The earnestness of Michigan women who desire the ballot is shown by the zeal with which they are pushing another campaign for votes for women. The large vote in favor of the woman suffrage amendment last November is significant of the wishes of the men of our state that their womenfolk shall have a square deal and the protection the ballot affords.

One of the biggest land deals lately put through is the sale of 15,000 acres of land in Roscommon county, by the St. Helen Development Company, to Sioux City, Iowa, men to use for stock raising. Twelve thousand five hundred acres of this land is located near St. Helen and will be used for cattle in two ranches. Another tract of 2,500 acres is located immediately south of Roscommon and will be used for a sheep ranch. Active work is already in progress on all three of the tracts referred to, getting things in readiness to put stock on the lands as soon as spring opens, surveys have been made, running fence lines, a saw mill has been purchased and lumber for the buildings is now being manufactured, while fence posts for the miles of woven wire fences are being cut.

"Gentlemen's Night."

Last Friday evening the Twentieth Century Club of this city held its annual "gentlemen's night," when the club members entertained their husbands and gentleman friends. The affair was held at the Hotel Isosco, and Mine Host and Hostess Kane served a banquet worthy of any affair of this nature. The "eats" were elaborate and served in the most dainty and most satisfactory manner. The evening's entertainment furnished by the ladies consisted of a number of entertaining games, the most pleasing of which was undoubtedly that of identifying the members of the club from outline likeness. At the close of the luncheon a number of very interesting toasts were responded to by the ladies and their guests, and several excellent musical selections were rendered. This annual affair is one that is always looked forward to with much pleasure by the participants.

Citizens' Club Banquet.

On Thursday evening of last week, at the Hotel Holland, East Tawas, was held the sixth annual banquet of the Citizens' Social Club of the 23rd Judicial circuit, comprising the counties of Isosco, Alcona and Oscoda. About 80 of the business and professional men of the three counties sat down to an excellent "spread" served by Landlord Anker, to which all did ample justice.

After the craving of the inner man had been satisfied, President Will McGillivray called the assemblage to order and several appropriate toasts were responded to in a happy manner. The occasion was enlivened by a large portion of most excellent vocal and instrumental music.

It was decided to hold the next banquet at Harrisville in February, 1914, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, George W. Cowell, Harrisville; vice-president, Will McGillivray, Oscoda; secretary-treasurer, N. C. Harting, Tawas City.

Wardwell Chase Dead.

Wardwell Chase was born in Orangeville, N. Y., May 12, 1826. He was left an orphan in early boyhood. He was married to Ellen Disbrow, of Attica, N. Y., Dec. 29, 1847. They removed to Cohoctah, Livingston county, Michigan, in 1852, where they resided in their farm home for 16 years.

Mr. Chase enlisted in the 9th Michigan Infantry, Company K, in October, 1861, and served until the close of the war.

In 1868 Mr. and Mrs. Chase moved to Plainfield, Isosco county, where they resided on their homestead seven years, after which they bought a farm on the Plank Road in Tawas township. In 1908 they retired from farm life and removed to Owosso, where Mr. Chase passed away February 22, at 11:15 p.m., aged 86 years, 9 months and 10 days.

Mr. Chase was the father of six children, two daughters having died in infancy. He is survived by his aged widow and four sons—Adelbert of Owosso, Frank of Flint, Corydon at home, and Earnest of this city, also an adopted daughter, Mrs. Edward Woizeschke, also of this city. He is also survived by 19 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren and a host of friends who regret his loss.

Mr. Chase was a member of G. K. Warren Post at East Tawas, and of the Congregational church of Tawas City. While in Isosco county he held several public offices of trust, which he faithfully filled. He was also active in G. A. R. and church work. Since going to Owosso his health has been too feeble to permit of much activity.

The funeral services were held at the late residence Tuesday, February 25, at 1 p.m., Rev. York, of the First Baptist church, officiating. He spoke very fittingly of the long and useful life of the deceased. Interment took place in the Coughran cemetery, near the old home in Cohoctah.

Spring Primaries.

The primary election to be held thru-out the county on Wednesday, March 5, for the purpose of putting in nomination candidates on the various tickets for county road commissioner, to be voted for at the April election, is causing very little stir.

