Will Ask Only One-Eighth Mill.

The Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau will this fall, at the various sessions of the boards of supervisors of Northeastern Michigan counties, ask the county solons to make appropriations of one-eighth of one mill for bureau advertising and extension purposes. This method is now legal, the last legislature having passed a law that provides that boards of supervisors may, by majority vote, levy a tax of not greater than one half of one mill for development purposes, providing that in no county a sum greater than $2,000 be raised. In Bay and Saginaw counties, for instance, half a mill tax would raise more than $2,000, so that here and in Saginaw the rate must be cut down as only the total of $2,000 is allowed.

But the bureau is not taking advantage of the full amount allowed by law, and is asking the various boards for only one-eighth of one mill. Even at this fraction of the maximum allowed, Bay county will raise the full amount permissible under the law, $2,000. The total that would be secured from the entire district under a one-eighth mill tax would be $9,720. This would give the board a fair start for next year's expenses.

That the amounts so far expended have been returned to the people of the district many-fold is apparent from the increase in the price of land in every county. This increase totals into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. The bureau is directly and indirectly responsible for the coming of hundreds of wealthy farmers—men who are accustomed to deal in Ohio and Indiana, Pennsylvania and other lands that sell for hundreds of dollars per acre. Double and treble the values asked here five years ago appeal to them as very cheap and for that reason better prices are being secured for land all over Northeastern Michigan.

The traffic to the north is plainly observable in Bay City and its hotels are reaping considerable revenue from the traffic from more southern states to the northern counties. Some days the headquarters of the Northeastern Michigan bureau are crowded with travelers on their way to the land sections between here and the Straits. All sorts of information regarding all sorts of land in all the counties of the district is provided at the bureau and no distinction is made between counties.

But surely some sections are better favored than others" is a common remark by a prospective land buyer. "Yes, but there is all kinds of soils adapted to all kinds of purposes. It's just general farming, go anywhere; if you are specializing we can send you to half a dozen districts where your particular needs can be met. We recommend one as against another. You must inspect for yourself" is the reply.

The executive committee of the bureau will hold its next meeting, November 1 in West Branch.—Bay City Tribune.

"Mule" Stampeded.

It was in the battle of Stone River, a raw Hoosier recruit in one of Grose's regiments got very much interested in the fight. It was the first time he smelled fire. He had been long enough in the army to learn its slang, and he used it zealously. The fellow fought like a tiger. He loaded in a good deal less than "nine times," and fired whenever he could see a head. His whole soul was in it. Every time he leveled and fired he shouted: "Here's your mule," snap bang. "Here's your mule!" At about the twentieth round a confederate sharpshooter struck him in the left arm. He looked at the wound with amazement and with a sort of spasmodic ejaculated "they've shot me!" then laying down his musket carefully, and stripping off his accoutrements he also laid them down deliberately, and ran to the rear with frantic energy. It was evident that "here's your mule" had stampeded. The officer who described the affair said it was the most ludicrous incident he had ever witnessed on a battlefield. "Rosy" laughed at it until the tears rolled down his cheeks.

Servile Functions.

"You may break, you may shatter, the vase if you will—"
He paused and bent a severe look upon his young wife.
"But it is customary in our station of life," he went on to leave that sort of things to servants"—Puck

The Michigan Apple and Its Possibilities.

One of the interesting exhibits at the exposition and land show is that of the Northeastern Michigan Development bureau. It testifies to the fact in an attractive way that this part of the state offers splendid possibilities in agriculture and horticulture. Some very fine specimens of the famous Michigan apple are shown, and it is to this article of fruit that we wish to direct attention. Although this state ranks high in the quality and quantity of its apple production, the industry falls far short of what it ought to be. Climatic and soil conditions in Michigan favor the apple. They combine to make the finest fruit of this variety that can be grown. That is why Michigan stands so close to the top among apple raising states. The reason why it does not eclipse them all is because scientific attention is not given to orchards. On the one hand there are hundreds of as perfect and prolific orchards as are to be found and their yields are enormous. Michigan gets its apple reputation principally from these. On the other hand there are thousands of orchards that are neglected and that yield good, but indifferent apples or none at all. Sometimes they are a source of income to the farmer, but more often not. They could be made to net their owners handsome returns every fall. Cultivation would load their branches down with fruit.

