Captured an Eagle.

While at Pike Farm, on Island lake, Monday, Grant Murray discovered a large eagle attacking Collie Johnson's sheep. He was successful in getting a blanket over the bird's head and capturing it, and brought it to town where it has been attracting considerable attention. The bird is evidently an old one and is of extraordinary size. He is not any too good natured and as yet no one has attempted the job of measuring him, but he is certainly a handsome specimen of the Great American Eagle. With his white head and powerful claws and beak he makes a majestic appearance. Mr. Johnson has not yet decided what disposition to make of it.

Candidates.

Our announcement of candidates last week failed to contain the names of two very active candidates for the office of judge of probate, David Davison, the well-known resident of Grant township, is in the race, also, John Sullivan, the pioneer farmer of Baldwin township, announces that he is in the race to the end.

John A. Mark will, of course, again be a candidate for the republican nomination for county clerk, and the only name we have heard mentioned as a possible opponent is that of Irving Beardslee, of Durieigh. On the democratic side the names most prominently mentioned are those of James Hull, of Oscoda, Fred Grise, of this city, and A. J. Noel, of East Tawas.

Mrs. Sherman Wheeler.

Mrs. Sherman Wheeler died at her home in this city early Thursday morning, (Feb. 29), at the advanced age of 90 years, seven months and eight days. An attack of la grippe of but a few days duration snapped the thread of life that had withstood many tests in the long span of years allotted her.

The deceased's maiden name was Hannah M. Hart. She was born in Oneida county, N. Y., July 20, 1921. Ten years later her parents with their eight children came to Macomb county, this state, to make a home and clear a farm in the wilderness.

In 1840 Miss Hart was married to Otis Peckham, who died eight years later. Over a half a century ago the lady came to Tawas Bay to join her father and brothers, who were here following the occupation of fishermen. During a subsequent visit here she met Sherman Wheeler, who in 1852, under President Pierce, appointed the first light house keeper on Ottawa Point—the light house being built the year previously. In 1855 the couple were married at Niagara Falls, and returned to Ottawa Point to make their home. Here they lived the pioneer life—hardships, joys and sorrows intermingled. Callers and visitors were few—but Indians came as often as the white man.

About the year 1860 Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler took up their home in Alabaster township, where a claim was home-steaded. But during the civil war they were obliged to move to Saginaw, because the Indians were so troublesome. However, after a two years absence they returned to their farm, and there in 1878 Mr. Wheeler died.

For a score of years longer Mrs. Wheeler remained at the old home, and in 1898 she came to this city to live with her son, Albert S. Wheeler. She is survived by her two children—the son above mentioned, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Doby, of Alabaster.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the home, Rev. W. A. Gregory officiating. Interment was made in Alabaster cemetery—a plot of ground which the deceased's husband deeded to the township years ago for "God's acre."—Gazette.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., March 8, 1912

Teddy's boom is now ten days old, but Taft still continues to get the delegates.

Woodrow Wilson is apparently gaining strength every day in his fight for the democratic presidential nomination.

Gov. Osborn seems to have got into more trouble than he ever anticipated by calling a special session of the legislature.

James Wilson, the venerable secretary of agriculture, broke all records for continuous service as a member of the presidential cabinet when he completed 15 years service on Monday last.

"Loan Sharks" are getting a lively shaking up in Detroit just at present, with prospects of some of them landing in prison. It would be a nice thing if the crusade spread over the state.

It was announced from Washington a few days ago that the democratic majority in congress would consider a bill to place sugar on the free list. Already the sugar trust is out with stories of the millions they will invest in building new sugar factories in Michigan if this bill is defeated. In other words if congress will allow them to continue to charge the people a big price for sugar they will invest a portion of their ill-gotten gains in erecting more factories in order to get more money out of the people.

How it Was Done?

Here is a business secret: If you are running your concerns at a big loss, but wish to make the figures show a big surplus, simply put off paying heavy bills until after the reports of the receipts and expenditures are made up for the year.

This is the system by which Postmaster General Hitchcock put the postoffice on a "paying basis," according to charges made by W. D. Brown, formerly a government auditor, whose expose of the situation is so obviously true Mr. Hitchcock has failed to reply.

Mr. Brown shows that the alleged balance of $219,118.12 announced at the close of the last fiscal year to the credit of the postoffice department in reality does not exist at all, but instead there is really a deficit of $7,000,000.—Ex.

China Forging Ahead.

