MICHIGAN FAIR BIPLANE TO CARRY PASSENGERS.

Owing to the unusual advantages offered by the Michigan State Fair grounds as an aviation field "Eddie" Korn, whose great Benoist tractor biplane will give daily exhibitions during the Fair, has consented to carry a passenger with him on every flight.

Mr. Korn is a firm believer that the public wants to be convinced of the practicability of the modern aeroplane. He is under the impression, and Manager Dickinson quite agrees with him, that a demonstration of the feasibility of the biplane for carrying more than the driver is more appreciated by the onlookers than spirals and volplaning and the like.

The broad level expanse at the Michigan State Fair grounds and the unexcelled opportunities for fluttering to the earth in the case of serious accident makes it an ideal place to give passenger-carrying exhibitions. Then, too, the same level expanse practically eliminates the chances of dangerous air currents interfering with the demonstrations.

On a recent visit to the State Fair offices in Detroit Mr. Korn said: "I want to prove conclusively to the people of Michigan that a tractor biplane is safe under normal conditions. By this I mean merely attempting to navigate the air and not do all sorts of crazy dips and sudden turns.

"You are going to ask how is it that so many aviators are killed every year if a birdman's life is comparatively safe. I'll tell you why. Simply because they were not content with an ordinary flight, and in their confidence they lost control of their machines while executing a fancy spiral of some sort. Carelessness is the cause of two-thirds of the deaths and inferior machines account for a good many of the others.

"I have always maintained that a powerful engine was necessary for successful operation in the air, to overcome any adverse conditions that may arise from changes in consistency of atmosphere. I have an engine in my biplane which almost makes my exhibitions independent of weather conditions. I don't have to wait for a calm day in order to perform."

Destroyed by Fire.

The residence of Rev. O. E. Moffet, on the bay shore below the mouth of the river, was discovered to be on fire at about 6:30 Monday morning and was destroyed together with nearly all contents. When the fire was discovered it had gained great headway, and before the alarm was turned in and the fire apparatus got out the entire building was in flames.

There are but few people residing in the immediate vicinity and before sufficient help could arrive the flames had gained such headway that but little of the contents could be saved. A portion of Mr. Moffet's valuable library and a few household goods only were removed. The loss is one that can hardly be estimated in dollars and cents, as much of it can never be replaced. Mr. Moffet has been an extensive traveler in all parts of the world and during these travels had gathered many rare and valuable mementoes, all of which were destroyed. We understand that the loss is partially covered with insurance.

Washington Letter

Washington, D. C., April 14.—President Wilson has been exceedingly busy the past week smashing all kinds of precedents, until the seasoned legislator, who never had so many thrills before, is sitting up and wondering what next is going to happen in conservative Washington. That President Wilson has no particular regard for tradition was exemplified on Tuesday when he read his message on the tariff to the joint assembly of the House and Senate and won a new position in the esteem of the American people.

Many of the members of the 63rd Congress looked upon the innovation with mingled feelings of doubt and criticism but whereas they went to the Capitol to scoff and possibly to jeer they returned with nothing but praise and commendation for the dignity of the occasion and the high minded way in which the new departure was staged. Not satisfied with shocking the cave dwellers on Tuesday, on Wednesday the President broke another precedent by going to the Senate wing of the capitol and occupying the President's room for a heart-to-heart talk with the majority members of the upper branch with a view to harmonizing existing differences on the tariff to the end that the bill may be put on the statute books as quickly as possible. And the visit was so productive that Mr. Wilson says he is going again very soon and he will also read other messages to Congress when he regards them of exceptional interest. We sure are progressing.

What method is to be pursued to prevent floods in the middle west, such as have devastated that territory and are now threatening vast areas in the lower Mississippi, is one of the serious questions that faces President Wilson. He considers it one of the greatest problems confronting the administration and it would not be surprising if he should order his Secretary of War to direct the engineers of the department to prepare a detailed report on the question for the regular session of Congress which meets in December next.

Preparations are being rapidly concluded for what gives promise of being the greatest reunion of Civil War Veterans ever held in this country, and which is to be held on the historic field of Gettysburg, June 29 to July 6 inclusive. Accommodations will be provided for 40,000 persons. It is announced that a tent capable of holding from 10,000 to 15,000 persons will be erected on the battlefield and that therein will take place the exercises to be held culminating in a great peace jubilee on July 4, when the chief orator of the occasion will be President Woodrow Wilson, Chief Justice White to preside over the exercises.

