AUGUST C. BROWN,
City Treasurer.

Dropped Dead.

Edward Marsaw dropped dead at about 5 o'clock last Friday evening, as he was crossing the Mathew street bridge on his way home from the postoffice. He was discovered lying face downward, still breathing, but died in a couple of minutes. The deceased was a bachelor 68 years of age, and was born in Hammond, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. For many years he followed the life of a sailor, but a few years ago came to this city and purchased a home near that of his sister, the late Mrs. William Phelan. Dr. Crane was called and pronounced death due to acute dilatation of the heart. The remains were taken to the home of his nephew, Louis Phelan, where they were prepared for burial.

Monday morning his brother, William Marsaw, arrived from Hammond, St. Lawrence county, N. Y., and on Tuesday took the remains to that city for interment.

Ushered in With a Good Time.

The Good Neighbor club met at the home of Dr. Crane Tuesday evening, and held a County Fair. There were siddeshows, wheels of fortune, cane racks, throwing at dolls, shooting gallery, pink lemonade and all the other auxiliaries of an old-time county fair. Supper was served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Good Neighbor Club. Everybody had a good time. The affair was under the direct personal supervision of Neighbors Crane, Stickney and Downer.

Just at midnight the solemn tones of a bell began to ring thro the place, and Old Father Time was seen advancing, scythe in hand, followed by young and fresh Miss New Year. A general song-singing followed, after which the party dispersed.

Basket Ball.

If we had that auditorium we could have a basket ball game each week. But we are going to have it next winter, aren't we?

The Athletics began practice again last night. It is possible that we will be able to play a couple of games on the opera house floor in East Tawas.

The Ojibways won from the Independents of Oscoda December 26th by a score of 23 to 14. Only two field baskets were thrown by each team. The Ojibway Juniors won from the Oscoda High School by a score of 24 to 13. Both games were rough and slow.

The prize game was played Wednesday night between the Pastimes (coming back) and the Ojibways. It was a laugh from start to finish, with some very good basket ball thrown in. The score was 35 to 16, but had the Pastimes only been able to hold Ash, of the Ojibways, there would have been a different story to tell. Ash got 23 of the Ojibway counters. Frank Pinkerton's marvelous field basket with Rasty Babcock's steady foul shooting, were the features. A basket thrown by Hanson was much appreciated by the crowd. The others, Adams, LaBerge, Anker and Frank Small, tho ringing no baskets, played a game that brought the spectators to their feet repeatedly. Small, Staudacher, Ash, Nelem and Parker composed the Ojibway team, and played their usual fast game.

The Ojibways play Company D, of Alpena, the 7th. As a preliminary, Tawas City High School will play the Ojibway Reserves.

Card of Thanks.

To the friends who came to us with sympathy and assistance in our hour of sorrow, we wish to extend our sincere thanks.

WILLIAM MARSAW,
WILLIAM PHELAN,
MR. AND MRS. LOUIS PHELAN.

Frightful Polar Winds

blow with terrific force at the far north and play havoc with the skin, causing red, rough or sore chapped hands and lips, that need Bucklen's Arnica Salve to heal them. It makes the skin soft and smooth. Unrivaled for cold sores, also burns, boils, sores, ulcers, cuts, bruises and piles. Only 25 cents at J. M. Wuggazer & Co's, Tawas City, and James E. Dillon, of East Tawas.

CARRIED ON FATHER'S WORK

Mrs. Agnes Bruce, Daughter of Dr. Livingstone, Always Was Enthusiastic Over Africa.

Mrs. Agnes Livingstone Bruce, whose death is announced, was the elder daughter of Dr. Livingstone. Mrs. Bruce was born in Africa, at Kuruman, 64 years ago. When four years of age she was sent home to this country for her education, and on her father's return, after the famous journey in the Dark Continent, she spent a large amount of time in his company, traveling with him in Scotland and England. Her enthusiasm for her father's work in Africa was maintained all through her life, and it is matter for regret among those who knew her intimately, that a good deal of direct and personal information relating to the explorer and his work must now be lost, as Mrs. Bruce had not seen her way to record her impressions and reminiscences in any permanent form. Mrs. Bruce herself made six journeys to Central Africa and visited and explored the districts associated with her father's name.—London Evening Standard.

LESSON FOR ALL AMERICANS

Eloquent Words of Edward Everett at the Celebration of Washington's Birthday.

