In the afternoon the fire bell sounded again, but this was caused by a brush pile in the west part of the city being set on fire.

C. M. Davis has been engaged by the Tawas Grain Co., as manager of their business in this city, and has been busy this week getting the Schlechte mill cleaned up and ready to receive grain. Rev. W. S. Sayers, D. D., announces that he will hold Episcopal services in this vicinity as follows: Sunday, Nov. 5, at Rose City; Monday the 6th at South Branch; Tuesday, the 7th, at Taft school house; Wednesday, the 8th, at Whittemore; Thursday the 9th, at Omer; Saturday, the 11th at Standish; Sunday, the 12th, at Oscoda in the forenoon, and at East Tawas in the evening.

Tuesday evening, as the train was coming out of Prescott, it struck a large herd of sheep which were being transferred from one pasture to another on the Prescott farm. There were 1,700 sheep in the drove and about 150 of them were killed. Fortunately, the train was not derailed and the principal damage was the loss of sheep. The accident happened at the crossing east of the big farm.

After the experience the farmers of this county have had this fall with poor roads, and the expense they will have to go to get them back into good condition again, it would seem that they would be enthusiastic supporters of a proposition to add a good many more miles to the few miles of good stone roads we now have. Let's get the matter started now and see if by next fall we can not have a lot more good roads.

We understand that the Tawas Grain Co., which recently purchased the Schlechte mill, will not engage in the manufacture of flour, but will remove the machinery, except for the grinding of feed, and convert the place into an elevator and storage house for the handling of all kinds of farm produce. They propose to handle everything the farmer grows in the shape of produce, and should do much to make Tawas City the best market in this section. They are already buying grain and extend an invitation to the farmers to call and see them before selling elsewhere.

Rev. Hugh McCarroll, who has been ministering to the Presbyterian churches of the Tawas for the past year, has received two unanimous calls for his services in other fields. One is from the First Presbyterian church of Port Huron and the other from the First Presbyterian church of Reading. We understand that he contemplates accepting the Port Huron call.

The remains of Mrs. William Malcolm, who died at the family home at Nahma, in the Upper Peninsula, on Friday last, arrived at East Tawas last Saturday evening, accompanied by the husband and children. The remains were taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Nels Pierson, and the funeral was held from there Monday afternoon; interment in the Tawas City cemetery. The deceased was a daughter of the late Gottlieb Dreager, of this city, and was 43 years, 11 months and six days of age. She is survived by the husband and seven children, besides a large circle of relatives and friends.

The home of the Hon. and Mrs. G. A. Prescott was the scene of joyous festivity Halloween—it was a "gathering of the spooks." About twenty-five guests were present en mask and the evening's diversions carried out the scheme of a "Hallowe'en" to perfection.

The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion and everything was in keeping with the order of the "eve." It was an informal affair and the guests entered into the spirit with zest. Hallowe'en stunts and games were a part of the program, while dancing and musical selections filled out the evening nicely.

A nice lunch was served, and the merry maskers have decided opinions that the host and hostess are royal entertainers.

William C. Wilson lost his life at the U. S. Gypsum plant at Alabaster, last Saturday afternoon, by being caught in a cave in of crushed rock. He went in to the large bin in which the crushed rock is stored for the stones, to cave down some of the rock which had adhered to the sides of the bin. No one saw the accident, but from the position of the body when found it is believed that Mr. Wilson slipped and fell and the rock caved onto him, death being caused by suffocation. The funeral was held from the Alabaster church Tuesday, Rev. W. A. Gregory, of the East Tawas M. E. church, officiating. Interment at Tawas City cemetery. The deceased has been a resident of this city and Alabaster for many years and was well and favorably known.

If you need any finishing lumber, order it from the Barkman Lumber Co., East Tawas.

Rumor Will Not Die.

The Sault Ste. Marie Evening News says:

The rumor that the Grand Trunk is to invade the upper peninsula via Detroit and this city will not down. What is more, it now appears as though the invading officials had partially secured the right of way desired.

Recently the Grand Trunk purchased the Pontiac, Oxford & Northern railroad and have already practically completed connections between the latter road and Bay City, where the Grand Trunk is preparing to build a large terminal and also construct a bridge over the Saginaw river. With these extended improvements comes the statement again that the Grand Trunk has not only been dicker for the purchase of the Detroit & Mackinac railroad, but has already succeeded in corraling the majority of the stock of that road.

Reliable advices have been received from below the straits now that recently officials of the Grand Trunk secured the right of way for their proposed road from this city to Pickford and that in the near future they will continue their efforts from Pickford to St. Ignace, the place that will undoubtedly be picked as a landing point for the trains coming across from Mackinaw on car ferries.

