More About Registration.

Last week the Herald endeavored to secure the best authority possible as to the question of registration of voters that our readers might be fully informed as to what was required of them in order to be able to vote at the coming election. After having read an opinion of the attorney general of the state and interviewed the prosecuting attorney we believed we were right, and that under the amended law all registrations were to be held October 26, and previous. The attorney general of the state now comes forward with another opinion in which he holds that the law covering registration in fourth class cities was not amended by the last legislature, and that in such cities the boards of registration will meet on the Saturday previous to election (and such other days as the city council shall designate), which this year falls on Saturday, Nov. 2.

The city council of this city have named Friday, Nov. 1, and Saturday, Nov. 2, as the days on which the voters of Tawas City must register. An entire new registration must be had, and every voter must appear before the board on the above named days.

Registration in townships will be held on Saturday, October 26, as stated last week, and an entire re-registration is not required.

Obituary.

MRS. ISAAC B. NUNN.

Mary Ann Hanstead was born in Herefield, England, Nov. 18th, 1841, and with her parents, one brother and one sister, came to this country and settled in New York state in 1853. In 1856 they removed to Delhi, Ont., where most of her young girlhood was spent. She was married to I. B. Nunn, Jan. 20th, 1863, and came to Michigan in the early spring of 1871. In 1878 they moved to Sanilac county, Mich., and were the pioneer settlers of that county, passing through the privations of a pioneer with all the attendant hardships. On Oct. 14th, 1892, they removed to Hale, Iosco county, and engaged in missionary work, and eventually settled on the farm on which she died, Oct. 11th, 1912.

She was converted early in life and united with the Baptist church, of which she has always been a consistent member. She was the mother of seven children, all of whom survive to mourn her loss. These are Mrs. E. M. Denton, of Los Angeles, Cal., Eugene, Lewis, Albert and William Nunn and Mrs. Fred Jennings, of Hale; also Edwin Nunn, of Turner. Besides these she leaves to mourn her loss a husband, one sister, one brother, twenty-six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and a host of friends who knew and loved her. She was a faithful wife and a kind and loving mother, and her life was one of love and self-sacrifice for others.

The funeral services at the Hale Baptist church Sunday afternoon were attended by a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The services were conducted by Rev. O. E. Moffet, of Tawas City, assisted by Rev. Fox.

MRS. JAMES H. CHAMBERS.

The announcement of the death of Mrs. James H. Chambers at her home in Pine River on Thursday afternoon of last week came as a shock to her many friends in this city.

Elizabeth Boomer was born in Ontario, Canada, in 1845, and came with her parents to Michigan when a child. In 1860 she was united in marriage to Henry Cantlan, and to this union six children were born, viz.: Mrs. Rebecca Taft, of Ontario, Canada; Dr. Alfred, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mrs. Catherine Short, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. Jennie Andrews, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Peter, of Montana.

Mr. Cantlan died 15 years ago, and after nine years of widowhood she was united in marriage to James H. Chambers, of this city, six years ago. A year later they removed to Pine River, where they have since resided. Mrs. Chambers united with the Baptist church at an early age, and has ever been a consistent member. She was universally respected by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral was held from the Baptist church in this city on Saturday last, Rev. O. E. Moffet officiating.

Roosevelt Shot.

Last Monday evening as Ex-President Roosevelt, the progressive candidate for the presidency, was leaving his hotel in Milwaukee to go to the Auditorium where he was to deliver an address, he was shot in the right breast by one John Schrank, of New York City, and sustained a serious, although not fatal wound. The would-be assassin was captured in his track while attempting to fire the second shot.

Mr. Roosevelt was taken to Mercy hospital, Chicago, where he is now improving, and all danger seems at this time to have passed.

Schrank, the man who fired the shot, is a crank who claims to have been instructed in a dream to commit the deed, claiming that it was the spirit of former President McKinley that appeared to him.

Wilson's Position on the Tariff.

The republicans (standpat division) are making a strong point of Gov. Wilson's alleged free trade views. They are trying to shake the confidence of the voter in him by talking of tariff perils that his election will invite. Of course it is all bluff and sophistry, but there is reason to fear it may be having some effect upon voters who accept sweeping and alarmist statements without dissecting them.

