Majority against,		213		318

The election Monday brought out a large vote in nearly every township in the county. By a majority of 213 local option was defeated, and saloons and bums will flourish in Isosco county for the coming two years at least.

The question of extending equal suffrage to women was defeated in the county by 318, and in the state by probably about 50,000. It is very evident that the advocates of this measure made a serious mistake by having the question voted on at a time when the liquor question was also up.

With one township missing the vote on the state ticket in the county was, republicans 694, democrats 380 and progressives 349.

The result on local officers in the cities and townships of the county was as follows:

TAWAS CITY.

The election in this city Monday brought out the largest vote at a spring election in a number of years. The local option election was the primary cause, and every wet vote was at the polls. Result, 38 wet majority as compared with seven dry majority two years ago. The election of city officials resulted in the election of the republican city ticket by majorities ranging from 28 on mayor to 105 on clerk. The democrats elected C. M. Davis supervisor in the first ward, and E. B. VanHorn alderman of the first and Carl Lorenz alderman in the second. The other ward officers elected republicans. The successful candidates and their majorities are as follows:

Mayor—Stephen Ferguson, 24.
Clerk—John B. King, 105.
Treasurer—A. C. Brown, 95.
Justice—J. M. Waterbury, 44.
Supervisor, 1st ward, C. M. Davis, 12.
Supervisor, 2nd ward, J. A. Myles, 29.
Supervisor, 3rd ward, Thos. Davison, 28.
Alderman, 1st ward, E. B. Van Horn, 4.
Alderman, 2nd ward, Carl Lorenz, 2.
Alderman, 3rd ward, Wesley Groff, 29.
Constable, 1st ward, F. B. Long, 28.
Constable, 2nd ward, Otto Zollweg.
Constable, 3rd ward, Joe Wingrove.

EAST TAWAS.

The citizens and republican tickets fought it out in this city, and the citizens won everything except aldermen in the first and second wards. The successful candidates are as follows:

Mayor—John Schrieber.
Clerk—Fred Noel.
Treasurer—H. Eugene Hanson.
Alderman, 1st ward, R. D. Culter.
Alderman, 2nd ward, Lyman McAuliff.
Alderman, 3rd ward, E. J. Bartlett.

PLAINFIELD.

This was the only township which had a progressive ticket in the field, and the bull moosers carried it good and strong. On the state ticket the progressives got 60 votes to 36 for the republicans and 25 democrats. The township tickets were progressive, republican and citizens. The progressives elected their entire ticket except clerk, Lewis Nunn the republican winning by two majority. Frank E. Merchant was elected supervisor; Stacy B. Yawger, treasurer; Ervin Self, highway commissioner.

TAWAS.

township cast 72 republican state tickets, 41 democrats and 32 progressive. David Low for supervisor, Joseph Blust for treasurer, August Blust for highway commissioner, Waldo I. Curry for justice and William Mills for member of board of review, were elected on the republican ticket, and Julius Rhode for clerk was elected on the peoples ticket.

SHERMAN.

In this township the progressives cast 14 votes on the state ticket, the republicans 20 and the democrats 24. The peoples ticket elected all their candidates. (Continued on Last Page)

Change Methods.

By virtue of the state course of study and bulletins issued by the department of instruction, a radical change is being made in the teaching of arithmetic in the Michigan schools.

Business methods are learned by dramatizing problems. For instance, one child acts as a storekeeper and another is a customer.

Bulletins outlining in detail the oral work are supplied without cost to the teachers by the department of public instruction.

Pains in the Stomach.

If you continually complain of pains in the stomach, your liver or your kidneys are out of order.

BE KIND TO YOUR HORSE and all Dumb Creatures—it shows the Gentleman.

Need Training.

Michigan's greatest need for developing more efficient teaching in the public schools is more trained teachers.

Lack of training, lack of knowledge concerning the country, and often lack of sympathy with it on the part of teachers not only make failures of many, who otherwise might become good teachers, but they make the schools inefficient and hinder the proper development of the boys and girls.

Coughs and Consumption.

Coughs and colds, when neglected, always lead to serious trouble of the lungs. The wisest thing to do when you have a cold that troubles you is to get a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery.

Largest Flying Fish.