ANOTHER AMERICAN WOMAN JOINS EXPATRIATE COLONY

This country received another hard blow the other day when Mrs. Anne Warner French, a native of St. Paul and somewhat of an author, left it in disgust. She doesn't like the American woman, nor the country, nor society. The country is "very young, very crude," she says, and it got upon her nerves to the extent that she has now gone abroad, perhaps never to return. The women of America in her opinion are pampered and petted and are not expected to enter the real world of affairs. On the other hand English girls are trained as their brothers and are taught to take an "earnest, active and intelligent part in social, political and economic affairs." And for these reasons Mrs. French goes back presumably to the land of her fathers, where the country is neither young nor crude and where there exists real society.

It is doubtful if the people of the United States will turn aside from their ordinary avocations to shed a tear over Mrs. French's departure. It is likely that they would be more inclined to shed a tear should she ever return. Without regret on this side of the water she is free to join the colony of American expatriates, who live on the fringe of society and are tolerated because of their wealth. America is fortunate in having rid itself of them and of their foolish assumptions, and if we were sure that the last of this class had left us forever it is possible we might create another holiday in the various states to celebrate the occasion.

Impossible Road.

Chauncey M. Depew frequently deprecates the comparisons that are drawn between American and European railways.

"These comparisons are unfair to us," he once said at a banquet in New York. "When I'm told how very safe the European railroad is, I think of the Nola Chucky line."

"The president of the Nola Chucky line once waited on me to request an exchange of courtesies. I interrogated him, and he said proudly:

"On our line, sir, not only has a collision never occurred, but on our line a collision would be impossible."

"Impossible?" said I. "Oh, come. I know that the latest automatic safety devices are excellent things, but impossible is a large word."

"It's literally true with us, sir," he replied.

"How can it be?" said I.

"Why," said he, "we only own one train."

The Houseworker's Hands.

If you are obliged to have your hands in water for a long time, so that the fingers become shrunken, dip them in vinegar or pour it over the hands and they will be restored to normal condition. To properly protect the ends of the fingers the nails should extend a little beyond the tips. When the nails are too short the skin is apt to become rough directly under the nails, which makes it almost impossible to keep them clean. The white crescents at the base of the nail can be brought into view by gently pressing back the cuticle every day. File the nail to correspond with the shape of the crescent.

Bouquet Salad.

Use a good head of cabbage lettuce, arrange the white leaves in a bunch resembling the matured head in the center of a flat dish, garnish with slices of tomato and hard-boiled eggs. Just before serving cover the whole with plain French dressing. Use a spoon and pour the dressing on carefully so that all part will be moistened without being disarranged. Mayonnaise may be used on the eggs and tomato if preferred, in which case the dressing should be put on the eggs in the cup under the yolks.

Decency in Bathing Suits.

Santa Monica, Cal.—By a vote of the city council the scant bathing suits that heretofore inadequately garbed the forms of men lolling on the sands have been banished from this beach. Men must wear skirts on their surf costumes. The short trunks must be lengthened into trouserettes reaching to the knees, and there must be sleeves.

Furthermore, "bathers" must bathe when they come down to the beach, not merely disport themselves on the sands.

The new order was put through by irate citizens. There was no complaint about the costumes worn by women, although they also are ordered to bathe and not pose. "Spoon-bathing parties" are barred.

MOTHER'S DYING REQUEST STARTS SEARCH FOR SON

In an effort to gratify the dying wish of Harriet E. Landon of Fort Smith, Ark., her husband and daughter-in-law have started for Mexico, Central America, South America and South Africa in an effort to find Charles M. Landon and his stepson, who mysteriously disappeared August 31, 1907, with $33,000 in cash and a certified check for $1,000.

Charles M. Landon was, at the time of his disappearance, operating the Landon mill, now the Western Grain company, in partnership with his father, C. E. Landon. The business was profitable and extensive. Landon resided with his wife and three-year-old stepson, Brooksher William Landon. To all appearances his life was a happy one. The stepson was very fond of Landon, and followed him everywhere.

The night Landon disappeared, he accompanied his wife to an open-air theater. When they came out, he asked her to wait for him while he walked across the street to a telephone office to order several cars of grain. Landon ordered the grain, and deposited cash to pay for it, but did not return to his wife. She returned to their home, expecting the father and son to return later, but no trace of them has been found since they left the telephone office.

The afternoon prior to the disappearance Landon drew $33,000 from one bank and borrowed $1,000 from another, being given a certified check for the amount. The check was later mailed to the bank.