Mr. Wilson is no more for free trade in this election than is Congressman Fordney or President Taft. He has at no time said he would favor legislation of this kind, or anything remotely resembling it, if he were elected president. What he said at the very outset, the day he was notified of his nomination, was that he favored a substantial and immediate downward revision of the tariff, and he qualified it by assuring commerce and industry that he would favor no wholesale or radical reductions which would injure business. In the speech of acceptance he recognized the fact that American industry is established on protective foundations, and he expressly declared that he would have every rightful respect for those foundations. Since then he has not said a single word to alter this position. He has affirmed, furthermore, that he favored tariff revision by schedules, one at a time, on careful and thorough investigations on which to base it.

There is nothing in Gov. Wilson's tariff views to frighten anybody—nothing but what should command respect, as well as support of the consumer who stands to draw some real benefit from them, and of the manufacturers and others who are willing to be fair and accept reasonable protection. Of course, downward revision, which has been promised by the republicans with no thought of making good, will be opposed and denounced by greedy interests which are getting protection equal to four or five times the cost of production, but they are hardly to be wept over by the voter.

Mr. Wilson's position on the tariff ought to win him hundreds of thousands of votes. He promises the only real relief to the people against tariff extortion. Taft and his wing of the party have failed utterly to give it. He is still in the hands of his friends, and those friends are the highest of the protection species that remain. Roosevelt is silent on the tariff—promises nothing.

The democrats should pound hard on the tariff issue from now on until election day—not on foolish theories about free trade, which the party has always ignored in practice, but about Gov. Wilson's sane, reasonable and attractive stand on tariff revision. Gov. Wilson has been and is being absurdly and mischievously misrepresented. To let that misrepresentation go uncorrected is dangerous—in fact the one and only weak spot in the democratic campaign.

Consider Carefully.

Here are 12 good reasons why you should vote for Woodrow Wilson:

1. Because he stands for equal rights for all and special privileges for none.
2. Because he stands for tariff revision downward.
3. Because he stands for trust legislation, which will prevent monopoly and the control of prices.
4. Because he stands for the income tax and believes that wealth should share the burdens as well as the blessings of government.
5. Because he stands for the rights of labor and the protection of the wage-earner, as shown in his record as governor of New Jersey.
6. Because he stands for the revival of our merchant marine, government promotion of agriculture and industrial and vocational education.
7. Because he trusts the people and believes that the governed should govern; and that senators should be chosen by the people.
8. Because he performs in office the promises made out of office.
9. Because he would "clean house" at Washington as he has "cleaned house" in New Jersey.
10. Because he preaches and practices clean politics and opposes machine politics.
11. Because he is a real progressive.
12. Because his election will restore the government to the people.

Indications.

A New York dispatch says the second poll of the New York Herald, which is supporting President Taft, shows Gov. Woodrow Wilson decidedly in the lead over Roosevelt and Taft.

The Herald devotes five pages to its straw votes, which were taken in New York city, New York city, N. W. York state, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, South Dakota, Washington, Idaho, Missouri, Nebraska, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Wyoming, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The Herald's expert canvassers have noted 69,046 votes. Of these Gov. Wilson has received 30,261, Roosevelt 20,748, and Taft 13,035.

The net republican loss from 1908 is 17,358, while the democrats show a net gain of 5,420, and the socialists a net gain of 625.

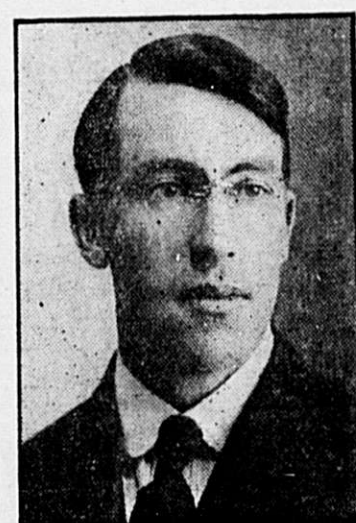

The third term candidate takes 12,064 from Taft, while Wilson gains 6,173 votes from the president.

Democratic leaders have digested the Herald's poll with care, and they point out that the prediction of the Roosevelt followers that he would take from the democratic columns is not carried out. Instead of losing votes to either Taft or Roosevelt, Wilson has gained half of the republican votes that have changed from 1908. If this percentage should be kept up throughout the country, the democrats would carry every state in the Union.

There Are a Few.

Discussing the "Free Trade" bogey cry, always raised by the opponents of the democracy, Gov. Wilson said the other day:

"Some men talk as if democrats weren't part of the United States. I met a lady the other day, an elderly lady, who said to me with pride, 'Why, Governor, I have been a democrat ever since they hunted them with dogs.' And you would suppose to hear some men talk that democrats don't share the life of the United States. Why, democrats—I mean simon-pure democrats who always vote the democratic ticket—constitute nearly one-half the voters of this country. They are engaged in all sorts of enterprises, big and little. There isn't a walk of life or a kind of occupation in which you won't find them; and as a Philadelphia paper very wittily said the other day, they can't commit economic murder without committing economic suicide. Do you suppose, therefore, that half of the population of the United States, or something of that kind, is going about to destroy the very foundations of our economic life by simply running amuck amidst the schedules of the tariff?"