You have now assembled within these celebrated walls, to perform the last duties of respect and love, on the birthday of your benefactor. The spirit of the departed is in high communion with the spirit of the place—the temple worthy of the new name which we now behold inscribed on its walls. Listen, Americans, to the lesson which seems borne to us on the very air we breathe, while we perform these dutiful rites! Ye winds, that wafted the Pilgrims to the land of promise, fan, in their children's hearts, the love of freedom! Blood, which our fathers shed, cry from the ground! Echoing arches of this renowned hall, whisper back the voices of other days! Glorious Washington, break the long silence of that votive canvas! Speak, speak, marble lips; teach us the love of liberty protected by law.—Edward Everett.

ONLY ONE THING WRONG.

Marshall P. Wilder is responsible for a story which he says was told with immense effect by Lionel Brough, of a man who was very sick, and whose doctor told him that he had to change his mode of living, and prescribed "going to bed early, eating more roast beef, drinking beef tea, a month's rest at some quiet watering place, and just one cigar a day." A month later the invalid met the doctor and the latter complimented him on his improved appearance.

"Yes, doctor," said the patient. "I look better because I am better. I went to bed early, ate more roast beef, spent a month in the country, and took great care of myself; but, that one cigar a day nearly killed me, for I had never smoked before."

SHORT AND TO THE POINT.

A Kansas City young lady of few words went to a dentist to have a tooth extracted.

"Pull it!" she said to the dentist. "All right," replied the dentist. He applied the cocaine, adjusted his forceps and out came the tooth.

"Want it?" he asked the young lady, holding the tooth before her. "Want it!" she exclaimed. "Want it! What for? Do you think I'm an Elk?"—Saturday Evening Post.

THE OLDEST LEGISLATOR.

The oldest member of the house of commons, and undoubtedly the oldest member of any deliberative body in the world, is Samuel Young, Liberal member for East Cavan. He is eighty-two years old, though one unacquainted with him would not think him over sixty. He made a half-hour speech in favor of home rule during one of the recent debates.

Saturday January 11

On the above day we will present some lucky person who purchased their Holiday Candy at our store the handsome "Automatic Vacuum Cleaner," which has been on exhibition in our store window. Come in and see if you are the lucky one to lay aside the old broom and adopt the modern way of "sweeping."

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

[From a series of elaborate chemical tests.]

Comparative digestibility of food made with different baking powders.

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of two kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

99 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powders:

67 Per Cent. Digested

Royal Baking Powder raised food is shown to be of greatly superior digestibility and healthfulness.

Our Birthday.

The Herald this week begins the thirtieth year of its existence. During all these years it has made its regular weekly visits to a majority of the homes of this county, bringing its story of births, marriages and deaths, together with such other items of county news as were of interest. It has witnessed the transformation of our county from lumbering days to its present rapidly increasing and improved agricultural condition. And during all these years it has ever stood for what it believed was for the best interests of the county and its people. This will continue to be its policy.

The year just closed has been a most satisfactory one. Our list of readers has materially increased, and our advertising and job work has been the most profitable of the almost twenty years which the present publisher has guided the destinies of the paper. We wish to express our appreciation to our patrons for their liberal patronage.

The past year has been a prosperous one to the people of Isosco county, and the prospects for the year to come seem most bright. Our farmers are increasing in number, and the general conditions are improved. The county is rapidly developing into one of the finest agricultural counties of the state. While our city has experienced no "boom," the general conditions are steadily improving. Our mechanics and laboring men have had a most busy year, with every prospect that it will continue.

The Herald rejoices in all the good things that comes to our people, realizing fully that the prosperity of the community means more prosperity for us.

With the best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year, we are,

Sincerely yours,
THE PUBLISHER.

Presidential Power and Responsibility.

We may summarize, almost in his own words, Mr. Wilson's views of the great office which he is soon to occupy: Originally the President was regarded merely as the legal executive, perhaps, the leader of the nation, but certainly not the leader of his party, at any rate while in office. But through the operation of forces inherent in the very nature of government he has become all three, and by inevitable consequence, the most heavily burdened officer in the world. The burden of fulfilling these three roles, with their ever-increasing demands upon his time and strength, is so great that men of ordinary physique and discretion cannot bear it and live, unless the strain be somewhat relieved. If this is not done we shall be obliged, he says, to pick our chief magistrates from among the necessarily small class of wise and prudent athletes.