The apple requires cultivation just as does the peach, the pear and the grape, and it will not thrive unless it is given this attention. Years ago our grandfathers used to set out orchards near the farm house, partly for shade and partly to supply themselves with fruit for pies and cider. They seemed to believe that this was all that was necessary; that the trees would take care of themselves. Many of their children have looked upon orchards much in the same way, and that is why we find so many of them neglected. Such orchards do not pay. In reality they are expensive for they return little or nothing on the investment the ground they occupy represents.

Within the last few years, however, the apple has come to its own in the fruit world and today we find millions of dollars represented in its scientific cultivation, particularly on the Pacific coast, where the growers are making fortunes from a product that does not begin to compare with the Michigan apple in flavor and quality. Some Michigan farmers are doing the same thing, but the great majority are not. All could do it. The possibilities in these orchards and in apple culture generally is illustrated by what a western Michigan man did this year. Last fall he rented two old orchards, one for $50 and the other for $40. He sprayed the trees trimmed them and gave them such other attention as they needed. This fall he was offered $1,000 cash for the yield as it stood in the trees. Nearly every Michigan farmer has the opportunity to do as well. If he hasn't the making of a good orchard he can replant one.

Neglected, the apple tree is an uncertain asset and soon represents loss instead of profit. Cultivated, it is a highly dependable asset and its profits are large. Michigan can become the greatest of all apple producing states and its thousands of farmers can all share in the rich rewards—if they will. The apple is deserving of just as serious attention as the sugar beet or wheat, and it will pay just as well, too.—Saginaw News.

Boss Among Vultures.

The most beautifully colored of all vultures belong to the New World family; it is the true king vulture of South American forests. Its plumage is of a delicate cream, with black quills, and the bare head is brilliantly colored with red and orange. This handsome bird exercises regal authority over black vultures and turkey buzzards, in the same way as the Pondicherry vulture does over griffons, etc., so that if any dissatisfied Indian vulture succeeded in reaching South America, he would find some new bosses awaiting his arrival.

The American boss, however, is not as large and strong as his Indian relative named Pondicherry. Both of these bosses, it should be mentioned, are much more strikingly colored than the subjects over which they exercise authority.—Rosary Magazine.

MEAT-GROWING DISCOVERY MAY AFFECT LIVING COST

In the present stress due to the high cost of living anything that gives promise of relief raises high hopes in the hearts of distressed humanity. Such promise is held out in the extraordinary development of a remarkable discovery made in the laboratory of the Johns Hopkins university at Baltimore, Md. Should it prove to be anything like as important as present appearances indicate it will be of immense value to the commercial and the medical world.

It is all due to the tireless researches of Dr. Warren H. Lewis here pictured, associate professor of anatomy at the university, and his wife, Margaret Reed Lewis, also a physician. These are the two scientists who announce that after a long series of experiments they have found a way of inducing the indefinite growth of cellular substances by chemical processes. Their work, to be sure, has thus far only been with embryonic chicks, grown in test tubes to the extent of microscopic quantity; but the principle has been established, and there seems to be no good reason why development should not be possible at a wholesale rate.

"The value of all these experiments which my wife and I have conducted," explains Dr. Lewis, "has several different phases. For instance, it may some day have a great commercial value. There is nothing to prevent our operations from being carried on on a much larger scale. Suppose that you had a number of vats filled with saline solutions, and that in these solutions you put the muscles or other organs of various animals not only while in the embryo but even when they had reached the adult stage. There would be large growths, and these would be edible. In other words, the salt solutions would be turned into incubators sure to hatch, and from which pieces of embryo chicks could be taken every day without hindering the increase of the supply. Thus there would be a new delicacy.

