CURRENT COMMENTS

A Seattle man married a lady barber after a ten minutes' scraped acquaintance.

Mrs. Kellogg is wondering just how much her anti-fat doctor husband is going to anti.

You can leave it to the women to put a different complexion on the political game—in California, for instance.

If the tobacco trust would only put some of their common stock certificates in their packages of tobacco about Christmas time.

The way those women voters cleaned up things in Los Angeles, those Chinese women electors must have voted a laundry ticket.

So many presidential bees are buzzing around Washington that the school children are liable to have an epidemic of the hives.

Those three London suffragettes, who threw stones through the dining room window of a hotel certainly hungered after notoriety.

The great Durbar will be pulled off in Chicago if the g. o. p. elephant stamperes the republican convention for the Sage of Oyster Bay.

The McNamara brothers are sewing jute sacks at Sar. Quinten. Darrow was onto the fact that Burns had 'em sewed up in a sack some while ago.

An Ohio man hanged himself with a hotel roller towel. Why didn't he step into the local newspaper office, and stab himself with the printer's towel.

An Indiana woman wants a divorce because her husband is continually blowing her up for attending bridge whist parties. Perhaps those bridge whisters are not unionized.

Vice-President Sherman is tired of public life. It is generally supposed that the office of vice-president was created solely for the purpose of plunging a man into oblivion.

The chaplain of the House of Representatives is giving the congressmen some good old-fashioned doctrine. In the revising of his prayers downward, it ought to suit Champ Clark.

A Three Rivers man attempted suicide because his wife insisted on wearing half mourning for a departed relative. Prompt medical assistance saved the woman the expense of purchasing the other half.

They are turning the Kellogg divorce case into a sort of matrimonial garage. Not satisfied with putting a half a dozen chauffeurs on the stand, they are trying to make out that Kellogg was a regular old sparking plug himself.

President Taft caught one of the hardest colds he has had since he has been in office when he visited the tomb of Francis Scott Key. By the way, Bill, that good old air, the Star Sprangled Banner, isn't to be sneezed at.

A learned, long-haired musical critic says that it's the vocal chords and not the mind that memorizes those delightful nonsensical rhapsodies. Those popular song writers' vocal chords are certainly getting worn to a frazzle.

Edison announces that he is going to have concrete furniture on the market in the near future. How nice, for when a man comes home in the early hours of the morning, and finds himself locked out, why, he can simply flop on the cement walk and feel right at home.

The government printing office has opened its correspondence school of practical politics. The mails are bulged with campaign propaganda for the would-be re-elected politician. The bulk of out-going Washington mail might be termed frank-incense burning up money on the altar of self-sacrificing statesmen (?).

Steel king Corey's actress wife has come out with a big slam on American womanhood. She actually says that some of them are cats. This is true, Mabel, only phonetically; in the list recently published of the twenty most famous women, Carrie Chapman Catt comes first. The trouble with Mrs. C. is, that ever since she displaced wife No. 1, society has been rubbing the fur on her the wrong way.

Pauline Wayne, the White House cow, is mourning the loss of her second child. His calfship was discovered dead the next morning after the famous 250-voice choir from the Mormon Tabernacle of Salt Lake City gave a concert in the executive mansion. Music may have charms to soothe the savage beast, but an innocent gentile calflet gambolling on the white house green was sung to sleep, never more to awaken and fall into the hands of the "cool" beef trust.

Science discovered some years ago that the grave was unsanitary, so instituted the crematory. Now here comes Science again and smashes the choicest emblems in poetry and in the social history of civilized nations—the cradle. Baby can't have a cradle any more. The cradle is unhygienic, unsanitary, and therefore unscientific. Verily, the path between the cradle and the grave is strewn with microbes; but we are consoled in the fact, that were every microbe a rose, life's pathway would be just as thorny.

Growing Flax in Michigan.

It may not be generally known that Michigan is fast becoming a flax-growing state and that it has the only factory in the world that makes rugs from pure flax fiber. "Michigan woman will soon be leading in the introduction of linen rugs made in Michigan from flax grown in Michigan," says B. S. Summers, vice-president of the Summers Fiber company, Port Huron. All the flax fiber used in this factory is grown in Michigan, in the "Thumb."

The seed is imported from Ireland, Holland and Belgium. So far the best crop harvested in a single year, has been 8,000 acres. The farmers make a gross profit of $25 to $35 an acre and on some years $50. The cost of production is from $5 to $7 per acre. The fiber is prepared by a company at Yale, in speaking of the industry Mr. Summers:

"There have been grown in United States as high as 32,000,000 bushels of flax seed a year, worth $80,000,000, yet the total annual crop of flax used for linen in America would not exceed $25,000 worth. What we seek is to devise American methods of working up flax for linen so that America can successfully compete with the old country. "The finest flax is grown on the River Lys in Belgium, near the city of Courtras. That is the only place in the world that produces this quality of flax. Its fineness is the result of natural conditions there, which help in its preparation. It is steeped twice in the river or soaked in crates. In this sluggish stream the flax stays three or four weeks. After the first treatment it is taken out, piled in shocks and dried in the sun. Then the soaking is repeated till the raw material is worth 40 to 50 cents a pound.