Mr. Wilson doubts, however, whether the deliberate opinion of the country would consent to make of the President a less powerful officer than he is. It lies with the President himself, he says, to secure his own relief, without shirking his responsibility or effacing himself. He may, if he will, act more and more upon the advice of his executive colleagues in the making of appointments and upon them he may devolve the determination of multitudinous details, reserving for himself only the larger questions of policy and a general oversight of the business of government and of his subordinates who actually carry it on. Too many Presidents have taken their work literally and have attempted the impossible. "But," he concludes, "we can safely predict that as the multitude of the President's duties increases, as it must with the growth and widening activities of the nation itself, the incumbents of the great office will more and more come to feel that they are administering it in its truest purpose and with greatest effect by regarding themselves as less and less executive officers and more and more directors of affairs and leaders of the nation,—men of counsel and of the sort of action that makes for enlightenment." — From "Woodrow Wilson's Idea of the Presidency," by James W. Garner, in the American Review of Reviews for January.

Horses for Sale.

I have for sale a span of light work horses, also a yearling colt and two spring colts. Inquire of John Jordan, Tawas City, Mich.

A Fable.

Years ago a man had three grown sons, for whom he selected vocations. The first one was very smart, the next one very good, the last one very simple minded. In his wisdom the man said: "This one who is so smart I will make a lawyer of; the good one shall be a preacher; poor Jack knows so little, I will make a farmer of him."

But times have changed. There is no occupation in the world that calls for more ability than farming. It is a man's job. To plow and sow and reap without understanding is no more real farming than cutting a man's leg off with an ax is real surgery.

Agriculture is the basis of the nation's wealth. The soil is our greatest asset, and conserving and building this up helps everyone.

In ten years, between 1900 and 1910, our population increased fifteen million—about 21 per cent; our farm area increased a little over 4 per cent; our meat-producing animals actually dropped off over twenty millions in number.

The government and the states have expended over two hundred millions of dollars in developing scientific knowledge relating to agriculture. This knowledge is practically in cold storage. Why not get it out and put it to work on the farms? That intellectual giant and empire builder, James J. Hill, says: "We know enough now of agriculture, if it were applied, to double our farm yield and to triple the farmers' income."

Our state is endeavoring through its farmers' institutes, experiment station bulletins and its various field men to get this knowledge out to the farmers.

Last year near four hundred young men spent eight weeks at the Agricultural College getting hold of practical knowledge. These men carried valuable information back to the farm. They were able to put into practical use the information gained at the college. This gave them a broader outlook upon their profession and enabled them to increase very much the production of their land.

A young man who expects to spend his life on the farm can make no investment of time or money which will yield him such great returns as a short course at the M. A. C. Eight weeks in time and fifty dollars in money will open up a new world to him. From a money standpoint it will give him an exalted opinion of his life's work, and this is what the farmer needs more than anything else. He should magnify his calling.

"Old Horse" Sale.

Our lease with Uncle Sam having practically expired, and having decided (by urgent request) to retire to private life, we, the undersigned, will offer for sale at the National Capital, Washington, D. C., March 5th, 1913, all the following described property, to-wit:

- (a) One elephant, about 40 years old, and has the foot rot.
- (b) One set of injunctions and high court living, old enough to wean; sired by the gold bugs and damned by everybody.
- (c) One republican platform, as good as new; has only been used for campaign purposes. In this platform a large number of planks from the democratic platform have been inserted, but they cannot be distinguished and they will go with the lot.
- (d) One Big Stick, somewhat worn by over use.
- (e) One republican machine, now badly out of repair.
- (f) One financial system, well supplied with clearing house certificates and very little cash.
- (g) A large quantity of G. O. P. bric-a-brac, consisting of old dinner pails, grandpa hats, coon skins, Teddy bears, Taft smiles, and other things too numerous to mention.

This sale will positively take place on the above day and date, regardless of weather, and everything will be closed out at slaughter prices.

Roast crow will be served by the Old Boys' Republican Club.

Everybody, regardless of past party servitude, invited.

This stuff must be cleared away.

Terms: Cash before removing the property.

Joe Cannon, auctioneer; Col. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan, Vanderbilt, managers; Tobiascus (Tedd) Roosevelt, clerk.—Saginaw News.

Modern Woodmen Birthday.

The Modern Woodmen of America, the world's largest fraternal beneficiary society, will be 30 years old on Jan. 5. This date falls on Sunday, and local camps throughout the country will celebrate the occasion at their first meeting in the new year.