"These possibilities are far in the future, but that they will become true some day there is every probability. This would prove of great importance to the world, as the supply of meats would never give out so long as the chemicals could be secured to make the solutions in which the generation takes place.
"The more important immediate good which the discovery will do is of a medicinal character. In these saline solutions it will be possible to transplant organs of the human body, to observe their growth, what they feed on, what they secrete, the things which are dangerous to them and the things which are beneficial.
"As a result of this study important cures can be effected. The difficulty about finding a cure for cancer is that no one knows its exact cause. But when the solutions can be used in this manner it will be possible to find the cause and determine on a cure. Then, also, it will be possible to determine what will cause a tumor to go away, and on what it feeds."

OLD FASHIONED BARBER BEST

Writer Objects Strenuously to the "Tonsorial Artist" With His Atrocious Clothes and Talk.

Scarce a man living but at times drifts into dreaming and picturing what he might do if he had wealth. Many—far too many!—aspire to something that may contribute to the sensational headlines. Here and there is one who merely inclines toward some modest benefaction. For our own part, suddenly finding ourselves rich, we should like to devote much of it to eliminating the "tonsorial artists" from the field of barberdom; separating the tares from the wheat as it were.
The average "tonsorial artist" affects the most atrocious neckwear; dons a millionaire's vest with a millwright's trousers, and puts popular ideas of garb all at points. He talks glibly of scandal, horse races and hair restorer, and eventually drives many a man to whiskers who is perfectly sane and normal otherwise. There are too many of him!

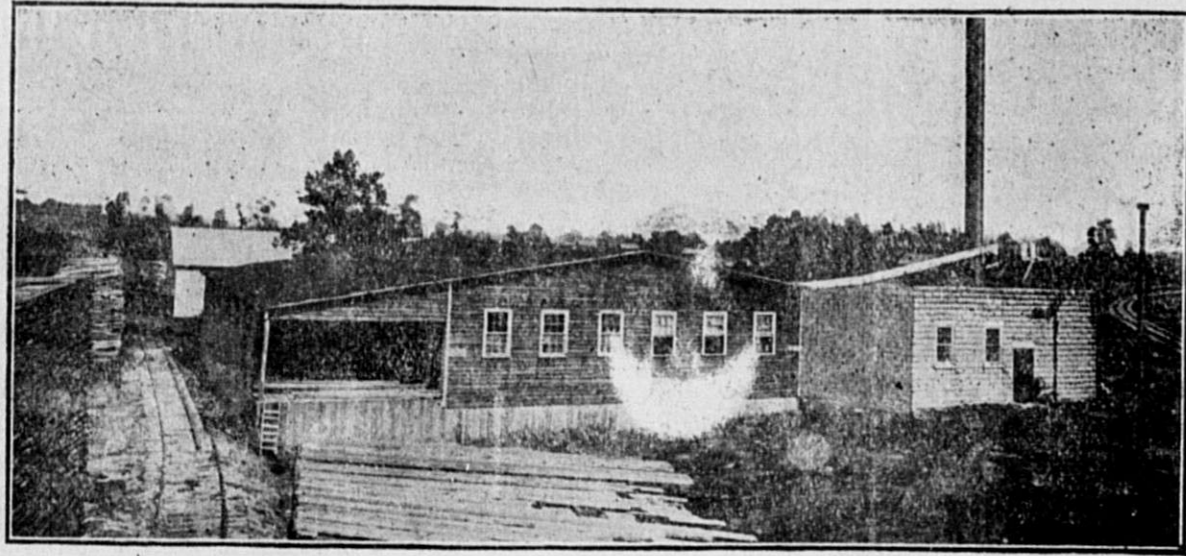

On the other hand the old fashioned "barber" knows his financial, mental and artistic limitations. He seldom feels better acquainted with you the second time over than he did the first. He assumes you know what you want better than he does and rarely forces his "extras." Mostly he is a good tradesman, cleanly and careful in his work. One of his stripe puts greater crimp in the safety razor business than all the "artists" combined. Bless him, there is not enough of him!—Buffalo News.

