Elsewhere in this paper appears the announcement of Angus W. McDonnell of Omer, who is a candidate for the nomination for state senator from this district. The editor of the Herald is not personally acquainted with Mr. Mc-Donnell, but his home paper, the Omer Progress, speaks very highly of him and we do not doubt that he would make a good man for the position.

Verily, some men are appreciative of favours received and loyal to those who have accommodated them. A certain baseball manager, who has traveled thousands of miles from his home printer had donated his bill, and after the padway's favor, the printer of whom he had obtained printing, a very pleasant bill, and when a peasant maid refused further credit, the ladies her bill was paid, said my work to a printer in another town and paid for it on delivery. That's loyalty and gratitude, isn't it? It is just such small men as this that make the home printer feel like whooping it up along the trade-at-home line and pour the hot shot into the mail order houses at every opportunity. Nit!

New Depot Not Wanted.

Editor Herald:

As four weeks have elapsed since my proposition was printed in the Herald relating to a site and the raising of a fund to assist in building a depot in Tawas City, to be used exclusively for passenger service, and during this time the only financial mention was the conviction of one party who would not give a nickel toward a depot unless it was in a certain part of the town, the proposition is hereby withdrawn, as the writer feels very lonesome.

Would not mention the fact that the railway company has been too busy or too poor to answer my inquiry of last fall whether they would care to buy this lot, only that in tying it up in a 20 year lease it might appear during this time as if the people had been deprived of the location if it so happened that it was desired.

Mr. Editor, please print it in heavy type, with affidavit attached, that the writer has no sore spots except in his sides from laughing at the practical joke of numerous Tawas citizens who actually made him believe they wanted something different than what he gave.

Consider this depot joke has a deeper plot than getting married before any one is aware that the parties are engaged.

Yours truly,
L. H. EMERSON.

Points for Closing the Financial School Reports for the Year.

The annual meeting of all school districts, except where otherwise provided, was held on Monday, July 13, and the school year began on that date. It is always necessary that every school board meet before the annual meeting and audit the accounts for the year, balance the books and make the financial report.

At this preliminary meeting the director and the moderator should check over the treasurer's accounts, the treasurer and the moderator should in like manner check over the director's accounts and the money on hand should actually be counted. It is very essential that all orders be drawn for all expenses up to the end of the school year, that these orders be presented to the treasurer and paid either in money or checks, that where orders are paid by checks the board take these checks very carefully into the account of their settlement.

In other cases the treasurer pays orders by checks and depends upon the bank for his knowledge of the money on hand. There may be outstanding checks that have not been presented to the bank for payment. It is often found that the whole trouble in balancing the books lies in these outstanding orders or outstanding checks at the time of settlement. Such situations cannot arise if boards are careful to take into account all outstanding orders and checks.

Another situation that boards should guard against very carefully is this: Occasionaly the board will hold the meeting for settlement one or two weeks before the annual meeting and the books will be audited at this meeting. It will then be found that more money is needed to complete the year. Money is borrowed. Other orders are paid and the director makes his report accordingly. In such a case the treasurer's report and the director's report cannot agree, nor can matters be satisfactorily adjusted later. A second meeting should be called and the books audited a second time. It is the duty of both the treasurer and the director of the school district to keep books. It is also the duty of every director or secretary of a school board to keep the minutes of all special and regular district meetings and of all board meetings. These minutes should be properly approved and properly signed.

Dr. W. N. Yeager, the dentist, will be at his office, over Wuggazer's drug store, in this city, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 4th, 5th and 6th.
All kinds of dental work done and all work guaranteed. Special attention to crown and bridge work. Painless extraction. adv

School districts in Michigan may now secure the use of 50 well selected books from the state library by paying freight and cartage from Lansing and return.
The books may be kept from three to six months, then returned and a new set secured. Less than 300 schools in the state availed themselves of the privilege during the past year.

In order that a town or city may make a substantial and steady growth it must have factories so as to induce people to make their home there. People will flock where there is employment.
City or public work will give employment to but few men, and that only for a portion of the year. The question of securing factories and other sources of employment must be agitated and inducements held out to either the citizens or outsiders to invest, or at least investigate the possibilities of successfully operating plants here. As a starter we would suggest the feasibility of some one putting in a pickle or canning factory.
We feel sure that our farmers would see the benefits such an institution would be to them as well as to the town. The idea has been mentioned before, but will stand repeating and pushing.

People take newspapers nowadays, read them and then throw them away.
They never think what a source of pleasure and profit—or reminiscence and thought, a file, or even a few numbers of such a paper would be to them twenty or thirty years afterwards. Pay for your papers and then keep them.

