We call the especial attention of our readers to two very interesting articles which appear this week, one relating to the closing up of the business of H. M. Loud's Sons Co. at AuSable, and the other giving a vivid idea of the immensity and importance of the stock business conducted by C. H. Prescott & Sons. Both of these firms have been engaged in business in Iosco county for a great many years, one has stuck strictly to the lumbering business and is now closing up the holdings, the other has turned to the cultural possibilities of this section a making a big success in the stock business and general farming.

Whether you can handle a pick or a pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books; dig ditches or edit a paper, ring an auction bell or write funny things, you must work. If you look around you will see that the men who are most able to live the rest of their lives without work are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with work. Work gives an appetite for meals, it lends solidity to your slumbers. It gives the appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work but the world is not proud of them. It does not even know their names; it speaks of them as so-and-so's son. The great busy world does not even know that they are here. So find out what you want to know and do in; take off your hat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less devious you will get into; the sweeter will be your sleep and the better the world will be for you.—Exchange.

Michigan's Big Stock Ranch.

In the face of opposition of his sons, Rev. C. H. Prescott, who died in January last at the age of 85 years, the head of the family so well known in Michigan affairs, held on to the stump lands of Prescott & Sons, after lumbering, and now at the close of their lumbering operations and sawmill at Tawas City, which burned several years ago, the Prescotts find themselves conducting a stock business which requires their whole time. The management of the business devolves upon Hon. George A. Prescott, widely known as former state senator and secretary of state, who is assisted by his sons, Charles T. and George Jr. Their ranch in Iosco and Ogemaw counties comprises ten sections, 6,400 acres, sub-divided and surrounded by miles of woven wire fence, traversed by swift flowing streams of pure water, and all under cultivation or covered with clover, timothy and blue grass. In addition the Prescotts own a 2,000-acre ranch three miles away known as the Gage and Mitchell ranch; and Mr. Prescott is a member of the firm of Prescott, Gage & Mitchell, who operate a 4,000 acre ranch in the same locality, known as the Sayles Lake ranch, a total of 12,000 acres in ranches. The ranches are located near the village of Prescott on the Prescott division of the Detroit & Mackinac railway.

"Our system," says Mr. Prescott, jr., "is very simple. To begin with it is mainly a grazing proposition. With this wonderful pasturage we can put from 200 to 300 pounds on an animal in a summer at a very low cost. We buy all the stock we can in the spring and sell off most of it in the fall. If the price in Chicago is not too high, we bring in a lot of Western steers and pasture them. In the fall we pick out a few for winter feeding."

"Last winter we were able to add as high as 50 pounds per animal per month on a ration of cornmeal, clover, hay, corn, ensilage, molasses and cotton seed meal. This compares very favorably with the results obtained by Ohio and Indiana feeders. We got a very nice price for them in March. Our farming is on a three-crop rotation basis corn, oats and seeding clover, with the oats getting the land back to grass. The corn we use as ensilage and feed the oats to the horses, as well as selling some. Last summer we threshed 5,300 bushels of oats from 100 acres. We have cut as high as 1,000 tons of hay and threshed 14,000 bushels of grain on this and the Gage and Mitchell ranches. Last year at the close of the grazing season we had on hand 1,400 head of cattle, 7,600 sheep and 60 to 70 horses. We grained 300 steers last winter in addition to the cattle we roughed through.

"On much of the land no effort is made to pull the stumps or cut down the second growth trees which grow as quickly and naturally after the heavy timber is cut off. The stumps don't bother the grazing, for we have far more pasture than we can use and the trees afford elegant shade to both stock and man. If the trees get the better of us, we cut lanes through them about two rods wide and burn the brush. This kills off an additional rod on each side and the blue grass quickly springs up.