A movement was put on foot in the legislature several weeks ago tending toward the repeal of this part of the present bungle some and complicated primary election law, but it was started too late to be worked out before the party conventions, where it was proposed to have the nominations made, and as a consequence it will cost the taxpayers a good deal more than the salary of the official to have the candidate nominated.

There are but three candidates in the field for the nomination. John Preston, of Tawas township, and Dr. R. J. Smith, of Whittemore, are contesting for the republican nomination. Charles W. Force, of Tawas township, is the only candidate for the democratic nomination. The progressives failed to circulate petitions for any candidate.

Do We Need Good Roads?

We pay as much for poor roads as it would cost to have good ones. Let's get good ones and save wear and tear on horse flesh, on wagons and on other vehicles, save part of the cost of taking produce to market, save hours of discomfort wading along in mud and ruts, save ourselves from being isolated from the outside world because it is too much work to get to it thru ruts, holes and mud. Where roads are the best, farm values raise and the farmers never go back to the old way of "anything will do." Some people will oppose any progressive movement, and of course buck good roads. If they had lived 50 years ago they would have been opposed to a railroad coming anywhere near us.—Marlette Leader.

For Sale.

My ranch of 280 acres, on Picket creek, one mile north of Sand lake. A good place to pasture stock. Lumber camps and stable, good fence and good water. A good place for a new beginner to start. RECOGNIZED A PATCH

By JACOB LOWENBURG.

"Is there any interesting incident in his life that the public would enjoy reading about?" The reporter turned to Mr. Johnson, the friend of the great singer, whose concert they had just come from.

"Why, yes," Mr. Johnson smiled at the memory. "It happened about seven years ago, and was the beginning of Alfred Hendricks' career."

"May I have it?" The reporter took out his pad and pencil ready to take his notes.

"It was late afternoon, and I was coming from the ferryboat with Mrs. Johnson, then my fiancée; as we stepped into the street she dropped her umbrella. I stooped to pick it up, and a small box, containing the engagement ring I had just purchased for her, dropped out. There were a lot of newsboys gathered about. One grabbed the box before I could get it and disappeared into the crowd. I instantly darted after him, and Mrs. Johnson after me.

"We ran through Twenty-third street to the elevated station; he ran up one side and down the other, I continuing after him. He was a better runner than I, so in a short time he managed to lose me. Mrs. Johnson had grown tired and taken the car to my mother's, so I at once telephoned to the police, then went home."

"Gee! What luck to lose such a ring." The reporter spoke sympathetically.

"We put several detectives on the case, but there was little they could do, outside of watching the various newsboys at the ferry."

"That evening my mother was not well, so my fiancée sat with her, and father and I went to the theater. It was amateur night; they had the usual bill, followed by the amateurs. Most of them were impossible.

"About the tenth on the bill was a little fellow who looked about ten years old. He was a nervous chap and very shabby. He worried through the first verse of a popular song. Something in the song—or perhaps it was the boy—pleased the howling mob, for they actually let him sing the chorus, not once, but fully a dozen times.

"His voice was beautiful, the most vibrant, sympathetic boy's voice I have ever heard."

"Well, it's wonderful, now," the reporter smiled knowingly.

"As he left the stage," Mr. Johnson resumed, "something familiar caught my eye—a patch on the seat of his trousers. I had chased that same patch from the ferry to Ninth avenue that afternoon. The patch was black-and-white check, and the trousers gray.

"I whispered a word to my father, and together we left the theater. Father hurried to the police station, and I went to the stage door, found the manager and told him the story.

"The boy was waiting with the crowd for his prize. He received it; then Mr. Emery, the manager, brought him to me.

"Johnny," he said, 'did you ever see this gentleman before?'

"No, sir," the boy replied promptly.

"But I was sure about the patch, so I simply accused him at once. For a minute he seemed terribly frightened, then he looked me in the eye and said:

"I didn't take your ring, sir.' And his lip trembled slightly.

"But, my boy, I think I said it kindly, I recognize the patch on your trousers."

"Oh, sir," he smiled, 'these ain't my pants; I didn't have any so good, so he lent them to me, the boy next door did. He's sick tonight.'

"I laughed at the boy, but the clue was too good to lose, so I offered him a large reward if he would take me to his friend.