The camp will cover 280 acres and will be maintained only for veterans of the civil war. The cost of the anniversary celebration, the fiftieth since one of the greatest battles in the world's history was fought, will be borne by the federal government and the state of Pennsylvania, $300,000 having been appropriated for the occasion.

Origin of the Dollar Sign.

The earliest known occurrence of the $ in print is in an American arithmetic, Chauncey Lee's "American Accountant," published in 1797 at Lansingburg. This fact was pointed out in 1809. A recent writer again calls attention to this arithmetic and then, with simplicity of mind, conveys the idea that this publication constitutes the true origin of the dollar mark. By this mental shortcut he saved himself the drudgery of a research, which in our case, has extended over several years.

About 1800 the symbol began to be used freely both in print and in writing. On Sept. 29, 1802, William A. Washington wrote a letter on the disposal of part of the bottom land above the Potomac belonging to the estate of George Washington. In this letter there is mention of "$20," "$30" and "$40" an acre. In this article it has been established that the $ is the lineal descendant of the Spanish abbreviation for "pesos"; that the change from the fesculent ps to $ was made about 1775 by English-Americans who came in business relations with Spanish-Americans and that the earliest printed $ dates back to the year 1797—Prof. F. Cajori in Popular Science Monthly.

Country Boy Coming Home.

The country boy who went to the far, big cities is coming home, at Michigan's call of "back to the soil." The rich farm lands need him, smoke-laden cities influence him to return, with his small, ill-ventilated room in some city boarding house with, perhaps no window. He never forgets how he looked out upon the green meadow and heard the cow-bell tinkling in his old Michigan home.

There are a million bacilli to the ounce in the water that he is compelled to use. How he longs for the old well at home!

Many country lads have gone to distant cities who will never return. In the city's glare and "white lights," despondency and ill success of his dreams of riches, misfortune, isolation, abandonment, poverty, have done their work in his nature. He may fear to return to the old home—he may anticipate ridicule of his failure to "make good," which his old chums were promised when he left the "three corners."

But some stalwart Michigan youths are returning home this spring to the richness of Michigan's soil, called not by failure in "big city" work, but realizing the farming industry is on a basis of satisfactory returns for services rendered, and that farming is now realized as an industry wherein science has taken her interest.

This is aside from any sentimental view of the subject, but how many more country boys who find it a long roam back home long once again to return to the old land where the pine trees sway and sigh 'neath the silent summer sky, and the hope of youth was strong as the summer day is long, and the nights brought sweetest rest.—Pontiac Press-Gazette.

Pains in the Stomach.

If you continually complain of pains in the stomach, your liver or your kidneys are out of order. Neglect may lead to dropsy, kidney trouble, diabetes or Bright's disease. Thousands recommend Electric Bitters as the very best stomach and kidney medicine made. H. T. Alston, of Raleigh, N.C., who suffered with pain in the stomach and back, writes: "My kidneys were deranged and my liver did not work right. I suffered much, but Electric Bitters was recommended, and I improved from the first dose. I now feel like a new man." It will improve you, too. Only 50c and $1.00. Recommended by J. M. Wuggazer & Co., Tawas City, and Jas. E. Dillon, East Tawas.

Bids Wanted for Silo Material.

Sealed proposals will be received by the board of superintendents of the poor of Iosco county, Michigan, until 6 o'clock p.m. Friday, May 2nd, 1913, for the furnishing of silo material as follows: Silo to be sixteen (16) feet in diameter and thirty (30) feet high. Bids to be on both Oregon fir and California red wood. Material to be delivered f.o.b. car at Tawas City, Michigan.

The board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Proposals should be directed to Jno. A. Mark, clerk of said board, Tawas City, Michigan.

Coughs and Consumption.

Coughs and colds, when neglected, always lead to serious trouble of the lungs. The wisest thing to do when you have a cold that troubles you is to get a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. You will get relief from the first dose, and finally the cough will disappear. O. H. Horses for Sale.