CHAUTAUQUA A SUCCESS

Excellent Programs, Good Attendance at the Week's Entertainments.

"Finest thing that ever came to Tawas City;" "Best I ever heard;" "Worth many times the price." These are some of the comments heard on our streets regarding the Chautauqua which was in progress here the first five days of the week, closing last evening. And as a matter of fact the Chautauqua merited all the nice things said about it, for the program exceeded the expectations of even its most ardent advocates.

The unpropitious weather of the first two days interfered seriously with the attendance, many people who had intended coming being deterred by the rain and threatening skies. However the tent was filled to its capacity on the last three days and the patrons were enthusiastic over the entertainment afforded them.

Sunday afternoon and evening the Illinois Glee Club furnished the musical portion of the program and their work was highly appreciated. Dr. Geo. P.
Bible was the speaker of the day and delivered two masterly addresses, his afternoon theme, "Fads and Extremes," being especially good.

On Monday the Play-Singers, a ladies' organization, furnished the musical attraction, their program embracing both classical and popular numbers and greatly pleasing the audience. Miss Florence A. Carey, leader of the company, is an accomplished violinist, having studied for some years under the great Henri Ern, and she exhibited a thorough mastery of her instrument. Miss Ethyl Potter, the reader, delighted the audience with her child impersonations.

Governor Robert S. Vessey of South Dakota was the evening speaker and delivered his lecture entitled "Think it Over." He is not a polished orator, but a plain man of the people, and has attained his position by sheer force of character. His address contained much food for thought among both business men and farmers.

The third day's program was declared by many to be the best of the whole series. In the afternoon Tom Morgan, baritone, and Miss Guller, piano accompanist, rendered an excellent program of vocal and instrumental music.
This was followed by James R. Barkley, the cartoonist and clay modeler, with a program in which he illustrated a number of famous poems with crayon pictures drawn while he recited the poems, and some humorous cartoons. Mr. Barkley is a master of his art and combines pathos and humor in his program in a manner which moves his audiences to tears in one moment and in the next convulses them with laughter.

In the evening the afternoon attractions both appeared again in shorter programs, and these were followed by an illustrated lecture on Panama by Prof.
Frank A. Gause. Prof. Gause was for a number of years superintendent of schools in the canal zone, and his lecture showed a thorough familiarity with his subject. Both slides and moving pictures were used to illustrate his lecture, which was greatly appreciated by those who saw and heard.

In the afternoon of the fourth day Skelton's University Orchestra and Dr.
Harry G. Hill were the attractions. This large orchestra of ten pieces is one of the best on the Chautauqua platform and they fully upheld their reputation by their work in Tawas City. A varied program of popular and classical music was given and hearty applause greeted them after every number. Dr. Hill, who by the way is president of the Central Chautauqua System, which furnished the talent for this Chautauqua, is an easy and fluent speaker, and his lecture, "Heroes in Overalls," was well received. As the subject would intimate his address was a tribute to the "ordinary people," as he called them, claiming to be one of them himself, and brought out the thought that no great man ever attained eminence nor any great movement was ever brought to a successful conclusion except by the assistance and co-operation of the masses.

The evening program on this day was a big double concert by the Skelton orchestra, which was listened to by the largest audience of the week, the seats being all taken and many people being forced to stand. During the intermission between concerts Dr. Hill appeared on the platform and broached the subject of a Chautauqua for next year.

The idea was enthusiastically received, and when he asked for pledges for season tickets to assure the success of the next Chautauqua, it took only about fifteen minutes to secure the necessary pledges for 500 tickets. This shows more than anything else that our people appreciate the efforts to furnish them with good entertainment. Practically the same committee that had charge of the arrangements this year will assume the responsibility for next year's course.
The committee this year were forced to go down in their own pockets and make up a deficit in the guarantee, but it is hoped that next year this will not be necessary, but that the receipts will be large enough to cover the cost.

The closing day's program was fully up to the standard set by the preceding numbers, if not better. Miss Mae Sheppard, soloist, gave a varied program of grand opera selections, folk songs and popular favorites, and the hearty applause she received denoted that she highly pleased her audience. She was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Guller, whose accompaniments and solos showed that she has great ability as a piano and violin artist.

Miss Elma B. Smith, child impersonator, bird warbler and mimic, is deserving of high encomiums. Her work is realistic and highly entertaining and only those who heard her can duly appreciate it.