Since its organization at Lyons, Ia., in 1883, this society has paid $5,511 death claims, aggregating $115,897,455.56. This does not include death claims for the past two months. Including these the total number would approach the 67,058 soldiers of the Union army killed in battle from 1861 to 1865.

The society operates in forty-six states, the District of Columbia and the four western provinces of Canada, and has members in Alaska, our island possessions, and all parts of Europe, Asia and Africa to which civilization has penetrated.

The society's statistical record, published the first of the current year, shows the following: Beneficial members, 1,183,733; social (uninsured) members, 35,576; insurance in force, $1,863,194,000.00; local camps or lodges, 15,265; death claims paid in 1911 numbered 6,918, representing disbursements of $11,613,843.85; actual expense of management, 93 cents per member.

Pensions for Teachers.

In Michigan, as in many other commonwealths, the school system is under the general control of the state. School districts elect local boards of management, whose powers and duties are strictly defined by law. Competition in education is banished.

School teachers are examined and their qualifications determined under the definite regulations of state law. All that parents have to do with education is to raise the children to a certain age, and then the state requires that they be sent to school. The parents have no choice as to teachers or courses of study. A certain routine is prescribed and it must be observed. Individuality is lost sight of, as all are treated alike. This is necessarily the case where education is a state affair.

Teachers do not have much to hope for in the way of promotion and advancement. In comparison with most professions they are poorly paid. During vacations they get no pay, and have an opportunity to spend their savings during the month the schools are open. After they have given all their lives to the training of other people's children, they are discharged and forgotten. They have outlived early friends and relatives, and the state cares nothing more for them.

They have had to keep up a neat appearance in order to hold their positions. The inability to save a competence for old age makes teaching school a temporary occupation. The young man or woman fresh from a high school course of many years, and beyond that from a state normal or university, takes up school teaching as a makeshift until something better presents itself. Something better may never come. Keeping on until they are old is more likely to be a misfortune than a desire.

This not uncommon outcome of a life spent in the service of others, under a state system, has led certain fair-minded persons to propose a pension for teachers, who have served as such a certain number of years, the chief burden of which would be assumed by the teachers themselves. A bill for the incoming legislature is being carefully considered and prepared, pursuant to which, if it should become a law, a teacher may be honorably discharged after twenty-five or thirty years of work, and a sum equal to a certain percentage of the salary received be paid for the remainder of his or her life. This would close the gate to poverty lane at least.

The fund out of which the pensions would be paid will be provided by the payment, regularly, of a small percentage out of the salary each teacher receives, and the rest from an appropriation by the state legislature. This is entirely feasible and would require but a small contribution from any one person.

The plan is similar to many benefit associations for employees, which large industrial concerns have helped to organize, and to the funds of which they and their employees contribute regularly, thus establishing them on a sound basis, except that generally the benefits apply only in case of sickness or death. In the case of the teachers, a pension is to be paid, and the state takes the place of the employer.

These mutual aid organizations of various kinds, honestly and economically conducted, are a distinguishing feature of the present time, and the plan proposed for school teachers appears to be very commendable, as well as just, Jackson Citizen.

A Hero in a Lighthouse.

Fortyyears J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50 cts. at J. M. Wuggazer & Co.'s, Tawas City, and James E. Dillon, of East Tawas.

Your sheep, hogs, cattle, horses and mules are subject to deadly attacks of worms. These ravenous pests multiply by the millions, starve your stock, keep them poor, weak, and out of condition.

SAL-VET

The Great Worm Destroyer and Conditioner

is a medicated salt that will rid every animal on your place of worms quickly and keep them free and healthy. No pay if it fails. No dosing, no drenching, just put it where all your stock can run and eat it freely. They will doctor themselves, three faster, and put on money-making flesh. Sal-Vet is not expensive. We carry it in six sizes from 75c up. Come in and get a package to try. You will be pleased with the results. We guarantee it.

Chancery Notice.

State of Michigan—In the Circuit Court for the County of Isosco, in Chancery,

Howard M. Belknap,
Complainant,

vs.
Myron E. Horv and his unknown heirs, legatees and devisees, Defendants.

