The example set by idle sons of idle rich fathers makes one realize what a blessing it is that most people are born poor or with but limited means. At the present time there is a good deal of speculation as to whether churches have or have not lost ground throughout the country. While that question may not be conclusively answered, the average man has an idea that in many communities there is a superabundance of church organizations, and that if some of these organizations could be merged the religious life and interest of the community would be increased. Certain it is that an oversupply of churches in any one place means inefficient service, weakness and unnecessary expenditure of money, time and talent.

Bad Fire in Sherman.

Tuesday afternoon just as the crew was finishing threshing at the farm of Nelson Pringle, in Sherman township, the barn was discovered to be on fire. The flames had gained such headway and burned so rapidly that it was impossible for the crew of men present to save a thing from the barn, even the new separator belonging to Matt Jordan being destroyed. Mr. Pringle's loss will be heavy, as it includes the building, 40 tons of excellent hay, his straw and considerable other property. The loss is total, there being no insurance. While making an attempt to save his separator Matt Jordan had his hand quite severely burned.

Loses A Foot.

Alex. Eno of South Branch, who had his foot caught in the cylinder of a threshing machine there Saturday was brought to Mercy hospital early yesterday morning and had his right foot amputated. While assisting to extinguish a fire in a strawstack which is believed to have started from sparks from the engine Eno stepped into the cylinder of the machine. His foot was torn almost to shreds by heavy metal teeth. Eno was climbing over the separator to get nearer the fire when the accident happened. He is 58 years of age. Doctors Grosjean and Zarembo operated on him.—Bay City Tribune.

Action of Frost on Plants.

A Swedish botanist has propounded a new theory to explain the killing action of frost on plants, as well as the fact that certain plants escape damage when others are destroyed. He observed that such plants as cerastium and viola, which survive the severe winters of Sweden, have the starch in their leaves replaced during the cold season by sugar. He then found that in plants which do not possess this peculiarity ice is formed in the interstices between the cells, and the water is withdrawn from the cell sap. When the water is extracted the proteins in the cell pass out of solution with disastrous effects. But if sugar is present the proteins remain in solution until a much lower temperature is reached.

Iosco County Fair Oct. 4-5-6.

The directors of the Iosco County Agricultural Society met Tuesday and completed the necessary arrangements for the fair this fall. The removal of J. H. Nisbet, who had held the office of secretary, had delayed the work considerable, and it was deemed advisable to make the date later than first set. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 4th, 5th and 6th, were chosen. Lafayette Colby, of this city, was chosen secretary to fill the vacancy, and the executive committee was instructed to proceed with all necessary arrangements at once. The premium list has been revised and many of the premiums increased, especially in the stock department, which should have a tendency to increase the display in all lines. The revised premium list will be published within the next week or ten days. The directors voted that Friday, Oct. 6, should be known as school day, and that all bona fide pupils of the schools of the county should be admitted free. As for the past few years, the races will be confined to county horses, and liberal purses are offered. Let everybody get busy and prepare to make this year's fair a success both as to exhibits and attendance.

He Denies It.

In an interview with the Herald Tuesday, Supervisor George C. Anschuetz, of Tawas township, denies emphatically ever making the statements accredited to him by the Detroit News of Wednesday of last week, mention of which was made in these columns last week. The News quoted Mr. Anschuetz with saying that the Development Bureau was buying up cheap lands and selling them to ignorant Ohio and Pennsylvania people at high prices, only to have them revert back to original owners. Mr. Anschuetz states that he made no attack whatever on the Development Bureau and that the statement credited to him by the News is a falsehood made from whole cloth. Mr. Anschuetz did not return from Lansing until Friday afternoon of last week, which made it impossible for the Herald to secure his view of the matter in time for last week, and knowing the man for several years we were not prepared to believe that he had so little idea of the work of the Bureau as to make the statement, and his emphatic denial is sufficient to assure us that the report was nothing more than another of the unreliable, sensational dispatches for which the Detroit News is notorious.

Charge to Iosco.