The aged parents of Landon have employed detectives constantly since his disappearance, but no trace of him has been found. The parents, both over seventy years of age, took the daughter-in-law into their home, a suburban residence, and each night a light is placed in the window by the mother.

The elder Landon owned a large ranch in Mexico, and has made annual trips there, thinking he might there find a trace of the son. The mother died in Cherryvale, Kan., recently, and her dying request was that the father find her son. She asked that all the property they owned be pledged to the search, and C. E. Landon has started out to satisfy the dying request of the heart-broken mother.

CATS RELISH KISSING BUGS

Feast on Insects as They Fall From Arc Lights—Mother Teachers Kittens to Appreciate Delicacy.

Columbus, Ind.—Kissing bugs are here in swarms, but do not exhibit themselves until after dark. They are commonly called electric light bugs because they swarm about arc lamps. They dart here and there in a blind fashion, often striking people in the face, and this gave them the name of "kissing bugs" here.

Cats are fond of "kissing bugs," and at night a few stray cats can be seen sitting under nearly every arc light in this city. As if it was a bug light overheat and drops to the street the quickest cat in the bunch darts forward and has a dainty morsel. One old cat was noticed to be kissing his kittens to appreciate kissing bugs.

Saloon Will Be Rejected.

Ansonia, Conn.—The probate court here has refused to admit the will of the late James Brennan on the ground that the instrument was drawn in a saloon. The will left the greater part of the estate to his widow, who was his third wife, and was contested by the eight children of his first wife.

The Kick of the Fly.

In days of yore, on the traditional authority of Miss Edgeworth, I was taught that the kick of a fly reaches to America. Who could ever have thought that a circumstance so trifling as that of Miss Anna P. Morgan tying with a running string her skirt around her ankles preparatory to an aviation flight could be to the great industry of Roubaix as the ill wind that blows nobody good? Some snobesses who saw this contrivance devised by the daughter of a foremost New York banker took the notion as an elegant novelty to the Rue de la Paix, where it was at once adopted. In a few days all the leading race-course belles came out at Anteuil in "jupes entravees." This mode is now out, but the very narrow skirt derived from it still remains in, with, however, "qualites" to render motion easier at lateral openings from the knee down.—Truth.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Nov. 3, 1911

News From The Capitol.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30, 1911.
Members of Congress are arriving in Washington unusually early this year. Already a full quorum of both branches of that body is on hand and an "unofficial session" is being held. The senators and representatives are engaged in political stock taking, which like that in mercantile houses, must be done before the busy season begins. Legislation and political coups are being planned for launching immediately upon the convening of Congress in December, and from then until next June, when the scene of activity will shift temporarily to the cities in which the nominating conventions are to be held, there will be something important put on the political griddle in Washington every week.

With the session only a month off, Congressmen are beginning to bring the tariff to the front once more. The ways and means committee of the House of Representatives, with a democratic majority, has been working all summer collecting data for tariff revision, and the wool, steel, and sugar schedules will probably be reconsidered in the light of the additional information at hand. President Taft is expected to stick by his resolution not to consider any tariff measure until the tariff board has presented its findings.

Political Washington is watching with interest the President's vision of the "enemy's country"—Wisconsin, the home of Senator LaFollette, who is to be his opponent, it appears, for the Republican presidential nomination in 1912.

The filing of the government's suit against the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiary concerns was a bombshell to official Washington, and marks the beginning of President Taft's avowed policy of pushing cases this winter against all concerns now operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Special agents of the Department of Justice have been gathering evidence to be used in the suit for the dissolution during the past three years and this evidence is supplemented by the findings of the Stanley committee of the House of Representatives, which has been conducting an independent investigation.

Following as it does the "defi" of the Steel Trust officials under the lead of Pierpont Morgan a month or so ago when the rumor was first circulated, a long drawn out legal battle is expected. It may take from three to five years to push the case through the various courts until a final decree is rendered by the United States Supreme Court, to which tribunal, it is the announced intention of both parties in the suit, to carry the case irrespective of the decisions of the lower courts.

The most surprising information connected with the case was the fact that Former Secretary of War Dickinson has prepared the brief. It had been stated officially at the Department of Justice that the investigation of the steel combine was in charge of Solicitor General Lehmann, and although it is a fact that he has done a great share of the work in the preparation of the case, Mr. Lehmann's name does not appear.

The significance of the omission is asserted in some quarters to be that the administration plans to put the Solicitor General on the Supreme Court bench, as a successor to the late Justice Harlan, and that under these circumstances his name is not drawn into the steel suit.