Suit pending in the said court at Tawas City, on the 14th day of December, A. D. 1912. In this cause it appears that a bill of complaint, duly sworn to and filed herein, that Myron E. Horv and his unknown heirs, legatees and devisees and assigns are necessary and proper parties herein, and it further appears that the residence of said Myron E. Horv is unknown, or whether he is dead or living, and that it is unknown who are his heirs, devisees, legatees or assigns, and it is further appearing that said complainant has made diligent search and inquiry to ascertain such facts, on motion of Edwin Rawden, solicitor for said complainant, it is ordered that the appearance of said defendant, Myron E. Horv, and his unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, and each of them, if any there are, be entered in this cause with forty days from the date of this order, and that in default thereof said bill be taken as confessed. It is further ordered that within twenty days complainant cause this publication to be continued once in each week for six weeks in succession.

MAIN J. CONNINE,
Circuit Judge.

The above suit is concerning lands, and is brought to quit the title thereof; said lands being described as follows, to-wit:

Lot number four in block number four of Bullock and Horv's original plat of the County of Isosco, Isosco county, Michigan.

JANUARY.

The flight of Time
From year to year
Is worth a word
In passing here.
His eyes are dim,
His hair is gray,
But he keeps on
Keeping, anyway.

Full many a younger man than he has hit the planet or the sea, and show men on their thrilling round have come a cropper on the ground. But Time, though frequently beset, has never lost his balance yet, and never will until some clown of aviation runs him down.

With ever slow
And measured grind,
The centuries
Dissolve behind,
And Ages,
As they hurry thence,
Go by like by pickets
On a fence.

A lot of hifalutin things are beating ether with their wings, and young men unafraid to die go bravely up and down the sky; but Time was flying when the dawn discovered naught to light upon, and when the hollow is a hill, he will be aviating still.

He never stops
For gasoline
Nor has to readjust
His gears,
But deftly floats
In his machine
Upon the bosom
Of the years.

The host at Babel saw him there—a distant figure in the sky, and just to see him in the air the pyramids were built so high. He knew the principle of flight before the world began to turn, and has forgotten more than Wright and all the rest of them will learn.

January gets its name from Janus, the celebrated two-faced god of the Romans. It was said of Janus that he could see things both coming and going, and he was therefore placed on guard at the beginning of the year. Up to that time the year had begun with March, but after Caesar took Ireland, the Irish insisted upon having St. Patrick's day shoved along where it would not be too cold to march, and Caesar made January the beginning of the year. This occasioned a great uprising in Rome, where the year had always begun in March, and Caesar's defense before the Pillar of Pompey is considered to have been the finest oratorical effort of his career. He told the people that in doing this for the Irish he had probably forestalled a movement for home rule, which reconciled everybody at once, and no more was heard of it.

The clumsy calendar will turn
Upon its axis in the night,
And legislatures will concern
Themselves with what is just and right.

The practical reformer's kick
For longer bed sheets will ascend,
And the wags will counsel him to stick
His head out at the other end.

If all the remedies proposed in January ever passed, the current comedies would close for being easily outclassed. We'd have to call the army out to see the statues were obeyed, and people following about would make a laughable parade.

We'd clap a railroad man in jail for looking cross-eyed at a fare, and country butter going stale would jail a farmer anywhere. The blondes would have to marry blondes, the shorts could never marry tails, and men would have to go the bonds of people wearing overalls.

A legislature just convened is far more terrible than flood, and only fate has intervened to keep our name from being mud. We've had projected at us things which hitting us had lain us dead, and every January brings its grave and seasonable dread.

And what with new men moving in,
And predecessors moving out,
The month will echo with the din
Of passing victory and rout.
A politician in the van
Is not by that sign, strange to tell,
A happy and contented man,
There being moving vans as well.

The very thunder of their wheels will shake the planet later on, and many men we're giving meals will see the privilege withdrawn. The hungry democrat will sit and bid the country pass the hash, and the people rendered fat with it will face the grocery for cash.

There is no other ready means of making certain justice bats that equals turning in the leans and thereby turning out the fats. If we Americans were wise enough to keep it up, perhaps, we'd all be uniform in size and handy, like the little Japs.

We would not see a lot of dang republicans who fill a door, and rangy democrats who hang around like peppers in a store. We'd all be just about the same, with neither any thins nor thicks, and independent of the game of office-holding politics.

The democrats would eat a while, and then the other fellows would, and each in thoro-going style would serve to do the other good. About the time one got the gout, the other one would raise a din, and folks would turn the feeder out and turn the other fellow in.

