He reports the weather as cold there as here, the mercury registering 25 below last Friday morning. He also has our thanks for a copy of the Chatham Daily News. In sending a renewal of his subscription to the Herald, Clifford Hayes, formerly of Grant township, now located at Everett, Wash., writes: "All the Michigan people here are getting along fine. We hear you are having very cold weather. We feel for you. The weather is fine here, spring being with us." To prove his assertion Mr. Hayes encloses a well developed pussy willow.

A dispatch to the Bay City Tribune from Vassar, says: "Prof. J. K. Osgerby, for three years superintendent of the schools here, has requested that he be released from his contract April 1, in order that he may accept the state agency of Nebraska for the Waterman-Waterbury Furnace Co., of Minneapolis." Mr. Osgerby was for a number of years superintendent of the East Tawas schools.

The firm of Woizeschke & Musolf, who purchased the grocery business of C. H. Prescott & Sons about two years ago, has been dissolved, Mr. Musolf retiring. The business will be continued by Edward Woizeschke, who has been connected with the store for the past 14 years and needs no introduction to the people of this vicinity. That the same careful attention will be given to the demands of the patrons of this popular store in the future that has in past is assured.

E. Parsons, of Cleveland, representing the interests of the Western Union, L. J. Noble, of Jackson, representing the Eastern Michigan Power Co., and D. E. Keyes, of Chicago, representing the Telephone Co., with several assistants, have been in this vicinity this week, endeavoring to discover some way of overcoming the trouble caused by the Power Co's line putting the telegraph and telephone service out of commission. Thus far they have been unsuccessful in their efforts.

Otto Corack, sr., of Tawas township, suffered an attack of paralysis of the bowels last week, brought on by a heavy lift. He was taken to the Bay City hospital Saturday evening, where he was operated on and it was found necessary to remove about three feet of the intestines. Hopes were entertained of his recovery. However his condition was so serious that death occurred at 4 o'clock Thursday morning. The remains were brought to this city yesterday afternoon and the funeral will be held at the Zion Lutheran church next Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

A Lulu of a Time.

Three of the popular lady teachers of our city schools celebrated the anniversary of their birth in the month of February, and for this reason concluded that the proper time for a joint celebration was Monday evening, February 12, the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. These February girls are Miss Lou Louch, Miss Lulu Nye and Miss Lulu Murphy, and they had as their guests on the occasion Misses McNair, Wagener, Davidson, Bradley, Graham and Redhead. The affair was held at the Hotel Losco and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Their First Game.

The recently organized basket ball teams of this city have been busy practicing and mastering the finer points of the game until they now feel that they can give some of the neighboring teams an argument. They will play their first game at East Tawas next Tuesday evening, February 20. The first game will be between the Tawas City and East Tawas high school teams. The city team will then try conclusions with the East Tawas Ojibways. While this will be the first game played by either of the teams from this city they have been carefully coached by Supt. Ford Bradish and feel that they will be able to give their opponents a hard run for first money. An admission fee of 25 and 15 cents will be charged.

A Happy Time.

On Thursday evening of last week a sleigh load of Laidlawville people drove to the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Force, on the Hemlock road, and gave them a surprise. The event was in commemoration of the birth of Mrs. Force and George Culham, sr., whose birthdays both occur on Febr'y 11. A happy evening was spent with songs, recitations and visiting, after which a luncheon was served in the good old fashioned way. It made the hearts of those present glad to see the way that a seventy-year-old gentleman from the land of blizzards could get away with the good things that the young ladies helped him to. Everyone declared it a good time and unite in wishing the two friends many more happy birthdays.

A Stag Party.

Last Sunday evening the Bachelors Club, with Albert Wanderssee as chaperon, held a very enjoyable session. Besides the chaperon those present were W. S. Evans, Martin Greber, Ernest Burtzloff, Ernest Maller and E. J. Lemerier. Music was furnished by the "German Band", which rendered such popular selections as "Fans", "The Mocking Bird" and "Moonlight on the Hudson" in the most graceful manner. Tales of the wild and stormy sea and strange countries were told in the most fascinating manner by W. S. Evans, who sailed "around the Horn" with Admiral Bob Evans. Ed Lemerier, as chef, served the boys with a French supper that was pronounced fine by all. The menu contained olives; soup, Poisson a la mode; lettuce, mayonnaise dressing; gibblots on toast; tomatoes on toast; strawberries; and creme a la glase. The boys say that Ed's bachelor days would be short if the girls could have got a taste of this spread. After a very pleasant evening the guests marched home to the tone of a bonbarbre played by Ernie Burtzloff.