Lansing, Aug. 30.—Auditor General Fuller awoke the state military authorities at work checking up the expense of maintaining the company of the Michigan National Guard which was on duty at AuSable and Oscoda in Iosco county during the summer of 1910. A portion of this expense will have to be charged against Iosco county in which the burned towns were located owing to the fact that the law, which requires the state to bear the expenses of this character did not go into effect until August 2. The old law required the state to collect these expenses from the county and a division of the expense is being made to determine what amount must be charged against Iosco, the county's bill covering the period the militia was on duty previous to the time the present law went into effect. In view of the fact that the last legislature relieved Shiawassee county of the expense of the troops sent to Durand at the time of the Grand Trunk strike, and Lapeer county of the expense of maintaining a militia guard at the Lapeer home of the feeble minded during the smallpox epidemic, it is expected that Iosco will be ultimately relieved of the bill.

CHICAGO WAITER GETS TIPS TO THE AMOUNT OF $50,000

Juan Muller, matre d'hotel at the Hotel La Salle, is the most to be envied head waiter in Chicago.

Juan is preparing to return to Switzerland, his native land, for the first time since he came to this country in 1896, with $50,000 in real money saved from "tips." Juan's ability for obtaining tips—not the ordinary kind of tips, which are virtually forced out of guests made indignant by the constant hovering of the waiter over their shoulders, but the real profit-producing tips which come from faithful service and diligent "just-the-right-distance-away" attention—is pronounced abnormal. The last mentioned species of tips is the kind Juan always went after. He has made a study of the art. It is his profession, and his progress in the chosen line speaks for itself. Forty-six thousand dollars saved from tip earnings in Chicago hotels and $4,000 saved in the same profession at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York is the extraordinary record of this phenomenal waiter.

The tipping system, which in many instances has degraded the true profession, causing a decrease in hotel receipts, is upheld by Muller.

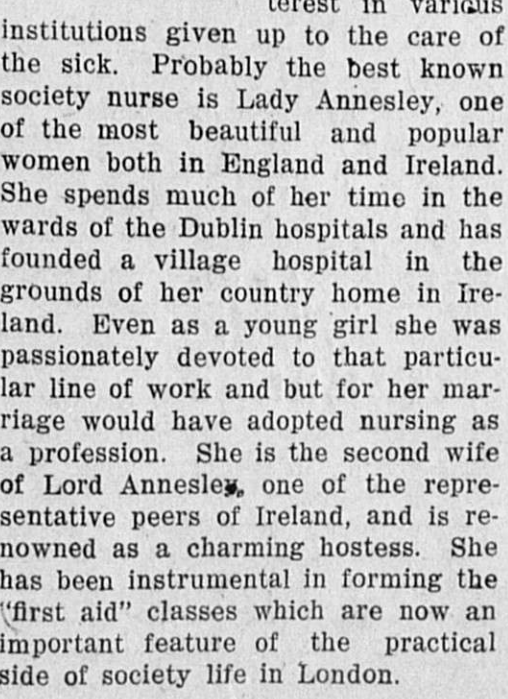

"Always be on the job and forget yourself," is the motto of this capitalist.

"When I first went into the business," says Muller, "I made a thorough study of human nature. I took note of how other waiters made themselves disliked by patrons. I observed the scowl on men's faces and the look of irritation when a waiter persistently hovered about the table. That was a lesson I never forgot and the one which meant success for me. If there is any one thing more than another which a patron detests it is the self-evident greedy intentions of a waiter who is constantly lifting up the water bottle, shifting the dishes, smoothing out imagined wrinkles in the tablecloth at the immediate right of the diner, and making himself conspicuous and his wants evident. That kind of service never makes a hit in any hotel, and, while the waiter who practices it usually gets a tip, it is small and a disgrace to the real profession.

"Human nature is the same the world over, and when a person thinks your sole desire is to get his money he dislikes you, and in the waiting profession to have the good will of your patrons is essential to success." Juan Muller is thirty-five years old. He was born in the northern part of Switzerland and came to New York at the age of twenty. For four years he was employed as head waiter at the Waldorf-Astoria, and in 1900 he went to Chicago. Besides saving $50,000 he has purchased a home on the north side of Chicago.