China seems to have presented an admirable example to such countries as Mexico and others where revolution seems to be a growing diversion. Under the inspired leadership of a Sun Yat Sen China broke away from a condition of intolerable tyranny and already is practically on a sound basis. With an enlightenment that is remarkable in the eyes of the Western world, the loyal dynasty was allowed to withdraw from power with honor and dignity. President Sun Yat Sen, himself perhaps the most remarkable man of modern times and already widely compared to George Washington, America's greatest popular idol, surrendered the high office which had but just been conferred on him, and with nothing but his country's good at heart, laid down the scepter that peace might the sooner come, and with less bloodshed. The whole effort of the government is now being put forth to bring about peace, order and prosperity, founded on high ideals and stable conditions. The future of China can not be otherwise but great with such principles guiding those at the helm and with the great powers guaranteeing the integrity of the nation.

Great Copper Production.

The copper mines of the United States have produced more than fifteen and a quarter billion pounds of copper, and of this total twelve mining districts have produced in excess of 100,000,000 pounds each, according to the United States Geological Survey. These twelve districts, located in eight states, have yielded 94.69 per cent of the total output of the country since 1845, when the total product of the United States was but little more than 200,000. These districts are Butte, Mont. which has yielded 5,315,000,000 pounds, or 34.75 per cent of the total production; Lake Superior, Mich., which has yielded 4,756,000,000 pounds; Bisbee, Ariz., 1,285,000,000 pounds; Morenci-Metcalf, Ariz., 882,700,000 pounds; Jerome, Ariz., 570,000,000 pounds; Bingham, Utah, 465,000,000 pounds; Shasta county, Cal., 336,000,000 pounds; Globe, Ariz., 334,700,000 pounds; Ducktown, Tenn., 211,700,000 pounds; Ely, Nev., 125,000,000 pounds; the foothill belt, California, 104,000,000 pounds; and Santa Rita, N. Mex., (where mining is believed to have been begun as far back as 1800) 103,000,000 pounds. All other districts have produced 804,300,000 pounds.

It is interesting to note from the United States Geological Survey's report on copper production for 1910 that the first ten of these districts are also the first ten largest producers to-day, although the order is slightly changed. These ten districts yielded 93.84 per cent of the production for 1910. The United States is by far the greatest copper producing country, our smelter output of copper in 1910 being 56.75 per cent of the total for the world.

Nearly every one of the leading copper-producing districts of the United States, according to the Geological Survey, made a record output within the three years preceding 1910, and nearly every one of them could have done so in 1910 so far as the ability of the mines to produce the ore was concerned. An indifferent copper market and metallurgical difficulties, however, resulted in a decrease in the output for 1910 for several districts.

Children are much more likely to contract the contagious diseases when they have colds. Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold. That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. For the quick cure of colds you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

Announcement.

To the Citizens and Taxpayers of Isosco County:

In the last issue of the Herald and Gazette we noticed the names of several aspirants for the different county offices in this county to be filled next fall, and we take pleasure in adding another name to the list. The man is David Davison, of the township of Grant, who needs no introduction as he is well-known throughout the county, but wishes his friends to know that he is in the field for the nomination of Judge of Probate on the republican ticket, and respectfully solicits the support of all his friends at the primaries next fall. He has been a tax payer in this county for sixteen years, and has always taken an active part in the interests of his party in everything that was fair, and has been ever ready, day or night, to answer the call of those who needed him in his profession.

Under the primary system Mr. Davison has all confidence. He has the friends who will nominate and elect him, and if nominated and elected he will use his best endeavors to properly fill the office and not shirk any public duty entrusted to him.

This is written and signed in behalf of the aspirant by friends of David Davison.

Isosco County Republican Convention.

WILL MCGILLIVRAY, Secretary.

Teachers' Attention!

School Law and Topic of Course of Study will be part of the reading.

One half of the second grade examination in botany will be based on Warren's "Elements of Agriculture."

The third book of the Reading Circle Course is "The Personal Equation," by Lawrence McTurman. This book will inspire for better work; not only teachers, but all who read the book.

In addition to credits given above, 100 per cent will be allowed in Theory and Art those taking this course.

Repels Attack of Death.

"Five years ago two doctors told me I had only two years to live." This startling statement was made by Stillman Green, Malachite, Col. "They told me I would die of consumption. It was up to me then to try the best lung medicine and I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery. It was well I did, for to-day I am working and believe I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure that has cheated the grave of another victim." Its folly to suffer with coughs, colds or other throat and lung troubles now. Take the cure that's safest. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at J. M. Wuggazer & Co's, Tawas City, and Jas. E. Dillon's, East Tawas.