Older party organizations have been amazed at the activity shown in the Progressive Republican headquarters in this city. It is estimated that fifty clerks are sending out tons of literature at a cost of $3,000 a week. This, it is said, is soon to be doubled. The suggestion is offered that some "interests" hostile to the renomination of President Taft are behind this great activity.

As the opening of Congress approaches, the various investigation committees are getting ready to resume their sittings. Some of the biggest men in the business world, like J. P. Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and James J. Hill, have said that they would attend the hearings and give testimony.

If anyone has doubted that the South could arise to meet a great opportunity, the progress of Col. D. C. Collier, accompanied by G. Grosvenor Dawe, through the South should have dispelled that doubt. It is as sure as anything can be that the South is going to make a big bid for tourist as well as colonist travel, and that it will aid in promoting the success of the San Diego Exposition by so doing.

Announcement is made the Democratic National Committee will meet in this city January 8th, to fix the time and place for the national convention which will nominate the Presidential candidate for the party. It will be a sort of jubilee, and keynote speeches will be delivered from which one may be able to forecast the arguments to be used in the campaign. Probably all of the prominent candidates for the first place on the ticket will be in attendance.

The launching of a boom for Oscar Underwood for the Presidency calls attention to the fact that the Democrats have plenty of material for that office, for a change, while the Republicans seem practically restricted to two. But it may be different when the conventions meet.

Large Salt Production.

The United States produced 30,305,656 barrels of salt in 1910, valued at $7,900,344, according to figures compiled by W. C. Phalen and just published by the United States Geological Survey. This was an increase of 198,010 barrels over the production of 1909 but a decrease in value amounting to $443,487. The six leading producers of salt in 1910 were New York, Michigan, Ohio, Kansas, Louisiana, and California. Nearly 99 per cent of the salt consumed in the country was obtained from domestic sources, the United States having long been independent of foreign production.

Salt is thought of mostly in connection with cooking and seasoning, but it has a great many other important applications. It is used largely in the preservation of fish and meat, in the dairy industry, and in chemical metallurgical processes. It is also used as a source of chlorine employed in the manufacturing of bleaching powders and in the chlorination of certain gold ores.

One of the main sources of salt is common sea water and some of the California product is obtained from the ocean. Where sea water is evaporated to dryness, salt is among the first compounds to be deposited. The last are the potash and magnesium compounds, these being the most soluble. The great Stassfurt potash deposits are overlain as well as underlain by salt, and it is the opinion of geologists that potash may accompany some of the known salt deposits in this country.

In a recent Geological Survey report on potash, written by Mr. Phalen, the hope is expressed that every salt producer in the United States will in the future when boring or otherwise exploring for salt, be on the lookout for possible occurrences of potash compounds.

At present the Geological Survey has a deep-drilling party at work in the arid West, where vast deposits of salt are known to exist, in an endeavor to find possible sources of potash and nitrate of soda—two of the three essential elements of "complete fertilizer," a recognized necessity for successful agriculture.

Mr. Phalen's report on salt and bromine is issued as an advance chapter from "Mineral Resources for 1910" and may be obtained on application to the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

The board of supervisors of Iosco county met in the court house, in the city of Tawas City, in said county, in annual session, on Tuesday, the 10th day of October, A. D. 1911, pursuant to adjournment from yesterday.

Board called to order by Jas LaBerge, chairman pro tem, who ordered the clerk to call the roll.

Present—Supervisors Abbott, Allen, Anschuetz, Bartlett, Beardslee, Brown, French, Frost, Hull, Jordan, Lindsay, LaBerge, McQuaig, Hurkett, Oliver, Muncy, Myles, Oliver, Prescott, Robinson, Rollin, Miller, Williams—23.

The clerk read the minutes of yesterday's proceedings, and there being no objection they were declared by the chairman unanimously approved as read.

Annual report of county drain commissioner.

To the Hon. Board of Supervisors: Gentlemen—In compliance with the provisions of the act in such case made and provided, I have the honor to submit my annual report as county drain commissioner of the said county of Iosco, covering the period from the 1st day of January, A. D. 1911:

The following named drains were unfinished when I entered upon the duties of my office: Drain known as county line a drain of which there had been a survey made, commencing at a point on the Saginaw bay shore 7.25 chains north of the section line between sections 12 and 13, town 20 north, range 7 east, a north-westerly course to the county line between Arenac and Iosco counties, thence following the county line more or less to within 1.46 chains of East Branch of Auferes River. I have not proceeded to establish the above named drain for the reason that the township boards of the townships of Whitney, Alabaster and Sherman did not meet in joint session to determine the necessity of the above named drain as the law requires, where there is more than one township interested.