"In Michigan we use an artificial method for steeping or "retting" flax with imported chemicals. We can spin our flax down to such fineness that it runs 9,000 feet to the pound. The only difference between foreign and American flax is the fineness to which the two kinds can be spun. Minnesota leads in the production of flax, but Michigan is the only state, in fact, in the world, where the fiber is made into rugs. Incidentally it may be stated the demand is so great that the company has not caught up with its orders from one big Chicago firm for over a year.

A Terrible Blunder
to neglect liver trouble. Never do it. Take Dr. King's New Life Pills on the first sign of constipation, biliousness or inactive bowels and prevent virulent indigestion, jaundice or gall stones. They regulate liver, stomach and bowels and build up your health. Only 25c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s and Jas. E. Dillon's.

Lightning Kills Few.
In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chances of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four Doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They are the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s and Jas. E. Dillon's.

Teachers' Attention!
The eight grade examination in reading for May, 1912, will be based on Longfellow's "The Courtship of Miles Standish." Reading for teachers' examination in April will be based on "Hudson's Introduction to the Study of Literature." This is an especially strong book. It is very comprehensive and of especial interest and value to all teachers. One half of the second grade examination in botany will be based on Warren's "Elements of Agriculture." The third book of the Reading Circle Course is "The Personal Equation," by Lawrence McTurman. This book will inspire for better work; not only teachers, but all who read the book. In addition to credits given above, 100 per cent will be allowed in Theory and Art those taking this course. Respectfully,
J. A. CAMPBELL,
Commissioner.

Do the city papers say anything in regard to your locality? asks an exchange. Do they contain notices of the schools, lodges, and hundreds of matters of local interest which your home paper publishes? Not an item. Do they publish a work calculated to draw trade to your town and your enterprise? And yet there are men who take contracted views in this matter, who think if they don't get as many square inches of reading matter in their home paper, are not getting the worth of their money. It reminds us of the man who took the largest pair of boots in the box because the price was the same as the pair that fitted him.

The oldest piece of railroad in the United States west of Schenectady, N.

Y., was incorporated 78 years ago. It is the 29 miles of the Lake Shore system between Lenawee Junction and Toledo and it is the only part of the Lake Shore's main line that the company doesn't own and has not been able to buy. The company holds it under perpetual lease, which it would very much like to terminate, but has not been able to do so. The little corporation is the Erie & Kalamazoo company. It is a Michigan corporation, probably not one person in ten thousand now living ever heard of it. It is on the tax rolls because it is taxed as an asset of the Lake Shore. Its stockholders draw annually a nice revenue.

The holiday fire bulletin, issued by the insurance department in the office of the state fire marshal, contains, among other notices the following: "The use of tissue paper, excelsior, straw, cotton and all other light and especially inflammable materials in the decoration of store windows where there is an open gas jet, and the wrapping of electric light bulbs is strictly prohibited, and you are requested to particularly enforce this provision. The decoration of Christmas trees in public places with any of the above materials, is considered a crime by this department, and you are requested to urge the people of your locality to refrain from its use in that way."

BOBOS SOW ACORNS

Charles Hurst's Scheme to Scatter English Oaks.

Wayside Beggars by the Promise of Pennies Enlisted in His Plan For Propagating the Trees in County of Lancashire.

Animated by love for the beautiful oaks of England, Mr. Charles Hurst started from Manchester on a famous planting walk which he has commemorated most charmingly in his recent volume, entitled "The Book of the English Oak." Not content with planning to leave a track in the form of a noble line of oaks of his own planting scattered along a portion of his path through Lancashire, Mr. Hurst, with considerable cunning, enlisted four tramps in the cause, with such success that the lazy fellows planted fifty acorns in an hour.

The miracle began with the request for a penny by a beggar who admitted that he was a snow shoveler in summer and a haymaker in winter, and that his three friends were in the same occupations.

"Now look here," said Mr. Hurst, "I can find you all a grand job with better pay than you ever got before, unless you have been cabinet ministers, bishops or managing directors. Ask them to come here."

"My Christian friends," he went on, as they stood round, "you see those seeds? If you will plant them as I direct, I will give you twopenny apiece for each one you set. Who says will- ing?"

Mr. Hurst spread about fifty acorns, brought from home, on his handkerchief. He gave each man an acorn that, at a given signal, he must plant at one of the marked places, and then return for another. He pointed out that under this arrangement the amount of their earnings depended on the vigor of their exertions, for the more energetic the man the greater his proportion of the whole sum set aside for oak culture.