"Will you put him in jail?' he asked. And it was not until I had given him my word not to punish his friend, if the ring was returned, that he consented to take me to his house. He had worn the pants, and he could not be unfaithful to the one who had been kind to him."

"Did you recover the ring, and what became of the thief?" The reporter had been busily writing.

"We sent the guilty one to a farm, where he was cared for, and Mrs. Johnson received the ring in due time."

"And little Hendricks?"

"We looked up his family records, and finding he was quite alone, we adopted him. And not once in the seven years have we regretted it."

"That was a lucky patch for him." As the reporter spoke Hendricks joined them.

"You are correct," he said to the reporter. "That was a patch worth having, and it is now almost my most valued possession. 'Outside of my'—tears came into his eyes—"foster father and mother."

Shall the United States Build Highways?

It is a question which is slowly but surely forcing itself upon the national legislature. Many senators and representatives now believe that the building of a system of national highways is of more economic importance than any other public work—more vital than the question of a large navy, more useful than any river and harbor improvement, more necessary than the Panama Canal. For highways are built and owned by the people and are free to all the people. A few years ago road bills had short shrift in congress—at present there are nearly a hundred bills before congress dealing with road building in one form or another.

Altho the "good roads" idea has been gathering force and headway for many years, its advocates are still pulling in many directions. Some road associations want state highways with national aid. Others want state highways without national aid. Still others want good roads paid for by the counties through which they pass, without any aid. One, at least, believes firmly that the question is not only one for states, counties, cities and towns, but for the nation.

The National Highways Association believes that the beginning of a comprehensive good road system for the nation must be made by the federal government.

Such a system consists of fifty thousand miles of national highways. It is not intended that this map should represent the entire good road system needed by the United States. It is merely a tentative suggestion of the national system of national highways, from which good roads built by states, by counties, and by cities and towns, would grow and multiply.

It is universal experience that one mile of good road breeds another mile. Put a state-wide, good road down anywhere in this country, and in ten years there will be dozens of good roads reaching it from all parts of the state. Put down a system of national highways, built and maintained by the national government, and the various state legislatures and county officials would soon see the advantages of connecting all parts of the states with those national roads.

There are two million miles of roads in the United States. The fifty thousand miles of highway shown on the map is but a fraction over two per cent of this mileage. But improve these fifty thousand miles into good roads, and keep them good roads by proper maintenance, and fifty thousand miles more would grow almost over night, and then another fifty thousand and another and another, until our great country, with its huge territory, would be crossed and re-crossed with good roads, as France is today.

France has national highways. These are immense trunk line roads, great arteries of commerce, and from these the smaller roads are built by the provinces of France, just as the states and counties of our states will build feeders and connections to a national system of highways.

If France—about the size of Texas—needs national highways, how much more do we, with our huge territory, require them?

To build such a system complete will take a man's lifetime and a huge amount of money. If the wealth of the world were ready to build this system tomorrow, it would still take many years, because there are available neither engineers nor knowledge enough to do it quickly.

When this, or a similar system of national highway is built—and built it surely will be some day—it will be by a national highways commission, which first locates and then builds, one or more roads at a time, learning as it builds. When this huge amount of money is spent—as spent it is bound to be—it will be gradually and thru an annual appropriation.

If New York state can afford five millions a year for road building, is it unreasonable to suppose the United States government can afford ten times as much—or fifty millions a year?

Washington Letter.

Special to the Herald.
Washington, Feb. 24.—Not within the recollection of the oldest congressional inhabitant has a regular session of the senate done so little executive business as the present one, since last December. There has been a lot to do, but the near approach of the change from one party's administration to that of another, appears to have operated to cause a lack of party horns on executive session transactions in which neither side, in the tugging, appears to have gained an inch. The tie-up is mainly because of nominations coming from the White House which the democrats have taken care to assume were inoculated with partisan design to take advantage some way or another of their incoming administration. There are within a very few of 2,000 nominations now piled up on the desks of the executive clerks in the office of the secretary of the senate, awaiting action by the senate. About three-fifths of these are postmasters, the others being army and navy officers promotions, and the rest miscellaneous.