The following named drains have been applied for, but not established during the year for the reasons given in each instance, to wit: Grinkle drain in Baldwin township, beginning at the northeast corner of section 6, town 22 north, range 7 east, thence a north-south course along said section line, thence 1/2 mile east. I have not established the above mentioned drain for the reason that in my opinion it would overflow and flood part of the n w 1/4 of sec 8, s e corner of sec 6 and s e corner of sec 5, and in my opinion the proper course and outlet for drain would be commencing at the s e corner of sec 31 of Wilber township, thence running east one mile along town line between Baldwin and Wilber, thence south to Tawas lake.

And I do hereby certify that the above-mentioned drains are full and true reports of all the drains constructed, finished or begun under my supervision, or applied for during the year now ending, and that the financial statement of each drain submitted herewith is true and correct.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Dated this 8th day of Oct. A. D. 1911.

To the Hon. Board of Supervisors of Iosco County: Gentlemen—Your committee on county farm would respectfully submit the following as their report and recommend the adoption of the same.

That on the 7th day of October we visited said county farm and found the following at the house: No improvement done since last report except one room for keeper's family being finished.

We found entire building clean and sanitary; inmates, 2 in number, at comfortable and satisfactory.

We found that walls allow of water to beat in at windows, causing wet spots on wall inside building, probably caused by wooden window sashes becoming old and cracked, and by the heavy rain.

We find the present stock on farm to consist of 2 gray horses, aged 6 years old; one black mare 2 1/2 yrs old; one white mare 1 year old; 11 cows, all young except 1, which are old; young cattle consist of 2 2-yr-old, 1 4-yr-old, 6 yearling calves, also spring calves; also one steer bull which we understand is suited for breeding purposes. We find on farm 3 sows with broods of pigs consisting of 24 in number and about 5 weeks old; also 4 shoats a out 6 months old and one bear about 9 months old. All of this stock is of the common sort, but is in good condition, except the hogs are thin, which are old.

At the barn we found 75 or 80 tons of hay, a quantity of straw, 200 bushels of wheat, 180 bu barley, 80 bu oats, and about 60 bu of corn.

There is one field of corn of about 12 acres which the keeper informed us is a fair crop. Also two acres of rutabagas which rutabagas yield 10 or 12 hundred bushels. We find the entire farm badly infested with quack grass.

We would recommend that better bred stock be worked in as soon as possible.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, Twenty-third Judicial Circuit, in Chancery.

Suit pending in the circuit court for the county of Iosco, at the city of Tawas City, on the 4th day of October, A. D. 1911. Martha Smalley, complainant, vs. Harry Murphy, defendant. In this cause it appearing that the defendant, Harry Murphy, is a resident of this state but his whereabouts is unknown; therefore, on motion of Chas. A. Jahnhaus, solicitor for complainant, it is ordered that said

What The "Settler" Is Doing In Northern Michigan.

The remark is often made by men in Michigan when talking about its north counties is "Oh, yes, I was up there a great deal in the 'palmy days,' when everybody was making money," referring to the time when lumbering was the sole occupation.

On of the peculiar facts is that, during the "palmy days" of the lumberman, when the country was rich and everybody supposed to be making money, there were scarcely any laid out roads; the low places were made passable by means of as cheap a corduroy as possible; streams were crossed by means of pole bridges, continually rotting out and dangerous; school houses were few and built of logs; town halls practically unknown, the voting being done and town board meetings held in the living room of some settler's house, or the office of some lumber camp; rural churches were unknown; everything was built in the most temporary and inexpensive manner possible.

All this in the time when the land was rolling in wealth and this section was furnishing millions for the improvement of the cities lying at the mouths of the streams upon whose bosom the logs were taken to market. When these rich lands that had raised the greatest crop in history, were stripped of their immense treasures, the country was dubbed a worthless barren "plain" and turned over to the few hardy settlers, without roads, bridges, schools, churches, or anything in the shape of permanent improvement. And what has the settler done with this so-called worthless country?

He has opened up hundreds of miles of section line roads, built them according to state specifications, with gravel and stone, and drawn the state's reward of $500 or $1,000 per mile, if you please. He has ditched the low places, with drawing the water, and you cross the streams on cement or iron bridges, at intervals you will come to the district school and, if built of wood, it will be set on a brick, stone or cement foundation, while brick or cement school houses are not uncommon; he has built town halls in similar style, in which to transact public business; quite often a rural church points its spire skyward, a neat, permanent and attractive building; he has cleared his fields along the roads, inclosing them with up-to-date woven wire fencing; he is building substantial farm buildings and thousands of acres of young orchards are spreading themselves upon the hillsides, coming into bearing with fruits of such color, texture and flavor as to command the interest of fruit men all over the country; he has organized his rural telephone companies and built telephone lines until the farthest back settler is put in touch with the outside world; he has increased his mail facilities until the rural carrier or star route delivers it almost daily to his door; he has organized granges and culture clubs and is building commodious quarters for them in almost every young settlement in the district; he has caused this "worthless sand heap" in northern Michigan to bear such yields of cereals, roots and forage crops as to compare favorably with many older sections where land is worth five or six times as much money.