The largest flying fish on record was served up for breakfast on the British warship Ardeola a short time ago.

The Value of Trying.

If a man constantly aspires, is he not elevated? Did ever a man try heroism, magnanimity, truth, sincerity, and find that there was no advantage in them? That it was a vain endeavor?—Thoreau.

Doing Good.

We are to relieve the distressed, put the wanderer into his way, and to divide our bread with the hungry, which is but the way of doing good to ourselves; for we are only several members of one great body.—Seneca.

Too Good to Lose.

Jack—"Now that your engagement is broken, are you going to make Blanche send back your letters?" Harry—"You bet I am. I worked hard thinking out those letters; they're worth using again."

Parental Problems.

Where a whipping may improve one boy it will create a grudge and a thirst for revenge in another. Parents have several problems besides making a living.—Athenion Globe.

Straight as It.

There is no use of our "beating around the bush." We might as well out with it first as last. We want you to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the next time you have a cough or cold. THE RED-HEADED BOY'S BIG BONFIRE

When a young woman has just finished hanging out a perfectly good wash on perilous lines run on pulleys from the back porch of her flat to the telephone pole in the alley, no right-minded person could blame her for losing her temper if a red-headed boy with a wide mouth and the ingenuity of a fiend should start a smudgy bonfire directly below.

The red-headed boy worked in Simms' grocery, one of the stores that occupied the ground floor of the flat building. He was poking the fire as though he enjoyed it when Miss Clancy saw him.

"Say, you, Tommy Herkimer!" Miss Clancy called threateningly. "See what you're doing to my wash!" Tommy grinned up at her and gave the fire another stirring.

"Yah-h-h!" yelled Tommy, derisively. "I ain't afraid of you, Sadie Clancy! You can't do nothin'!" Sadie Clancy shot down the one flight of stairs like an angry comet and catapulted toward Tommy.

"Pickle and prunes!" young Simms exploded as he staggered off. "Oh, did you hurt yourself?" Sadie cried, looking around in horror. Right in her course was the water hydrant and, hitting it, she, too, ornamented the alley pavement.

"Don't you know anything worse than that?" she gasped out furiously as Simms picked her up, roaring, "Coffee cakes and buns! Let me get my hands on him!" Tommy, who had paused interestedly to view the unexpected gymnastics, was doubled up in mirth.

"Getchu!" the object yelled in terrible glee. "I'll play tag in my basement and carve initials all over the mahogany, will yer? I'll teach you kids a lesson! I've been alayin for yer and now I've got yer!" Leigh, the furniture man, as he spoke was shaking Sadie and young Simms, occasionally knocking their heads together for emphasis.

"Good land!" Leigh gurgled, releasing his hold. He stared at his neighbors whom he had been shaking. "Why—why—" stammered Leigh, and sat down meekly. Then he gave a sort of groan and scrambled to his feet. He had sat down in a bucket of varnish.

"Oh-h-h-h!" Sadie wept hysterically, clinging to young Simms. He put his arm around her protectingly and jammed it against a nail point that was projecting through one of the uprights in the wall.

Somewhere in the distance of the basement there was a strangled but demonic laugh that sounded as though emanating from a red-headed boy with a wide mouth.

"Let him go," said young Simms as he put his arm around Sadie again. "Somehow I don't seem to mind him now—do you, Sadie?" "Let's help Mr. Leigh get that varnish off him," said Sadie with very pink cheeks. She did not move away from the arm. "Anyhow, ma's taken the clothes in by now!"—Chicago Daily News.

They Never Learn.

Draw poker is a fine game, full of skill and science, and the man who knows what to draw to and when to do it is the fellow who gets the money. Harris Dixon, the author, was explaining one day that every man who makes a practice of trying to fill a four-card flush is doomed to bankruptcy.

Look to Your Plumbing.

You know what happens in a house in which the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid or some other fever. The digestive organs perform the same functions in the human body as the plumbing does for the house, and they should be kept in first-class condition all the time.

About Birds.

By L. H. BELKNAP.

Many people do not find anything interesting in the study of birds, and a great majority, who do like birds, do not take the time to learn about them.

