In this country about 70 per cent of the national income is spent in warlike preparations and the results of war while about 30 per cent is spent for other purposes. The Tawas City ball team lost their first game of the season last Sunday at Twining, when the score was 7 to 8 against them. It was not the superior playing of the Twining boys that won for them, but rather it was the poor umpiring. Stepanski pitched an excellent game, but four hits being secured off his delivery, but a lost ball and a bad decision by the umpire was sufficient to put the score on the wrong side.
An ordinary case of diarrhoea can, as a rule, be cured by a single dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This remedy has no superior for bowel complaints. For sale by all dealers.

The towers for the Eastern Michigan Power Co. have arrived and are now being distributed between here and the dam, and a large crew of men are busy putting them together ready for erection.
Attorney Edwin Rawden has decided to locate at Ann Arbor for the practice of his profession. It will be ten years next month that Mr. Rawden arrived in this county fresh from the law department of the U. of M., and decided to locate at East Tawas for the practice of his chosen profession. In those ten years he has established a reputation as one of the most painstaking attorneys in this section—giving to all cases intrusted to him the most careful study and preparation. He has thus built up a fine practice and has been most successful. He filled the position of prosecuting attorney of Isoco county for three terms in a highly satisfactory manner. His removal from the county is sincerely regretted by all.
A good story is being circulated around town at the expense of a man who is known to be something of a horseman, and his brother-in-law. They were the owners of a span of pretty good horses which they were desirous of trading for a heavy draft mare. The aforesaid horseman came down 12 miles and fixed a trade up to his own liking with a man in this city. After the deal had been made a friend informed him that he would probably have to invest in an auto pump to supply the necessary wind to get his new boss home. He then fixed it up with his brother-in-law and the morning the ponies had disappeared and the heavy mare still occupied her stall in the Tawas City man's barn. There will be no arrests as those in on "the job" are having all kinds of sport with the "hoss traders."

Making Foresters.

E. LEO KUNZE.

Thru the efforts of Prof. J. Fred Baker the junior foresters of the Michigan Agricultural college spent the summer term in a virgin forest, the estate of David Ward and in the vicinity of Grand Traverse county. Here they spent seven weeks camping and studying forestry.

The camp was situated on the west shore of an inland lake. Here arranged in a right angle to each other were two rows of tents, each equipped with two cots, table, chairs and lamp. At the apex stood a large tent used for lecture and class room. In full view of every tent waved the stars and stripes and a banner bearing—M. A. C. Foresters—1913.

Daily they arose to the camp horn which sounded at 4:30 a. m. taking their breakfast at 5:00 a. m. with a hundred or more lumber jacks in a nearby camp. At 6:00 o'clock came a lecture for about an hour and then they went out into the field until eleven, at which time they had an hour for dinner. Lecture from 12:00 to 1:00 p. m. and field work till 4:30 and then supper at 6 o'clock.

When the day's work was done about the first thing was a swimming party. A fine diving dock was constructed by the boys and served well its purpose. After a good swim they played ball and pitched quoits. When the evening meal was over they would gather around the camp fire and tell of their experiences and sing songs.

In this way they became fully organized, elected officers and held business meetings. The amusement committee was a great feature of the camp. A banquet was held and many other feeds and good times.

As they were nine miles from the nearest town, and in the woods, they had but few visitors. However they came in touch with the lumber jack of today. They saw how he lived and toiled each day with the broad expanse of a forest to comfort him. Later they came to understand him as they worked with him in the field.

Their work was of a most practical nature, as it was so intended. To suit the demands of a forester and put him under ideal conditions so that he might see better into the future and see what he would have to contend with.

The first two weeks were spent in civil engineering under the instructions of Prof. W. B. Wendt. It consisted in the use of the level, transit and plane table. Under the use of the level they studied differential profile, grade leveling. With the transit they made surveys of small tracts and also a lake. Some time was given to the making of maps as topographical. The work under the ideal conditions proved a great success.

Following this, one week was spent on the study of forest insects and under the direction of Prof. Pettit and Dr. Shoffer the students were able to make a fine collection of interesting specimens of insects which are causing much trouble to our forests trees. A special study was made of those infecting white pine, hemlock, birch, spruce, tamarack, and a general study of all insects found in that vicinity.

The remainder of the time was spent in practical forestry. Here they came to see how the work was done, to get the practical side of the work. Being located where lumbering operations were at their best, they saw how the trees stood, saw them cut down and sawed into logs, snaked out and hauled away on timber wheels to the steam loader where they were put on cars and taken to the mill.