A LEADER IN THE PRESENT CRAZE OF ENGLISH SOCIETY

Just at present English society circles are greatly agitated over the latest fashionable craze, that of nursing. The aristocratic London women who do not go in for this decidedly practical art are few and far between. Queen Alexandra herself having repeatedly evidenced a decided interest in various institutions given up to the care of the sick. Probably the best known society nurse is Lady Annesley, one of the most beautiful and popular women both in England and Ireland. She spends much of her time in the wards of the Dublin hospitals and has founded a village hospital in the grounds of her country home in Ireland. Even as a young girl she was passionately devoted to that particular line of work and but for her marriage would have adopted nursing as a profession. She is the second wife of Lord Annesley, one of the representative peers of Ireland, and is renowned as a charming hostess. She has been instrumental in forming the "first aid" classes which are now an important feature of the practical side of society life in London.

Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. Its surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. The man who goes around with a Uriah Heep type of humbleness is a man who needs watching every step of his way.

Every child is entitled to be born into wholesome surroundings and fair opportunities. But the sad fact is that multitudes of children are brought into this world with all the moral and other conditions against them.

Some people put themselves to an unconscionable amount of trouble to make themselves miserable, when they could be as blithesome as a lark with but half the effort. It shows what a distorted view of life one may get.

If one trips and falls because of some mistake what is the use of remaining prostrate to murmur and fret. Far better to get up again and, learning wisdom from the mistake, go forward with more caution but not with less resolve to win.

Some husbands never realize the good qualities of their wives until those wives are in their graves. They spend so much time in associations other than those of the home that they have little knowledge of the faithful, toiling patience of their wives or the needs of their families.

Like others, heroes have their weak point. That of Achilles was in his heel, and the present visit of Togo in this country shows that his is his stomach. If Admiral Rojestevsky had only known this and could have made some arrangement with Togo's cook the battle of the Sea of Japan might have had a different ending. Napoleon is said to have lost the decisive battle of Leipzig because his dinner disagreed with him.

The corrupt practices bill that has passed congress ought to accomplish something in the line of political purity. The immense sums spent by some candidates for office has been a scandal in more ways than one, one of the chiefest being that hitherto the man with the long purse has had an advantage over his poor competitor. The placing of a limit upon expenditure and publication of expenses prior to and following an election will reduce that undesirable fact to a minimum.

That members of the poultry trust have been found guilty and have received prison sentences instead of fines is an encouraging fact. Hitherto trust magnates have usually managed to escape through the operation of immunity baths, and convenient legal technicalities apparently designed to them. And when they have been found guilty the penalty was a fine which they usually charged up to the consumer. That has been the experience with the oil, sugar and tobacco trusts, but with the success attending the prosecution of the poultry trust it is to be hoped that a new day has dawned for the public.

Happily the great strike in England was short lived. If it had continued but a few days more the country would have suffered all the inconveniences of a disastrous war less the bloodshed. The plan adopted of settling the strike, that of referring the matters in dispute to a commission consisting of two representatives of the men two of the employers and a neutral chairman is a distinct victory for the men inasmuch as it means the recognition of their union, a principle for which they have long struggled. It is another proof of the great advance that democracy in Great Britain is making, and it must inevitably encourage and help the democracy in all other European countries.

Diarrhoea is always more or less prevalent during September. Be prepared for it. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is prompt and effectual. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For sale by all dealers.

Within a very few days the school year will begin over the greater part of the land. This means that for the next nine or ten months, and for five days each week, the children from most homes will be under the direct care and instruction of teachers whose influence over the children is necessarily second only to, and in many cases greater, than that of the parents. Very fortunately most of this great army of teachers consists of young men and women not only above the average in education, but of superior moral worth and intelligence. This being the fact the less interference that parents make with the relation of the teacher to the children the better. Teachers are selected for a certain work in which they are rightly supposed to be experts. Therefore any interference with their method of instruction, discipline and government almost invariably works harm to the children, prevents the teachers from working to the best advantage, and injures the morale and standing of the school.

New Leaders in Congress.

Since so many leaders have died or lost their seats in the U. S. senate, it is a very different body from what it was a year ago. Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, has now risen to the undisputed leadership of the U. S. senate, and is carrying things with a high hand. He has hitched the 13 insurgent republican senators to the democratic chariot, thus uniting two minorities and forming a majority.