Found a Cure for Rheumatism.

"I suffered with rheumatism for two years and could not get my right hand to my mouth for that length of time," writes Lee L. Chapman, Mapleton, Iowa. "I suffered terrible pain so I could not sleep or lie still at night. Five years ago I began using Chamberlain's Liniment, and in two months I was well and have not suffered with rheumatism since." For sale by all dealers.

Protect Health.

One of the most important bills before the Michigan legislature has been introduced by Representative Whelan. It provides that plans and specifications for all school buildings and additions costing more than $500 must be approved by the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the secretary of the State Board of Health. These plans must show the arrangement for exits, heating, ventilating, lighting, outhouses and water supply. The passage of this bill will safeguard school districts from erecting buildings which are not in accord with hygienic and sanitary principles of construction.

The bill also gives to these two men the power to condemn insanitary school buildings and to require school boards to make changes which are necessary to safeguard the health of children. Under the present law, a schoolhouse can only be condemned if it is liable to collapse and there is no way to prevent a district from menacing the health of children. Protection is afforded criminals as state inspectors can condemn insanitary jails but no provision is made for the protection of children's health.

There are schoolhouses in nearly every county which are unfit for use and are a menace to the health of children. Others are improperly ventilated or lighted or have some other defect that interferes with the physical welfare of the pupils. The Whelan bill, if enacted into law, will make it possible to secure better conditions in the state.

MA PUT INDIAN SIGN ON CUPID

By LAURA TURNER.

"My ma surely did put the skids under that Heinz fellow last Sunday night," laughed the girl with the exaggerated psycho knot. "He won't come mooning around my sister Bertha any more. She giggled as she tucked in a few stray hairs that had curled over her collar and surveyed her pleasing reflection in the mirror above the lavatory.

"How did she squelch him, Annie?" asked the sleepy looking blonde, stretching her wet handkerchief across the mirror to dry it.

"Well, Bertha's had an awful case on Heinz for quite a while. He's a widower, with a boy about five years old, but Bertha said she didn't care, for she liked him anyway. She used to rave about him until she made ma and me tired. I could see from the start that ma didn't have much use for him, and she warned Bertha that all he was looking for was somebody to keep house and cook his meals for him and take care of that kid of his.

"Bertha said ma was wrong, that he was head over ears in love with her, and she wouldn't hear a word against him. Ma used to call him Bertha's freiside companion, because he never took her anywhere, but just sat around and acted as though he was afraid to spend a nickel.

"Last Sunday morning Bertha went out to the kitchen and asked ma if she would let her have the Heinz fellow to supper that evening. She coaxed around until ma finally said she could ask him if she wanted to, but you could see that ma wasn't at all crazy about having him come.

"After Bertha had gone out and ma and I were doing the work, all of a sudden I saw that ma had an idea. She chuckled to herself the rest of the morning, but she wouldn't let me in on the joke. When I asked her about it she just told me I would have to wait and keep my eyes open and I would see something funny.

"That evening Bertha said she wanted to get supper all by herself and show Heinz what a grand cook she was. Ma says 'All right, if you want to get a job as housekeeper, of course you must give your future boss a sample of your cooking.' With that she went upstairs.

"After a while ma came down again and asked Bertha how she was getting along. Bertha said that everything was on the stove ready to dish up, and would ma watch things while she hustled upstairs in order to primp up a bit?

"Ma said she would, so Bertha beat it upstairs to doll up for Heinz.

"When we all filed up to the dining room and sat down things looked good to me. While ma was bringing in the dishes she says to Heinz: 'I want you to know, Mr. Heinz, that Bertha cooked every bit of the supper tonight, so if you like it you'll have to give her all the credit for it!'

Heinz looked over at Bertha with a fat, contented smile and tucked a napkin under his double chin. Then he took a bite of biscuit and next I saw him look all around to see if anybody was watching him as he rolled it out of his mouth into his hand and laid it carefully on his plate. I began to get suspicious, so I took a bite of biscuit just to see. Say, it was about the awfulest tasting thing I ever ate!

"It was positively green inside! Bertha had used soda instead of baking powder, and plenty of it, too, and the biscuits were simply terrible!