All these things they saw daily while in the field. Here for the first part they learned to estimate the contents of trees first by an ocular estimate then by actual measurement. Thus they became familiar with the tree. They also studied the height and diameter of the tree. Later from the data collected they made volume tables which were used in estimates of stands.

Sample tracts were laid off and estimated by various methods and compared with the actual cut. Then they learned to pace and follow section lines and hunt up corners and as they became acquainted with the land they made estimates of different "forties" by methods used in cruising.

Art as it Looks to Small Boy.

It was Sunday afternoon at the Art Institute and the galleries were crowded. Above the subdued hum of conversation a small voice cried out that he was tired.

"Ma" plumped him down on a couch, his little fat legs stuck straight out, and she returned to where "pa" was standing and spent a few minutes in undisturbed contemplation of the pictures. But such contentment did not reign long. "Ma" called the young hopeful. But "Ma" paid no attention, and a minute later he drewled out, "Ma, O, Ma," but "ma" was deaf to the voice. Then he tried "pa," but nothing doing.

By this time the entire attention of the people in the gallery had been detracted from the pictures to the little episode that was being carried on under their eyes.

Utterly unconscious of the diversion he had created, the little man called, "Ma, please, ma," but still no answer, then, undaunted, he again tried "pa," but without success.

Then, heaving a big sigh, he rubbed his eyes with his fists, yawned, sat up, and burst out with: "Ma; say, ma, I'm tired looking at these flat pictures. Let's go downstairs and see the stuffed ones."—Chicago Tribune.

The Difference.

A member of the Anglo-Saxon race seldom discusses his emotions with a stranger; he would consider it indecent to do so. To the Frenchman, on the contrary, love, with its joys and pains, forms one of the most ordinary subjects of conversation. When it comes to the torments of indigestion and kindred ills, the Anglo-Saxon waxes eloquent, but then the Frenchman is silent. It would be indelicate, he believes, to talk about any physical disorders with which he may chance to be afflicted. This may be the reason why the French are popularly believed to have little experience with dyspepsia.

Saw Death Approaching.

The premonition of Frank Lugar of Lumberville, Pa., that he would die at noon on a certain day came true the other morning. Lugar was admitted to the hospital four weeks ago, suffering from some minor trouble. His illness was not considered serious, but because of his prediction the physicians watched him closely on the day he had said he would die. He was in good condition early in the morning and at 11:30 o'clock was talking with the nurses. Fifteen minutes afterward, however, he began to grow pale and weak and died as the clocks were striking twelve.

Five Feet of Books.

Parent—What kind of a library have you boys got in your club?
Son (age twelve)—Five feet of dime novels.—Judge's Library.

Honor for Captain Cook.

Captain Cook was really the first navigator of the Pacific ocean. Others had discovered it centuries before, but he was the first to put those discoveries to practical use, and his explorations served as a basis for the first accurate maps of that great ocean. He found that there was no vast continent stretching from near the shores of Asia to the antarctic pole, as Europe had always thought. He was the first to sail around New Zealand, and he gave New South Wales its name. He is at last to have a fitting memorial in his services to England and the world. This memorial will take the form of a statue to be designed by Sir Thomas Brock, the sculptor who did the Victoria memorial, and will have a place in London near the Admiralty arch in the Mall.

Inexplicable.

"What is he so angry at you for?"
"I haven't the slightest idea. We met on the street and we were talking just as friendly as could be, when all of a sudden he flared up and tried to lick me."
"And what were you talking about?"
"Oh, just ordinary small talk. I remember he said, 'I always kiss my wife three or four times every day.'"
"And what did you say?"
"I said, 'I know at least a dozen men who do the same,' and then he had a fit."

Reaping the Sea's Harvest.

Nearly five thousand miles of nets are set nightly in the North sea.

MOSS TO RECLAIM CONTINENT

Apparently Trivial Object That Is Liable to Change the Face of the Earth.

Agencies apparently so trivial as to be almost beneath notice have changed, and are now changing, the face of the earth. For instance, so comparatively insignificant a form of vegetation as moss may not only affect the aspect of the landscape, but may powerfully assist in giving a new character to a continent.