"This ranch is run strictly as a business proposition. We have long since passed the experimental stage. When father years ago first started this ranch, I was opposed to it. I was a lumberman. But I am entirely won over. "Can you see anything wrong with this country? There's nothing like it. You can't find better land anywhere. It is a stock raising country that cannot be excelled. You may think I am over-enthusiased, but let me tell you that in all my travels over the great west, I have yet to find its equal. The remarkable increase in land values the past few years, indicate that some people are beginning to realize these things, but the past increases will seem small when once the great home-seeking public get a knowledge of what northeastern Michigan has to offer."—Michigan Investor.

JURISDICTION OF TEACHER

Co-Extensive With That of Board in Regard to Pupils of Public Schools.

By A. W. BLACK, Prosecuting Attorney of Iosco County.

Satisfactory arrangements having been made through the courtesy of the management of the Tawas Herald, I shall from time to time give the readers of this paper my understanding of the law covering several important matters, particularly those of a public nature that as citizens we are all interested in.

The subject this week will be "The School Teacher and the School Board." The school boards or boards of directors in the various rural, town and city school districts are charged with the general management and control of the schools and their respective districts. In order to exercise this control they are empowered to make and enforce all reasonable rules and regulations necessary for the government and general welfare of the schools. In the exercise of this control the school board has a wide discretion; in fact the only limitation imposed upon that body is that the rules which they prescribe shall be reasonable. However, to ascertain what is reasonable and what is unreasonable it is necessary to know the decisions of the courts on that subject because the question can only be settled by decisions of courts.

The supreme court of Iowa has defined a reasonable rule in these words: "Any rule not subversive of the right of children or parents, or not conflicting with humanity or the precepts of Divine law, which tends to advance the objects of the law in establishing such rules, must be considered reasonable and proper."

Every school teacher is the agent of the school board in maintaining order and discipline and enforcing its reasonable rules and regulations, except where such enforcement requires the expulsion of the pupil and as I understand it, expulsion is the prerogative of the school board only.

The jurisdiction of the school teacher may be regarded as co-extensive with that of the school board, inasmuch as he or she is the agent of the board in enforcing its rules and in the absence of rules made by the board the teachers may make them themselves.

One cyclopedia of law says: "It is in the province of the directors to establish such rules and regulations as they may deem proper, but if they fail to do so, or in matters wherein they fail to provide any, the law will presume that they have delegated that power to the teacher and the teacher may establish such rules as are reasonable and not in conflict with rules already established by the board."

In the maintenance of discipline and the enforcement of rules the school teacher may resort to corporal punishment, unless prohibited by statute, as in New Jersey; or the teacher may suspend. The school board alone may resort to expulsion.

Having considered the source and nature of the power exercised by the teacher and the school board over pupils we may pass on to the extent and limitations of their jurisdiction.

As soon as the child arrives upon the school premises during school hours and in the capacity of a pupil, the teacher's responsibility for and control over the conduct of such a pupil becomes complete, and under all ordinary circumstances exclusive. No angry parent can lawfully interpose between the teacher and the pupil in the exercise of this control. The teacher is limited only by the reasonable rules of the school board and by the criminal laws of the state.

Having found that the teacher's jurisdiction over the pupil is exclusive on the school premises, as stated above, we can now consider the teacher's responsibility for and control over the child's conduct on the way to and from school, and in doing so we are liable to meet with some differences. These questions suggest themselves:

First—May the teacher lawfully punish a pupil for acts committed between home and school?
Second—Must the teacher take cognizance of such acts or may he disregard them?
Third—What is the nature of the teacher's jurisdiction over the pupil at such times?

In answering these questions we must recognize changes that have taken place in the teacher's legal status, as well as changes in popular sentiment. We may look back and find that there was a time in this country when school keeping was a private enterprise. The private teacher who visited the home was merely a paid servant with no power to command obedience on the part of the pupil unless specifically conferred by the parents. The case stood a little better when the pupil sought the school teacher either in the teacher's home or in some other place especially provided by him. When the child was committed to the teacher's care an implied contract at once arose that in consideration for service rendered the parent agreed to pay the advertised rate and delegated to the teacher so much of his parental authority as was necessary to compel obedience on the part of the pupil, at least while under the teacher's immediate supervision.