At any rate, the long-delayed
And Arctic breezes will arrive,
And where the calf has blithely played
He'll be in luck to be alive.
He'll burrow way into the stack,
And when the storms begins to pop,
He'll brace his legs and press his back
With all his might against the top.

The Pujio Committee, which is investigating the Money Trust, will entertain everybody who has appeared before it on the night of the 22d with a Washington birthday dinner. Mr. Morgan will deliver the principal toast. He will tell how he held his regular commission out of what he told the committee without hurting his conscience. While it is generally known that Mr. Morgan did do this, people are curious to know what his commission is, and there will be a big crowd out.

Then February will return,
With bitter cold and cruel,
And make it certain that we burn
The balance of our fuel.

A Girl's Wild Midnight Ride.

To warn people of a fearful forest fire in the Catskills a young girl rode horseback at midnight and saved many lives. Her deed was glorious, but lives are often saved by Dr. King's New Discovery in curing lung trouble, coughs and colds, which might have ended in consumption or pneumonia. "It cured me of a dreadful cough and lung disease," writes W. R. Patterson, Wellington, Tex., "after four in our family had died with consumption, and I gained 87 pounds." Nothing so sure and safe for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. M. Wuggrazer & Co., Tawas City, and James E. Dillon, of East Tawas.

JUST A MERE SUGGESTION

Huby's Plait, However, Threatened to Develop into a First-Class Family Spat.

"Gertrude!"
"Yes, John."
"We've been married long enough now to talk plainly to each other."
"What's the matter now?"
"If I do something you don't like I want you to tell me of it, and if you do things I don't like I think I ought to tell you of them, too."
"I suppose I don't suit you at all?"
"Yes you do, but I think we ought to talk over our likes and dislikes. In that way we can get along so much better."
"John, I want you to understand right now that I was brought up every bit as well as you, and know how to behave. And as to my cooking, I can do as well as your mother ever did."
"I had hoped that you wouldn't lose your temper. But if you're going to act this way we may as well drop the matter right here."
"What is the matter, anyhow?"
"I only wanted to suggest that when you darn my socks it would be better for me if you would tie the knots on the outside, instead of the inside."

WAS BEATEN BY 'SCATTERING'

Candidate for Office in Mississippi Loses to Fellow Trotted Out at Last Minute.

"One of the most amusing election stories I ever heard comes from Mississippi in the days just succeeding the Civil war," said F. A. Herold of Newark, Del., at the Raleigh. "It was one of the favorite stories of the late L. Q. C. Lamar of Mississippi, who was one of the best story tellers of his day.

"Senator Beck of Kentucky, himself of no mean capacity in that line, pronounced Lamar the best story teller he ever knew. The story is this: In one of the small towns of that state lived a man with a chronic desire to hold office. Any office would do for him. He had been a candidate for office many times, but had always been defeated. Finally, an opportunity arose for him, so it was thought. An office was to be filled by election, for which there was no announced candidate except this man. Under the constitution of the state a majority of all the votes cast was required to elect.

"On the evening of the election every one expected, of course, that this man would be elected. His friends were congratulating him that at last he had secured an office, and were jollifying over the event. It was suggested to him that he go over to the polls and ascertain what the vote was. He did so, but remained quite a while. When he returned in a crestfallen spirit, his friends asked him what the result was. He was silent for a moment, and then said that he had not been elected.

"How is that?" they asked. "There was no other candidate against you." "That's what I thought," he replied; "but at the last minute they trotted out a fellow named 'Scattering,' and he beat me to death. I won't run any more."—Washington Post.

New York Police Mascot.

In addition to its official "yaller dog" mascot, Bum, the old Mulberry street police station has acquired another dog, known as Peg Post. He is also of an ochre tint, and his mysterious behavior has baffled the wisest sleuths in the station. When the men begin their tours on the stationary or "peg" posts at ten o'clock at night, the dog comes trotting from somewhere and takes up his station with whichever policeman on duty in the precinct suits his fancy for that particular night. Frequently he changes from one post to another, and remains on watch until the stationary posts give way to regular patrol at six in the morning. Then he trots away, and is not seen until the next night. Offers of tidbits from the men's lunches have been repeatedly refused by Peg Post and his agility has thus far prevented any one from learning the number of the dog license he wears on his collar. —New York Tribune.

Concerning the Mole.