Judge James A. Collins of the city court of Indianapolis was the speaker on this day, delivering in the afternoon his lecture, "Humanizing a Court," and in the evening, "The Oiler Half, or Pulling Against the Tide." Judge Collins is a forceful and eloquent speaker and in his remarks made plain to his hearers some of the problems which a man in his position are called upon to solve.
He related many of the incidents which have come under his jurisdiction and showed that he believes the courts to be not solely a means of punishment, but of social service and uplift to the people who appear before it.

Taken all in all, the Chautauqua has been the biggest thing that ever came to Tawas City, and we believe that the people who have benefited by it sincerely appreciate the hard work and unselfishness of the men who made the thing possible. Before it came there were many people who did not even know what a Chautauqua was, some thinking it a religious affair in the nature of a revival, and others believing it to be a sort of circus. But all know now what it is and what it stands for, and we hope and believe that the future of the Iosco County Chautauqua is assured and that in future years it will receive the support and patronage it so richly deserves.

Forest Reserves in Our Eastern States.

When a citizen of the United States decides to take a vacation he has an opportunity to visit many picturesque places in which with his fellow citizens he is joint owner. On the forest reserves a wide range of choice is open to him—two hundred million acres, equal in area to the six New England states, combined with New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. These include the wildest parts of the country, chiefly in the Rocky mountains and the coast ranges.
He can visit the most famous canyons, the largest trees, the wildest glaciers, all as joint owner and proprietor.

Moreover, his Uncle Sam, in the person of the rangers and foresters of the forest service, will extend many courtesies, and help him to see his own with greater facility than would be possible without their advice. They number fifteen hundred, each a picked man, devoted to his work and to the service.

Quite recently the government has adopted a wholly new policy, that of buying forest land at the headwaters of navigable streams. Hitherto the forest reserves in the West have been created by setting aside portions of the public domain.

The new purchases are in the Appalachian chain, in the White mountains of New Hampshire, in Virginia, Tennessee, the Carolinas and Georgia.
One may now visit a forest reserve in the eastern mountains where he will find the forest supervisor and his associates no less kindly than the western members of the brotherhood. All agricultural holdings are excluded, all small private holdings, such as hotel properties and camps, and only the wild land is taken that lies back upon the mountains.

Ten million dollars was appropriated for this purpose by congress in 1910.
The object is to protect the sources of streams, and land can be taken only in those states that have enacted laws permitting the government to purchase within their boundaries. Maine and New Hampshire, at the north, and seven states in the southern Appalachians have such laws.—Am. Review of Reviews.

The Silo a National Factor.

By A. L. Haescker.

The leading agricultural subject of the day is the silo, and its coming is of national importance. No subject is receiving so much attention from the experiment stations, farm papers and farmers institutes. All the great industries depending on live stock, such as the stock yards, creameries, packing houses and transporting companies are advocating its use. It is a conservation subject of great importance, for with it can be saved a large part of our principal crop. Nearly 40 per cent of the food elements of the corn crop of this country are now wasted. By the use of the silo this could be saved, and by so doing, hundreds of millions of dollars could be added to our national wealth. The corn forage, which annually goes to waste in this country, is often referred to as the "Billion Dollar Waste." Is it any wonder we are complaining of the high cost of living?

In the past eleven years the great stock industry of the United States, in comparison with our population, has been showing a decline. This condition has been largely brought about by the rise in price of all kinds of stock foods, thereby making a smaller profit to the producer. This in turn has driven many men out of the stock business and discouraged others from going in. With a silo the cost of producing stock and stock products can be greatly lowered.
Experiments have shown that by the use of the silo in place of the old feeding methods, butter can be produced from nine to ten cents per pound cheaper, and a saving made on the production of beef from $1.50 to $2.00 per hundred pounds. As the largest part of our food comes from live stock it is plain to see the relation of the silo to our national food supply.

Silage can be made from nearly all kinds of farm forage, and is a good and cheap ration for horses, cattle, sheep, swine and chickens. It requires little storage space, is a labor saving device, doubles the value of the corn crop, triples the stock carrying capacity of the land, restores the fertility of the soil, and returns its user annually 100 per cent on the investment.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., JULY 17, 1914

The management of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad probably does not think as highly of the interstate commerce commission as it did before the report of that body was issued. In its report the commission accused the railroad management of nearly every crime possible under the anti-trust laws, and recommended that the department of justice take immediate action against the directors.

If—If Chase S. Osborne should be nominated for governor by the republicans, and if Woodbridge N. Ferris should be nominated by the democrats, and if Henry R. Pattengill should be nominated by the progressives, the state of Michigan will see one of the prettiest contests for governor in its history.