At the time later in the general advancement the State commanded the establishment of public schools and provided for their maintenance by general taxation. The state also provided for the certification of the teachers; in other words the teacher now has state recognition, inasmuch as the certification of teachers has been practically taken out of the hands of local authorities and vested in State officials, and the teacher now finds that he is recognized as a State official acting with authority delegated to him by the State and not by the parent.

Newspaper Support.

The farmer raises more corn to feed more stock to buy more land to raise more corn, etc. This is the circle of the farmer's endeavor.

The newspaper man solicits more business to get more money to publish a better paper to induce more business to print a better paper, etc. This is the newspaper circle.

Every dollar paid into the cash drawer of a newspaper office makes a better newspaper, a better newspaper makes a better town, a better town makes property more valuable and work more plentiful.

This is the truth of newspaper support in a nutshell. No class of business, men on earth are so patriotic as newspaper men, none spends so great a percentage of receipts in improving the business, none takes so much pay in glory!

Don't be parsimonious with your home newspaper. It is a policy best told in the old homily of the man that bit off his nose to spite his face.—Ex.

Little do men perceive what solitude is and how far it extendeth; for a crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal where there is no love.—Bacon.

THE UNWASHED CUP

A Three Minute Talk on How to Drink Healthfully and Decently.

Prepared by the Minnesota Association for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis.

The unwashed cup—Do you use it? Do members of your family use it at home or elsewhere? If you do it is up to you to wake up and realize that you are not only behind the times, but so far as this practice is concerned in the stone ages of civilization. Don't you know that the trend of all the centuries is away from the gregariousness of the primitive man and toward the privacy and individualism of modern life? In thought and action men are becoming more social but in habits of living more individual. In the dark corners of the world today you will find people eating from one dish, smoking a common pipe, bathing in a common tub. Do you want to be classed with these people, or even with the crass boarding-school boy who borrows his roommate's pantaloons to go to the ball game? You stopped using a family tooth brush several generations ago. Why do you continue to use a family, or worse, a school or railroad station cup that is practically certain to have been used by uncleanly and diseased people and cannot be cleaned by rinsing. Be up-to-date, throw away that dirty dripping dipper and unspeakable dish cloth, use some real hot water and soap powder or soda on the family glass-ware and carry your own paper or metal cup with you wherever you go in public.

Closing Out Sale.

I am closing out my entire stock of millinery, ladies' coats, skirts, furs, caps, children's coats. Everything at cost and lots below cost. Also guaranteed jewelry. Will sell everything as I am going out of business. Will also rent my store for a millinery. This is a fine opening for someone.

MRS. J. C. WIDEMAN,
Twinning, Mich.

Snail Shells in Demand.

More than 600,000 pounds of snail shells are shipped out of Malaysia every year to Europe and America to be used in the making of buttons and novelties. The shells, when of good quality, bring about 16 cents a pound in New York. The shells are taken from the ocean by fishermen and sold through Chinese collectors to European firms at Singapore.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., Sept. 26, 1913

At the annual convention of the meat packers held in Chicago this week the blame for the scarcity of meat and consequent high prices was laid by the packers upon the American farmers. The packers claim that unless the farmers take more kindly to raising stock the prices of meat will soar still higher. This is a serious question for already meat has become almost a luxury in the homes of the laboring people and notwithstanding the claims of the vegetarians no satisfactory substitute has been found for this article of food.

Representative Stevens of New Hampshire has announced that he will soon introduce a bill in congress to delegate to the interstate commerce commission the power to compel the railroads of the country to take adequate measures for the protection and the safety of the traveling public. In view of the numerous wrecks and accompanying loss of life in the recent past it seems as though some measures should be taken to conserve the lives and welfare of those who trust themselves to the railroads.