It is always a good thing for one to keep on good terms with his conscience.

The church member who is satisfied with an easy going religion is to be pitied.

What in business are called "lucky hits" are usually the result of applied common sense.

Some children are trained up, others are dragged up, and still others are left to shift for themselves.

There is something in the shake of the hand and the manner of speaking that tells whether or not there is a warm sympathetic heart back of it.

That Italian poetess who mourns that men have ceased to love and that the passion for love has largely disappeared must have forgotten "Affinity" Earle.

There is a great difference between waiting for opportunities to come along, and going after them. Oftentimes it marks the difference between failure and success.

Many people who would shrink from throwing their life away by one rash act are getting rid of it piecemeal by fast living, or neglect of health, or by worry and overwork.

It is to be hoped that the rabid anti-American language indulged in by some of the Canadian speakers during the recent election campaign may not cause ill feeling among the people who live on either side of the border. It is always well to remember that such talk is for campaign purposes only.

The death of Stoylin, the Russian premier, has not resulted in the fanatical crusade against the Jews that was expected. This self-restraint is in striking contrast to former days when, with or without reason, programs, in which Jew baiting, was the principal sport, were frequent and widespread. Is it possible that Russia is actually acquiring western civilization?

The time is at hand when bosses, little and big, will without hesitation glibly promise the whole party vote of a state to some one or other of the presidential candidates now looming up. Apparently they think that the people can be delivered like so many sheep. Perhaps that was true once in some states, but today people think as never before and because they think they are going to decide for themselves.

Is the astonishing rise of the price of sugar a retaliation by the sugar trust for having been fined a quarter of million of dollars? Anyway the revelations that have been made of the business methods of the trust show that no scruples of conscience ever deter it from doing what it believes will serve its financial ends. What a beneficent thing a trust is for its members, but what an incubus upon the consumer.

When one thinks of the filthy slush that fills the pages of the daily press when some scandalous murder or other trial is in progress, he cannot but wish that in some way the publication of such details could be stopped. The effect of such revolting testimony upon the unformed but receptive minds of many young people cannot but be bad. The best thing to do under such conditions is for parents, so far as is within their power, to keep such literature out of the hands of their children.

When Pliny said, "Shoemaker, stick to your last," he did not foresee the wonderful versatility of the modern man especially here in America, who has a penchant for changing from one thing to another and, as a rule, coming out on top. And yet the old sage was, in the main, right. Most people have a natural gift and liking for some particular vocation and in the love, patience, enthusiasm and interest which that fact shows lies success. We see this in the Edison Burbanks and other specialists who, sticking "to their last," attain a distinction and reap a success and reward which they would have missed if they had flitted from one thing to another.

The good book says that, "the eyes of a fool are in the ends of the earth," which is an emphatic if not euphemistic way of saying that there are lots of people who always believe that things are better somewhere else. Such people are ever ready to glorify some other town at the expense of their own. Their home town they love to run down; they find fault if progress is made and they do the same when it is not made. They condemn every project designed to benefit the place and then complain of a "dead town." They seek to discourage every man than wants to do something and then lament that there is no public spirit. Such men are a dead weight, and incubus upon the community.

RICHER, BETTER COFFEE

The more of the natural aromatic oil your coffee-berries contain, the richer-flavored your coffee will be.

Coffee that IS Coffee

When roasting Royal Valley Nero, Marigold and Tzar, extra care is taken to preserve, IN THE BERRIES, every bit of this oil; and the result is they make the most deliciously-rich, appetizing coffee that can be imagined.