WOODROW WILSON
Candidate for President.

LIFE HISTORY OF W. N. FERRIS, AS TOLD BY HIMSELF

Remarkable Career of the School-Master Nominee for Governor of Michigan.

Born in Log Cabin on Wild Land—Struggles with Poverty—Carves Out His Own Way—Self Educated.

Prof. Woodbridge N. Ferris, Democratic nominee for governor of this state, has written a history of his life and the same has been published by the Democratic State Committee in leaflet form for general distribution. It is of considerable length, but every line is characteristic of its author, and Chairman E. C. Shields wisely determined not to cut out a word or alter a sentence. It is an interesting document and more like a novel than the early life story of the man who today is known, by name at least, to hundreds of thousands of residents of Michigan.

Mr. Ferris begins his biography by stating that his father, John Ferris, Jr., was born in the township of Spencer, Tioga County, New York, January 15th, 1824. He was one of a family of eight, five boys and three girls, and his home on the little farm offered few opportunities for growth. Poverty hung like a pall over the children. Just as soon as they could eke out a pittance by manual labor, they were not only made to take care of themselves, but to give a portion of their earnings to their father and mother. They were denied the privileges of school, consequently his father did not acquire even the rudiments of an education.

At the age of twenty-eight, Mr. Ferris, Sr., married Stella Reed, an orphan, one of seven children. His mother was nearly eighteen years of age at the time of her marriage and was then living in the home of Russell Gridley on the farm a few miles from New York. She acquired a good common school education. His father and mother began housekeeping in a little log house four miles southeast of the village of Spencer. His father had purchased a hemlock forest of seventy or eighty acres. In that log house Prof. Ferris was born, January 6th, 1853. Four of his sisters were also born there. He says that it is impossible for him to give an adequate description of his father's and mother's struggles on this prospective farm. The great hemlocks were cut into logs, and rolled into heaps to burn, gradually the forest disappeared and fields of wheat, patches of corn and buckwheat were planted. A few cows and sheep were cared for in order to help the family eke out a meager existence. In those days sewing machines and kerosene lamps were unheard of luxuries.

In 1863 Mr. Ferris's father was able to build what he called "a new house," and here two more children were born. When four years of age, young Ferris entered the district school, and went there eight years. He calls those years the horror of his life. During the first three years his school outfit consisted of a reader. He was not allowed a slate. Life in the school-room became a burden and his unsatisfied craving for something to do forced him into much mischief, and the result was he was frequently flogged by the teacher.

When twelve years of age a new teacher, who "boarded round" the district, by his kind personal encouragement, aroused in young Ferris a longing for knowledge, and from that time on he made progress, while his engagement in field sports and athletic exercises wrought in him a change decidedly for the better. Things in this world appeared to him brighter, and when, at the age of fourteen, he had progressed so far that he was admitted to the Spencer Union Academy, and found life was really worth living, he applied himself with vigor to his studies, determined to acquire an education and make teaching his one object in life.

On his sixteenth birthday Mr. Ferris entered the Candor Union Academy, situated some eight miles from his home, and here he made progress. A part of the time he and a companion named Ed. E. Snyder boarded themselves. An old stove, and some older pipe caused them much trouble, and Ferris says he frequently expressed his displeasure by using language that would not look well in print. He says he noticed his companion in trials and tribulations never got mad at anything, and when one day Ferris remarked, "Ed, why do you never get mad?" Ed's quiet reply was: "I cannot afford it." That philosophical remark made a lasting impression on young Ferris's mind—an impression that remains to this day.

His first teacher's institute to attend was the following autumn, at Waverly, New York, and with great joy he passed the examination. By aid of his friend Snyder, after a search he secured a rural school in the Fairfield district, located some fifteen miles from his home, and by offering to make no charge for his services if after a week's trial he was not satisfactory, he secured the position at twenty-eight dollars a month and "board round."

The next year, young Ferris entered the Oswego Academy at Oswego, Tioga County, New York, and there he made the acquaintance of several young men whose wholesome influence on him for good was lasting. He passed the state examination for regent's certificate which at that time would have admitted him to the Cornell University without examination.