The grand jury now in session in Bay county seems to be finding plenty of material for its deliberations. Several indictments have been returned and more are to follow, so it is said. It is surprising the amount of crime, misfeasance and malfeasance in office that can be dug up by a body of men who really set their minds to it.

President Wilson says he has his pen sharpened to sign the tariff bill and expects to use it for that purpose this week. Should this happen the tariff would go into effect next Monday and be applicable to imports entered on that day.

Beasts of Prey Killed by Foresters.

During the last fiscal year 4,686 predatory animals were killed by federal officers on the national forests, according to an actual count of carcasses. An indeterminate number of animals, whose bodies were not found, are presumed to have died from poison.

The rangers' bag of beasts of prey this year, as shown by forest service figures, was made up of 206 bears, 3,541 coyotes, 133 mountain lions, 62 lynx, 583 wild cats, 64 wolves, and 97 wolf pups. The figures indicate that the national forests are becoming cleared of wild animals that prey upon domestic live stock and game, for the forest ranger fills in odd moments between other jobs by thinning out "undesirable citizens" of the animal world.

Wolves are said to cause greater losses to western stockmen than any other of the predatory animals. It is estimated that a family of wolves will destroy about $3,000 worth of stock per annum, and that one able-bodied individual costs the grazing industry $600 a season.

The wolves are of two classes—the smaller prairie wolves or coyotes, and the larger grey, black, or timber wolves, called "lobos." These latter are the great stock destroyers against which the campaign of the rangers has been waged.

The methods of hunting wolves in the west vary. On the plains wolves are sometimes hunted with dogs and horses, but this way is considered expensive and often dangerous. This sport is described by Roosevelt in his earlier hunting books. On national forests the rangers either set out poison or baited steel traps or, by watching trails and hiding near a wolf's den, are able to shoot one or both of the old wolves when they return from foraging. In no other way, according to the forest service, can the number of wolves be kept down so well as by finding their dens and destroying the young.

The skins of the predatory animals killed by the rangers are either kept as souvenirs or sold for a price or for bounty. Wolf skins in the west are said to bring from $4 to $6 for robes and rugs; a mountain lion skin, $10 to $20; and a bear skin, anywhere from $20 to $150, according to size and species. In addition to this there are bounties on bear, lions, and wolves in most of the western stock states. Wyoming, in ten years, has paid out, it is said, over $65,000 on bounties on wolves alone and $95,000 more on coyotes and mountain lions.

Through his activity against these pests, the forest ranger, it is said, has saved the stockmen many thousands of dollars during the year, while the protection to game animals, such as deer, elk, and antelope, is of almost equal importance.

All who have investigated chiropractic have been made to realize the nerves control every movement of the body whether voluntary or involuntary, and when the nerve current is turned on in full force every organ in the body will be in that perfect harmony which brings forth physical comfort and ease, called health—as old as mankind, but of only late brought to the attention of the public as a science. Clinical records show that there is hardly a disease that has not been successfully removed by chiropractic or spinal adjustment. All diseases are expressions of the nerves, no matter what part of body is affected they have the same common origin, namely, impinged nerves, the supply of which is cut off in the spinal column or backbone. The affections entirely disappear when the pressure is removed. Spinal adjustment is not actually a new practice, having been used by the Bohemians for over a century with varying success, but it remained for American ingenuity and invention to succeed those old, crude practices with the modern chiropractor, who, by a skillful thrust, without pain or discomfort, removes the cause of your affliction by releasing the physical life forces within, when nature promptly cures. Call and let us explain this wonderful science.

Winding Up Big Company.