One of the surprising results of scientific investigation in Greenland is the indication of the wonderful work mosses are performing there. Where glaciers have ceased to advance, or have become "dead," various species of mosses have found a foothold on them, and gradually over spread them with a mantle of green. The amount of vegetable matter slowly deposited by these Greenland mosses is so considerable that it has been suggested that this deposit will be of great importance in the future of that strange land.

It is known that in a past geological age Greenland was not the dreary, ice-sheeted continent that it is today, but a beautiful land, almost tropical in appearance in some respects. And if, in the future, geological or astronomical causes should bring about a return to the former conditions, when Greenland was really "green," the rich stores of vegetable matter now accumulating there through the growth of mosses amid the ice will give wealth to the soil of the regenerated continent.—Harper's Weekly.

NO BAGGAGE SMASHER STORY

Explanation of Just Why This Once Familiar Tale Is Missing From Current Literature.

"How is it," the traveler asked the railroad man, "that we don't hear any more stories nowadays about the baggage smasher?"

"Well," said the railroad man, "more care in the handling of passengers' baggage is required nowadays for one thing; and as between the trunk smasher and the trunk maker the situation is about the same as that between the armored ship builder and the projectile manufacturer, first one is ahead and then the other. One day you may have a ship that can't be perforated, but the next day put the projectile ahead.

"There have been improvements in trunk making as in all things else, and just now you find a good many trunks that are solid and rugged, well built and well adapted to stand the strain of travel and rough handling, hard to smash. With this advance in trunk building the trunk smasher is somewhat overmatched, placed at a disadvantage, and so the trunk smashing story goes, for a time at least, into decline; but a new and greater and stronger breed of trunk smasher may at any moment arise, and if that day should come, then the trunk smasher will be again on top, and we shall have a gladsome revival of trunk smashing stories with modern trills and attachments."

DIET MAKES FOR HEALTH

Proper Sustenance the Great Means of Warding Off Tuberculosis, According to Physician.

That every one is more or less susceptible to tubercular trouble is a matter on which all old-fashioned medical authorities are agreed. They tell us that we may pass through a phase and out again without knowing it. According to Dr. T. Y. Hull in the Dietetic Gazette there is only one thing very certain and that is that if we keep in good health or adapt ourselves to a perfectly balanced diet the danger is slight.

He advocates a reduction of vegetable food, relying more upon butter, meat and nuts. Here, of course, one has to face the increased danger of tubercular meat, itself probably a large contributory cause of consumption.

This is Dr. Hull's idea of a perfectly balanced diet, calculated to keep the average individual in perfect health all the year round: The basis for the diet is found in meat, eggs, milk, butter, bread, potatoes and fruit. It consists daily of two quarts of milk, five eggs, four ounces of beef, one and one-half ounces of butter, two ounces of nuts (peanuts), four ounces of bread, three ounces each of potatoes, peas and oatmeal, one ounce sugar, one ounce raisins, one apple and one orange.

A Sign.

"Women will one day be recognized as greater artists and musicians than men," said Mrs. Baring-Banners.

"I shouldn't be surprised," replied her husband. "Even now it comes more natural to them to wear their hair long."

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Aug. 18, 1911

When a man in public office allows his conscience to become deflected by fear or favor, he is no longer a free man but a slave, and as such he is unfit to hold office.

If Hayti had not resorted in former days to the decapitation of its presidents after every successful rebellion the crop of ex-presidents would by this time be quite large.

A man has successfully gone over Niagara Falls in a barrel. This goes to show what fools some people will make of themselves and what a lot of other people there are eager to see them do it.

Now is the time when ambitious cities proudly record that they have gained so much per cent in population over the census of last year. They will keep this up until the next federal census comes to puncture the balloon.

It is good to learn of the great wealth in the vaults of the national treasury and other per capita wealth of the nation. But after all the true wealth is not to be found in gold and silver, but in the character of the people.

The difference between bill-board advertising and newspaper advertising is just this—that with the first you have to go to the advertisement while in the other the advertisement goes to you. And that makes all the difference in the world with business.

The scientist who says that he can photograph the soul should experiment with the sugar, steel and other trusts. It has always been a question whether corporations have or have not souls and it would be well to have the matter settled in the most approved scientific manner.

Whenever any former American society woman who has married into the ranks of European aristocracy gives a party, is presented at court, or wears a new necklace or coronet, the great American dailies eagerly state that she is the daughter of so-and-so of New York, Pittsburgh or Chicago. What if she is, the country can bear the strain. But, in truth, does not the constant recital of such news savor of flunkeyism?

