AN ANNOUNCEMENT

On June 1 the present editor and proprietor of the Herald will retire from the management of the paper after over twenty years of continuous service. This announcement comes with considerable regret and some pleasure. However, we will have more to say on this subject later.

At this time we simply announce that we have sold the Herald and good will to Mr. James E. Ballard, who will take possession on the above mentioned date. Mr. Ballard is not a stranger to the Herald patrons, having been our foreman for a number of years. For the past year and a half he has been successfully publishing the Buckley Enterprise.

We wish to close our business up as nearly as we can by June 1, and for this reason we ask all who are indebted to us to call and settle their accounts before that date. If our friends will kindly comply with this request they will confer a great favor.

LEN J. PATTERSON, Publisher.

Bright Life Ended.

Louise Wuggazer was born Feb. 6, 1879, in Stewardson, Ill. Her father and mother were Rev. and Mrs. F. Schlechte. When a few years old she moved with her parents to Otis, Ind., where she attended parochial school, and was confirmed in 1892. Later on, in 1895, she with her parents moved to Tawas City, Mich. On June 22, 1902, she was united in marriage to Rev. Theo. Wuggazer, at that time of Flint. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Millington, and in June, 1906, to Reese, where she has since resided. This marriage was a truly happy one in every respect and was blessed with six children, five of whom are living, the sixth having died shortly before his mother.

About five weeks ago Mrs. Wuggazer was taken seriously ill, and a consultation of prominent physicians was held in her case. It was decided upon to perform an operation, the only possible way to prolong her life. But this failed. She died Wednesday afternoon, April 30, at about 3 o'clock, at the Saginaw General Hospital. The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Lutheran Trinity church at Reese. Revs. Bekemeier of Richville, Grueber of Saginaw and Brunn of Bay City officiated. She leaves to mourn her loss the husband, five children, Martin, Theo, Evhard, Elvira and Irma, her aged father, four brothers and two sisters.

Oscoda scored one in the second on three bases on balls and two hits, one in the fourth on a base on balls, a stolen base, and a double, and one in the seventh on a base on balls, a steal and a single. Mothers' Day.

The following proclamation has been issued by Gov. Ferris:

Never did the word Mother have a broader and deeper meaning than it has today. The welfare of the world is related to motherhood. Would that the mothers of our sons and daughters fully realized the power they wield. Thru the double standard of virtue established by man long ages ago, mothers have unconsciously granted their sons license to disregard the sanctity of womanhood. When mothers shall insist upon as clean men for husbands of their daughters as they now insist upon clean daughters for wives of their sons, a new era will have dawned in which the social evil and the white slave traffic will have largely disappeared from our fair land. The highest type of woman is the Mother. The word Mother thrills the heart with joy and gratitude, and gives to memory priceless treasures.

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, ask that the people of Michigan set apart the third Sunday in May (the 13th) as Mothers' Day. As far as possible, let parents in their homes and both young and old in public meetings discuss the theme of Mother with that enthusiasm and sincerity which should characterize all loyal Americans.

J. C. Rockwell's Sunny South Co.

When that uncommonly strong combination of colored talent, known as the J. C. Rockwell Sunny South company, the show that never disappoints, the one that never misrepresents, appears in the East Tawas opera house, Thursday evening, May 15th, local theatre goers will have an opportunity of judging for themselves what a first-class colored organization really is. It is a colored company thruout, being composed of about twenty-five persons, including some of the cleverest and most versatile performers in their respective lines at present before the public. Comedy is all that is aimed at and nothing else is reached, bar some very clever singing, dancing and thrilling specialties, which will make the audience sit up and take notice. It is a musical show, wedded to the most tuneful music one would care to listen to, full of ginger and life, with not a dull moment from beginning to end. Dating from the opening scene until the final fall of the curtain there is not a moment when some of the numerous cast are not occupied rendering matters pleasing to the audience. If you want to have a good laugh, enjoy the evening, and go home whistling, happy and contented, this is where you will get full value for your money.