Col. George Alvin Loud, since his retirement from congress, has been cleaning up the affairs of the H. M. Loud's Sons Company which has practically gone out of the lumbering business as a corporation. One of the brothers composing the firm, Henry N. Loud, some time ago bought out the plant and timber holdings of the Sterling Cedar & Lumber Company at Charles, Mackinac County, and his son, H. Kimball Loud is managing the same, while Colonel Loud has been closing out the odds and ends of the old company. This included the sale of the Loud's Sons' interest in the Loud & Hoeft Lumber Company in Presque Isle county, including several thousand acres of land in that county and the mill plant at Rogers City. The disposal of quantities of lumber at AuSable, and the conversion into lumber of something over 1,000,000 feet of boom sticks used by the company in rafting logs down AuSable river the last forty years. There were also a quantity of other logs to be sawed and sold.

The company owns about 40,000,000 feet of standing timber tributary to the AuSable & Northwestern railroad, built and formerly operated by the Loud's Sons Co., but sold some months ago to the Detroit & Mackinac Railway company. This timber, however, will not be lumbered by the Loud's company, but will be sold.

When the affairs of this company are wound up it will end a lumbering corporation that has been a factor of note in the lumbering operations of Lake Huron shore, and one of the most prominent in the state for half a century. The fire which swept AuSable a few years ago and practically destroyed an industry representing an investment of half a million dollars, was the beginning of the end of the lumbering operations of the firm.

The Loud's Sons Company was organized in 1865, at AuSable by the late Henry Martyn Loud, was succeeded by his three sons, Henry N., George A. and Edward F. Loud, and for years the company was actively engaged in the production of lumber and cedar products and salt. The company constructed the AuSable & Northwestern railroad primarily for logging purposes, a line 70 miles long. The company also acquired lands along the banks of the AuSable river, a distance of 90 miles, which was subsequently transferred to the Commonwealth Railway, Light & Power Company, and is being developed for the generation of electric energy by water, three dams having been constructed and 140,000 voltage transmitted to the Saginaw Valley, and thence on into Central Michigan, which is moving the wheels of many public utilities and other industries.

The Louds also operated car works at AuSable, two saw mills, planing mill, shingle mill, cedar yard, extensive lumber yard, a line of steamers engaged in freighting the products of the company to markets on the Great Lakes. It also operated a general store at AuSable, in fact for years was the main industry of the town.

To wind up this vast business the ramifications of which were so extended, and clean up the odds and ends has engaged in personal activities of Col. Loud many months, and there is yet considerable to do, although excellent progress has been made.—Michigan Investor.

Strengthen Weak Kidneys.

Don't suffer longer with weak kidneys. You can get prompt relief by taking Electric Bitters, that wonderful remedy praised by women everywhere. Start with a bottle today, you will soon feel like a new woman with ambition to work, without fear of pain. Mr. John Dowling of San Francisco, writes:—"Gratitude for the wonderful effects of Electric Bitters prompts me to write. It cured my wife when all else failed." Good for the liver as well. ### Great Advance During Century.

A century ago astronomers, geologists, chemists, physicists, each had an island of his own, separate and distinct from that of every other student of nature; the whole field of research was then an assemblage of unconnected units. Today all the standpoints of study have risen together to form a continent without either ferry or bridge.

Time's Changes.

"My grandfather," said the old-timer, "used to put all his money in his stocking." "Waal, things haint changed much," said his old friend. "My grandson, who's takin' a course in modern department at one o' them eastern colleges, puts most of his money into socks."—Judge.

Grazing Regulations Upheld By Stockmen.

There were only 144 cases of grazing trespass on the national forests during the past fiscal year, according to a report issued from the forest service. The service considers this remarkable, in view of the fact that the national forests contain 138,000,000 acres and have boundaries many thousands of miles in length. Nearly 32,000 grazing permits were issued, and more than 20,000,000 head of domestic animals grazed upon the forests for periods from a few days, in crossing, to a whole year.

The various forest officers in charge of the areas on which this stock grazed are so much pleased by this record, because it reasonably might be assumed that it would be extremely difficult to protect this large area from the encroachments of live stock and from depredation of various sorts. A large part of the difficulty, however, is obviated by the ready cooperation of the stock owners who use the range.