Naturalists aver that among common animals few have been less studied in their life history than the mole. Accordingly a British scientist has turned his attention to the mole, with the result that some interesting data concerning this queer creature have been collected.

Under the edifice which the mole constructs above the surface of the ground will always be found a series of tunnels. A curious feature, almost invariably found, is a perpendicular run penetrating about a foot below the bottom of the nest and then turning upward to meet another run. A mole is never, one authority contends, found in his nest, although it may be yet warm from his body when opened. Guided by smell and hearing, a mole frequently locates the nest of a partridge or pheasant above his run and, penetrating it from below, eats the eggs. The adult mole is practically blind, but there are embryonic indications that the power of sight in the race has deteriorated.—Harper's Weekly.

BUCKSHOT WAS FOR RASTUS

Turkey He Had Given to Mrs. Ransom Was Tame Enough to Eat out of One's Hand.

Rastus had called at Judge Ransom's house and made a present of a fine turkey to the judge's wife. "Mah brotheh had two," he said to ease her suspicions, "and so he gave me this one."

Mrs. Ransom gave him in return two bright silver dollars, on the condition that the bird was a tame turkey, and not the wild kind, because the judge detested getting his mouth full of shot every time he wanted a bite.

"Dose turkeys was bofe of 'em tame enough to eat out of yo' hand, Mis' Ransom," said Rastus, earnestly. "That night Judge Ransom and his wife sat down to a deliciously browned turkey, piping hot. At the first bite, the judge jumped to his feet, spitting grape shot in all directions.

"Send for that fellow!" he shouted wrathfully. In due time a panic-stricken Rastus came in trembling.

"I sent for you, you black scoundrel, to ask you why in the Sam Hill you lied about that turkey not being a wild one? Why, it was loaded with bird shot!"

"Dem shot was intended foh me, yo' honoh," said Rastus, humbly.—Kansas City Star.

CONCERNING THE ELOCUTIONIST.

"Here's jobs advertised for 400 men!" "Geel Jeeet sklp de horrible details, won't you?"

The Boston Version.

"Chicago is a great town. Everybody boasts."

"Boston inhabitants are excessively ardent agitators for the uplift, too," responded the gentleman from that burg.

A Promised Reform.

Mrs. Hustler—When women rule there'll be no more of this "wine, women and song" thing.

Mrs. Hustler—No? Mrs. Hustler—No; it'll be "mirth, men and music."—Judge.

His Parting Words.

"Goodby, daughter, I suppose you will be engaged a number of times this summer."

"I suppose so, dad."

"Well, you're getting along. See if you can't make one of them permanent."

More Profitable.

"Ole Scribbler—I hear you have given up fiction writing."

Young Scribbler—No; merely changed my style. I've become an advertisement writer.—Judge.

HOW JIM EDWARDS REFORMED

Incorrigible Youngster Commences Reformation By Giving Mother Money He Had Won.

Jimmy Edwards had been an incorrigible boy, and Miss Morn, who had struggled valiantly to guide him into the path of virtue, was much relieved when she heard him announce he was going to be a "good boy."

"I am so glad to hear you say that Jimmy," she said sympathetically. "Yes'm," replied the boy, "I'm getting to be pretty old now—most fourteen—an' it's time I was tryin' to help my mother. I begun yesterday. I earned a dollar for her, just in one day."

"That was very nice, Jimmy," encouraged Miss Morn. "I'm so glad. How did you do it?"

"Well, you know, Miss Morn, mother give me 10 cents to buy some milk, an' as I was goin' to the store, I seen some fellers shootin' craps, an' I got in the game. I made a quarter with that dime. Then the fellers quit, 'cos they said I had all the luck. I found some other fellers an' after I'd cleared 'em out I went over to the lot back of Beerstein's saloon an' played with different fellers till I earned a whole dollar. Gee, but I had luck! Wednesday's my lucky day, I guess."

Up to Him.

"I feel that I could overcome any obstacle for you," he declared.

"There is only one obstacle that you will have to overcome to get me," she replied.

"What is it? Tell me, and I will overcome it."

"I have made up my mind that I will never marry any one whose ears stick out like the wings on a monoplane. Get yours to flatten themselves against your head and the obstacle will be overcome."

Lessons From The Past.

"Suppose you do find your honest man, Diogenes," said one of the fellows in the crowd; "how will you recognize him?"

"I'll know him," responded Diogenes, "by his habit of minding his own business and not looking like any of you chaps."