Development on a large scale is going on all over the district a dozen two-hundred acre apple orchards are in process of clearing and setting, while hundreds are in process of clearing and setting while hundreds are being put out, of five to ten acres; trials of alfalfa have passed the experimental stage and its future success is assured; several thousand acres of this important crop will be put in this spring; small fruits are receiving wide attention and already strawberries are being shipped by the carload.

All these changes work for higher and better things and bid fare to place Michigan in the proud position of having no "cheap, worthless land."

Early Christmas Shopping.

It is all very well to talk about early Christmas shopping, but nine out of ten of us have not the early Christmas shopping wherewithal. What with shoes for Johnnie, and a coat for Susan, and gentle reminders from the coalman and other trusting ones, most of us come plump up against the week before Christmas before we can spare a cent for Christmas doings. Then the question is, What? The stores are jammed, there are heaps of foolish notions to catch the belated shopper.

And yet how easy it is to get just the right thing at a modest cost, namely, a year's subscription to The Youth's Companion.

It costs $1.75, and how can you invest $1.75 to better advantage if you wish to make a gift that will benefit as well as gratify the friend or family to whom you send it? And if you can subscribe early, you get just so much more for the money—all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1911 free.

Then, too, your present will be as fresh and pleasing a year from now as on Christmas morning, and of how many presents can that be said?

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free The Companion's Calendar for 1912, lithographed in ten colors and gold, and you, too, as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar.

Only $1.75 now for the 52 weekly issues, but on January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.

ALPACA COAT WORN IN PARIS

Real Summer Weather Works Revolution in Men's Fashions in French Capital—Few of Changes.

St. Louis.—"Whew! It is hot!" One may hear this hundreds of times a day now that Paris has had a taste of real summer weather. I caught a deputy going into the Palais Bourbon with white shoes and looking quite pleased with himself, writes the Paris correspondent of the Globe-Democrat. The golf collar is still to be invented as an adjunct to the French summer costume, but the kummerbund is here, oddly in vogue with wearers' protuberant in those parts. The really classic figure is the Frenchman with a black alpaca coat, white linen trousers, a Panama hat with a rakish twist behind, an immense blue tie with white spots, a handkerchief of brilliant hue and design half way out of his pocket, the whole surmounted by a gray cotton umbrella. This venerable type still exists, but is becoming rarer.

The modern Frenchman has taken an inventive turn with his clothes. I am leaving aside the man who has become Anglicized by reason of much reading of tailors' circulars from Bond street, and who take naturally to his flannel suit in summer—he is the exception, the large exception. The ordinary Parisian, if you produce a hot sun, becomes playful, sartorially, and disports himself in the strangest garb. Sitting opposite to me in my club is a representative specimen, who looks uncommonly like a diver on a bean feast, if you can imagine a diver regaling himself on anything but oysters or sponges. He has certainly a deep-sea appearance; a curious khaki cloth, very light and very shiny. He looks more than ever like Father Neptune in an off moment as he pulls at his long briarwood pipe.

RUNAWAY BOYS FIND ERROR

Two Pittsburg Lads Get Stranded in Cincinnati and Writes Injunction to All Youths.

Cincinnati.—Frank Helber and Joseph Lechner of Pittsburg, both aged fifteen, who started out to see the world a few days ago, were found early the next morning sleeping under the Cincinnati & Ohio bridge in Cincinnati. They told the officers that they had come to Cincinnati in a parlor car, and thought they were going to see the entire world. However, their money soon gave out and they were forced to sleep anywhere they could find a place to lie down.

Helber said his father died last March, and that his mother is very sick. He doesn't know why he left her. The officials will send them both home. Helber has written the following injunction to all youths: "Boys—Never leave home." It is the best place on earth. "If you ever feel the hankering to see the world, ask your home folks what is the best thing to do. "I started out feeling like a millionaire. I had $12. I thought that was plenty. They found me sleeping under a railroad bridge. "That old song, 'There's No Place Like Home,' is the truest song ever written."

AMERICANS IN PARIS

$100,000,000 Spent by Yankees in Europe This Year.

French Capital Getting Its Share of Cash, Declare Trademen—Begin to Understand Ways of Shopping.