This state of affairs recalls the first speech Senator LaFollette made when he entered the senate in 1905. He was looked upon as innovator when he entered the senate and during his first speech nearly all senators left the senate chamber. He remarked that he could not be oblivious to the fact that the senators were absenting themselves from their seats as a direct insult to him. He remarked that these seats which were thus temporarily vacant, would in a few years be permanently vacated. That prophecy has been fulfilled, and now instead of addressing emptied seats Senator LaFollette has a majority of senators at his back.

Conditions Necessary for Success.

Every man who advertises does so that it may benefit his business. Very rightly he expects a financial return commensurate with what he spends, yet not often he is disappointed. This is not the fault of advertising in itself but of the manner of advertising.

As a matter of fact three conditions are necessary for successful advertising—liberality, attractiveness and truthfulness. As to the first it must be evident to every business man of average discernment that a puny little ad naturally creates the impression that the man who inserts it does not care to do much business or else that he has but a poor stock. As to the second an ad should be made alluring. In size, wording and arrangement it should at once catch the eye and thereby focus attention upon it.

But the first two conditions are useless without the third—that of truthfulness. A merchant must make good over the counter what he offers in his advertisement. If he fails to do this, not once or twice, but habitually, the public puts no trust in his representations and business disaster inevitably follows.

That the great majority of merchants are honest in their business and faithfully portray the character and quality of their goods, and of the bargains they offer, is unquestioned. As a rule they are men of principle and also are shrewd enough to know that a temporary gain resulting from some misleading advertisement is sure to be followed by a permanent reaction.

In this respect the position of a local merchant is vastly different than that of a mail order house. The constituency of the local merchant is limited, that of the catalogue house is practically unlimited. It sends its literature all over the country and thereby any misleading advertisement does not react upon it as it would upon the business man of a small city or town. In truth it is well known that many and perhaps most of the articles advertised by mail order houses are deficient in quality or in weight and measure, and that their customers do not get the bargains they suppose.

The local merchant who should do this would speedily become bankrupt. He knows that to gain trade and hold his customers he must be honest with them. Therefore what he states in his advertisement may almost invariably be relied upon to the mutual benefit of buyer and seller. The one lesson is that people should deal with the merchant who keeps faith with them and not with houses that supply them with goods not up to the mark.

NEW MAP OF FLORIDA.

Remarkable Offer by the National Tribune, the Great Washington Weekly.

The National Tribune of Washington, D. C., the great weekly published in the national capital and the organ of the old soldiers and the G. A. R., has just had prepared a new map of Florida, the state which is now the center of interest among all who are tired of the sudden changes from torrid heat in summer to arctic cold in winter, and who want a home where the climate is healthful and opportunities are offered to earn a livelihood or acquire wealth under the most favorable conditions.

The population of Florida increased nearly 50 per cent in the last census decade, and will double in the next.

This map The National Tribune has had compiled from the latest surveys of the government engineers and from the most recent data of the postoffice department and lithographed in three colors on a fine quality of plate paper, 28 by 30 inches.

This map will be sent free to any one who will write to The National Tribune and enclose 7 cents in stamps for postage.

Whether you own property in any part of Florida, or are merely interested in the rapid development that is going on in the Peninsula State, this map will be of both interest and value to you, and all you have to do to get it, is to send 7 cents in stamps, merely to defray the cost of mailing, and the map will be sent to you at once, securely rolled in a stiff tube. We Startled a Good Many People with our Heater Offer Did You Read It?

We put some statements about heating stoves down in black and white that stove users never heard before. We want to repeat them! Remember, we are backed up by one of the grandest stove manufacturing concerns in the world—yes, backed by a concern that makes and sells more soft coal heaters each year by three times than any other maker anywhere.

So there are millions of dollars behind what we have to say about heaters this year! To us alone is given the right to make the most unusual guarantee ever made on a heating stove.

Cole's Hot Blast Guarantee

Here is our authority from the President of the Cole Manufacturing Co.—the strongest guarantee ever made on a heater.

