginaw public schools, gave a very interesting talk on education at the commencement exercises last Monday evening. The Twining ball team was beaten here Sunday by the Turner team by a score of 5 to 6. A return game will be played at Turner a week from Sunday. The following pupils were awarded punctuality pins for the past year: Worcester Eddy, James Eddy, Eva Jaynes, Herbert Eddy, Beatrice Reid, Irwin Jaynes, Harry Jaynes, Roy Jaynes, Frank Kayga, Mary Jaynes, Edward Youngs, Mary McCauley, Violet Reid and Merle Townsend. The commencement exercises held at the M. E. church last Monday evening were well attended. The interior was prettily decorated with the class colors, lavender and white, and bearing the class motto, "Tonight We Set Sail, Where Shall We Anchor?" The program was interspersed with vocal and instrumental music and a talk by the superintendent of the Saginaw schools. The orations delivered by the graduates were well received by the audience.

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But it's hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c at J. M.