Disolution of Co-Partnership.

Notice is hereby given that the co-partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned under the firm name of Woizeschke & Musolf, has been dissolved by mutual consent. The business will be continued by Ed. J. Woizeschke, by whom all debts of said firm are hereby assumed, and to whom all accounts due said firm are payable.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Feb'y 16, 1912

Arizona assumed the dignity of full statehood Wednesday, at which time the officers elect were fully inaugurated.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, has been busy this week pushing his candidacy for the democratic nomination for the presidency in Illinois.

Gov. Folk of Missouri, has withdrawn from the contest for the democratic nomination for the presidency, and assures the united support of that state to Speaker Champ Clark.

It is announced that Amos Musselman, of Grand Rapids, will be a candidate for the republican nomination of governor again next fall. He ran a good second to Osborn two years ago.

Governor Osborn has issued a call for a special session of the legislature to convene on Monday, the 26th inst., for the purpose of passing presidential preference primary law. Other matters will also be considered.

The much advertised meeting of twenty-three governors to be held at Chicago last week to unite in a demand on Teddy to stand as a candidate for the republican nomination, failed to materialize, sixteen of the number having "skidded."

After three centuries of absolute rule the Manchu dynasty, at noon Monday, February 12, yielded up its power and adicted the throne of China in favor of a republican form of government. According to the proclamation the surrender is unconditional.

A Politicians' Panic.

The whole Roosevelt movement is an obvious attempt to use the personal popularity of one man to save the republican party from the sins committed by its own representatives in congress—sins committed in spite of the plain wording of the republican platform of 1908 and in spite of protests and urgent recommendations from the republican president elected on that platform. It was the action of the republican representatives in the tariff session of 1909 that made possible the defeat of 1910, and made possible this political panic among the republicans in 1912. Where now stand the republican senators and congressmen of Michigan who helped to put their party and their president in this hole? Townsend for Taft. Fordney for Taft. Loud for Taft. Young for Taft. Where are the rest?

Si quaeris peninsulam frigidam, circumspice.—Detroit Saturday Night.

Notes From The Capital.

[By CANFIELD]

WASHINGTON, February, 12, 1912

The important events of special interest to the democratic party and to the country in general, transpiring here last week was the democratic caucus on Wednesday evening, called for the purpose of determining whether the investigation of the so-called money trust, named in the Henry resolution, should be assigned to the standing committees of the house or whether the work should be performed by special committee, elected for that purpose. The second incident of importance was the reply made on the floor of the house at the opening of the session on Saturday by Representative Dies, of the 2nd district of Texas, to the allegations of Mr. Bryan in the current issue of the Commoner, and wherein the editor alleged that the thirteen democrats who voted against the Cullop amendment compelling the President to reveal the names of those endorsing candidates named for places on the federal bench, were unworthy the name democrat, and were representative of special interests, and who would control such courts.

Because both these incidents were occasioned by the insistence of Mr. Bryan and the unsuccessful positions assumed by the endorsers of the same were clearly in accord with the declarations of the distinguished Nebraskan, it is but fair that the reader have what I shall endeavor to make, a fair and unbiased explanation of the position of a majority of the democratic members of the house, and, wherein in both instances the views of Mr. Bryan did not prove to be those of a majority of the democratic representatives. I am sure that no Michigan democrat will accuse me of ever having given Mr. Bryan other than the most loyal support, and no citizen of my state has greater admiration for his ability and loyalty of purpose than I, yet having something of a personal knowledge of the qualities represented by a vast majority of the democrats in Congress, and being a daily witness to their loyalty to party and to the accomplishment of the reforms for which the party has so steadfastly stood, I cannot agree that Mr. Bryan is justified in his intimations of dishonesty, as he attaches the same to very many of such members.

In the first instance the Henry resolution provided for an investigation of what is termed a money trust. It is generally admitted that there exists an influence somewhere, and which has in its power a most noticeable control of the ready funds supposed to be in circulation, yet the proofs of the existence of such a trust, so-called, are intangible, and susceptible to discovery only after investigations of the most exhaustive character, and involving a searching inquiry into the methods of banks, railroads, stock exchanges, corporations, common carriers and whatnot. That such investigation should be made by the regular committees of the House was the contention of a majority of the members. These committees were elected by the House, and to decline to permit them to proceed with such work would in effect be an expression of a lack of confidence in their integrity and their ability. If it is the view of the House that such investigations are imperative to the well being and good order of the country, and these committees fail or decline to proceed, then it will be time to declare for the selection of a new committee for the purpose, but no such declaration has appeared. When democrats of the character and standing of Speaker Clark and Leader Underwood do not hesitate to express confidence in the integrity of the standing committees of the House, it is the disposition of the majority of the democratic members to leave these matters with the authority in which is vested the right to prepare and report remedial legislation. No special committee can report legislation of any character, hence the whole matter would come back to the standing committees before congress could take official notice of any investigation of the money trust or any influence that might be shown to be in control of the money of the country.