- "You are authorized to sell the Original Cole's Hot Blast Heater this year on the most rigid guarantee ever made by any stove manufacturer. Our guarantee to every customer of yours is—
- "1—A saving of one-third in fuel over any lower draft stove of the same size, with soft coal, slack or lignite.
- "2—That Cole's Hot Blast will use less hard coal for heating a given space than any base burner made with same size fire pot.
- "3—That the rooms can be heated from two to two hours each morning with the soft coal or hard coal put in the stove the evening before.
- "4—That the stove will hold fire with soft coal from Saturday night until Monday morning.
- "5—A uniform heat day and night, with soft coal, hard coal or lignite.
- "6—That every stove will remain absolutely air-tight as long as used.
- "7—That the feed-door is and will remain smoke and dust-proof.
- "All we ask is that the stove shall be operated according to directions and set up with a good flue.

"(Signed) COLE MANUFACTURING CO.,"

Associate Membership in Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau

There are fifty thousand voters in the district, only about two hundred of whom are identified with the Bureau as yet.

BE A BOOSTER

The Bureau wants ten thousand boosters on its rolls. Everybody should hold at least an Associate Membership in the Bureau and contribute the small amount of one dollar per year toward the work. In order to strengthen this spirit a souvenir watch fob in oxidized silver effect, also in gold effect, showing an enamel map of Michigan with this district in bright red, has been procured to distribute to the membership. The fob is a piece of art and fit to be worn by the most fastidious.

Cut Out the Coupon—Wear a Fob

Ten thousand men wearing these in this district is bound to produce a boosting spirit, the effect of which cannot be calculated.

All you have to do to be an associate member of the Bureau is to cut out the coupon and mail it, together with one dollar to the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, Bay City, Michigan. This does not carry a voting privilege but identifies the holder of it with the advancing and developing of this district.

The Typhoid Carrier.

Typhoid fever is a specific infection caused by the typhoid bacillus. That this organism is present in the excretions of those sick with typhoid fever, has long been known and disinfection of such excretions has been practiced to prevent the spread of the disease.

Up to within a few years ago however, little attention has been paid to the so-called "Typhoid Carrier." When the board of health of the city of New York discovered "Typhoid Mary," a cook who, although she had never knowingly had typhoid fever, had been the cause of half a dozen well marked typhoid epidemics, she was regarded as a scientific curiosity; but since that time bacteriologic researches have disclosed the fact that this walking typhoid incubator deserves no singular distinction. Such typhoid carriers appear to be quite common, and different investigators have found that in some localities over one per cent of the population are typhoid carriers.

Typhoid carriers are individuals who, although not suffering from typhoid fever, are discharging typhoid bacilli in their excreta. They are virtually culture tubes in which a constant supply of germs is being developed and discharged. They are divided into two types,—1st, those who have had typhoid fever, 2nd, those who have never or at least not knowingly had typhoid fever. Every person who has typhoid fever continues to excrete typhoid bacilli for a variable period after recovery. In most cases this period will not exceed a few weeks, but may continue for many years. In some instances typhoid bacilli are found in the excreta of persons who have apparently never had typhoid fever. This is explained by assuming that the individual possessed a certain amount of immunity at the time of the infection and did not undergo the ordinary course of fever.

Individuals have a varying degree of resistance to typhoid infection and the severity of the disease will vary accordingly. The relative number of typhoid carriers in any community varies as the amount of typhoid fever. If typhoid fever is prevalent, the number of typhoid carriers will be relatively high. If typhoid fever is rare, the number of typhoid carriers will be relatively low except as they may emigrate from the more infected communities.

How to deal with the typhoid carrier is one of the greatest problems before the modern health officer. Typhoid bacilli not only do not originate spontaneously from filth, sewage or decay, but die within a few weeks after being excreted from the human body. When typhoid fever is caused from water, milk or other foods, it is certain that the infected substance has been recently contaminated either from a typhoid patient or a typhoid carrier. If typhoid bacilli were only discharged by those suffering from the disease, the control of typhoid fever or even its complete elimination would be comparatively simple. The typhoid carrier is but rarely recognized and consequently cannot be avoided. He may be contributing to the sewage which contaminates your drinking water. He may be your neighbor or he may be a member of your own household. Remember the relation—filth, flies, fingers and food. Every person should be regarded as a potential typhoid carrier, and we should insist upon absolute cleanliness of everything associated with our food and drink. Where such cleanliness cannot be absolutely assured, do not forget that boiling kills typhoid bacilli and boil everything that may harbor the infection.—Robert L. Dixon, M. D., Secretary of the State Board of Health.