During these years young Ferris put in the summers on the farm working from early morning until late in the evening, as all farmers have to work if they would accomplish good results. Poverty was ever at his elbows, and when the desire to procure a certain book he needed came upon him, one Saturday he picked blackberries and the same evening carried and sold them to the village postmaster four miles away, for one dollar and twenty-five cents. Sending away a money order, a week later he was made happy by receiving the work, "Memory," and stealing away from the family he hid himself and devoted several hours to its reading and study. That little book was a revelation to him. Up to that time he says he was blind to the fact that there were other worlds than the little one he was journeying in. That little book formed the nucleus of his present valuable library, and is treasured to this day for its associations.

Mr. Ferris relates, step by step, his struggles for an education, how he filled a second term in the district school at an advance of two dollars per month and "boarding round" a whole week instead of a day at a time. He relates his discouragement at times, and how he would have abandoned his object but for the kind words and sympathy expressed by certain teachers whose acts stand out clearly in his memory today. It was in 1872, while attending the Oswego Normal and Training School, that he first met Miss Helen Frances Gillespie, now Mrs. Ferris. They were classmates. Miss Gillespie graduated from the English department, and the following autumn entered upon a year's engagement as teacher in the public schools of Franklin, Ind.

In October, 1873, Mr. Ferris entered the medical department of the Michigan University, not for the purpose of acquiring a profession, but that the general knowledge might aid him in his work as a teacher, and it was during that time that he affiliated with the Unitarian church. The latter part of March, 1874, he left Ann Arbor for his home in Spencer, New York. Learning that the Free Academy was without a principal, he made application for the position, and was overjoyed to find a week later himself at the head of the school he had attended as a pupil seven years previous. He served two terms and between times assisted his father haying and harvesting on the farm.

Mr. Ferris's bright star was now in the ascendancy, and he formally celebrated by marrying Miss Gillespie, of Fulton, New York, on December 23rd, 1874, and the following Monday the young couple began teaching together in the academy. At the end of the school year they decided to enter a new field and organized the Freeport Business College and Academy at Freeport, Ill. The school was becoming a promising one financially, when they were persuaded by Dr. Tooke, of the Rock River University, to discontinue their venture and enter the university at the head of the normal department. This was in 1876. The venture proved a failure, and Mr. and Mrs. Ferris were out considerable of their salaries. Later, with Supt. Hartwell, of the North Dixon (Illinois) schools, Mr. and Mrs. Ferris organized a private academy downtown. At the end of the year they dissolved partnership, Mr. and Mrs. Ferris continuing the business, which was fairly successful, till they discontinued the college in 1879.

Their first child, Carleton G. Ferris, was born in September, 1876. In 1879, when twenty-six years old, Mr. Ferris accepted a position as superintendent of city schools at Pittsfield, Ill., and held the same for five years. In June, 1881, their second child was born; three months later it was laid under the sod.

In 1884, Mr. Ferris selected Big Rapids, Michigan, as a promising point for establishing an industrial school, and after giving his services gratuitously in a summer school that he might have better acquaintance with the country teachers, he opened on the first Monday in September, 1884, the Ferris Industrial School, in two small rooms in the Vanderhuis block, with fifteen students to start with. Normal and commercial were the two lines of work and Mr. and Mrs. Ferris were the teachers. In short order the attendance outgrew the cramped quarters, no other rooms adjoining could be secured in the same building, so with the New Year the school was moved to the third floor of the then Northern National bank building, where accommodations were more commodious. In about a year the third floor of the building store building was secured, openings made in the division wall, and Mr. Ferris had a floor space of about fifty by one hundred feet. The next move was to rent the third floor of the double store building adjoining, and thus the floor space of one hundred by one hundred feet brought into use. Steadily the school grew and grew, with the results that a block of land was subsequently purchased, perhaps one mile distant, and there a large brick and stone edifice was erected. Larger and larger grew the school, bigger and bigger the corps of teachers, more land was purchased and an addition nearly as large as the school house proper was planned and erected. Only a few years more and still another large addition was put up, and later other buildings erected or enlarged, till today the Ferris Institute (the word Industrial was dropped many years ago) is a large and well-equipped property valued at about one hundred thousand dollars, with W. N. Ferris still the active head and giving the same close attention to details that he always has, and devoting every hour to the school and its students (the attendance runs from seven hundred to twelve hundred) when he is not absent lecturing or holding educational meetings. Mrs. Ferris, a lady of education, culture and refinement, was for years and years her husband's able assistant, a great favorite with the students, and is given due credit for her grand work in turning out thousands and thousands of graduates. While from the first struggling along with heavy indebtedness, Mr. Ferris at all times exercised good business ability and judgment, and today he is owner of the larger part of the property and that, too, without a dollar's worth of assistance in the way of contribution, legacy or endowment.

