Tawas Takes Another One.

The Bay City "Secrets" came up last Sunday and met the Tawas City team in a game of ball in the afternoon. They proved soft picking for the locals, the final score being 22 to 2 in our favor.

The game started with Stepanski and Mark, the star battery of the locals, working, but in the second inning Stepanski injured his throwing arm and was forced to retire, and M. Nelem was put in. He pitched an excellent game, holding the visitors to 11 hits and striking out six men. Pelky and King were up for the visitors, and Pelky was touched up for 27 hits, eight of which were for extra bases.

While the entire local team played an excellent game, Fred Swartz at short is worthy of special mention, as he not only played an excellent game in the field, but made two two-base hits, one for three bases, and a single, besides stealing two bases. Following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Tawas City	1	0	7	0	2	5	3	4	*22

For the three best colts sired by their black Perchroon, Albaret, he will give $5 to the first, $3 to the second and $2 to the third. He will also pay the same prizes for the three best sired by their imported Belgian horse, Major DeLanette 2nd.

There are nearly a hundred colts sired by these two horses in this vicinity, and these liberal prizes should bring out a great exhibit. These colts will also be eligible to show in the regular class for the prizes offered by the fair association.

Honest Labor Wears a Lovely Face.

It is extremely doubtful if the Connecticut senate would have voted to take a recess but for the appeal of Senator Alsop of the Fifth district, whose physical beauty was vouched for by Senator Donovan when he referred to the senator from the Fifth as "the handsomest member of the senate." Senator Alsop, who has certainly been one of the most faithful attendants at the sessions of the senate, told the senators that he had about sixty men working on his tobacco plantation and that he was his own foreman. Forty of these men are green hands. "If I don't get a week off to attend to my farming operations I'll go broke," said Senator Alsop, and it was an appeal which the senator's colleagues could not resist.—Hartford Times.

G. C. Karus Dead.

The death of Gustave Charles August Karus occurred at his home in Baldwin township, early Monday morning, September 4, 1911, after a long and painful illness. The deceased was born in Germany November 1, 1871, being the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Karus, who came from Germany in 1873 and located in Baldwin township. The mother died in 1876.

Gus, as he was generally known, grew up on the farm, attending the Lutheran school until he was confirmed in 1885, and then the district school. While his educational advantages were limited, his studious habits and natural ability fitted him to fill many important positions in public life to the entire satisfaction of his neighbors. He has for a number of years served as supervisor of his township, and as a member of the county board was held in high esteem by his associates, having been several times elected chairman pro tem of the board.

A young man of integrity and high character, he was universally respected by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and his death in the prime of manhood is sincerely mourned by all.

Mr. Karus was united in marriage November 29, 1900, to Miss Anna Cholger, of Wilber, and of this marriage four children were born. The eldest, a daughter, died, but three sons with the bereaved wife and aged father are left to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father and a dutiful son.

The high esteem in which the deceased was held was attested by the large congregation which attended the funeral services at the Zion Lutheran church yesterday afternoon. The services were conducted in both German and English by Rev. Seivers, pastor of the church.

MILLIONAIRE CAPITALIST FAVORS TRUST REGULATION

National regulation of trusts is the solution advanced to cope with present industrial conditions in the United States by Daniel Guggenheim, capitalist and president of the American Smelting and Refining company. In a statement given out before sailing for Europe Mr. Guggenheim says:

"We should now be having the greatest prosperity of any country in the world, because of our enormous resources and because we are healthy in those things that go to make a country prosperous. But every so-called 'captain of industry' is supposed to be a criminal, liable to prosecution. Investigations galore are being conducted by the department of justice, not because the department knows that our corporations are doing illegal acts, but to protect itself from congressional criticism. The Supreme court has rendered decisions that the country has been waiting for for a long time; nevertheless, the officers of the larger corporations do not know where they are at. This is the cause of so many of our large industrial not making expenditures which would start the business wheels in motion.

"In making comparison with the way that business is done in the countries abroad I do not find that the officers of corporations are prosecuted because of their co-operation with each other or of making combinations or of syndicating their products. On the contrary, in Germany, where they are now and have been so prosperous, there is hardly an article of importance that is not syndicated. The government itself not only permits the syndicating of these products, but lends itself in many cases as a partner to these syndicates, and it permits the syndicates to conduct their business in such a manner as will bring the greatest returns. There everything is done to permit stabilizing of prices. If in our country we attempted to do such things persecution would commence and we would be looked up in the light of criminals.