"I copied Heinz and got rid of my bite quick as I could and took a swallow of coffee to get the taste out of my mouth. Say! The coffee was so weak it was just like water! I looked over at ma and her face was as red as a beet, she was trying so hard to keep from laughing.

"I knew pretty well then who had queered the supper. Ma must have put soda in the baking powder can so Bertha would be sure to get it, and probably she put plenty of hot water into the coffee pot after Bertha had gone upstairs.

"I was curious to know what else ma had done, so I helped myself to a chop. Salty! It was worse than a mackerel that hadn't been soaked overnight! Why, I felt pickled in brine after I swallowed it! I glanced over at Heinz. He was the glummiest looking somebody you ever saw! Every now and then he looked at Bertha with a frown blarker than a thunder cloud.

"When we came to pie I found that ma had even switched pies on poor Bertha. The under crust was just like soft rubber! Heinz ate the filling out and left the under crust staring Bertha in the face. Then we all got up and went into the parlor, but Heinz never said a word about Bertha's fine cooking. Bertha didn't say anything, either. She had caught on right away what ma had done, but she never chirped.

"Heinz didn't stay very late that night. I guess he was anxious to get away and hunt a lunch counter. He'd been coming to see Bertha every night for two weeks, but he hasn't been back since."

"What did Bertha say to your mother afterward?" asked the sleepy looking blonde. "Was she ugly about it?"

"I should say not! She saw that ma was right—that he was only looking for a cook—and she's glad that she found it out in time. My ma is as sharp as they make 'em, and nobody can put anything over on her. She's got the Indian sign on Cupid!"

About Birds.

BY L. H. BELKNAP.

There are six species of swallows in Michigan, and the biggest of these is the purple martin. This bird is 8 inches long. The male is blue black and the female dull black and grayish.

The barn swallow is sometimes called the forked-tailed swallow on account of its tail being deeply forked. This bird is steel blue and mostly rusty brown below.

The cliff swallow has a slightly forked tail and is recognizable at a glance by the whit or cream colored crescent on the forehead and the cinnamon rump.

The tree swallow is a brilliant blue-green above, and snow-white below, with dark wings and tail, the latter moderately forked.

The bank swallow is brownish gray above and pure white below, except for a brownish gray band across the chest.

The rough-winged swallow is quite similar to the bank swallow. It gets its name rough-winged from the fact that with the bird in hand one has only to stroke the outer edge of the wing to feel the sharp barb of the first primary.

We sometimes speak of the chimney "swallow," but this bird is a swift. It is readily known by its uniform sooty color and its short, stiff tail.

Now is the time of the year to build bird houses. A bird house for a wren should be one apartment, while those for the martin of several apartments.

Look to Your Plumbing.

You know what happens in a house in which the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid or some other fever.

Development Bureau Notes

The Development Bureau could secure a lot of financial assistance from various manufacturing concerns in North-eastern Michigan if our local men would do a little boosting, as the occasion arose; suggesting to the salesmen that their firms should become members of the bureau to assist in the work.

F. W. Abbot, land commissioner of the Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena Railroad, writes to the bureau that, when the world once learns what this section of Michigan has to offer the farmer, stockraiser, fruitman, and every one interested in the subject of agriculture, there won't be land enough to go half way around.

Considerable literature in regard to Northeastern Michigan is being issued this spring. The bureau is in receipt of circulars from the new Otsego County Improvement Association, a 4x9 folder excellently well printed and well prepared; a smaller folder in regard to the Chandler lands, from the press of the Onaway Outlook, is worthy of imitation by any one.

At the meeting of the executive committee held Tuesday, it was determined that the traveling exhibit which, since February 11th, has been showing in Michigan points, should begin operations in Illinois, showing in so far as practical in the territory in which it appeared last year.

Learn to Sew.

Practical education for girls is not being confined entirely to those progressive cities and towns which have introduced domestic arts, but is gradually making its way into the rural districts. Enterprising country teachers are finding that sensible sewing assignments are possible and furnish the best kind of 'busy work' for girls.

The girls do not spend their time merely sewing, but they are making useful things such as aprons and simple articles of wearing apparel. The art of making buttonholes, mending and darning hosiery also form a part of the course.