There have been only seven confirmations since December 9th. That was of Carmi Thompson, of Ohio, former secretary to President Taft, as treasurer of the United States. Five army officers had their nominations confirmed. The other nomination to be confirmed was the only one of the many hundreds of postmasters to get through—John H. Brown, at Concord, N.H., the home of Senator Gallinger, president pro tem of the senate. Six minor nominations have been withdrawn. There appears not the slightest indication of a loosening of the tie-up.

The political tangle has peculiarly victimized one of the democrats here and there whose names have appeared in the long list of nominations. It is the case of Christian S. Pearce, of Tennessee, who has been for nearly twenty years an efficient chief in the office of the treasurer and whose service and experience came to be so valued by Secretary MacVeagh that he recommended Mr. Pearce for promotion, and accordingly President Taft nominated him as early as December 3 to be assistant treasurer. His nomination is held up along with the rest, and with the inevitable result that he will lose all place in the treasury department, as a sacrifice, as it were, on the altar of party expediency. His only recourse is to have his friends persuade President elect Wilson to restore him to place without delay.

Sentiments expressed in the senate debate the past week on the Connecticut river dam bill indicated that the principle involved, that of the limitation of federal control over the utilization of water power in navigable streams, is of the utmost importance to the industrial future of the country along the line of its largest development. President Taft has vetoed the Coos river dam bill, holding the power was too valuable to grant without compensation to the government, and the Connecticut river bill carried a provision in harmony with the position of both the President and the secretary of war, as to federal control. The opposition maintained that the waters of all streams, navigable or otherwise, belonged to the states, and the federal government could not impose a tax on what did not belong to it. The federal tax provision in the bill was stricken from it by a non-partisan vote of 53 to 29, and the bill was shorn of all federal control, except in so far as conferred it to the government's rights over the preservation of navigation by a final vote of 74 to 12.

Fifteen years ago, before the Spanish war, there were 25 regiments of infantry in the army, all stationed in the United States. Since that time five regiments have been added to the army, but with these only 16 are available for service in this country and around which an army could be built in a sudden emergency. Of the infantry regiments four are stationed in the Philippines, six are to be sent to Hawaii, three to Panama, and one will remain in Alaska. While the 16 regiments may be sufficient to garrison the different posts where they are stationed, they are not sufficient to form tactical units where officers may gain experience and where soldiers may be trained. The chief of staff of the army has recommended an increase of two regiments of infantry and six batteries of field artillery in order to bring the military strength up to the point where it will particularly meet the requirements of the service.

JUNE 9 IS SET

For the Huron Road Bee by United Convention.

"Road Bee Day" was fixed for Monday, June 9, at the closing session of the Lake Huron Shore Good Roads Association, Thursday afternoon. If there should be rain or unfavorable weather on that day, the bee will be held the following day, June 10.

The report of the finance committee, adopted by the convention, provides that each county organization shall apply to its supervisors for an appropriation of $500, and that donations of money or labor shall be solicited in each county. Owners of automobiles will be solicited to pay at least 50 cents per horsepower of the machines they own, annually for the upkeep of the road which will mean so much to them. Automobile makers, commercial organizations and other manufacturers will also be solicited. To provide for immediate and necessary expense, a membership fee of $1 will be charged, and all public spirited citizens in Northeastern Michigan are appealed to for voluntary subscriptions.

Not alone enthusiasm, but deep earnestness prevailed among the delegates to the first meeting of the Good Roads Association. A spirit of unity and faith that the proposed work can be accomplished, was apparent all thru the meeting, and with such a start there can be but one result—the road from Bay City to Cheboygan will be improved and outside visitors will be invited to use it this summer.

Every county on the proposed route of the road was represented at the meeting with the exception of Bay. Delegates from this county were unable to attend, because their presence was required in Lansing at a hearing on the bill to establish a house of correction at Bay City. However, Chairman Harting, of the Bay county board of supervisors, in a communication promised the association support in any plan decided on.

At the afternoon session the committee on organization presented a report which was adopted, as follows:

There shall be organized in each county a branch of the Lake Huron Shore Good Roads Association, to be known as _____ county branch of the Lake Huron Shore Good Roads Association.