The second incident of special import and which created much comment was the reply made by Mr. Dies to the declaration of Mr. Bryan, that those members who refused to support the Cullop proposition were unworthy to represent a democratic constituency. This question involves one of construction of the constitution, and wherein it is very probable that honest men might disagree. In a defense of his position Mr. Dies quoted numerous eminent authorities in point, among whom were former Presidents Washington, Tyler, Jackson and Buchanan, and wherein the declaration was made clear that the presidency being a separate and distinct branch of the government it was not subject to rule or direction by any other branch, and even if it were, to compel the revelation of the names of all persons endorsing candidates would have the opposite effect to discontinue the reception of evidence now daily given to the chief executive as to the undesirability of candidates for such positions. In other words there would be no opportunity left whereby the president, through a guarantee of secrecy to informants, could protect the government from the induction into these highly important places, of men wholly unfit for and unworthy of the honor.

I have stated that this question involves the question of what is the proper construction of the constitution. Mr. Bryan may be right, but solely upon the ground that Mr. Dies disagrees can hardly be found sufficient justification for the declaration of the Nebraskan that the Texas representative is dishonest and unworthy of representing his district in congress. It is elementary in democratic teachings that public officials shall at all times be subject to and deserving of criticism if their acts appear to justify such an attitude, but it can hardly be declared a cardinal right of a democrat to call every man a rascal who may disagree with him, or whose views shall be promptly branded as undemocratic solely because differences of opinion may arise. Men are sent to prison in this land only after a preponderance of proofs are to the effect that they are guilty of a crime; it can hardly be justifiably declared that a public official can be branded unworthy upon the simple proposition that his views do not accord with those of another.

With every degree of respect for Mr. Bryan, who has for years been the idol of millions of honest democrats, I cannot believe that he does his party or the country justice in a continual program of fault-finding with men who are serving a constituency that has expressed confidence in them, and against whom, to date, nothing of a more serious character than allegation has been made.

What! Success Ruinous for Mankind?

Life is perpetual motion. When action of the body ceases, that is death. Life is achieved. It is not given by one to another. Neither mortal nor eternal life is a gift. You work to live. Lie down and never stir again of yourself, and the end is here, no matter how many servants come and go to serve you.

We work for success. And yet success has ruined almost all who have succeeded, says Mrs. Elbert Hubbard in McCull's for March. Individuals, nations have risen from poverty and want to affluence, to position where they could control circumstances connected with their welfare. When ease and luxury were within their reach, few have resisted their lure. Hard necessity has been man's best friend. He has grown through exercise. Yet when man has had the opportunity to choose, he has rarely been wise enough to see that the methods used to develop him thus far, are the methods to follow if he wishes to be well.

We have been told that Heaven is an ideal. Also that Heaven is a goal where everything is provided and much of it eternal rest, ease, luxury, angels for servants, and nothing to do are requisites for happiness or immortality, according to some interpreters of the Bible. Places where there is little work, much to spend the ease and luxury, have seemed to be the suburbs of Paradise. And this teaching and the natural pull of inertia have led people and nations to death. The few who have acquired the work habit, and the very wise few who have foreseen and have understood the sure penalty for inaction, have escaped. Not to succeed, but to forever be in the struggle, has saved and kept virile the people who have preserved the race.

He Won't Limp Now.

No more limping for Tom Moore of Cochran, Ga. "I had a bad sore on my instep that nothing seemed to help till I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve," he writes, "but this wonderful healer soon cured me." Heals old running sores, ulcers, boils, burns, cuts, bruises, eczema or piles. Try it. Only 25 cents at J. M. Wuggazer & Co's, Tawas City, and James E. Dillon's, East Tawas.

Teachers' Attention!

The eight grade examination in reading for May, 1912, will be based on Longfellow's "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

Reading for teachers' examination in April will be based on "Hudson's Introduction to the Study of Literature. This is an especially strong book. It is very comprehensive and of especial interest and value to all teachers.

One half of the second grade examination in botany will be based on Warren's "Elements of Agriculture."