"I believe if we had a competent government board, comprised of men who would study business conditions, it would be very useful in the development of our industries. It should have the power to permit or prevent a combination or syndicating of products, according to conditions that obtain, and it could regulate matters so that the best interests of all the people of America would be served. Such a board, with power, I believe would improve our business conditions enormously, not only in the direction of export business, but home business as well."

LEADING DRAMATIC CRITIC VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE

Franklin Fyles, for 30 years dramatic editor and critic of the New York Sun, died recently of heart disease. He was born in Troy, N. Y., 64 years ago, and started newspaper work in that city while a boy. He became a reporter on the Sun when only 20 years old and five years later became dramatic critic. About 8 years ago falling health compelled him to leave the Sun and since then he had supplied dramatic criticisms and notes to 25 or more out-of-town papers.

When Franklyn Fyles was 20 years old he was editor and owner of a small weekly paper in Troy, N. Y.—the place where a considerable part of the country's collars are made. Troy, despite its classic name, is not a center of literary activity and Franklyn Fyles, after a struggle in which he spent all of a slender inheritance, was obliged to give up the intellectual siege of the collar makers. He decided to try his fortune in New York, and it was in preparation for this venture that the last issue of his badly wilted weekly was edited.

Three "stories" were written, each with the idea of capturing the admiration of a New York editor, so that he would give young Fyles a job. The first story was very high-browed and dignified, and dealt with the political situation in New York at the time (which is seldom very high-browed). It was to attract the attention of Hugh Hastings, owner of the Commercial Advertiser. The second story, for the special benefit of Amos J. Cummings, managing editor of the New York Sun, was a lively description of a negro camp meeting. The third effort was a humorous effort in imitation of Brick Pomeroy of the New York Democrat. All three editors fell for the scheme, and Fyles went to work as an editorial and dramatic writer for the New York Sun, a position he held 25 years.

It was as a dramatic critic that Franklyn Fyles became famous, but he also wrote a number of plays himself. Perhaps the most successful of these was "The Girl I Left Behind Me," written in collaboration with David Belasco. Other plays from his pen were "Cumberland, '61" and "The Governor of Kentucky." Mr. Fyles was also the author of several selections of short stories and one book on the stage.

Changing Ugliness into Beauty.

In many towns there is no more unsightly spot than the grounds about a railroad station. Cinders, weeds, old railroad ties and lots of other things contribute to make the place an eye-sore that is gazed at with disgust by the traveling public. It passes knowledge why such a condition should be tolerated by railroad officials.

In fact many officials do not tolerate it. With an eye to business and to pleasing their patrons, and with a laudable sense of beauty they see to it that the station grounds are converted into beauty spots in which green grass is kept neatly mown, shrubs, flower beds and trees give joy to the onlooker.

Much has been done to extend this custom by the Railroad Gardeners' Association. Made up as it mainly is of railroad officials from presidents to section hands it has already done a splendid work and that work will continue until the railroad system or station agent that will be content with unsightly station grounds will be as scarce or extinct as the dodo.

The Sitting Room.

An ideal sitting room may have a wall paper entirely cream, with clusters of blue and white china arranged on the chimney shelf and in one or two other parts of the room. If the ceiling be low it may have a frieze shelf in white or dark oak, whichever color is selected for the room, with the collection of blue and white china displayed thereon. A blue and white Chinese carpet should cover the floor, while the windows are veiled with short frilled madras muslin curtains.

For bowel complaints in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil. It is certain to effect a cure and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. No physician can prescribe a better remedy. For sale by all dealers.

The Uncovered Stand.

The man or woman of today pays as much attention to the surroundings where they buy their food as they do to the quality. In fact, good quality and good surroundings go hand in hand.

Do not patronize men who are not careful of the exposure of their wares to filth and dirt. To do so is to invite disease.

The fruit or candy stand upon the public street is a favorite resting place of the flies frightened from the street by the passing pedestrian. And what were they doing in the street? They were feeding on the excretion of some careless consumptive, or upon the garbage found in the street.

The fly is not a cleanly animal. It not only feeds upon the discharges and excreta of other animals, but smears its feet with germs and filth, and deposits them wherever it goes.

Do not relax your vigilance because cool weather is at hand. The flies laden with germs are trying in every way to obtain the protection of the stores and dwellings. They are especially attracted to places where they will have an abundance of food. Do not let them in. Screen them out! Swat them!