In some districts the teachers have not been able to instruct the students owing to their own lack of training. This difficulty has been overcome in a number of cases by having one or two of the older students who were capable to instruct the others, or some of the women of the district have become assistants of the teacher.

The only real objection to this work is the possibility of unwise teachers requiring the first and second grades to do fine sewing. The muscles of the hand are the last to develop and the cramping of the fingers is injurious, so if the younger children sew they should be encouraged to use only long stitches.

Drain tile at the Whittemore Elevator. Thos. J. Spooner was at Tawas on business yesterday. Commissioner Campbell was in the city yesterday. It will pay you to see the Whittemore Elevator Co. about it. They will save you some money. Wm. Latter, of Reno, is putting up a new house on the 40 across from his residence. F. H. Lawrence, of Bay City, is doing the work. The Reno Christian Endeavor Society will again open their meetings, beginning Sunday evening, April 20. Fred C. Latter, leader. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Is Whittemore to have a saloon? Both the city and Burleigh township gave heavy-dry majorities at the recent election and there is strong opposition to the location of a saloon here. It is a matter that is up to our city aldermen and if they are governed by the wishes of the people no saloon license will be granted.

COULD NOT SAY NO TO ADELAIDE

Major Atkinson, according to his wife's testimony, doesn't know how to say no to Adelaide, his niece. This assertion is borne out by the fact, that when Adelaide asked him to appear in juvenile costume at what she called a "kid party," which she was to give at his summer home, he consented with an outward smile and an inward groan. "I wish," he said to his wife in private, "that Adelaide hadn't insisted upon my taking part in this ridiculous affair of hers. In fact, I don't see why she wants to give such a nonsensical party." "Why do you aid and abet her?" demanded his wife. "When I suggested that she think of something newer and more dignified, you immediately said, 'Let her have any kind of party she pleases.'" "Well, one doesn't like to be always interfering with her pleasures. There's no particular harm in her having a child's party, is there? But I know I shall feel like a perfect idiot dressed in the little girl's early Victorian costume that Adelaide has picked out for me." He glanced into the mirror and sighed as he stroked his graying Vandike beard. The afternoon of the party Adelaide, after tying the strings of a quaint little sunbonnet under the major's beard, drew away and surveyed him from the top of the sunbonnet to the tips of his white stockings and black slippers feet. "Uncle, you're certainly the most execrably funny sight I ever beheld," she declared. "I'm so glad I found those pantalettes in grandma's old trunk. They're perfectly killing. You'll make the hit of the evening." "I suppose I'm what you'd call a screaming success," said the major, somewhat wryly. "You don't think I'm too complete, do you?" "No, you're just—just lovely." Adelaide squeezed the large sun browned hand of her uncle, half of which was neatly incased in a white lace mitt. "But with that cigar in your mouth you're a sight to behold." "Well, I must have a little smoke before your guests come, Adelaide. I'll just take my magazine and read and smoke on the lawn until the festivities begin." A little later, as Mrs. Atkinson and Adelaide were putting the finishing touches on their own costumes, they saw a striking looking couple alight from a motor car and approach the major, who rose with his accustomed courtliness and greeted them. "Good gracious, Adelaide! Your uncle appears to be absolutely unconscious of his absurd attire," exclaimed Mrs. Atkinson. "He is taking those people around the garden as unconcernedly as if he were dressed in a business suit. They must think he is crazy! Here, I'll slip on a long coat over my short skirt and run out and explain."

Pet Funny Stories.

Authors are not above having a pet story to be told over and over again on occasion—and off, too. Emerson Hough, who in his novels deals with extremely serious topics, has a keen sense of humor and never tires of telling about a guide he once had on a fishing trip in the Adirondacks. This guide had also been employed by Grover Cleveland and Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton university. Shortly after the birth of President Cleveland's little daughter, the chief executive went on a fishing trip and was delighted to learn that his guide had also become a father. "How much did your baby weigh at birth?" asked Mr. Cleveland. "Twenty-two pounds, sir," answered the guide. "Twenty-two pounds!" exclaimed the president in amazement; "why, my baby weighed but seven."

Welsh Language Dying Out.

The decadence of the Welsh language is evidenced by the statement that about 85 per cent. of the people of Wales know some English, while nearly 50 per cent. speak no other language.