"Shades of Sherwood!" to continue in Mr. Hurst's own words. "What a sight it was to see those curious creatures displaying frantic energy beneath the blazing sky! As each man rushed toward me I held out an acorn and uttered words of encouragement, warning or banter, as the case required."

"For nearly an hour did the tremendous activity continue, until not an acorn remained on the handkerchief. "I then cast up the account in my notebook, which showed the following score: Red Man, twelve; Melancholy Man, sixteen; Fat Man, eleven; Blue-faced Man, thirteen."—Youth's Companion.

For Better Spelling.

Mothers are blamed because children of today are not as good spellers as were the children of former generations. W. F. Gurdy, superintendent of the public schools of Springfield, Mass., says devoted mothers are too eager to have their children excel in special lines and are overlooking the necessary rudimentary training that means so much for the all round development of boys and girls. He thinks less time should be given to teaching music, the arts, manual training and other things that really are specialization. He wants the children to be taught the words they use in daily life and he wants the mothers to insist that their children go to the dictionary daily for the new words that appear. He says he has learned by observation that too much time is being given to specialization. He explains it tends to narrow the child's life rather than to broaden it. He argues for breadth rather than narrowness and expertness in a single subject.

Dr. Nathaniel Butler Tells Story.

In his talk to the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs at Green Bay, Dr. Nathaniel Butler of the University of Chicago, told a story of a country school teacher who had some trouble teaching her pupils the difference between the transitive verb, "lay," and the intransitive verb, "lie." After time spent in explanations, the teacher asked one of the boys to give an illustration of the different uses of the words.

"Well," said the most freckled and most energetic student of the class, "if I hear a hen cackling in our barn and go out there and find an egg, the hen has laid. If I don't find an egg she has lied."

What Children Say.

A little girl of three and one-half years defined a wedding as "It's when a lady goes into the church with a curtain on her head and comes out with a man."

Another little girl remarked to her grandpa that her doll was stuffed with sawdust. Grandpa asked: "And what are you stuffed with, Dorothy?" Whereupon this sage of three replied: "I don't know. God stuffed me."

Another little girl was talking about her Sunday school lesson and of the two Johns of whom her teacher had told her. "There was John the Baptist," she repeated, "and John the beloved disciple." "There were three," her younger sister gravely corrected. "You didn't name John Bull."

Only a Short Time. "What's the reason Grisby doesn't apply for divorce?" "Why, his wife has taken to mono- glossing, and he thinks he might as well wait."

DRESS FOR OUTDOOR WEAR

Attractive Costume Made Up in Tweed Is Practical in Style and Very Serviceable.

Tweed has been chosen for this costume, which is practical in style. It has the skirt made with a panel back and front laid on in wide wrapped seams.

tons; velvet is used for facing collar and pocket flaps.

Sailor hat of black straw, trimmed with a satin ribbon and a buckle.

Materials required: Four and one-half yards tweed 48 inches wide, one-fourth yard velvet, two buttons, 4 1/2 yards silk or satin for lining coat.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Tulle over satin is much in evidence for evening costumes.

Pale gold laces are much in evidence on both afternoon and evening gowns. An almost normal waistline is one of the features of the newly imported dresses.

A new idea in habits is a foundation of astrakhan cloth with thick and silky curls.

Fur is to be prominent in the winter millinery and mole and seal will lead in popularity.

Worsted embroideries done in bright colored crewels are used as enlivening touches on costumes, suits and wraps.

Wool embroidery on the separate blouse is the latest thing and will doubtless supersede the beading of the year.

Lace and chiffon frills at the bottom of long sleeves and finishing of the elbow variety are to be much in vogue for all sorts of dresses.

Lace as a trimming is to be extensively used for blouse and skirt, appearing in odd places, and often the lace itself will be richly ornamented with beads and embroidery.

A new evening sleeve is a tiny wired hoop of some soft shirred fabric, usually chiffon. This is arranged to stand out from the shoulder, the material being shirred over the wire.

The gown of laces is to be popular this winter and this will rejoice many, for while a whole lace gown can be the most ruinously expensive costume it can also be created on cheaper lines with equal effectiveness. Lace gowns are almost invariably becoming.

About Broadcloths. Though fashions may come and go, though weaves vary and dress goods of many and various kinds be adopted by that whimsical personage, Dame Fashion, broadcloth is always in favor. It is one of the aristocrats of the dress goods realm and its place is always assured.

This year the tendency in broadcloths is toward those with a very high luster—the more brilliant and satiny the sheen, the better madame will like her cloth.

Smart autumn suits are of broadcloth, elaborately trimmed—frequently with handsome silk braids, often with rich and deep-toned velvets.