Paris.—According to recent statistics something over $80,000,000 per annum has been spent in Europe by American tourists during the last few years. This year the figure will be well over $100,000,000, a good share of which goes to Paris, where the American invasion since May has beaten all records.

Although the hotel men are satisfied with the unusual number of American visitors, only too willing to pay good prices for good accommodations, it would appear from an investigation that the money spent in hotels this year will represent only a comparatively small fraction of the total.

"We have done more business with American customers this season," said a high official of one of the largest dry goods stores in Paris, "than with all the rest of our foreign customers put together."

"It seems, in fact, that Americans are beginning to understand that shopping in Paris is not confined to the Place Vendome and Rue de la Paix, where prices are so high that only a few can meet them. Although this is supposed to be the middle of the dead season, our staff is as numerous and as busy now as it was at the end of June. At present we are working almost exclusively for Americans."

"I believe we have taken big business from our competitors in America, and, judging from the quantity of clothes, and so forth, sold in Paris to Americans, the custom house receipts should be something like a record."

Jewelry and antique dealers and others are unanimous in declaring that, while of late years, American visitors came to Europe merely as tourists, they have now discovered that things in Europe can be had at much better prices than in their own country, and have begun to come here to buy. These statements of Paris business men are further confirmed by the aspect of the city itself. Now that the usual Parisian crowd has left for the summer holidays, the boulevards would be empty and desolate were it not for American tourists, who, undaunted by the scorching sun and melting asphalt, can be seen all day and every day going in and out of shops, giving the central district the appearance of an American city to such an extent that nothing has looked more like the busy section of lower Broadway than the Boulevard Haussmann during the last few days. Of course, temperatures at between 95 and 100 do not encourage entertainments, but the gardens and roof gardens of the chief hotels are as gay now as they were some weeks ago. Hundreds of fresh arrivals are every day filling up immediately the void left by those who, having concluded their European holiday, are returning to America.

HUMAN SKIN SOLD BY INCHES

New Jersey Boy Gets Rid of Big Piece at Very Good Price—Two More Transfers to Be Made.

Newark, N. J.—Approximately seventy-five square inches of skin were sold by Alden Arms, an Orange youth, to the Orange Memorial hospital, at the rate of 20 cents a square inch. Immediately after the deal was consummated the skin was taken from Arms' thigh and transferred to the back of Andrew Visconti, fifteen years old, who has been an inmate of the hospital since early in July, a victim of a serious burning accident.

Sufficient time will be allowed to elapse to determine whether the transfer has been successful, and if successful two more similar transfers of cuticle will be made, to the end that Visconti will be able to go out of the hospital a perfectly well boy. Without the aid of such volunteers as Arms, Visconti would have to remain in the hospital indefinitely, unable to get well. The area of his back which was seared by the accident of nearly a month ago is so great that nature unaided could not supply the skin to cover it. It comprises, the doctors at the hospital say, approximately one and one-half square feet.

The experience of surgeons has shown that one healthy, full grown man can spare one-third of the area which Visconti stands in need of without undergoing serious detriment. For that reason it will be necessary for two others to surrender skin, as Arms has done. At the present time the hospital authorities have no one in view from whom to purchase the requisite skin, but the chances are much in favor, they say, of having on hand when needed more volunteers than are required. Each man who undergoes the voluntary operation will have to remain a patient at the hospital himself long enough to repair the damage, but the physicians say there is absolutely no danger in it.

Cheaper Drugs for Russians.

St. Petersburg.—A bill providing for the nationalizing of all drug stores in Russia will go before the Duma in October. It is contended the poor will thus be able to get better and cheaper drugs.

MODOC JACK.

Today Modoc Jack is half forgotten. A generation ago his adventures were everywhere told. Race horses were named for him. Small boys secretly longed to go west and capture him. He was held up as an example of the true desperado. Yet, as a matter of fact, he was more of a man and less of a scoundrel than he has been painted.

The Modocs were an offshoot of the Klamath nation in California. They lived on a 65-mile strip of volcanic land known as "the lava beds." This ground was honeycombed with caves and tunnels, affording fine hiding places in case of pursuit. The word "Modoc" in the Klamath dialect means "enemy." And the Modocs lived up to their name. They fought their relatives, the Klamaths, for years; then turned their attention in 1850 to making life a peril for California's white settlers. Ben Wright, a frontiersman, hit on a plan to crush them. Pretending to make peace, he invited 46 of the foremost Modocs to a great feast in 1852.

Ben Wright's Massacre.