David A. Ballard, of Pinconning, filed suit in the Bay county circuit court, Saturday, against the Detroit & Mackinac railway for $10,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received January 7, 1911, in a runaway. S. H. Spencer, of Harrisville, has been chosen to have charge of the traveling exhibit: which is being sent through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois by the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau. Mr. Spencer is thoroughly familiar with the Bureau work and one of the best men that could have been chosen for the work. That the coming year will see more settlers brought into this section than ever before seems now to be an assured fact.

Another effort was made in the circuit court at Onaway last week to convict some of the men who persist in an open violation of the local option law in Presque Isle county, but it was impossible to get a jury that would convict even though the evidence was the most direct and reliable. In such cases as this a few jurymen should be made an example of. Men who have so little respect for their oath as to refuse to convict a violator of law simply because the juror does not happen to favor the law is a bad citizen for any community.

Mrs. Rosanna Manning, who was one of the first women to settle in Alpena county, is dead, after an illness of several months. Her life story reads like a romance. Her father was an officer in the British army, and she was born in the garrison at Calcutta, Indiana. When she was 17 years old the Sepoy mutiny broke out, and she was in the midst of the excitement and perils of that terrible struggle. A year after it was over she married Patrick Manning, a soldier in the command of her father, Capt. John McLean, and they went to England, and later came to America, settling in Alpena county 35 years ago.

"Me-Smith In The News"
SPLENDID WESTERN STORY STARTS IN MICHIGAN'S GREATEST DAILY
MARCH 6, 1912
"Me-Smith," a thrilling western story by Caroline Lockhart, will begin in The Detroit News, afternoon edition, Wednesday, March 6; morning edition, Thursday, March 7. This is one of the best novels of the great plains that has been written in many years and it will appeal to all classes of readers. A charming love story runs through the novel, and this will be particularly pleasing to the women. For the men, "Me-Smith," the bad man, stands out as a striking character, as also does Ralston, the deputy sheriff and hero of the yarn.

Slow Stephan

They all laughed at Stephan with the careless unkindness of youth and the burden of their laughter was that he was so slow. He even was slow at resenting their fun at his expense. Like most big persons, Stephan moved ponderously and his speech was heavy and slow. Something in his mild blue eyes seemed to question, but that was all the notice he took of the others' taunts.

The reason that he had so little time to devote to worrying over his countrymen's opinion of him was that Stephan's mind was taken up with Rosa to the exclusion of all else. He had fallen in love instantly with her pert little smiling face and charming ways. Rosa darted across the line of Stephan's vision and left him gasping, figuratively speaking. Sometimes he gasped in reality—that was when Rosa turned the batteries of her quick wit upon him and left his mind whirling because of his inability to reply to one speech before she attacked him again. She laughed at him along with the others, yet she did not seem displeased at his devotion.

Stephan was good looking, although this fact had never occurred to him. He was modest, and allowed himself to be elbowed out of the way by others more audacious if less worthy. Rosa was always surrounded by admirers and Stephan lurked dimly in the background, patiently waiting for a glance in his direction. Rosa's glances came his way at times.

Stella, who was Rosa's most intimate friend, jeered Rosa for being fond of her slow admirer.

"Why do you waste time on Stephan?" demanded Stella. "He is so big—and so slow! He never dances or anything! He just sits and looks at you!"

"Maybe that's it," Rosa answered with a toss of her head.

Stella shrugged her shoulders. "I like some one who is gay, myself," she said. "Some one like Josef."

Rosa smoothed her apron and frowned. Josef was very attentive to her. He had sparkling eyes and a little mustache, which he kept curled and sharply pointed, and he made pretty speeches on the spur of the moment and was very sure of himself. Rosa flirted with Josef and led him on, but that was merely girlish coquetry, and she shrank from anything more. Of late Josef had wearied her.

Stella, watching Rosa, burst out of a sudden. "I suppose you think you'll catch some one grander than Josef—but let me tell you—"

Rosa turned on her. "Oh, Josef!" she mimicked. "Why don't you marry him yourself if you think he's so fine? I would if I liked him as much as you do!"

Stella, routed, retreated, scarlet of face and vengeful of mind. Rosa, as if to prove her power, was kinder to Josef and paraded him before Stella and the others. Perhaps this unusual leniency on her part really pleased him, for he seemed more natural and sincere. Rosa even thought she had misjudged him. There seemed more to Josef than she had surmised—perhaps he was not such a shallow man after all.

Before she knew how it happened she found herself engaged to marry Josef. All the other girls envied her and the excitement of preparing for the wedding bore her up. Rosa assured herself that she was happy. This usually was after she had caught a glimpse of Stephan, in the background as usual, looking dumb devotion at her.