Michigan, My Michigan.

The editor of the St. Johns News gives Michigan the following boost: "Granted that a man has brains, energy, and perseverance, he can achieve in this great fruit growing state as much or more than he can east, west, north or south. The land responds to intelligent cultivation, the climate is equable, and, added to that, he has transportation facilities that mean much when it comes to shipping his products to market. Then, his children have the advantage of an excellent public school system, and his family, brought up in a community where social intercourse is possible, has opportunities for entertainment and recreation which might be very rare in a new and comparatively unsettled country. In fact, every argument is on the side of the man who stays at home, if home is in Michigan."

For bowel complaints in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil. It is certain to effect a cure and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. No physician can prescribe a better remedy. For sale by all dealers.

An All-American Fertilizer.

The field force of the United States Geological Survey is prosecuting searches for deposits of minerals which shall furnish three necessary elements of plant food that are contained in "complete fertilizer," namely, phosphate rock, nitrate salts and potash salts. The survey has already discovered and surveyed enormous deposits of phosphate rock and 2,398,590 acres of public land containing phosphate rock, withdrawn at the recommendation of the Geological Survey, are now waiting legislation by congress to enable their development. In order, however, to insure an "all-American" fertilizer, regardless of importations from other countries, it remains to discover deposits of nitrate of soda and potash salts. As both of these minerals are readily soluble and are not to be found as "outcrops" like ordinary rocks, the mission of the Survey is not an easy one. Nevertheless, it is believed that geologic conditions prevailing throughout a large portion of the arid west favored the accumulation, during earlier periods of the earth's history, of both of these salts and that if these still exist in concentrated deposits it is only a question of search to discover them. Hardly anything could be suggested which would be of greater assistance to the American farmer than the discovery of commercial deposits of either of these necessary fertilizing minerals.

Enormous Coal Valuations.

Under the present scheme of classifying government coal land 56,089,214 acres of withdrawn land had been, on August 1, examined in geologic detail and classified by the United States Geological Survey. The lands found to contain workable coal beds aggregated 16,873,370 acres. These lands in 40-acre tracts, have been appraised by the survey at a total valuation of $714,992,537, in prices ranging from the minimum figure stated in the coal law—$10 or $20 an acre according to whether the land is located within 15 miles of the railroad—to figures of over $400 an acre where the thickness of the coal beds may aggregate 60, 80, or 100 feet, or even more. The Government valuations accord in a general way with the market values of private coal lands in the west, although as a matter of fact they are somewhat more liberal to the purchaser. Four hundred dollars an acre may seem a high price for Uncle Sam's coal land, which a few years ago might have been bought for $20 an acre. However, the Geological Survey's plan of classification and valuation contemplates that the Government should receive at least a reasonable return for its coal, admittedly the most useful rock mineral in its possession. When it is understood that an acre with, say, a 40-foot coal bed or seam contains approximately 72,000 tons of coal and an acre with 100 feet of coal contains 180,000 tons, the price asked by the government, instead of being exorbitant, seems, on the other hand, hardly sufficient. On land having a thickness of 80 feet of coal $400 an acre would be less than 3 cents a ton. In reality, under the survey regulations, number of beds, quality, and other physical details, the prices asked for many areas containing 80 feet of coal are equivalent to nearer 2 than 3 cents a ton.

At the minimum prices which were in effect before the government withdrawals of coal lands, the 16,883,370 acres above referred to would have been priced at only $225,652,431, the difference in favor of the public revenue at the new prices being therefore $445,340,106. Under the provisions of the national irrigation law the proceeds from all sales of coal land are credited to the "reclamation fund," so that government irrigation has, as it were, a considerable trust fund for future operations.