On April 16th, 1889, the third son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ferris, and he was named Phelps Fitch Ferris. In 1901 Mrs. Ferris withdrew from the active teaching force of the Ferris Institute. The interesting biography closes with an account of his nomination for congress, subsequently his nomination for governor bringing his history up to the present day.

Woodrow Wilson, the Man of the Critical Hour

When Woodrow Wilson takes his place in the White House, he will be the eighth President born in Virginia. And in temperament, ripeness of statesmanlike views, capacity for political leadership, he is particularly fitted to be the successor of those other sons of the Old Dominion, Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe. As they were prepared above all other men of their time, to do the particular work of founding the government of the new republic and giving the first cast and direction to our political institutions, so, it is no idle rhetoric to affirm, is Wilson uniquely fitted to preside over the critical hour when the nation is perplexed by the necessity of meeting new industrial, social and commercial conditions undreamed of by the fathers of the republic.

Speaker Clark's Greeting

Bowling Green, Mo.,
Sept. 10, 1912.

To All Democrats.
As Democrats, we naturally feel great satisfaction when we contemplate the rosy outlook for Democracy in the coming campaign. For the first time in its history the Republican party is hopelessly divided and confronted by a situation involving the existence of the party itself. We have the remarkable spectacle of a Republican President heading the regular Republican ticket and a Republican ex-president heading a new party ticket. Consequently, there has never been a greater opportunity for effective co-operation among Democrats. If we meet the situation as we should we can achieve a memorable victory.

The present situation is especially gratifying to those of us in Congress, who have struggled for many years to bring about Democratic triumph. We can not but feel pleased that the record of the Democratic House of Representatives has contributed to the increasing confidence of the country in the Democratic program. We feel that the House has demonstrated to the country that the party is capable of great things, and that we have developed sound, constructive policies appealing to the good judgment of all Americans.

With the control of the popular branch of Congress already achieved and the prospect of securing control of the Senate, we ought to permit nothing to stand in the way of obtaining a Democratic President. Success all along the line would give us a chance to put into execution those policies for which we stand, and to demonstrate to the country that Democracy can be depended upon to right popular wrongs and set moving those influences most needed for the public welfare at this critical juncture.

I am certain that the only thing to do is to elect Wilson and Marshall. If we cannot carry the country this year, with the Republicans all split up, we probably will not carry it in a score of years. Consequently, I hope you will all be as active as possible in lining up your friends.

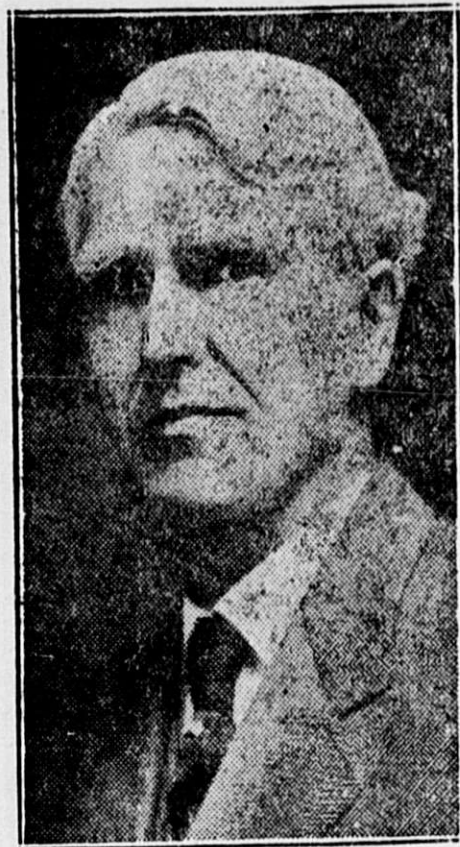

Yours,
CHAMP CLARK.

Theodore Roosevelt accepted campaign contributions from trusts, insurance companies and "crooked business" and denied that he had done so. "My dear Harriman."

THE CANDIDATE AND PLATFORM

A Progressive Man With Progressive Ideas for a Progressive People.

Michigan Democrats Present a Real Champion of the Masses for Governor and Boldly Proclaim Important Legislation That They Favor.

WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS

Platform Adopted by Michigan Democratic State Convention at Grand Rapids September 26.