Of the 144 cases where the departures from the regulations of the department of agriculture were considered serious enough to warrant the filing of a trespass charge, 20 were dismissed by the department because of a lack of proof. The department points out that, while there were of course a great many minor violations due to a lack of knowledge or a misunderstanding of the regulations, they were settled without difficulty through the issuance of permits to cover the cases or by personal conferences which were sufficient to prevent further trouble.

Big Mistake.

Bluffers bounced into the club, jammed his hat down on a table with a fierce bang, and flung himself into an easy chair.

"What's wrong, today, Bluffers? You look bad."

"I'll never forgive myself. I kicked a man out of my house last night."

"Humph! I've kicked out many a one. Young fellow, I suppose?"

"No; past middle age."

"Well, these old codgers have no business to be coming around courting young girls. I would have kicked him out myself."

"Yes; but I have found out since that this man wasn't courting my daughter. He was after my mother-in-law."

Hustling Husband.

Ethel—Oh, Harry! I have bought such a love of a bonnet—a black feather, a white bird and such velvet bows! Isn't it becoming? And it cost—it isn't cheap—$27.

Harry—Well, my dear, I am glad you like it; and I am sure it looks lovely. I have one dollar left in the bank and I think I can scramble around and get in the other $12 tomorrow, and I'll put off the rent this month; so I guess we'll be all right. Give me a kiss, dear.—Puck.

Explanatory.

Old Isaacs (entering unannounced)—Vat you mean by holding mine daughter in your lap—hey?

Young Rosenbaum—Well, her mother said she was worth her weight in gold, undt I was shust doing a leedle calculating—dot's all.—Puck.

Those Paris Styles.

"Yes; and now the futurists and cubists will make their fortunes."—Judge.

His Name.

"Why do you call that cat Plutarch?"

"On account of his numerous lives."

Beyond His Understanding.

The Englishman was attending his first ball game. He seemed very uneasy after the fifth inning and finally said to his American friend: "I say, old chap, when do they serve the tea?" "They don't serve tea at a ball game," laughed the American. "No tea between innings?" gasped the Englishman. "Then what's the object of the blooming game?"

Whittemore Fair a Big Success.

The first annual fair of the Western Iosco County Agricultural Association, held at Whittemore last Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19 and 20, was successful in every particular and more than fulfilled the expectations of the promoters, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather on the last day.

Great credit is due the officers of the association, H. J. Jacques, M. Jensen and L. A. Chichester, for their untiring efforts to make the fair a success and to please the exhibitors and furnish entertainment for those who attended. They were ably assisted by the united efforts of their townpeople and the leading farmers of that section of the county, among whom are J. R. Kitchen, Court Marshall and J. Bailey.

The amusements consisted of ball games, balloon ascensions, tug-of-war, trap shooting, and other sports which were most entertaining to the large crowds which were in attendance. The ball game on Friday between Reno and Hemlock was won by the former with a score of 12 to 7.

A great disappointment both to the management and the people was the delay of the Melzer family of acrobats, who failed to get their performance on the ground until the last day and then were able to give only part of their program on account of the rain.

Hon. E. B. Follett gave the people an interesting talk on farm and plains lands, which was both entertaining and instructive, Mr. Follett being familiar with his subject from actual experience.

The exhibits of stock and farm products were excellent and showed the willingness of the farmers around Whittemore to co-operate in making the fair a success.

On the whole the people of Whittemore are entirely satisfied with their first attempt at holding an agricultural exhibition, and will redouble their efforts next year to make their fair one of the best in this section of the country.

TRY the Speed Shells this season; they get the load to your bird quicker than any other shells you ever used. You take a shorter lead—angles bother you less—you get more birds.

The speed of these shells is due to the steel lining—to the way it compresses the smokeless powder and keeps all the punch of the explosion right behind the shot, where it belongs.