With a flourish of trumpets the Standard Oil Company announces that it has broken itself up into thirty or more subsidiary companies. That is all very well, but it is safe to say that the one controlling influence under which they all will come will emanate from an office building in New York City, and that the Standard Oil business will go on very much the same as it has in the past. There may be a change of raiment but the body beneath will be the same.

The indicted officials of the wire trust got off easily with a fine of $1000.00 and payment of costs. Action was taken against the men individually and not against the corporate body and it was promised that a jail sentence would be sought after. But, as usual, it was a fine, which to such men was a mere bagatelle, and no jail. How hard it seems to be to get a member of a trust behind prison bars. Probably if the wire trust officials had been poor men convicted of stealing fire wood or food there would have been no trouble in sending them to prison as a warning to other evil doers. It is such distinctions made between rich and poor offenders that create discontent and too often, a suspicion as to the integrity of the courts.

Not unlikely the unfortunately large number of religious denominations would be appreciably decreased and the cause of church union greatly advanced if the question were left to the rank and file in each denomination to settle. As a matter of fact the line of separation between many bodies, especially those of the same denominational family, is so thin that to the ordinary laymen it is a wonder that it is not at once obliterated. Probably the greatest barriers to union are the denominational secretaries and other principal officials who fear that union would decrease their number, as it would, and so cost them their position. But it is the larger good in the shape of consolidated forces, economy of money and men, and greater efficiency that should be considered.

The Peoples Way.
The people are determined to have their own way. This invincible resolve of the people to work out their own salvation by methods chosen by themselves is the fact that includes all other civic facts of the time. It is the universal key which unlocks the door of every situation. It is the plummet which every political pilot must use, who honestly wishes to fathom the minds of his fellow-men, and guide the ship of party aright. It is the magnetic needle which must be pivoted beneath the compass-glass of every political organization that wants to know which way is north.

It is truth whose forms of expression are many because its scope is wide as a nation of ninety million people. Direct primaries, direct election of senators, is the safe-guarding of elections by publicity, limitation of campaign expenses, with its elimination of unfair advantages of the wealthy candidate, or the candidate backed by rich and powerful interests, over the poor candidate, are all conspicuous examples of the determination of the people to assert the sovereignty reposed in them by the Constitution.

The central principle underlying all these phases of a universal movement is transfer of government and of the party organization which is the material out of which government is made, from the hands of the few to the hands of the many. It is a reclamation, a reaffirmation, a recovery and a putting in practice, of the democracy on which all American institutions are founded. Its object is to enable the people to act for themselves in all matters wherein immediate action by them is possible, and where it is not, to secure genuine representation of the people instead of the oligarchy of machines.

The favorite plea of those who are hostile to the people reserving for themselves the rights inherent in them, is that such popular control means disruption of party organization. On the contrary, it means a stronger party organization because, being composed of the people, denial of the organization would be repudiation of its members by themselves—a thing impossible. Take for example the direct primary. It is no more a novelty—it has long been an established institution in many states. In all the history of the direct primary, never has party cohesion or discipline been disrupted by it. Whatever discomfiture of personal ambition—of the greed of individuals for power. Party regularity, and party consistency, have been maintained and strengthened. Party effectiveness has been uniformly increased by transference of the means of party direction to the people. So long as parties exist, there must be leadership and discipline. Rule of the party by the people is the only source from which genuine leadership can be evolved. Self-discipline is the only discipline to which a self-respecting party will submit.

The people's control of tactics, is the corner-stone of public confidence in party methods, men and measures. We are rapidly getting past the stage, when, if a party committeeneeds, if party convention assembles, it will be assumed in the popular mind that such committee or convention is going to do what any man or group of men tells it to do. The era of direct action, of leadership that is responsible because it is responsive, and representative because it reflects the will of the people and must receive its clean bill from the people themselves or not at all, is at hand. The stigma will be removed from party mechanism because the cogs, wheels and levers of the mechanism without which no party can be run, will be composed of the people. The people are bound to have their own way, and they are getting it.—National Monthly.

America and the Fine Arts.
The death of Edwin Abbey, the celebrated painter, reminds us of the great advance America has made in literature and the fine arts since Sidney Smith sneeringly asked, "Who reads an American book?"

As a matter of fact there never was any justification for the sneer for even in America's earliest years authors and artists of renown were not wanting. In the particular sphere in which Abbey gained such distinction the names, among others, of Benjamin West and John Trumbull easily suggest themselves.