The branch shall consist of one director from each township thru which the proposed highway passes, and a president and a secretary. The secretary shall be a member of the executive committee, residing in said county. Said director and president to be selected by the delegates present at this meeting. In case any township along the line of the road is not represented, the other directors of the county are authorized to appoint a director for such township.

Each county branch shall have charge of the section of road lying in their respective counties under the direction of the executive committee.

It shall be their duty to see that the road is put, and kept, in as good repair as possible.

It shall be the duty of each county director to appear at the town meeting in his respective township and make suitable appropriation to repair and improve this particular portion of the highway thru their respective townships.

After the 15th of April the county directors shall select three citizens of each township thru which the road passes, who, with the director from that township, shall be the township good road commissioners. It is recommended that the highway commissioners of the township shall be one of these good road commissioners, provided that he will act.

It shall be the duty of the good road commissioners to see that the highway in their respective townships is improved and kept in good repair, and to have charge of the road bee upon Bee Day.

After the adoption of the report a recess was taken and the delegates from the several counties got together and organized. Iosco county's organization is as follows:

Secretary—C. T. Prescott, Tawas.

The "road bee" will be a big affair. Each county organization will have charge of the work inside its own county, all under the direction of the directors of the association. There will be a vast amount of detail work to be done before the day fixed for holding the bee. It is probable that as early as possible in the spring competent engineers will be engaged, who will cover the entire route of the proposed road. They will locate all repairs to be made, their nature and extent. On their report will also depend the final route of the road. If, in their judgment, it is more advantageous to alter the proposed course, this will be done. Every part of the work, to the minutest detail, will be decided on and prepared for in advance, and each county organization will perfect its plans to perform the work required, and when the big day comes the farmers will proceed promptly to their work.

If the present interest in the plan is maintained, "bee day" will bring out a spirited contest between the different townships and counties. It is probable prizes will be hung up for the best and greatest amount of work. Manufacturers of road-making machinery will be interested, and it is expected that several thousand dollars worth of prizes will be put up by them to successful townships. J. D. Adams & Co., of Indianapolis, have already announced that they will put up a high grade road drag as a prize. Other factories will follow suit.

"Good Roads" Earle gave some good advice to the delegates in a short talk. He is enthusiastic over the proposed road, and believes the plan simple and feasible. "Unity" was the burden of his message. "Stand together. If there is one among you who does not believe he lives in the best section of the best state in the union, chip up and pay that man's fare out of the state."

The speaker warned the delegates not to go road crazy. What is wanted is roads good enough for the travel required. In this section of the country he favored the stone and gravel road, with possibly a small amount of sand and clay roads.

W. W. Cox, engineer for the highway commission, made a few remarks to the convention, and promised every aid possible by his department in the work.

Dr. Barclay's illustrated lecture on the national good road movement concluded the convention.—Alpena News.

No Need to Stop Work.

When the doctor orders you to stop work it staggers you. I can't, you say. You know you are weak, run down and failing in health day by day, but you must work as long as you can stand. What you need is Electric Bitters to give tone, strength and vigor to your system, to prevent break-down and build you up. Don't be weak, sickly or ailing when Electric Bitters will benefit you from the first dose. Thousands bless them for their glorious health and strength. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at J. M. Wiggazer & Co.'s, Tawas City, and James E. Dillon, East Tawas.

Methodist Minister Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Rev. James A. Lewis, Milaca, Minn., writes: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been a needed and welcome guest in our home for a number of years. I highly recommend it to my fellows as being a medicine worthy of trial in cases of colds, coughs and croup." Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a trial and we are confident you will find it very effectual, and continue to use it as occasion requires for years to come, as many others have done. For sale by all dealers.

Going the Limit.

What the St. Ignace Enterprise says about the idle and thoughtless young men of that city applies equally as well here:

"Pick out twenty young men haphazard in this or any other community, and not more than five of the number are making an effort to save money. The indications are that the poor houses of the future will have to be six stories high, with folding beds and cots in every room. Every young man, no matter how small his wages; should save a little money weekly and deposit it in some bank, other than a faro bank."

Don't You Believe It.

Some say that chronic constipation cannot be cured. Don't you believe it. Chamberlain's Tablets have cured others—why not you? Give them a trial. They cost only a quarter. For sale by all dealers.

Basket Ball.