But not alone for suits and tailored costumes is broadcloth in demand. For handsome wraps, street coats, evening garments and afternoon toilettes broadcloths will be fashionable.

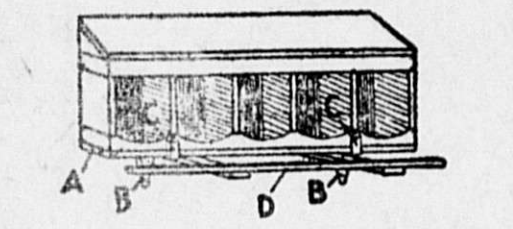

Gives Note of Color. All embroidered linen and mouseline dresses show the band of velvet, satin and mouseline. The note of color seen at the hem is frequently repeated at the waist or about the corsage.

NESTS CAN BE KEPT CLEAN

Detailed Instructions With Illustration Showing How Hens are Made More Comfortable.

In order to make "easy to clean" nests, first take a sixteen-inch board (A), one inch thick and whatever length you desire to make your nests. Then fasten hinges (B) on bottom side and fasten bottom to wall with hinges. Then make your partitions twenty by sixteen inches by twelve inches deep. Put a four-inch board in front of nest, carved out slightly as in illustration. The partitions, top and bottom (A), are fastened to nests with leather straps (C) hooked on nails. Another four-inch board (D), which is fastened to partitions, is placed in front of nests for the hens to fly up on before entering the nests. When you want to clean nests, unhook straps (C) and let bottom fall down. I find this an easy way to keep nests clean, writes E. H. Schulte in the Farm and Fireside.

LUNCH COUNTER FOR CHICKS

Poultry Raiser of Many Years' Experience Describes Hopper He Finds to Be Satisfactory.

The builder of this self-regulating hopper for feeding poultry has found by many years' experience that it pays to let chickens have a constant supply of wheat and other grain, and he claims that it is economy in the long run to use a hopper that supplies feed at all times but prevents waste. The old-fashioned method of throwing out grain for the chickens to scramble for results in the overfeeding of the strong and greedy fowls, and the consequent waste of feed, while on the other hand the weaker and less aggressive of the flock do not get their share.

This home-made device is designed to solve the problem, and the hopper is so arranged that the chickens can eat at any time of the wheat, cracked corn, kafir or Egyptian corn, and a dry mash composed of one part corn meal and two parts light bran, well mixed. Each bin has a small hole at the bottom, covered with a slide into the trough to regulate the flow of grain as it is eaten, so none is lost. It contains enough to feed two or three dozen fowls for about a month, and can be cheaply constructed out of packing cases, with a roof of tarred paper. It should be set in the yard on two-by-four boards to prevent moisture from the ground molding the feed.

The designer of this hopper has used it for several years and states that it saves one-third of the amount of feed formerly used and increases the egg production very greatly.

Attractive to Buyer.

A neat and attractive package always is at a premium. Remember this when dressing and shipping poultry to market this fall. If there is any chance for an increased price the dealer is going to give it to his customers that send in the neat boxes. And it also pays well to sell nothing but fat birds. A few poor and scrawny ones mixed in with a box of good ones will cut down the whole price. Feed the poor birds up before selling them.

Treatment for Lice.

A time-honored and effective treatment for lice, especially for young chicks, is greasing the head and neck of the chicken with lard or sometimes with lard and sulphur. The latter, however, should never be used on very young chicks.

Laying Hens.

To make them lay, keep them comfortable and busy, but don't overfeed. More pullets refuse to lay from being overfed than underfed. Our pullets get two regular feeds a day, hot mash in the morning, grain for supper, with a scratch at noon.

Storing Cabbages.

Many farmers are under the impression that cabbages will keep better if stored with the root attached. F. H. Gibbs, the market-gardening expert, in a talk at the Minnesota state fair, declared this to be a mistake; the roots simply make additional weight to handle, and taking up a great deal of room unnecessarily. The proper method when storing is to cut off the roots smoothly, as when preparing the cabbage for the table, and pack in regular cabbage crates or lay on shelves, not more than two heads deep.

Attention to Colt's Feet.

A horse with four absolutely sound legs is worth in the market almost whatever the owner chooses to ask for him. This being the case, attention to the colt's feet and to the shoeing later is well worth while.

To Secure Good Results.

Unless you are willing to give time and attention to valuable stock, don't be too anxious to acquire such. Remember, however, that any animal must have rational treatment to give good results.

Feeding Too Much Corn.

Hogs will make from 10 to 12 pounds of meat live weight for each bushel of corn eaten, but because of this too many farmers feed too much corn.

In the Laundry.

To make soft collars, shirt bands, etc., wear as long as the garment to which they are attached, soap the soiled side, then turn the piece and rub the opposite side on the board or in the hands.

Frying Eggs.

If a few drops of water are added to the fat and the frying pan covered eggs will not become tough.