The Democrats of Michigan in convention assembled, congratulate the state and nation on the nomination of such gallant standard bearers as Wilson and Marshall, upon a splendid platform of progressive principles which we hereby endorse. The growing strength of the ticket demonstrates the wisdom of its selection.

We likewise congratulate the people of the state on the nomination of Woodbridge N. Ferris for governor James W. Helme for lieutenant-governor, Alfred Lucking for United States senator, and a splendid galaxy of congressional and legislative candidates at the recent Democratic primaries whose chances for success are the brightest in the history of the party.

Should the people of Michigan in November intrust us with power by electing a Democratic governor and legislature, we pledge the enactment of the following legislation:

1. The adoption of the real Australian ballot.
2. Our present primary law is a violation of every voter's right to choose for himself his own party affiliation, and to cast a secret ballot, and we favor the abolition of enrollment and the 15 per cent provision of the present law. We favor a second choice column to insure majority nominations; we favor a rigid corrupt practices act, providing for the limitation of expenditures and the publication of the same before and after primary and regular election.
3. Enlargement of the scope of the home rule law for cities to the fullest extent permissible by the constitution.
4. The physical valuation of all power and telephone companies and the fixing of the rates of such companies by the railway commission so as to give fair dividends on actual investment, but not on watered stock.
5. Enactment of laws (similar to the Kansas "blue sky" law) limiting the issues of stocks and bonds of all foreign corporations and public utilities corporations to actual investment and prohibiting the sale of stocks or bonds of any company until first investigated and approved by the railway commission.
6. The reduction of state expenditures and the abolition of useless boards and obsolete offices, such as the inspection of salt and oil.
7. Stricter Civil Service Laws. We believe that the business of this state can be more economically and efficiently administered if merit, ability, integrity and energy of employes, rather than political activity, be made the basis of employment. We therefore favor and pledge ourselves to bring about such a reform in our civil service as shall effectuate this end and protect the public service from incompetent employes and at the same time protect competent employes from dismissal for political reasons.
8. The enactment of a modern weight and measure law to protect the public, to be enforced by the state dairy and food department.
9. Approval of the amendment to the federal constitution recently submitted providing for the election of United States senators by popular vote.
10. Initiative, Referendum, Recall.

referendum not to require more than 10 per cent of the voters of the state and for the recall not to require more than 25 per cent of the voters of the state or district.

Public Guarantee of Land Titles.
11. The enactment of a law providing for the Torrens system of land transfers.
Economy and Efficiency of Administration.

12. We pledge ourselves to a reduction of the state expenditures and to a lessening of the burdens of government, which with business-like management can be done without impairing the efficiency of educational or other state institutions.

Encouragement of Settlers.
13. The prosperity and permanence of the nation depends on the success of the farmer. The food supply of the nation is its most important question. We believe that a commissioner of agriculture should be created who shall conserve the soil of the farms of the state, improve farm methods and encourage emigration to the wild lands of northern Michigan and the state should extend the same help to the settler on its new lands that the Canadian government does to similar settlers in the northwest.

Control of Rates of Public Utilities.
14. The enlargement of the powers of the railway commission for the fixing of rates for all public utilities not now under its control.

Strict Regulation of Lobbyists.
15. We favor a complete system of public registration of all lobbyists and legislative agents.

TWO THINGS TO DO.

Set Up the Rule of Justice and Protect Our People and Our Resources.

Woodrow Wilson in his notable speech of acceptance said among other things:

"There are two great things to do. One is to set up the rule of justice and of right in such matters as the tariff, the regulation of the trusts and the prevention of monopoly, the adaptation of our banking and currency laws to the varied uses to which our people must put them, the treatment of those who do the daily labor in our factories and mines and throughout all our great industrial and commercial undertakings, and the political life of the people of the Philippines, for whom we hold governmental power in trust, for their service, not our own. The other, the additional duty, is the great task of protecting our people and our resources and of keeping open to the whole people the doors of opportunity through which they must, generation by generation, pass if they are to make conquest of their fortunes in health, in freedom, in peace, and in contentment."

"Democracy, this year more than ever, appeals to the humanitarian side of men and women."

FERRISISMS.

"I am going about this state to awaken its splendid men. I am trying to awaken the people to the real brotherhood, where all will have equal opportunity and no special privilege."

"I have to travel around with a fellow named Ferris; I have to sleep and eat with him. I look at him every time I look in the mirror, and I want him to feel that I am honest in my convictions."

"Carnegie may be doing a world of good with his libraries. But I wish to God that he had left a part of his millions with the workingmen who really earned it."