"Years ago, when quite a youth, I was rambling in the woods one Sunday with my brothers, gathering black-birch, wintergreen, etc., when, as we reclined upon the ground, gazing vaguely up into the trees, I caught sight of a bird above that paused a moment on a branch above me, the like of which I had never before seen or heard of.

"When, one summer day later in life, I took my gun and went to the woods again in a different, though perhaps a less simple spirit, I found my youthful vision more than realized. There were indeed other birds, plenty of them, singing, nesting, breeding, among the familiar trees, which I had before passed by unheard and unseen.

"It was a surprise that awaits every student of ornithology, and the thrill of delight that accompanies it, the feeling of fresh, eager inquiry that follows, can hardly be awakened by any other pursuit. Take the first step in ornithology, procure one new specimen, and you are ticketed for the whole voyage.

In all excursions to the woods or shore, the student of ornithology has an advantage over his companions. He has one more recourse, one more avenue of delight. He, indeed, kills two birds with one stone, and sometimes three.

The sparrow family includes a large number of birds. There are nearly one hundred different members of the tribe. Of this number the English sparrow is the least useful. In fact he is rated as a nuisance because he does much harm.

The English sparrow drives many of our better birds away, and is charged with the distribution of hog cholera. And not until lately has he been credited with anything useful. Now they say that he is of service in checking the newly introduced alfalfa weevil, which threatens the alfalfa industry of Utah and neighboring states. However, he is a pest in these parts.

The song sparrow is one of our most abundant native birds. It has the usual streakiness of sparrows, being reddish brown above and ashy or whitish below, and everywhere streaked with brownish black, the streaks below tending to run together and forming a conspicuous spot or patch in the middle of the breast.

The chipping sparrow is about 5 1/4 inches long. It is distinguished from the other sparrows by its chestnut crown and black line thru eye and bill, and black forehead. It is one of our commonest and certainly one of our most useful sparrows. They eat a great quantity of seeds, worms and insects but eat more of the latter. It is gentle and confiding and so endears itself to all bird lovers.

The vesper sparrow is a bird of the open country, delighting in the upland sheep pasture or in the neglected mowing lot, and sometimes in the orchard. This sparrow loves to sing from the fence post, telegraph pole, or low tree, but its food comes from the ground, while its nest is always on or near the ground.

The white-throated sparrow is a bird of the grove and thicket. They live mostly on the ground and always seem busy and happy. They are the handsomest of the sparrow family, and because of the notes in their song are called the "Pea-bo-dy" bird. They have a beautiful white throat. Their length is 6 1/2 inches.

Besides these birds, there are several other members of the sparrow family that are very common in this part of Michigan.

Next week I will write of some of the common birds that are soon due to arrive here.

COMPLIMENTS FOR THE BRIDE. I must relate a striking salutation that the bridal couple received from a Quaker client of mine, a shrewd dry goods merchant. Presented by an usher he surveyed the bride, whom he had never seen before, and then with the utmost deliberation proceeded to say:

"William, I think the bride has shown more judgment in her choice than thee has."

Fortunately before I could turn to resent this strange salutation he continued as follows:

"Because it takes some penetration to discover thy good qualities, but hers can be seen at a glance."—A Retrospect of Forty Years.

OF COURSE. "We are a democratic country, but—" "Say the rest of it."

PERSUADING MARY PROVED BIG JOB

By JUNE GAHAN.

"Have you spoken to Mary, Agatha?" asked Mr. Dickson of his wife.

"You mean about Ford Layton?" "Yes—I happened to meet young Disbrow coming out of the gate and it set me thinking. I hope Mary won't be dazzled by Disbrow's glitter and flash and overlook the pure gold of Ford's character."

Mrs. Dickson shook her head. "I'm afraid she will, James—girls are that way."

"You were not—eh?" Mr. Dickson pinched his wife's plump cheek as he passed on into his study.

"Oh, there never was anyone just like you, James. I think Ford Layton comes nearer than anybody else. I wish Mary could see it in the same light."

"She seems to like him, too." "The child is charming to him—only I'm afraid she is rather dazzled by Billy Disbrow."

"Agatha, my dear, suppose you just drop a word of advice—if she doesn't take it well, send her to me," suggested Mr. Dickson, as he left the room.

A moment later Mary entered, starry-eyed, lovely, graceful, her sweet lips set in a tender smile.