From which we learn that men who wear celluloid clothing should not approach too near a lighted lantern.

UNPLEASANT THOUGHTS.

That is a wonderful tree which flourishes on Fierro, one of the larger islands of the Canary group. Fierro island is so dry that not even a small rivulet is to be found on it, and for that absence of water a curious compensation is made by nature in providing a tree such as is not found elsewhere.

The leaves of this tree are long and narrow and they remain green the year through. The gentle mystery of this tree, as travelers assure us, is a cloud that hovers over it constantly, and condensing into water, saturates the leaves, from which the moisture drops continually and keeps the stems which are in excavations beneath them always well filled with water. These rain trees are few on the island, which, it is said, accounts for its sparse population.

Starlings as Planters.

Starlings were first noticed flocking up Cramond island, a short distance from Edinburgh, in unusual numbers in the autumn of 1899 and they continued to frequent the place for some years until, as is their habit, they deserted it for a fresher and cleaner spot.

A recent visit to the island showed a remarkable after result of the starlings' visit. In the small plantation, which consisted of Scots fir trees of stunted growth, there is now a strong showing of bountree bushes. The starlings feed greedily on the berries of the bountree and from the seeds there is now grown up a crop of trees introduced by the agency of the starlings.—London Globe.

Musical Chicks.

A farmer near the town of Sunbury, Pa., has a brood of Rhode Island Red chicks that he claims are musical. Several weeks ago a friend presented to him a setting of eggs from his pet hen. On his way home the farmer stopped at another friend's house, and while he was being entertained the eggs, in a shoe box, were placed on the piano. The friend played several selections during the evening. Going home, the farmer set the eggs under a Plymouth Rock biddy, and twelve chickens were hatched. Now that they have grown big enough to make a noise, each has a "peep" that makes a complete note. When the entire twelve make a noise it sounds like running the musical scale.—Exchange.

BOOK BOUND IN 1,000 GEMS

Original Edition of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam is the Most Costly in the World.

The most costly bound book in the world is a copy of the original edition of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, the green-morocco covers of which are literally studded with a thousand gems set in gold. To be exact, there are 1,050 stones in gold settings, firmly fixed in the leather, the book having taken nearly two years to produce. The gems include rubies, amethysts, emeralds, garnets, turquoises, topazes, and olivines. The front cover, besides being richly gemmed with flashing jewels, is decorated with three peacocks inlaid in the natural colors. The eyes of the feathers are jeweled with ninety-seven topazes, all being specially cut to the correct shape of the eye. The eyes of the birds are rubies and the crests of topazes. A border depicting a vine has 250 amethysts studded in groups to represent bunches of grapes. On the back cover of this marvelous book is a faithful model of a Persian mandoline made of mahogany and inlaid with silver, pearl, satin-wood, and ebony. A snake with eyes of emeralds and a skull with teeth of ivory are other ornaments of this unique book, which is cased in a carved oak casket.

Whistling Blackbird.

The English town of Walthamstow, Essex, has a blackbird that is an expert whistler. Its whistle is loud and clear—a rare accomplishment for an English blackbird. Its name is "Joe."

When "Joe" was being photographed, the other day, the photographer gave him a couple of worms. Whereupon "Joe" whistled notes that Walthamstow understands to mean, "Are you working?" The photographer took the hint, and while he was busy with his camera "Joe" stuck up "If you want to know the time ask a policeman." Two dancing ditties were given in admirable time and tune, and in response to a call for an encore "Joe" whistled "The Old Folks at Home" in swinging style. The owner of the bird caught it two years ago when it was a young one, and it took him nearly two years to teach it to become an accomplished whistler. The owner thinks the bird is the largest specimen in the country. It measures eleven inches from the tip of the tail to the end of the beak.

Longevity of Birds.

It used to be contended that ravens lived longer than any other species of birds, and it was said that their age frequently exceeded a century. Recent studies of the subject indicate that no authentic instance of a raven surpassing seventy years of age is of record. But parrots have been known to attain an age of one hundred years.

There is a record of a golden eagle which died at Schoenbrunn at the age of 118 years. Another golden eagle was kept in the tower of London for ninety years. A third died at Vienna 104 years old. Geese and swans are tenacious of life, and extraordinary accounts exist of the great age they have attained. Buffon and other authorities have credited them with eighty and one hundred years of life.—Harper's Weekly.