But, naturally, as the nation grew away from the comparatively primitive and rough pioneer days to a position of wealth and refinement the way for men of genius in the arts became more open, and many have found it to their own profit and to the honor of their country. Among all such Abbey easily rose to the first rank. This was not due to luck but to painstaking hard work and a rare artistic gift. His mural paintings, (The Holy Grail) for the Boston public library are among the masterpieces of American painting and at once secured for him a national fame. Perhaps the best tribute to Abbey's talent was the commission given him to paint the coronation of Edward VII of England.

His success and that of others in painting and sculpture proves that this country can hold its own with other nations and that it is not altogether ruled by the spirit of commercialism.

A Difference in Procedure.
The procedure so far of the reciprocity act with Canada well illustrates the difference between the two systems of government. In this country the administration could not command in either house a majority of its own supporters and therefore the success of the measure was due to the support given it by the political opponents of the administration. Under the Canadian system an administration that cannot command a majority of its supporters on a government bill necessarily resigns or appeals to the country.

This difference of action is due to the fundamental difference between the two systems. Of any president of this country it may be said he occupies the two-fold position of chief magistrate and the headship of his party. In Canada the two positions are separated, the Governor General being the chief executive and acting neutrally as to politics, while the premier or head of the cabinet is the leader of his party.

If, then, Sir Wilfred Laurier had failed, as President Taft failed, to command the support of his own party he would have resigned or appealed to the country through a fresh election. To be sure Sir Wilfred has appealed, but it was because of the obstructive policy in parliament of the opposition party. This, again, shows the legislative difference between the two nations. Here the minimum and maximum life of congress is fixed at two years. In Canada a maximum limit only, and that of five years is fixed, and the government can at any time before the expiration of the five years dissolve parliament. This has just been done after a parliamentary life of three years only.

Attack Like Tigers.
In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack the disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and J. E. Dillon.

Tons of Water.
A grass plant will, in the course of a hot day, exhale its own weight of water, and a young leaf of wheat or rye exposed to the sun may even exhale its own weight in an hour, is a surprising statement to be found in the Agricultural Year Book. Experiments summarized by Storer indicate that "more than 300 pounds of water pass through a plant, and are transpired from its leaves for every pound of dry matter fixed or assimilated by the plant." In Wisconsin, King found the mean amount of water used by barley, oats, corn, clover, peas and potatoes in producing a ton of dry matter ranged from 270 tons for corn to 576 tons for clover, "the average for the six crops being nearly 450, or four acre-inches, for each ton of dry matter."—Ex.

An Ice Stove.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, famed as inventor of the telephone to which nearly every civilized person pays tribute well deserved, has now invented what he calls an ice stove to help make summer heat endurable. He gives his invention to the world. It consists of a box full of ice and pipes through which the chilled air is forced into a desired apartment by electric fans.

State Death Rate High for July.

Lansing, Aug. 15.—According to the mortality as issued by the secretary of state, there was 3,141 deaths in the state during July. This number corresponds to an annual death rate of 13.0 per 1,000, estimated population. A considerable increase is noticed in the number of deaths returned for July, as compared with the month of June.

By ages there were 648 deaths of infants under one year of age, 171 deaths of children aged one year to four years, inclusive; and 891 deaths of elderly persons aged 65 years and over.

Important causes of deaths were as follows: Tuberculosis of lungs, 170. Other forms of tuberculosis, 35; typhoid fever, 45; diphtheria and croup, 22; scarlet fever, 9; measles, 22; whooping cough, 25; pneumonia, 59; diarrhea, enteritis, under two years of age, 232; meningitis, 40; influenza, 3; cancer, 171; violence, 312.

In addition to the above causes there were 67 deaths from drowning in the state, during the month of July. There were also nine deaths from sunstroke, six deaths from tetanus, two deaths from poliomyelitis and one death from lightning.

The different state institutions reported deaths as follows: Traverse City hospital, 12; Kalamazoo hospital, 17; Soldiers' Home hospital, 7; Lapeer Home for Feeble Minded, 1; Newberry hospital, 4; Pontiac hospital, 16 and Wayne county house, 30.

There were 5004 births during July. This number corresponds to an annual birth rate of 20.7 per 1,000, estimated population. A decrease of 221 is noted in the number of births returned for July, as compared with June.

Farthest Southwest.