More recent announcements in the daily papers state that Gov. Ferris will be a candidate for re-election, notwithstanding his wife's illness.

Remarkable Flora of the Early World.

By a count of the annual rings in the trunk of one of the giant sequoias of California, it has been ascertained that nearly 3,000 years, or the major portion of recorded human history, has passed across the stage since that tree was a seedling. But, long as this period seems when gaged by human achievement, it is a fraction of time almost too small to be measured when compared with the remote geologic age during which certain of the ancestors of the California giant tree was living along our Atlantic coast. The ancient vegetation which grew in South Carolina and Georgia during Upper Cretaceous and Eocene time—or, as geologists state, at least several million years ago—has been made the subject of an exhaustive investigation by Edward Wilber Berry, a report on which has just been published by the United States Geological Survey as Professional Paper 84. The earlier of these fossil florals, that of the Upper Cretaceous, embraces nearly 100 species of wholly extinct plants, and as the majority of them are believed to have been trees or shrubs, it is interesting to compare them with the vegetation now living in the same area. In addition to the sequoia or "big tree," now confined to the Pacific coast, there were three kinds of araucarias or Norfolk Island pines, which at the present time live only in South America and Australia, a pine with the leaves in clusters of three as in the living pitch pine, and a number of cypress-like trees which were once widely-spread over the world, but are now extinct. There was also a fan palm with very large leaves, which was perhaps the remote ancestor of the palmetto. Among the deciduous trees there were wax berries (Myrica) of two kinds, walnuts, many willows with long, narrow leaves, oaks of the type of the living black oak, fig trees of many kinds, and several magnolias. Among the smaller trees or shrubs there were soapberries (Sapindus), bittersweet, cinnamons, sumac, and laurels nearest to forms now confined to the Old World, and three kinds of eucalyptus, the living representatives of which are now native to Australia. The remote ancestors of the persimmon were also present, as well as a number of other kinds that are without vernacular names.

From the careful study of this ancient flora which has been preserved in fossil form in the rocks, it has been possible to draw certain tentative though at present reasonable conclusions as to the conditions which prevailed in South Carolina and Georgia when it was growing. These indicate that shallow seas extended inland over 100 miles from the present Atlantic coast, that the river gradients were high and the streams numerous and more or less torrential in character, and that there were swamps along the lower courses of the streams. The fossil plants indicate that there was a mild though not a strictly tropical climate, without marked seasonal changes—in fact, there is no evidence that frost occurred. The rainfall was abundant, as shown by the general character of the flora, as well as by certain features observed on some of the leaves and known as the "dripping points."

The later, or Eocene flora, has been found only in the state of Georgia, and is relatively small, as it numbers only 17 species.

All the species represent northward migrants along the Eocene seacoast from Equatorial America. They include West Indian palms, plants of the wonderful mangrove swamps that skirt the tidal shores in the tropics of both hemispheres and remains of the golden fern, whose present-day descendants lead a gregarious existence in the coastal swamps of the torrid zone. All these Eocene plants are types of the Florida keys, Antillean islands, and Central American shores and clearly indicate that in middle Eocene time the climate of Georgia was much warmer than it was either during the Upper Cretaceous epoch or at present.

Professional paper 84 is a technical description of the fossil plants of the area and the geologic ages treated. A copy can be obtained free upon application to the director of the Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

Try a Hike.

Why let the boy scouts and the other youngsters have a monopoly of the fun of hiking?

Why isn't it a great sport for ma, pa and the other elders, too?

You can make great sport of it if you want to, and get some bully by-products into the bargain.

For instance, the next time you have a day off, pick a route in the country, pack the baskets, take a pencil and a notebook, make your hike, and on the way jot down the number of plants and flowers you can identify, the bird calls you are sure of, and any little incident you think worthy of notice.

Then, as you spread the lunch beneath a fine shade tree, give the pick of the feast to the person in your party who makes the best score in this race for commonplace knowledge.

Try it again the next time you can, and have first and booby prizes for the highest and lowest percentage of improvement.

Say! you'll be surprised how much about nature you don't know and what fun it is to learn.

Also, how much better you'll sleep when you get home and how it'll build up your health.

Stops Neuralgia—Kills Pain.

Sloan's Liniment gives instant relief from neuralgia or sciatica. It goes straight to the painful part—soothes the nerves and stops the pain. It is also good for rheumatism, sore throat, chest pains and sprains. You don't need to rub—it penetrates. Mr. J. R. Swinger, Louisville, Ky., writes: "I suffered with quite a severe neuralgic headache for four months without any relief. I used Sloan's Liniment for two or three nights and I haven't suffered with my head since." Get a bottle today. Keep in the house all the time for pains and all hurts—25c, 50c and $1. TOLD BY THE TRUTHFUL MAN

This is a Story of the Remarkable Effect of Sudden Rains on the Gulf Coast.