The organization is accompanied by a solo concert band and a superb orchestra. The band will head the Kooon-town parade, taking place at noon.

The prices of admission have been placed at 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Seats are now selling at Hanson's Bazaar.

New Game Laws.

These are a few important game and fish laws passed:

Perhaps the most needed bill was one which will give the non-resident hunters the right to ship deer out of the state.

To allow rabbits to be killed and sold. Fixing deer hunting season November 10 to November 30.

Extending closed season for squirrels to 1915.

Extending closed season on quail, pheasant, grouse and wild turkey to 1917.

To permit the shooting of bear. Increasing the deer hunters license for aliens to $25.

Best Medicine for Colds

When a druggist recommends a remedy for colds, throat and lung troubles, you can feel sure that he knows what he is talking about. C. Lower, Druggist, of Marion, Ohio, writes of Dr. King's New Discovery: "I know Dr. King's New Discovery is the best throat and lung medicine I sell. It cured my wife of a severe bronchial cold after all other remedies failed." It will do the same for you if you are suffering with a cold, or any bronchial, throat or lung cough. Keep a bottle on hand all the time for everyone in the family to use. It is a home doctor. Price 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by J. M. Wiggazzer & Co., Tawas City, and Jas. E. Dillon, East Tawas.

ALFALFA ON EVERY FARM IN THE CORN BELT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

I H C Agricultural Extension Department Makes Preliminary Announcement.

I KNOW OF NOTHING WHICH WILL DO MORE FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE STATE OR ADD MORE TO ITS WEALTH THAN A THOROUGH KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING OF ALFALFA.—GROUT.

By J. E. BUCK.

We have come to the dividing of the ways—we have reached a critical point in the history of our agricultural development. Aside from the 35,000,000 acres in the United States that can be reclaimed by irrigation, and the 74,000,000 acres of farm lands that can be made available for cultivation by means of drainage, no very large areas of virgin soil remain to be brought under cultivation in our country. In time, of course, these barren lands will be made to yield abundant harvests—but for the present we must look elsewhere to find a solution of the problem with which we are confronted. If we are to keep on going forward it will be necessary for us to secure larger yields from the fields that are already under cultivation. That is to say, our problem is not so much how to increase the population in rural communities as it is to increase the producing capacity of the people already on the farm.

Average Yields.

The average yield of corn per acre in the United States is only about 27 bushels.

Our average yield of wheat is only 13.7 bushels per acre—and the average yield of nearly everything we grow on the farm is exceedingly low, compared with the yields in other countries.

It is high time we were waking up and doing something.

Better Farm Management Needed.

One hundred years ago the Mohawk valley in New York was the wonder of Europe, was the wonder of the world for its fertility, and thousands of carloads of cattle, hogs and farm crops were shipped out of that valley until its fertility has been exhausted. The settlers then moved westward into the Miami and Scioto valleys of Ohio, and did the same thing over again. Following the exhaustion of these rich valleys, the magnificent broad prairies of Illinois and Iowa were brought under cultivation, and the same process is now being repeated. Even in the Red River Valley of the North, where fifty bushels of wheat to the acre was not unusual, today not more than fifteen bushels is grown.

Food Supply and Population.

To make it possible for the people of the United States to raise, clothe and feed future generations, we must change our system of agriculture. We cannot depend upon Uncle Sam for any more land, and the only method by which we can keep the United States on the map is to make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before.

During the last decade the population of the United States increased 25 per cent. During the same period the production of beef in the United States fell off 28 per cent.

A few years ago it cost the laboring man $52.05 for his yearly supply of meat—today the same number of pounds of meat cost $85.05, an increase of 63.00.

In view of this what shall we do? A careful analysis shows that we need more fertile fields, or rather fields with greater fertility.

We need larger and better herds. We need better roads.

We need larger bank accounts. We need better homes.