Before a very small crowd the East Tawas girls basket ball team lost to the Oscoda girls, and the Ojibways won from the Oscoda Independents last Friday night in the opera house. Without doubt these were the most exciting games of the season.

The first half of the girls game was somewhat listless, due no doubt to the fact that the friendship between the two teams outweighed their vim for winning. But the second half was fine and showed the fighting spirit, altho this half was very much Oscoda's. When the whistle blew the score stood 9 and 9, so it was necessary to play overtime. An almost impossible field basket by Millicent Anderson ended the game about 30 seconds later. Score 11 to 9. The game was featured by "impossible" field baskets and very poor foul shooting. The guarding of Edna Hendrickson was the most consistent feature.

From the first "toot" of the whistle until the last call of time the boys game was fought back and forth, first one team and then the other. At no time was one team more than 4 points ahead of its opponent. Harry McKenna in centre was easily the better as far as jumping goes, but could not cover the ground that Dillon could. East Tawas was more adept in ringing field baskets, and on a par with Oscoda in shooting fouls. Therein lies the story. As in the girls game, the foul shooting was very poor. Mr. Mitchell, who handled the game alone, gave an exhibition of what he could do under trying conditions, and everyone's verdict was, "well done."

Nursery Rhymes.

Oh, little Miss Mae
Sat in a cafe,
Eating a veal croquette;
There came a young spider
And sat down beside her
And lighted a cigaret.

Old Mother Hubbard
Drilled out to her cupboard,
But if it were bare
She wouldn't care,
For she couldn't be fat and in style.

Little Jack Horner,
Who once had a corner
On plums and political pie,
Has now lost his luck,
And become a lame duck,
Since the democrats blacked his eye.

To market, to market,
To buy a fat pig,
Go home without it
The price is too big.

Little Boy Blue,
Come blow your horn,
The mouse in the meadow,
The dems in the corn.
Where's the little Standpat
Who whished out the pap?
He's gone to the tall woods
To take a forced nap.

There was an old woman
Who lived in a shoe,
That was quite cramped, we grant;

Ganderbone's Forecast.

MARCH.

When the last golf stick is loaded,
And the balls have been counted and packed;
When the great swivel chair has been hefted,
And the six-legged sofa is stacked,
We shall smile—and gads, for good reason,
The air shall be black with our hats,
And we'll all sing a song of thanks-giving
That the leans have succeeded the fads.

The coaches shall walk by the wagons
And show us a case of the blues;
The caddies shall trail the procession
And utter their lusty boo-hoos,
The greatest of notable golfers
Shall sit on his goods crying "Fore!"
And the man on the street may be certain
That we'll never do that any more.

And no one shall talk about baffles,
And no one shall prattle of spouses;
We shall hang on the words of a prophet,
And ask the most beautiful boons.
The White House shall look like a college,
The idler shall herd with his kith,
And we'll all sit around on the campus
And talk about matters of pith.

The winter shall wane, and the heavens shall mirror the beauty of spring.
The syrup shall stir in the maple, and the robin shall merrily sing. The calf shall ignore Mr. Wilson and do an inaugural dance, the sweet fashion plate of the seasons shall put on his medium pants, the democrat seeking an office shall sound his shrill clamor for pie, and his luckless republican brother shall jump off of the pay roll and die.

The tenant we've had in the White House shall show his successor the place, and nothing shall linger between them
on the score of that laughable race.
He'll show him the pantry, the closets,
the place for his coats and his caps, the hot water plant in the cellar, and the way to turn all of the taps; explain the trap doors and the signals, the extra bedrooms for his kin, and give him a few fine examples of how to be out when he's in.

He'll show him the tricks about callers,
the little peep-hole in the door, the big folding desk to escape in, and the dictograph under the floor. He'll show him where senators enter, the plant to cool congressmen's heels, the way to make use of his double, the secret hallway to his meals; the chair with the armoire above it for people who smoke cigarettes, and the dungeon deep down in the basement for discharging political debts.