"I am glad labor is organizing. Do the unions sometimes make mistakes? Certainly. Do the bosses sometimes make mistakes? Certainly."

"Eight years ago I prophesied the primary law and I leave it to you whether it was a true prophecy. I guess I might take credit for having given you a primary law. But I'm not particularly proud of my achievement. It's no good. It's rotten! It gives the people as little as possible and keeps the politicians in full sway. It is my desire and intention to give the state a real primary."

"If you want to know about Taft, read what Roosevelt says about him. And if you want to know about Roosevelt, read what Taft says about him. If half of what either says of the other is true, neither is entitled to the suffrages of the American people."

"What this dear old world wants is less charity and more justice. This is the watchword of Democracy."

"If elected Governor, I would endeavor to give the common people an administration based first on justice, and then on sterling business principles."

"We have continued to be occupied by our little affairs and have given little thought to the nation and to our posterity."

"It is true that where one gets without working, many work without getting."

"William H. Taft has proved faithless to the cause of the American people."—Theodore Roosevelt. (Who knows him best.)

Theodore Roosevelt has broken his solemn promise not to be a candidate for a third term.

THOMAS R. MARSHALL
Candidate for Vice President.

For United States Senator ALFRED LUCKING of Wayne

The Democratic party of Michigan is fortunate in being able to present as its candidate for United States Senator, Alfred Lucking, of Detroit. Among all of the able Democrats in the state, there is not a shadow of doubt that Mr. Lucking is far and away the best equipped man in the state for this particular office. It is gratifying to think Mr. Lucking's nomination was made directly by the people, as evidenced by the returns from the primary election of last August.

Alfred Lucking was born in Ingersoll, Ontario, December 18, 1856, the son of Joseph and Margaret (Ford) Lucking. He was educated at the State Normal College and later, in 1878, graduated from the University of Michigan with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. He was married to Violette Rose, February 23, 1881. He practiced law at Jackson, Michigan, in 1878 and 1880 and then came to Detroit, becoming a member of the firm of Maybury, Lucking, Emmons & Helfman, succeeding as head of the firm upon the death of Mr. Maybury. He was temporary chairman of the Democratic State Convention in 1900, and permanent chairman in the conventions of 1902 and 1908.

Though the first Michigan Congressional district had been represented in congress by a Republican member for many years, in 1902 Mr. Lucking accepted the Democratic nomination and was triumphantly elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress. In this congress he rapidly forged to the front and became one of the leaders recognized by all of the members for his fidelity in committee work and his forcefulness in debate.

Mr. Lucking is a man of quiet dignity, but the fire of enthusiasm burns in his heart as he grapples with the political problems that confront the nation today. He is an indefatigable worker and devotes the same careful attention to all public matters entrusted to his charge that he devotes to his law practice. He is unquestionably one of the leading members of the Michigan bar and has made a reputation for legal attainments that is not confined within the borders of the state. He has been connected with some of the most important litigations and legal problems that mark the business of this country. He only recently achieved a notable victory for the people in the litigation between the city of Detroit and the Detroit United Railway in which he represented the municipality. Every voter in Michigan who realizes the necessity of having such a man as Alfred Lucking in the United States Senate should remember that, owing to our system of election, his name will not be upon the ballot this fall, but in voting for Democratic candidates for the state senate and representatives in the legislature, voters will be casting a ballot for Alfred Lucking for the United States Senate.

For Congressman-at-Large EDWARD FRENSDORF Of Lenawee Co.

Edward Frensdorf, candidate for congressman-at-large, is of the type of men who ought to appeal strongly for the support of the people from the standpoint of a business man and in a practical sense. He is Michigan's most prominent wool dealer and knows his business from A to Z. He was born and has always lived in Hudson, Lenawee county. His education does not begin nor end with the wool business, but extends into manufacturing, farming and banking. His business operations and public work are so extensive as to make his name familiar to a large number of our best citizens in every county of the southern peninsula of our state. Public-spirited, charitable and honest, he is willing to aid in everything that tends for the betterment of conditions in every line of work. A student of economic questions, he is fearless in advocating his convictions. For years he has been advocating, and did present before the Ways and Means Committee the Pure Goods Law, and which, if enacted, would cause and make it compulsory to have every piece of cloth and every garment for man or woman bear a tag or label stating what ingredients and the proportion of each, this piece of cloth contained. This would not only give ample protection to the consumer of manufactured goods, protecting him from being imposed upon and defrauded, but would tend to increase the demand for all wool goods to such an extent that the farmers of our country would receive at least 50 per cent more for their wool than they do today.