Stephan had a very sober face these days. The thought of him irritated Rosa strangely. Once when Josef spoke slightly of him Rosa had started to reply furiously, but bit her lip and was sullenly silent. She knew Josef would not care for her anger. She had grown to feel that he did not care deeply for anything.

Stephan had been asked to the wedding, which was at the church at an early hour, but he was not there. "He'd be late to his own wedding!" some one laughed. "So why not at another?"

Some one else was missing—the bridegroom. At first there was only restlessness on the part of those who were waiting, then came whisperings and surmises. After an hour a messenger was sent and reported that Josef had not been at home for two days.

Stephan arrived as they were trying to calm the hysterical Rosa, desolate in her wedding finery. It was an hour and a half after the time set for the wedding. For a moment Stephan looked at the weeping girl and his hands clinched. Then quietly he walked to her side and, brushing the others aside, bent over her.

"Rosa," he half whispered, "look at me—it is Stephan. Forget that wretch of a Josef! I'll have the papers to marry you in half an hour if you'll say yes! You know that I love you!"

Rosa's little hands clutched his sleeve and she went on his shoulder. A wonderful happiness was stealing over her. "I—I'm glad Josef is not here!" she whispered.

From small capital in 1894, this Bank has grown to be the largest (it is also the oldest) State Bank in Northeastern Michigan. The growth can be readily seen in the following table of gross assets taken under date of Sept. 1st in years printed.

Protestantism in France.

According to an article in the Revue the number of Protestants in France is decreasing. They now number 700,000. The Lutherans, who numbered more than a quarter of a million in 1870, can now boast of a membership of only 50,000 in France. The Calvinists are the most numerous sect left, numbering over half a million. But they are losing ground. At the same time the political influence of the French Protestants is out of all proportion to their numbers. This the writer attributes to their superior system of education and above all to their great wealth. Their wealth has, however, tended to sap their exclusiveness. They now pay less attention to their religion, and the result is, says the writer in the Revue that Protestantism in France will in the near future be a thing of the past. This is a rather bold conclusion, and it would be interesting to know if this alleged decrease in the Huguenots is correct. —Westminister Gazette.

HOW SHARK IS HARNESSED

Trick by Which Sailor Pays Debt to Merciless Member of the Finny Tribe.

The shark's jaws are pried open to the fullest extent; a stout eight-foot spar of tough timber, four inches by four in cross-measurement, is fixed transversely far back in the angle of the jaw, the ends projecting on either side. A strong rope leading from the ends of the spar is drawn close and tightened with a clove-hitch round the fish's tail, behind the wide tail-fukes. It is thus the sailor harnesses his enemy.

The clamp of the cruel jaws drives the two-inch long teeth deep into the tough spar. The tight line holds it in place, and, struggle as he may, the shark fails to move the spar an inch from its position. As a finishing touch, the sailor drew his knife-blade across the shark's eyeballs and let him go.

Blinded and bridled, with jaws wide-gaping, he swam through a limitless sea in never-ending fatuous circles. The queer furnishings he bore scared away others of his kind. Lonely and silent he passed like Cain among the fishes till starvation and sheer misery ended his existence.

Cruel? Of course it was. But surely, like the venomous snake, the shark has long put himself beyond the pale of human mercy. Soft-hearted as he usually is, the sailor-man has a long memory. The shark has followed for weeks in the shadow of his ship, and has watched each man of the crew with greedy malevolent eye. There is a heavy debt against all the shark tribe for many a lost mariner, and when the chance comes to settle old scores, the sailor pays it to the full. Besides the thing has the sanction of immemorial custom. It was some o'd Phoenician, trading out of Tyre to the far Cassitoides, who, probably, first put the trick in practice.—Wide World Magazine.

HILL WANTED FAIR CHANCE

Wouldn't Race Train With Boat If Craft Was Going to Stick to River.

One day, the story runs, when Jim Hill was going in the railroad business and the Great Northern was not the fine system it is today, he was met in St. Paul by the head of a big steamboat company doing business on the Great Lakes.

"Jim," said the steamboat man, "I'll match one of my boats against one of your trains in a fair race for $1,000 a side."

Mr. Hill hesitated. "I don't know," said he, "some of your boats are pretty fast."

"I'll race you upstream," added the steamboat man, as a further inducement.
"Oh!" exclaimed the other in a disgusted tone, "if you're going to stick to the river then you might as well give up the notion of any race. I thought you meant you'd bring your boat out on the prairie alongside the track and give me some show."