Away down in the farthest southwest corner of the United States lies a city beloved of the old Spanish Padres, and famed for its matchless harbor; its equally matchless climate, and its beautiful maidens. This city farthest away of all cities in the Union will hold a big exposition in 1915, to celebrate the completion of the Panama Canal, from which it expects to derive great material benefits. During the same year there will be another exposition in San Francisco, and the double attraction will take millions of persons to the coast. San Diego, with characteristic western energy, has already broken ground for its exposition buildings, a ceremony in which the president himself assisted, and at which he was represented by Hon. John Barrett, the only international official in Washington.

Thirty Years Together.

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years and its best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance to a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it for forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and J. E. Dillon.

Accused of Stealing.

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me. boldly accused Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and J. E. Dillon.

A well known Des Moines woman after suffering miserably for two days with a bowel complaint, was cured by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by all dealers.

Caught in His Own Trap

Mr. Luke Edgerley was a model farmer. Everything about his establishment was neat as waxwork—that is, if waxwork is neat, as we have always been led to suppose.

He prided himself particularly on his trim fences and his smooth lawns and fields with not a weed to be seen anywhere. But especially he prided himself on his cantaloupe garden. He had laid out the ground with great care, manured it highly, worked it deep and mellow, imported the seeds himself, and planted them with great care. After the vines were up he had watched them tall, killing the bugs one by one, which is the only way, and getting up an hour earlier than usual every morning with this especial purpose in view.

By and by the melons began to ripen and Luke was in high spirits. He had, indeed, a fine lot of them and it was perhaps quite excusable in him to feel proud of them. Already he had selected one for the minister, one for Deacon Smallhead, and one for Bangs, the new doctor. These were to be presented when they were fully ripe, and Luke was continually expatiating upon the gratitude and delight with which they would be received.

Judge of Luke's dismay when he found on going out to inspect his treasures as usual one morning that the very identical melons he had selected for the three gentlemen we have mentioned were missing!

With mad haste he searched the whole grounds, but the best melons were nowhere to be found. He compelled his wife and the two hired men and his sons, Jack and George, to join in the search; but it was all of no avail—the cantaloupes had disappeared and refused to be discovered.

Luke decided that he would fix things for the thieves. In the first place he set a couple of steel traps in the melon patch, and in the next place he would lie awake that night and if he heard the least sound anywhere he would jump out of bed, seize his old musket, and pursue the rascals.

But, being a rather sleepy man, he got into such a profound nap that he did not awake until day dawn, and then when he went to his melons he found there were three more gone! And the traps were not sprung, either!

Mr. Edgerley was in a dreadful state of mind all day, but when night came he refused to go to bed. He was going to sit up and watch his melons. So he crouched in a corner of the lot behind some currant bushes and waited.

About ten o'clock he heard a stealthy footstep. Raising himself on his elbow he looked around. There was no moon and the stars were faint in a hazy sky, but still there was light enough to show him a tall, gaunt figure, clad in white, loomed up before him. In the dim light the figure looked supernaturally tall, and Luke was a devout believer in ghosts. The sight of this specter struck terror to his soul.

The white figure advanced nearer, with slow, deliberate steps, as if it knew there were traps set. By and by it stooped down, picked off a melon, and came straight toward Luke. Terror got the better of our hero. Flung away his musket, he struck a bee line for the house, right across the melon vines, all unmindful of the traps. In an instant he was fast by one foot, and, not realizing what had happened and thinking he was in the clutch of the ghost, he gave a tremendous leap forward, and was caught by the other foot in the other trap.

To increase his dismay the specter was bearing down upon him, with a huge melon under each arm.

Luke uttered an unearthly yell, which reached the ears of every sleeper in the house and caused the ghost to drop the plunder with a wild scream of affright.

"Grab her, boys! Grab her!" cried Luke to the hired men, who had appeared on the scene in very scanty apparel. "Don't let her get off!"

But the woman—for it evidently was a woman—leaped through the currant bushes, screaming at the top of her voice for "Luke! Luke!" and disappeared in the direction of the house.

"My stars!" cried Mr. Edgerley, "that sounded like Sally's voice. You don't suppose—it can't be—dear me! It beats everything!"

"Haven't I heard you say that your wife was a sleepwalker?" asked one of the men.

"By Jinks!" cried Mr. Edgerley. "You've hit it, Styles. And she's the thief! Undo my legs! I'm nigh about split in two. It's lucky that nobody with short legs got caught in them traps. And look here, boys, don't say anything about this, and next week we'll have an oyster supper."