The third book of the Reading Circle Course is "The Personal Equation," by Lawrence McCurtain. This book will inspire for better work; not only teachers, but all who read the book.

In addition to credits given above, 100 per cent will be allowed in Theory and Art those taking this course.

Respectfully,
J. A. CAMPBELL,
Commissioner.

Blamed A Good Worker.

A Farmer Who Advertised.
 The following shows how an up-to-date Macomb county farmer handles the sale of his produce and his method is well worth every farmer's consideration. He says: "When I am ready to sell my stuff, I insert a little advertisement in my local paper, telling the people what I have to sell. If live stock, how many head of each and when they will be ready to ship. The result has been that buyers are right after me and naturally, I always get the highest price. On the other hand, if I want to buy a cow, a steer, or a horse, or a dozen of each, I insert a little advertisement that costs me twenty-five or thirty cents, and instead of traveling over the country inquiring if my neighbors have this or that for sale, the newspapers do it for me at less expense; and vice versa, if I have any of these above mentioned animals to sell, I let my neighbors know through the same medium. In this way I save the time and expense of traveling aimlessly about and get a better selection to choose from when I wish to buy, or the best market price when I wish to sell.—Ex.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it, as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for more serious diseases that so often follow. TO MAKE CAMEBERT CHEESE

Experiments Conducted by Agricultural Department in Attempt to Produce Equivalent.

For several years there have been conducted, under suggestions afforded by the department of agriculture, various experiments in this country, with a view to the manufacturing of an equivalent of the famous Camembert cheese.

In the production of this cheese much depends on two species of microscopic fungi or molds known to science as Penicillium camemberti and Oldium lactis. Both species have been artificially propagated and furnished to the experiment stations.

The manufacture of the cheese begins with fresh whole milk heated to 85 degrees Fahrenheit. Later on the cheeses are inoculated with cultures of these molds.

The cheeses are shaped in galvanized iron hoops, and afterward treated with salt rubbed on the outside. They are then transferred to the first ripening room, the air of which must be quite saturated with moisture, and maintained at a temperature of from 60 to 62 degrees. From this time on they are treated daily. During the second week they are wrapped in tinfoil or parchment paper after which they are sent to the second ripening room, the temperature of which is slightly lower than that of the first room. In the second room the cheeses remain one or two weeks, when they reach the best condition for consumption.—Harper's Weekly.

Self-Denial.

Dan Reed, the head coach of the Cornell football team, was talking at a banquet at an Ithaca hotel about a football failure.

"He'd have been a good man," said Reed, "but he wouldn't train. It wasn't in him to train. In fact, the only kind of self-denial he was ever known to practice was to look out of his study window at his 'flat' house and tell the duns he was not at home."

Dazed by Skyscrapers.

"Over in Europe they are rather dazed about American skyscrapers just now," said the woman who spent last summer in Denmark. "At least some of them are. When we began putting up those tall buildings Europeans made fun of us and predicted disasters. We were sensitive about their ridicule at times, because we were not sure of the value of the experiment ourselves, but as we have gained confidence and soar recklessly from one gigantic, heaven-piercing structure to another still more daring Europeans simply hold their breath as they look at our postcards and other pictures, which give them a faint idea of downtown New York."

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions, aids expectorations; and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

ERYOPS LIVED AEONS AGO

Specialized Member of Ancient Amphibians Found in the Wichita Basin in Texas.

A primitive amphibian, a specimen of the eryops, which roamed through the great coal swamps millions of years ago, has been placed on exhibition in a glass case in the hall of fossil reptiles at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It was found in the Wichita Basin, Texas, and has been prepared by A. Hermann of the museum staff.

According to the scientists, the eryops is a comparatively large and specialized member of the ancient amphibians, and skeletons of the reptile have been found in the upper beds of the coal formation of Pennsylvania, but more abundant traces of the specimen have been found in the red shales which overlie the coal regions of Texas.

This type of animal once lorded it over the denizens of forests and morasses of the coal period, a sort of gigantic tadpole, with wide flat head, no neck and a heavy flattened tail.

The eryops is the largest and best known of the Permian amphibians in America. It lived before the advent of the mammoth or mastodon.

AUTOMATIC CREAM SEPARATOR

Nothing like it has ever before been invented. One size machine for any size dairy. The drudgery of dairying is now a thing of the past.

It separates the milk perfectly, faster than ten men can milk it.

Start the separator when the milking begins and it being both automatic and continuous in its operations, when the farmer is through milking he is through skimming.

Speed of bowl brought up in 15 seconds and will run for hours without the slightest variation. It is destined to revolutionize the dairy business.