Oil Prospects Good.

A Lansing dispatch says that Michigan is likely to rival Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania in the production of oil is the import of the report which State Geologist Allen has made to Gov Osborn on the situation in Michigan. The governor has made some personal observations and is aiding in the investigation.

In his report, Geologist Allen, referring to the strike at Saginaw, says in part:

"It seems reasonably certain that the results at Saginaw open up some 15 miles of favorable territory. It is probable that the Saginaw anticline extends some distance northwest and southwest, just how far is not determinable."

"I spent last Saturday in Saginaw and visited the well at the Wylie location. The oil stands in the casing at a height of 1,200 feet above the source, which would indicate a pressure of some 120 pounds to the square inch after shooting. This is not more than a very moderate pressure, but it is probable that the well will yield initially 25 to 50 barrels a day. The oil was encountered in a sandy layer some 15 feet thick in the Antrim shales.

"From an analysis in possession of the company it appears that the oil is very high grade, of specific gravity under five-tenths, and high in illuminating oil, gasoline, naphtha, etc.

"Since the strike at Saginaw I have been deluged with inquiries regarding oil and gas in Michigan, and indeed have little time for anything else. Several other drilling projects are under way, and it appears that a good deal of drilling will be done before the excitement abates. I am making plans to get samples and records of all deep wells drilled, for these will add enormously to our knowledge of the geology of the state, and will be useful in the future, even if the operations are not successful in locating oil or gas in commercial quantities."

Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau.

This is the week that the county boards of supervisors are in session, and before each of them in Northeastern Michigan will be presented the question of an appropriation to the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau. This is a question in which neither politics, sectional feeling nor personal grudges should have consideration.

The work that the Bureau has been doing for Northeastern Michigan and the state of Michigan is well worth while. The amount appropriated by any individual county is not a large sum, comparatively speaking, and the entire sum raised by the Bureau, outside of the boards of supervisors, is even a larger amount than appropriated by all the counties combined. Thus the aggregate amount of money raised enables the systematic campaign of advertising to be carried on, whereas any of the individual sums appropriated by any one county would go but a short distance in work of this class.

The work the past year has been well worth while, and has made a lasting impression on a great many people, a large number of whom will sooner or later investigate, with the idea of becoming possible citizens of this district. Furthermore, the publicity of the Development Bureau has perhaps had considerable to do with the fact that fewer people have moved out of Michigan this last year than in the past. Michigan people are beginning to have impressed upon them that opportunities in their own section are equal to or greater than many of the strenuously advertised sections of far away.

Limestone Inexhaustible.

Lime is one of our practically inexhaustible natural resources. The available limestone rock widely distributed over the United States can not be estimated even in millions or billions of tons. It is a fact also that the more lime is "thrown away"—scattered over the ground—the better it is for the country, for lime is a great soil renovator, and although it is believed to have no actual fertilizing value in the sense of being in itself a plant food, it is well known that spreading it upon the fields and plowing it under makes many soils more productive by "sweetening" them and rendering available the plant food they already contain. Lime has also a great variety of other highly important uses—in fact, few mineral products have so wide a scope of usefulness.

A little more than half the lime manufactured in the United States is used as structural material—in lime mortars, Portland cement mortars, concrete, gypsum plasters and whitewash. Large quantities are also used in the manufacture of chemicals, in clarifying many products, in the milling and paper industries, in sanitation, in the smelting and tinning industries, in sugar beet manufacture, etc.

WILBER SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1.

We wish we had a library.
We are having written review lessons this week.
Our school is studying Current Events, and find it very helpful.
Mr. Campbell visited our school last Friday and gave us a pleasant talk.
There are not many pupils at the present time, but more are expected after the busy time is over.
Rachel Stonehouse attended school during the month of September, and was neither absent nor tardy.
We received a list of new books Wednesday, which consisted of Languages, Civil Governments and Geographies.
The eighth grade held a class meeting last Thursday for the purpose of organizing. The officers are: Lulu Newberry, president; Ruth Lilyquist, secretary; Amy Abbott, treasurer; Helma Schaaf.

At noon a basket dinner will be served, and the county lecturer will have a prepared literary program for the afternoon session. Fortunes in Faces.

There's often much truth in the saying, "her face is her fortune," but it's never said where pimples, skin eruptions, blotches, or other blemishes disfigure it. Impure blood is back of them all, and shows the need of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They promote health and beauty. Try them. 25 cents at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s, Tawas City, and Jas. E. Dillon, of East Tawas.