CASE SYSTEM OF TEACHING

Almost Universal in Study of Law—Now Largely Used in Economics Courses.

Radical changes in the teaching of economics, consisting of the introduction of the case system, have been made by the department of political economy at the University of Chicago, says the News Letter of that institution.

The case system was first employed in the teaching of law and is now almost universally used in that subject. The object in introducing this method into the teaching of economics is to make the student think for himself and solve problems in economics as he would in mathematics.

The department at Chicago has prepared a syllabus or outline which consists of about 1,500 problems, and is now engaged in printing a bi-weekly bulletin made up exclusively of original cases or material descriptive of our industrial organization.

At the final examination in the course students are told to bring note books, text books, outlines and anything they wish and are allowed to use them freely. The examination consists entirely of problems.

The experience of the department proves the present method most successful, resulting in more individual work on the part of the students and giving them a better understanding of the subject.

French Ambassador's Conscience.

Now and again, our chancellor of the exchequer receives anonymous sums from those who at some time have accidentally or by design defrauded the treasury, says the London Globe. Recently the French minister of finance received 2 fr. 10c. This modest return evidently set some one thinking, for a few days later came the restitution of 1,313 pounds. The restitution of about eighteen pence is easier to make than 1,300 pounds; possibly the temptation to withhold the smaller sum might have been in inverse ratio. The Paris contemporary from which we take the foregoing mentions a curious case of fraud in which the ambassador of a great power was involved. How long it went on is not stated, but in his will he left 60,000 francs (2,400 pounds) to reimburse the state for what he had withheld during his life time.

MUST EAT IN PRIVATE

Primitive Tribes Are Opposed to Public Banquets.

See Shame in Taking Nourishment Before Others—Peculiar How Remnant of Superstitious Fear Has Been Passed Down.

In some primitive tribes, eating is regarded as something to be ashamed of. Karl von der Steiner, the celebrated explorer, was looked upon as a very ill-bred person by the natives of South American forests because he ate in the presence of others. The original ground of the shame associated with eating is a far of evil spirits. The feeling of shame is not inborn in mankind and it assumes very different forms in different regions. A remnant of the superstitious fear connected with the act of taking food appears in the ejaculation "Prost!" which, in Germany, is religiously uttered by the companions of a man who is about to take a drink. This Latin verbal form, the general meaning of which is "may it be beneficial," is now understood simply as the expression of a wish that the drink will agree with the drinker's constitution, but it originally connected the hope that the drink had not been bewitched.

These statements are made by a writer in Hygieia, who adds that the division of labor between men and women was originally, and still is among primitive peoples, much more sharply defined than it is at present in civilized countries. This sharp division of labor brought about a separation at meals. The Eskimos have separate dishes for the two sexes, and a man would be deeply ashamed to eat with women. It is possible that the decoration of plates and cups was designed to serve as a counter-charm, as well as an ornament. When the fear of demons had passed, the custom of eating in private which that fear inspired was sometimes maintained by force of habit, so that eating in public came to be regarded as a shameful breach of good manners.

That Reminds Me.

"That Reminds Me" on an invitation added a spice of novelty to an afternoon given for a company of elderly ladies.

The guests told stories, reminiscent or otherwise, as they were all old friends, and it made the occasion a most delightful one.

This is a capital idea for a grandmothers' party: Use all the old-fashioned things obtainable, have a nosegay of pancies (for thoughts) at each place and serve this deliciously old-time supper: Cold ham and chicken, creamed potatoes, tiny baking powder biscuits, tomato pickles, branded peaches, baked cup custard, rolled jelly cake, tea, with cream and sugar. Have a centerpiece of sweet Williams or any other old-fashioned flower obtainable. Have small butter plates, a castor in the middle of the table, or two of them, one at each end. Pass buttermilk in the afternoon in thin tumblers—of, better still, in goblets.

The Resorts of Millionaires.

They were on the subway. The middle-aged man was sober, but his young companion had confided to him in particular, and the whole car in general, that the champagne had tasted unusually fine that evening.

"I see by this paper," commented the sober one, "that a lot of millionaires are going to be presented at court in London."

"Yes," agreed the youth; "shum of 'em go to court, an' shum go to jail."