But this is not all the danger from uncovered street stands. If that were all it could easily be remedied by screening. The dust raised by passing teams and the wind settles on them and renders them dangerous. Some articles may be rendered safe by washing, but all articles sold in such places cannot be washed. All such articles should be protected from dust, especially those usually eaten without washing.

Do not use food that has been handled. Promiscuous handling means germ laden food. Do not buy food that has been so handled. It is dangerous.

The day of the uncovered fruit and candy stand is slowly, but surely, passing away. Everywhere cities are passing ordinances forbidding the sale of food of any kind unless protected from flies, dust and filth.

Food intended for human use should never be placed on a level with the street among the dirt and filth and subject to contamination by all passing animals.

Ordinances are also being passed forbidding the carting through the streets of meat, bread, fruit and vegetables without being properly protected.

Do not wait for your city or village to protect you, but protect yourself and children from danger by patronizing the progressive man who, reading the signs of the times, takes the proper precaution in the exhibition of his merchandise.—R. L. Dixon, M. D., Secretary of state board of health.

Aviation Accidents.

It is not strange that there have been lives sacrificed in the fight for supremacy of the air. But the fact that only two men in the army have been killed while using aeroplanes, seems to indicate that, under proper restrictions and capable supervision, there is not so much danger in navigating the air as might be supposed.

The army aviators are at work every day, and the number of machines at the College Park grounds is increasing steadily. The men devoting themselves to this work are as intrepid and fearless as any, but they are trying to work out problems and secure mastery of their craft, rather than to make showy, daredevil and reckless flights.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Sept. 8, 1911

Happiness does not consist in where we are but what we are; in character, not condition.

Some people who know the right fail to do it. They seem to think the mere knowledge is sufficient.

It is a good thing to keep one's temper in control, but it is a sad thing to have no temper to keep in control.

It would improve some people very much if they were as careful of their character as they are of their theology.

The assertion that women who have the ballot do not vote certainly does not apply to New South Wales, where nine per cent more women vote than men.

Usually the person most glib in making promises is the most ready to break them. When a promise is made after due consideration one may generally depend upon its being kept.

How inconsistent people often are. They expect their friends to have no imperfections, yet are full of imperfections themselves. If they love themselves with all their faults they ought to love their friends in like manner.

There is a good deal of cheap sentimentalism that sheds tears readily over the sorrows and trials of some imaginary hero in a play or novel, but which does nothing to help those who are bearing the actual sorrows of life.

Sadness sometimes follows joy. But it is soothing to reflect that sadness also passes, even as do the clouds, and that just as there is more sunshine than cloud so to the average man does life bring far more joy than sorrow.

Threatened governments, like threatened men, seem to live long. Almost every week the press dispatches tell of impending royalist invasions of Portugal, yet the Portuguese government continues on the even tenor of its way.

The shortening days turn ones throats to the long indoor evenings by the fire-light. Blessed is that home in which such tactful wisdom and common sense prevails that the children prefer to be at home than to roam the streets of an evening.

That woman who has just been granted a monthly household allowance of $2,112 by the equity court of the District of Columbia probably does not enjoy life half as much as the woman whose husband's yearly salary does not equal that amount.

How true it is that "Like mother, like child." The foot that forms the cradle's motion, the voice that sings the baby lullaby, the heart that responds to the child's every want, the love that teaches the infant prayer, are forces which represent a personality shaping the destiny of the child.

A young man has set out to find the ideal woman for his wife. He has pictured in his mind the moral, mental and physical excellencies (mostly physical) his wife must possess. If he keeps true to his ideal he will gain a vast amount of experience in travel and spend any amount of money, but his quest will be in vain. After all what right has he to demand the ideal in her if he is not ideal himself, and that he is not his unreasonable desire conclusively proves.

It is cheering to know that at last there is a relative decline in the number of suicides in this country. To be sure the decline is but slight, but it is infinitely better than the ominous increases of former years, and it leads to the hope that the future may bring even better results. If people would only learn to live at a slower pace and act rationally in their business and social pursuits, there would be far less breaking down of the mental machinery.

The Michigan milkman who added one gallon of water to every ten gallons of milk made an ingenious defence when he said that he did it because the milk was so rich that undiluted it might impair the health of his customers. But the plea did not work with the matter-of-fact judge and the milkman is now a sadder and wiser man. His patrons are not to be blamed for doubting the benevolence of his intentions and, anyway, people would rather do their own diluting of milk if it is at all necessary, which is seldom the case.