We need better citizenship. How can all this be done?

Perhaps no one thing will do more to secure these things than growing alfalfa.

If that is true, why haven't we been growing alfalfa? Because we thought it was impossible.

We Can Grow Alfalfa.

Many farmers in the corn belt do not believe that they can grow alfalfa. They are under the impression that it requires peculiar climatic conditions, and a peculiar type of soil, such as is found in the western states, particularly Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, California and Utah—the great alfalfa states. We have reached the point where we know we can grow alfalfa in the corn belt, and it is now up to us to grow it.

Where Alfalfa is Grown.

The accompanying map shows where alfalfa is grown in the United States today. At the present time all the alfalfa grown in the United States is less than the area of the little state of New Jersey. The total area under alfalfa in this country is 4,707,136 acres. Of this area Kansas alone has 956,962 acres of alfalfa—or about one-fifth of our entire alfalfa crop.

Nebraska comes second with 685,282 acres; Colorado third, with 508,892 acres; California fourth, with 484,134 acres; and Idaho fifth, with 308,892 acres.

All of the corn belt states are lamentably shy in the growing of alfalfa, as is shown by the following rank in which they come as producers of the crop:

Missouri, 17; Ohio, 19; Iowa, 20; Illinois 22; Wisconsin, 23; Indiana, 24; Michigan, 29; Minnesota, 35.

With the unquestioned advantages of alfalfa, we should be growing more of this great legume crop.

Advantages of Alfalfa.

As to the advantage of growing alfalfa in the corn belt, Prof. P. G. Holden says:

"It produces a large yield per acre, more than double that of clover.

"It is rich in protein, having almost as high a feeding value as bran.

"It is the most enriching crop for the ground which we have.

"When a good stand is once secured it will generally last four to six years in the humid regions and much longer in the west.

"It can be fed as hay to all kinds of animals, and has no superior as a hog pasture."

Builds Up Agriculture.

"No one more literally abets the growth of two blades of grass where one grew before than he who effectively urges the cultivation of alfalfa upon those who are strangers to it, and no one is more truly working for the benefit of agriculture, the basis of all prosperity, than he who proclaims its excellence as the foremost forage."

—Ex-Governor Hoard.

Grow Alfalfa.

An acre of alfalfa yields 5,280 pounds of digestible matter; red clover, 3,200 pounds; and corn, 2,800 pounds.

In every dollar's worth of alfalfa there are thirteen pounds of protein—in every dollar's worth of corn there are only eight pounds of protein. The great value of alfalfa as feed stuff is therefore apparent.

Alfalfa enriches the soil—grain impoverishes the soil.

There remains little more to be said. Every farmer who reads this should begin immediately to make preparations for putting in a piece of alfalfa, even though it be only one acre. If you can grow an acre next year you can grow ten acres the following year—and then twenty, forty, and even one hundred if your farm is big enough to make so large a field practicable.

Ten acres of alfalfa on every farm in the United States would give us in round numbers 64,000,000 acres of alfalfa. Before the next decade has gone into history we would be growing 100,000,000 acres of alfalfa in the United States. If we do this we will be infinitely better off than we are today—our fields will be vastly more fertile and our crop yields will be bigger and better—our herds will be larger and the quality of butter fat will be greatly increased—we will have happier homes—and we will be better citizens.

Eleven pounds of alfalfa is worth as much in feeding value as ten pounds of bran, and it costs but half as much.