The lark shall awake in the morning
To sound a grand opera strain,
The daisy shall bloom in the meadow,
And the cook shall get married again.
The wild goose shall startle the heavens
With tales of the Mexican war,
The poet shall fall on his zither
And show what the season is for,
The hunter shall hie to the marshes,
Where the grim pneumococcus abides,
And the month shall proceed from the calends

To the famous Caesarian ideas.
Alas! for the glory of Caesar, the womenfolks wanted to vote, and falling upon him with daggers, they cut off the tail of his coat. He begged them to think of their children, their homes and their duty as wives, but they only beset him the harder, and cried for imperial lives. "Dear ladies," said Caesar, repel-ling the first of their murderous blows, "you have no executive judgment, as the single task given you shows. We gave you the small servant problem to show what the woman could do, and there isn't another mess like it, I ask you if that isn't true?" Alas! for great Caesar, they killed him, in fury cut him in two. They rose by the Pillar of Pompey, exclaiming: "This finishes you!" The glory of Caesar was nothing, the truth he had uttered was yain—they all fell upon him with daggers, and cut the great Caesar in twain.

The fateful 15th having happened, recalling that terrible mob, the average citizen's fancy will seek some political job. He'll thrill with the prospect of service at soft and exorbitant pay, and offer himself on the altar at about $20 a day. The lover, meanwhile, shall man-der beneath his love's window and sing. He may have forgotten her later, but this is the magic of spring. It makes a sweet maiden so many times sweeter than ever before that a young man of 20 could eat her and easily below for more. We never have quite understood it—it's a very remarkable thing; but we all know a little about it, for we all have been young in the spring.

March gets its name from Mars, the Roman god of war. It was originally the first month of the year, but after Rome conquered Ireland it was made the third month as a matter of colonial policy, the Irish having found it too cold to march on St. Patrick's day. This incident illustrates the chief difference between the Roman and British empires.

Rome knew very well that the way to keep Ireland from asking for home rule was constantly to grant her little requests which didn't much matter one way or another. The result was that there was never any home rule movement in Ireland under the Roman flag such as has been organized under the British.

The vernal equinox will occur on the 21st, on which date the sun will cross the equator on its way back to the north.
This will make the moon full on the 22nd, and bring in Easter on the 23rd.
It isn't often that we have such a tremendous sequence of events as this will be,
and the incidental phenomena will be many and varied. The days will become appreciably longer, suffragettes will swarm, everybody running for office will run a bit faster, and trusts will automatically bust.

To make the occasion even more historic, there will be an eclipse of the moon on the night it is full. This will be visible in every part of our country, and in conjunction with the equinox, it will in a great many respects resemble the end of the world. Tremendous contributions to missions, social relief work and the betterment of man will be made for the next four or five days. Mr.
Rockefeller will hurl great sums of money in every direction, and there will be widespread repentance.

And then sweet April shall return,
With damp and dewy lea,
And for a day remind us all
What fools these mortals be.

Why Congress Should Act.

There is no reason why congress should delay action for a new currency and banking law beyond the special session to be called this spring. Congress is in possession of complete information as to the operations of the banking systems in this and all other countries.
Aside from numerous disastrous experiences, terminating in the panic of 1907, with their eloquent information, the lawmakers have before them the 23 volumes of the report of the National Monetary Commission. This report is the most exhaustive compendium of information as to American and foreign banking systems and methods ever compiled.
In addition, the house sub-committee of the banking and currency committee has been making special study of the question since last spring, and has been hearing the views of bankers and business men for several weeks. The general question of banking and currency reform has been under constant investigation and study since 1907. Knowledge knows no party. Information is information whether democrat or republican uncovers it. If congress cannot act at the special session, because it requires further time to investigate, congress might as well postpone action indefinitely for the same reason.

Old Age.

Old age as it comes in the orderly process of nature is a beautiful and majestic thing. It stands for experience, knowledge, wisdom, counsel.
That is old age as it should be, but old age as it often is means poor digestion, torpid bowels, a sluggish liver and a general feeling of ill health, despondency and misery.
This in almost every instance is wholly unnecessary. One of Chamberlain's Tablets taken immediately after supper will improve the digestion, tone up the liver and regulate the bowels. That feeling of despondency will give way to one of hope and good cheer. For sale by all

"MUSTERED OUT."

Whitman S. Hall, aged 73 years, 11 months and 18 days, passed peacefully to the Great Beyond at his home at Whittemore, Mich., on the evening of February 18, 1913. The deceased had been in declining health for the past year and confined to his home for several months, and while his death was not wholly unexpected it came as a shock to his immediate family and large circle of friends.