Mrs. Edgerley was immensely surprised at what she had been doing, but her husband was greatly relieved. He felt the melons were not lost. Neither were they, for Styles found them all next day, safely stowed away in the haymow.

After Dinner.

"Lady," began Hungry Higgins, "I thank yer fur a meal—"

"Ah!" exclaimed the bright housekeeper, "you're one of these after-dinner speakers."

"Not exactly, lady, or I wouldn't be so hungry. I ain't got so much as a chestnut about me."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Adaptable to Circumstances.

"I have fallen heir to an ancient colored messenger, who has a remarkable military record," said Representative Francis of the Fourth Ohio district. "Just as soon as I was assigned to my new office he came in and introduced himself and to solidify himself further in my regard informed me that he came from 'old Democratic stock.'"

"Ah has a fine record in duh Confederate army," he said, "cuss Ah went to wah wif mah young mastah an' fit all thu it wif him."

"But," I argued, "if you have such a fine Confederate record, how on earth did you manage to get a job under the Republicans here in the house of the building?"

"Oh, you see, boss, Ah has a Union army record, too."

"A Union army record?" I echoed.

"How did you get that?"

"Well, hits lak disaway, cap'n. Long towahd de en' of de wah Ah goes ova to the Yanks."

"Then you are a turncoat?" I said.

"No, sah. Ah ain't dat," he replied. "Ah was ketchted and twant no way t' git back to de Confederates. Doan you see, boss, dey ain't no way yous kin look at me but what Ah'm a good no'thuner, a good su'ther'n niggah!"—Indianapolis News.

Can You Remember Fourteen?

Goethe told Schiller that Gozzi, the Venetian, had said that only thirty-six dramatic situations are possible. Schiller declared that he could think of but fourteen, and those of us who are most conversant with dramatic literature will find on curious consideration that even fourteen are difficult to compass.—Ellen Duval in the Atlantic.

Not Even for Riches.

Even when a woman thinks she is worth her weight in gold she would hate to get too stout.—Philadelphia Record.

WANTED SENSE OF DIRECTION

Stranger in City Felt It Imperative That He Should Get His "Bearings."

The stolidity of the new arrival indicated indifference to gorgeous views, yet immediately after registering at the skyscraper hotel he asked to be taken to the roof.

"View?" said he to a protesting friend. "No, it isn't the view I want. I don't care a rap for that. I want to get a sense of direction."

"In a city you can get that much better from a great height than from the street. Down there the buildings all about kind of obfuscate you. You get the points of the compass mixed at the start, and never get them straightened out. That has been my experience in several cities."

"In London and Boston I cannot tell north from south to this day when the sun is not shining, and in Chicago I am not much better off. I lived in that town for two years, and, of course, learned to reason out the cardinal points, but I never felt them. If I had obeyed instinct when I wanted to go west I would have walked straight into Lake Michigan."

"Nowadays when reaching a strange city I take my bearings from a lofty tower. I expect to live in New York the rest of my natural days, and I do not wish constantly to have to combat the feeling that when I start to Albany I ought to board a Staten Island ferryboat."—New York Times.

Ethics of the Bellboy.

Jones had passed a weary night. The strange hotel bed, the passing trains, the midnight cats and morning roosters had all contributed to his restlessness, and it was not until 7:30 o'clock that he fell into his first really comfortable doze.

Bang! Bang! He thought that the Germans were upon him. But he awoke to find that it was only the "boots" rapping at his door.

"Well, what is it?" he grumbled. "A telegram, sir," replied the boots, in breathless tones. "Will you open the door sir?"

"Certainly not!" exclaimed Jones crossly. He was by no means anxious to leave his sheltering sheets. "Slip it under the door, my boy."

"I can't do that, sir," replied the boots anxiously. "It's on a tray."—Answers.

Scandinavian Courtship.

It was considered beneath the dignity of a Scandinavian warrior to court his bride by gallantry and submission; he always waited until she had bestowed her affections on another and was in her way to the marriage ceremony, then collecting his faithful followers they fell upon the wedding party and carried away the bride. It was much in favor of this practice that marriages were always celebrated at night.

Man's Best Friend.

State appellate court rules that a dog sleeping in a hallway is not a public nuisance. Can't imagine anywhere else that a sleeping dog would be a nuisance.

American Women Smokers.

It is said there are two million women smokers in the United States.