PRESSING THE QUESTION
Influence of the Cinematograph.
A striking illustration of the influence of the ubiquitous cinematograph is reported by the United States consulate at Belgrade, Serbia. American fashions have recently become very popular with the young men of that city, there is an unprecedented demand at the local shops for hats, boots, and other wearing apparel similar to that in vogue in the United States; and the American style of hair cutting has come into favor. These innovations are unmistakably the result of the exhibition of moving pictures of American origin. The obvious moral of all this, as the consul points out, is that the cinematograph might be used to great advantage in advertising all kinds of American products. For instance, pictures of American agricultural machinery in operation would probably create a great demand for the thing itself. This plan offers an economical substitute for the actual exhibition of American products in commercial museums and the like.
Putting It Mildly.
"Does the gentleman mean to say that I'm a liar?" shouted Senator A. "The gentleman," replied Senator B., "has too much regard for the courtesies of the chamber to utter the sentiment so aptly and accurately expressed by his learned friend."
Senatorial courtesy is a great thing, and one hates to see it lost sight of.

OBJECT OF SUSPICION
By OLIVE WENGLER.
As Gillilly sat huddled on the top step leading to his house and felt the misty rain against his face he wished he had not been so everlastingly reserved. He wished he had been wont to mingle with his fellow men, especially since coming to the suburbs a few weeks previous to live. These reflections were surging through his soul because Gillilly was locked out. In addition to this fact, it was after 12 o'clock, his wife was away on a visit, and he didn't know the people next door.
He couldn't go to a hotel, because there wasn't a hotel in the suburb. He couldn't take a train back to town, because the trains had stopped running by that time. It grew colder and colder.
Gillilly felt that he must do something. So, tumbling down his steps, he strode across the wet lawn to the neighboring house, where he rang the bell.
"Good evening," said Gillilly to the blue pajamas that finally opened the door. "I'm Mr. Gillilly, and I live next door. I'm locked out. Would you mind lending me all the door keys you have? Perhaps one of them will fit my door."
The blue pajamas laughed a cold, sarcastic laugh. "You have your nerve," he said. "Quite likely that I'm going to help you break into a neighbor's house on any such yarn as that! I happen to know that the people next door are away visiting!"
"I saw the trunks go!" floated triumphantly down the stairs in feminine tones.
"Mrs. Gillilly went away, but I'm at home," explained Gillilly.
The blue pajamas laughed again. "Good night," he said. But Gillilly thrust his foot into the crack of the door.
"I don't blame you," he said, "but I'm telling you the truth. Here are letters and cards."
"He may have murdered Mr. Gillilly and taken his papers to help along his story!" excitedly called the feminine voice. "Don't you believe him, George!"
"I can't hang around outdoors on a night like this!" protested Gillilly. "Come along with me and I'll prove to you that I know the house!"
The blue pajamas wavered, then slipped on an overcoat and tramped across the lawn with Gillilly. In the porch behind them the owner of the feminine voice stood watchfully.
"I've got the hatchet, George, if he does anything to you!" she called.
The third key the neighbor tried turned in the lock of Gillilly's front door, but the blue pajamas stopped him. "What wood," he demanded, "is in the dresser in the back bedroom on your second floor."
Gillilly is the most unobservant of men. If Mrs. Gillilly should paper the whole inside of the house with purple wall paper with yellow polka dots Gillilly would not be likely to notice it.
"I don't know!" he said.
"There!" cried the blue pajamas, sternly. "I knew you were a fake!" Then, pocketing the key, he strode away indignantly.
"Wait a minute!" Gillilly begged. "If you won't believe me and let me sleep in my own house, let me sleep in your barn."
"Don't do it, George!" cautioned the voice from the front porch. "He'll smoke or something and set the garage on fire. They always do."
"No, old chap," said the blue pajamas firmly. "All I've got to say to you is to beat it quick before the patrol wagon gets here! I'm not going to permit Gillilly's house to be robbed, even if he is a stuck up dub!"
Gillilly slunk away and passed the night in a secluded corner of the suburban railroad station, where only three-quarters of him got wet.
At noon the next day he walked into the office where he knew he should find the owner of the blue pajamas and "How do you do?" he said beamingly to that nonplused person. "My name's Gillilly. I'm the stuck-up dub who lives next door to you. I think I owe you a lunch. Besides, I'd like to impress my countenance upon your memory by way of preparing for future emergencies!"—Chicago Daily News.