Whitman Stoddard Hall was born at Hamburg, Livingston county, Michigan, February 28, 1839. He enlisted for the Civil War at Whittemore Lake, Mich., on the 6th day of September, 1861, and was mustered into the service of the United States for a term of three years. He re-enlisted January 19, 1864, at La-Grange, Tenn., for three years; was mustered out at San Antonio, Tex., February 12, 1866, having served for a period of four years, five months and six days.

On May 20, 1866, he was united in marriage to Harriet L. Sawyer at Hamburg, Mich. Their home was at this place until 1868, when they moved to Jamestown, Ind. In 1876 they returned to Michigan, and their home was at Plymouth until 1881, when they moved to Luzerne, Oscoda county, Mich. In 1887 they came to Whittemore and purchased a farm south of this place. On account of failing health the deceased was forced to give up his farm life, and moved to this city in April, 1905, where he has since resided. During his 24 years of residence here he has proved himself a loyal citizen, being a man of sterling worth and ability, honorable, charitable, respected by all who knew him. He leaves an aching void which will be hard to fill.

Besides the bereaved widow he is survived by one son, Burr R. Hall; one daughter, Mrs. D. R. Hurford, and four grandchildren—Romanzo, Erma and Thad Hall and Vera L. Hurford, who reside at this place. Also one brother, L. C. Hall, of Plymouth, Mich., a sister, Mrs. Jennie Embry, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and a nephew, Fred S. Hall, of Plymouth.

The funeral services were held on Friday afternoon, February 20, it being one of the largest funerals held here in many years, which showed the esteem in which the deceased was held by his large circle of acquaintances. The sermon, by Rev. W. R. Blachford, rector of Christ church, East Tawas, was one long to be remembered. The floral tributes were very beautiful. The deceased was laid to rest in the Saints' cemetery, surrounded by a large concourse of sorrowing friends, who gathered to pay the last tribute of respect to him who had been their friend in life.

CARD OF THANKS.

With hearts overflowing with gratitude, we feel that words can but humbly express our appreciation of the assistance, words of sympathy and comfort, letters of condolence, and the beautiful floral tributes extended to us during our recent sad bereavement when Death called us to part from our beloved husband and father. To each and every one we hereby tender our most sincere thanks, and wish to assure you that these many kindnesses did much to comfort our aching hearts in our hours of sorrow.

The New Road to Health

Chiropractic

(Kiropractic)

Is the science of adjusting the subluxations (displacements) in the spinal column, commonly called backbone, for the purpose of removing the pressure from impinged nerves. The spinal column is the only place nerves pass between two hard, bony surfaces that are movable, therefore, the only place nerves can be impinged upon or the nerve supply restricted, and it matters not what part of the body or organ is affected, the cause is in the spinal column.

We simply analyze the spine and tell you where you are affected. Chiropractic is the only science that removes the cause of disease and is done without drugs, pain or knife. We use nothing but our hands and the whole object is accomplished when the nerves are released.

We remove the cause of disease and nature cures.

Analysis and consultation free. Investigation costs you nothing and means your life, health and happiness.

We adjust every known disease and condition, no matter how short or long standing. We have been eminently successful in removing the cause thereof, leaving the body in its natural normal condition—health.

THE CAUSE OF YOUR WEAKNESS IS IN YOUR SPINE; we adjust the CAUSE, strength returns, disease disappears and health is restored. Absolutely the most reasonable and effective method known for the prevention of disease and restoration of health. No knife, drugs, electricity or massage, but with remarkable skill we adjust your vertebrae to their normal condition, thus releasing the impinged vital nerves and vessels which supply every tissue within the body with life and action, thereby enabling it to throw off disease by natural strength.

We ask no questions, but analyze your spine and immediately tell your affection.

Paralysis, deafness, loss of voice, catarrh, gall stones, overweight, rheumatism, lumbago, la grippe, appendicitis, neuralgia, neurasthenia, sleeplessness, epilepsy, St. Vitus' dance, eye, ear, throat, lungs, stomach, liver, kidney, bladder and back trouble, etc., permanently disappear under Chiropractic adjustment, properly given.