Also, because of that extra care in roasting them just right, it is possible to maintain in a stronger "body," so that a pound of one of these blends will last longer than a pound of most coffees, because you don't need to use so much of a Royal Valley to make your coffee just the strength you like best.

Try Royal Valley NERO at 25c, or MARIGOLD at 30c, or TZAR at 35c per pound and you will never use any other coffee, because any other as rich, and strong, would cost you from 10c to 15c more per pound.

Room for Americans Only.

One may easily understand and appreciate the deep devotion which American citizens of foreign birth may retain for their native land. It would be strange and even reprehensible if that affection were lost. The desire to retain and teach their children the language and many of the customs of the old lands is also natural. But it is a different matter when all this is allowed to affect the political ideas and action of such citizens. Now and again we read of prominent men of this or that nationality urging their comrades to combine as a political unit, not as Americans but in their old world nationality and speech.

Such advice and such action is altogether at variance with our American spirit and ideals. The first and only allegiance of American citizens, whether native or foreign born, is to the government of this country. Any person, whether he be English, French, German, Pole, Irish or aught else, who becomes nominally an American citizen, but refuses to become so in spirit and deed has no moral right on these shores. And politicians who appeal to the prejudices and preferences of their compatriots and seek their perpetuation are playing false to their country.

In truth there is no room in this land for a little Sweden, or Norway, or Germany, or Britain, but there is abundance of room for all honorable, self-respecting people of foreign lands who come here to be true citizens and do their part in building up this nation. Whatever may be the speech, customs and political allegiance in other countries it cannot be too strongly emphasized that when one takes out his citizenship papers it is his duty to be an American, and an American only, first, last and always.

Averts Awful Tragedy.

Timely advice given Mrs. C. Wiloughby, of Marengo, Wis., (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. After many remedies, failed, her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery, "I have been using it for some time," she wrote "and the awful cough has almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. M. Wuggazer & Co., and Jas. E. Dillon.

The Canadian Elections.

It is questionable whether the merits or demerits of the reciprocity agreement did or did not cut much of a figure in the recent Canadian elections. That the question itself did is evident for it was used with marvelous effect as an annexation bogey. Many thousands of former liberal voters, especially in Ontario, voted conservative because of the fear that reciprocity must lead to annexation. That fear, though groundless, was not unnatural as a weak nation is usually suspicious and nervous as to the intentions of a stronger nation living contiguous to it.

Another potent cause that led to the downfall of the Laurier government was the nationalist movement in Quebec under the lead of Bourassa and Monk. This anti-British and anti-navy crusade played havoc with many a liberal stronghold in the French province. It is well said that politics make strange bedfellows and this was never more forcibly seen than in the Canadian election. It meant that two such discordant elements as extreme anti-British and extreme pro-British made a temporary alliance to defeat one of the strongest governments Canada has ever had. It succeeded in its purpose but it is hardly likely that the coalition will last.

But one thing is certain. Reciprocity between the two countries is no longer an issue. It is dead and buried without any possibility of a resurrection for many a long year to come.

It's Equal Don't Exist.

No one has ever made a salve, ointment to balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica salve. It's the one perfect healer of cuts, corns, burrs, bruises, sores, scalds, boils, ulcers, eczema, salt rheum. For sore eyes, cold sores, chapped hands or sprains its supreme. Unrivaled for piles. Only 25c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s and Jas. E. Dillon's.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. Blissful ignorance.

Holden, the New York "bird man," lately had in his shop a taciturn parrot. Day after day it sat silent on its perch, indifferent to every question. At last a Cuban lady came into the shop and spoke to it in her native tongue. The parrot brightened up at once, opened its beak and emitted a jubilant volley of vehement Spanish words. When the parrot finally ceased speaking the lady turned to Mr. Holden and, blushing violently, asked:

"Do you understand Spanish?"
"No," he replied.
"Thank God!" she replied and left the shop. Success Magazine