Every once in a while someone convinces himself and tries to convince others that Jesus Christ will come to earth at a given time in the near future, but people remain unconvinced. As a matter of fact such prophecies have been made so often during the centuries that they have lost their novelty and startling character. It is easily seen that anyone of keenly imaginative faculty can so juggle with figures and dates as to honestly deceive himself on the question. Instead of wasting time on such calculations that cannot be verified it is better to devote one's time to advancing the spirit of Christ among men.

To make country life popular the idea must be abandoned that such life is inferior socially and in other ways to that of the city. That such an idea does prevail with many young people is unquestioned. Said a young fellow recently while visiting relatives in the city, "Oh! don't let us talk country here." He really felt some inferiority of position because he was a country lad. Let it be instilled into the minds of young people that not only is country life honorable but that in many respects it is the most honorable and most fascinating of occupations because it brings one close to nature and oftentimes, close to nature's God. The poet was about right who said that "God made the country and man made the town."

Most people have a decided objection to being poisoned and an equally decided objection to eating adulterated food, even though the adulteration may be harmless. They want the goods to be as represented. When they buy coffee, jam, catsup and other things of daily use with genuine money they want the genuine article in return, not something concocted out of hayseed, chopped straw, ground beans and a thousand inferior substances. Unfortunately unscrupulous manufacturers and dealers destitute of conscience and business integrity do not hesitate to adulterate food regardless of the effect upon the consumer. Naturally enough these same people that they may continue to reap their ill-gotten profits bend every effort to make useless the pure food laws.

That is the whole secret of their untiring hostility against the pure food officials whose aim it is to protect the public by seeing that the law is observed.

A Hard-Working House.

The Democratic house has done splendid work. It has revised the house rules, dethroned the czar, and proved that better business can be done without a speaker-boss than with. It has passed reciprocity, the wool bill, the cotton bill, the free-list bill, direct elections, campaign publicity legislation and the Arizona-New Mexico bill. It is an excellent program, and the best thing about it is that it has proved that the house is capable of deliberating and can actually contribute something if it is given a chance. Cannonism proves to be far more of a blight than its most ardent opponents realized.—From "Success Magazine."

Forced to Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. Its surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. Its positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and J. E. Dillon.

No Need to Stop Work.

NEW MAP OF FLORIDA.

Remarkable Offer by the National Tribune, the Great Washington Weekly.

The National Tribune of Washington, D. C., the great weekly published in the national capital and the organ of the old soldiers and the G. A. R., has just prepared a new map of Florida, the state which is now the center of interest among all who are tired of the sudden changes from torrid heat in summer to arctic cold in winter, and who want a home where the climate is healthful and opportunities are offered to earn a livelihood or acquire wealth under the most favorable conditions.

The population of Florida increased nearly 50 per cent in the last census decade, and will double in the next. This map The National Tribune has had compiled from the latest surveys of the government engineers and from the most recent data of the postoffice department and lithographed in three colors on a fine quality of plate paper, 28 by 30 inches.

This map will be sent free to any one who will write to The National Tribune and enclose 7 cents in stamps for postage.

Whether your own property in any part of Florida, or are merely interested in the rapid development that is going on in the Peninsula State, this map will be of both interest and value to you, and all you have to do to get it, is to send 7 cents in stamps, merely to defray the cost of mailing, and the map will be sent to you at once, securely rolled in a stiff tube. Address THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C.

A Dreadful Sight

to H. J. Barnum, of Freyville, N. Y. was the fever-sore that had plagued his life for years in spite of many remedies he tried. At last he used Bucklen's Arnica Salve and wrote: "It has entirely healed with scarcely a scar left." Heals burns, boils, eczema, cuts, bruises, swellings, corns and piles like magic. Only 25c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and J. E. Dillon.

HONESTY IS THE NEW WAY

Tricks are used to Obtain in Reputation. Honesty is the New Way.

"The business is honest, open and frank," said Alton B. Parker, attorney at Esopus. "We used to do our plumbing, and very poor quality work it was. We expanded now, and it is altogether sound, wholesome and satisfactory. When business is like that."

"When I was one of the tricks that used to obtain in reputable business firms I am reminded of the seaside auctioneer."

"This syndicate once held up a $10 gold piece and said: 'Guess the date on this piece of money, friends. Make a guess and a small purchase, and the correct guesser takes the coin.'"