As the Indian guests lay asleep after the banquet Wright and his comrades fell upon them with rifle and knife, slaughtering all but five of the 46. This cold-blooded massacre owed the rest of the tribe for the moment, but it ended forever all hope of friendship between the Modocs and the white men. The relatives of the butchered Indians vowed vengeance and bided their time. A swarthy giant known to the settlers as Modoc Jack, or Captain Jack, gathered about him a band of 400 Modocs. His lieutenant was a youth named Schonchin, one of the five survivors of the Ben Wright massacre. Schonchin was forever trying to stir up strife against the white men. But Jack sternly forbade any outbreak. He believed in peace and refused to put on the war bonnet. Yet he always went heavily armed. For, though he desired peace with the settlers, he trusted them no more than did the other Modocs. Between the task of ruling his people and difficulty of curbing Schonchin's plots for warfare Jack had a hard time in keeping to the peaceful course he had chosen.

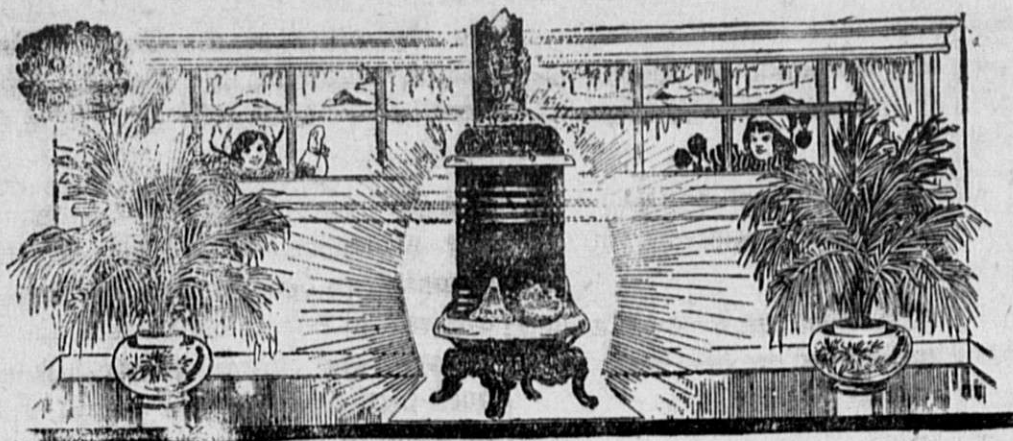

All the local tribes were summoned by Indian Commissioner Meacham in 1866 to Fort Klamath for a conference. At this meeting the Modocs agreed to leave their lava beds and settle on the Klamath reservation. Jack and Schonchin were not at the conference and they refused to be bound by the promise. They stayed on, with their own followers, at the lava beds. But when the government threatened to use force to remove them Jack said "Obedience is better than war," and made his tribe—300 men, women and children in all—go with him to the reservation. There new trouble set in. The Klamath and other Indians that were already on the reservation at once made life miserable for the newcomers. To avoid war and to stop the persecution of his tribe-folk Jack gathered his people together, fled by night from the reservation and went back to the lava beds. But they found their old lands had been given to white men. The Modocs were homeless, friendless and beset by enemies.

A company of soldiers was sent to evict Jack and his followers from the lava beds. While the leaders were conferring a fight broke out between a few of the soldiers and the Indians. The conflict became general. Five were killed on each side and many were wounded. The Modocs fled southward, destroying every white settlement in their path. But though white men and boys were everywhere slain Jack would allow no white woman or child to be harmed. At last, with 70 braves and many squaws and papposes, he sought refuge in the lava caves of Lost river. Colonel Wheaton, with 600 United States troops, came out to dislodge him. Jack and his braves sent the soldiers scurrying back in hasty retreat, killing 35 of them.

A Blow for Vengeance.

Then an army under General Canby was brought up and besieged the caves, hoping to starve out the handful of plucky defenders. Jack even yet hoped to make peace. All along he had hated the idea of war, but hostilities had always been forced upon him. So he agreed to a conference with Canby, Meacham, Dr. Thomas and other white leaders. It was arranged that five Indians and five white men should meet, unarmed, on April 11, 1873, at a neutral spot between the lines. Whether Jack suspected treachery or whether he merely wished to avenge the Ben Wright massacre cannot be known. At any rate, he and four of his men went to the conference armed. They fired on the white men, killing Canby and Thomas and wounding Meacham. Then they got back in safety to their caves. As the soldiers pressed in on him Jack led his people through a tunnel under the enemy's very feet, out of the trap and to a place of safety.

But the new hiding place was quickly discovered. The Modocs were again surrounded and were at last forced by hunger and thirst to surrender. Jack was betrayed by his own braves and was the last man captured. He and three of his lieutenants were hanged at Fort Klamath October murder.