"All alone, Mommy?" she asked, as she dropped a light kiss on her mother's white hair.

"Yes, dear. Sit down here a moment, Mary," and Mrs. Dickson, with a wistful look at the starry eyes and the tender lips, sighed at the idea of giving up this sweet daughter to any one of the young men who persistently wooed her.

"Well?" asked Mary, expectantly. "Billy Disbrow called this afternoon, didn't he, dear?" asked Mrs. Dickson, hesitatingly.

"Yes." "I'm sorry, dear, but you are sure you are not making a mistake?" Mrs. Dickson stammered over the words.

"I'm quite sure, Mommy," said Mary quietly, and just then she was called away and Mrs. Dickson stepped to the study door and spoke to her husband.

"Mary says she is sure she is not making any mistake, James," she said gravely. "If she really wants to marry Billy Disbrow we must do all we can to make her happy. He is not bad—merely weak."

"The deuce!" exclaimed Mary's father, frowning.

When Mary came into the study to tell him that dinner would be ready in fifteen minutes and there was barely time for him to dress, Mr. Dickson pulled his only daughter down on his knee.

"I met Billy Disbrow coming out of the gate, Mary—I hope you won't be foolish." He hesitated.

Mary looked at him with troubled eyes. "I suppose he is what you would call a good match," she murmured, unwillingly.

"Of course, you don't have to think of that, my dear." "He's nice, too, father. He has a lovely disposition."

"Well—daughter, think it over, and don't decide hastily. I haven't seen Ford around lately. I'm sorry, too."

"Oh, you won't be later—when you black?" she said lightly.

"Know what?" he asked, curiously. "Oh, I can't tell you just now, father! Not until tomorrow. Do you know what day it is?"

"It's the twenty-fifth anniversary of our wedding day."

"What I've got to say will be your wedding gift from me," whispered Mary, and then she ran away.

While dessert was being served Mary was called away from the table by a ring at the telephone.

When the three elders were alone, Great-Aunt Becky spoke up.

"I saw young Billy Disbrow going away from here this afternoon. I hope Mary is not leading him a dance. I believe I will speak to her."

They were leaving the room when Aunt Becky asked Mary to help her into the big chair in front of the drawing-room fire. Mary's parents discreetly withdrew to another room. It was possible that Aunt Becky might accomplish where they had failed. She was an old lady of keen insight into human nature and a wide experience.

"My dear," began Aunt Becky, abruptly, "why under the sun are you going to marry Billy Disbrow?"

Mary started at her great aunt. "But I'm not going to marry him!" she said at last.

"Whom are you going to marry, then?" demanded Aunt Becky, with very bright eyes.

Proof from Michigan Farmer

The Great Worm Destroyer and Conditioner

The results Michigan farmers are getting from "Sal-Vet" and the way they endorse it is proof conclusive that this great worm destroyer and conditioner is the greatest boon to farmers ever discovered.

"I have fed SAL-VET to all my sheep, cows and pigs, and also to one of my four horses that was in poor condition. The horses have rounded out splendidly, my sheep never looked so well as at this time of the year and my cows and spring pigs are in the best of health. I have always been slow to feed any of the dog foods or medicines, believing that good feeding and good health, but I am well satisfied with the results obtained from SAL-VET. It has certainly improved to a marked degree, the condition of my stock."—W. H. SCHANTZ, Supt. Sheep Dept. Michigan Agricultural Society, Hastings, Mich.

"Sal-Vet" is a wonderful medicated salt—a preparation which is saving farmers hundreds of thousands of dollars. It is not only the surest and quickest remedy for worms, but also a tonic, digestive and conditioner which puts all farm animals in excellent condition, thus providing the most efficient disease preventive you can get.

CHEAPEST and BEST

Here Is My Money-Back Offer

Simply call at my dealer's store and get enough "Sal-Vet" to last all your stock 60 days. Take it home with you and place it where all your farm animals can run to it freely, then watch results. If "Sal-Vet" don't do what I claim, if it don't rid your stock of the deadly stomach and intestinal worms and prove a paying investment for you, simply notify the dealer and he will refund your money in full.

SIDNEY R. FEIL, Pres. The S. R. Feil Co., Cleveland, Ohio