"So everybody in the crowd guessed, everybody bought some worthless rubbish, and the dealer netted a huge profit. Then, at the end, he looked at the $10 gold piece, held it up and said: 'Now for it! Who guessed 1894?'

"Me! Me! Me!" cried every man Jack in the shop.

"The dealer smiled.

"Then you all guessed wrong," he said, slipping the coin into his pocket. "The date is 1882."

Not a Word of Scandal

marred the call of a neighbor on Mrs. W. P. Spangh, of Manville, Wyo., who said: "she told me Dr. King's New Life Pills had cured her of obstinate kidney trouble and made her feel like a new woman." Easy, but sure remedy for stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 25c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co. and J. E. Dillon.

Danger in Back Collar Button.

A British scientist has just been pointing out the dangers of the high collar in connection with a long back collar button, which, through weight of the clothing on the back of the neck, may be leaving the imprint deep in the back of your neck.

In the first place the tall, stiff collar, which almost universally is too tight, cuts off a certain amount of blood from the brain. Many persons who are brain workers will recall the disposition to loosen the neckband before settling down to some hard study. It is an indication of an interrupted blood supply to the brain cells.

Worse than this, however, the scientist is telling us that this long shanked back collar button, under pressure of the tight collar or from weight of clothing around the neck, may be exerting dangerous force upon one of the most sensitive portions of the spinal cord. The medulla of the spinal cord is secondary only to the brain itself. Injury to it may paralyze the nerve centers which control the breathing apparatus.

Digestion and Assimilation.

It is not the quantity of food taken but the amount digested and assimilated that gives strength and vitality to the system. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and enable them to perform their functions naturally. For sale by all dealers.

New Section of the Brain.

Henry Miller, the actor-manager, is always in earnest when he is rehearsing a play, and he frequently makes remarks that sink deep into sensitive souls of the people in the cast with him.

Not long ago he was greatly incensed by the inability of an actor to read a line according to instructions, and this is what he said to the delinquent:

"My dear sir, you ought to go down on your knees and scrub out the cellar of your intellect."—Twice-a-Month Popular.

For bowel complaints in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil. It is certain to effect a cure and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. No physician can prescribe a better remedy. For sale by all dealers.

Splendidness.

Dad Wilkins—they say Sadie and Fred's wedding will outdo all records for splendidness?

Pa Hines—you bet it will. We're going to get that stranger from the hotel t'wear his dress suit and mix with the crowd.

Diarrhoea is always more or less prevalent during September. Be prepared for it. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is prompt and effectual. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For sale by all dealers.

Took Offense.

"What made that woman crazy?" "I happened to step on her hat."

"Well?" "Then I raised my hat politely and said: 'Excuse me, madam, your equilibrator is dragging,' and she lost her temper."

"I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success," writes Mrs. M. I. Basford, Poolesville, Md. For sale by all dealers.

There are fifty thousand voters in the district, only about two hundred of whom are identified with the Bureau as yet.

BE A BOOSTER
The Bureau wants ten thousand and boosters on its rolls. Everybody should hold at least an Associate Membership in the Bureau and contribute the small amount of one dollar per year toward the work. In order to strengthen this spirit a souvenir watch fob in oxidized silver effect, also in gold effect, showing an enamel map of Michigan with this district in bright red, has been procured to distribute to the membership. The fob is a piece of art and fit to be worn by the most fastidious.

Cut Out the Coupon—Wear a Fob

All you have to do to be an associate member of the Bureau is to cut out the coupon and mail it, together with one dollar to the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, Bay City, Michigan. This does not carry a voting privilege but identifies the holder of it with the advancing and developing of this district.

DIDN'T TALK WITH HER

Woman Got Worse as Soon as Husband's Tea Concoction Administered.

One day a doctor was summoned to a farm. There he found a woman in a fever and evidently exceedingly ill. He said to her husband, who was with her, "The other person in the house is very ill and must have something to eat except milk and beef-tea, but I want you to give her a cup of one of the other every two hours."

When he came the next morning and asked about his patient, her husband said: "That beef-tea don't agree with her, doctor. It certainly don't. She began to feel bad as soon as she took it."

"That's odd," said the doctor. "You didn't give her any little bits of the meat in it, did you?"

"No, sir. I strained it first on account of the grounds."

"Grounds!" roared the doctor. "What did you make that beef-tea out of?"

"Corn beef and the best tea. I boiled 'em together all yesterday afternoon to get the strength out. But it don't agree with her, doctor. It certainly don't."