"You'd scarcely believe how excessively damp it is along the Gulf coast," said a truthful man with long whiskers, to the editor of the Glasco Sun. "We all use rawhide harness, and a real hot, damp, day sure does cause the tugs to stretch amazingly. One day I drove down to the river bottom more than a mile from home, and loaded up three-quarters of a cord of pecan wood.

Just as I had finished loading a shower came up and the water that fell was as hot as the so-called hot coffee in restaurants. Well, I started the mules, and the tugs began to stretch, but the wagon never budged. I drove on home and when I got there the wagon was still down in the bottom and the tugs were stretched out as small as shoestrings.

"What did I do to get the wood home? That's easy. I just unharassed and threw the gears over a stump in the back yard. Fifteen minutes later the sun shone out, dried up the dampness, and in less than an hour that wagon came creeping up the hill. Yes, sir; that's a fact."

DOMESTIC ANIMAL CENSUS

Figures for the United States Are Somewhat Surprising to Man Who Hasn't Thought.

The United States is much more densely populated with domestic animals than is generally realized. In these days of famine prices for eggs it is interesting to learn that there are 280,345,133 chickens in the country, or an average of nearly three fowls for every man, woman and child. They are valued at $154,663,220, or 52 cents apiece. Only chickens over three months old are included in this report.

The number of horses, as might be supposed, has not increased as rapidly as the population, but despite the almost universal automobiles there are still nearly 20,000,000 horses in the United States, which are valued at more than $2,000,000,000.

It is rather surprising to find that there are more than 60,000,000 cattle, valued at more than $1,500,000,000. The number of sheep has declined in the past decade, but there are still more than 50,000,000, which represent a wealth of $22,000,000. Not the least important item of national wealth is the swine, which number about 60,000,000, and whose value is almost exactly $400,000,000.

THE WRONG PARENT.

Teacher—Tommy, next time you are late bring an excuse from your father.

Tommy—Who? Pa? Why he ain't any good at excuses; ma finds him out every time.—Boston Evening Transcript.

BRIGHT SIDE.

"Will I recover, doctor?" inquired the pedestrian who had been run over.

"Surest thing you know!" replied the ambulance surgeon. "The fellow who owns the auto is a millionaire."—Judge.

CUSTOM HOUSE AMENITIES.

"The government has given back all the captured flags. Nice thing, eh?"

"Yes; and I understand there's a movement on foot to return those seized aigrettes."

INTERNATIONAL INFLUENCE.

"Why did your friend take French leave when hostilities began?"

"I guess he had too much Dutch courage."

CRUEL COMMENT.

"He is a man one will always find in the van."

"Do you mean of progress or the police patrol?"

NOT SUFFICIENT DATA.

"Are the running expenses of your new car much?"

"I don't know; I haven't caught up with 'em yet."

REFINED DICTION.

Belle (sympathetically)—Did the poor thing break her leg?
Nell (stiffly)—Certainly not. She fractured her limb like a lady.

For State Senator.

I desire at this time to make formal announcement of my candidacy for the republican nomination for state senator from the 28th senatorial district.

The 28th district is primarily a farming community, and I believe it fitting that a farmer should represent it in the state senate. For some 40 years I have lived in this district and have contributed my best efforts toward converting the forest wilderness into cultivated farm lands. During these years of development I have had considerable experience in business life and the lumbering industry. For some years past I have been actively engaged in farming and stock-raising in Arenac county, own my own lands, live on my farm and work at my job.

I realize the importance of the position which I seek, and wish to state that if nominated and elected I shall endeavor to represent all sections of the district with utmost impartiality. The best interests of the entire district will guide me in all matters, without regard to factionalism or sectionalism.

I respectfully solicit your support at the primary election, Tuesday, August 25, 1914.

Omer, Arenac county, Mich. adv-31

Daily Thought.

No man is born into the world whose work is not born with him.—Lowell.

SACRIFICED.

Ethel—So Kate is finally married. How did she come to take the plunge?

Marie—She didn't. She was shoved off by three younger sisters.

IN THE FUTURE.

Dobbs—I see that Tompkins is going to make a flying trip to Europe.

Hobbs—So I noticed; going in an aeroplane.

THE TANGO TEA.

Dubbs—That grass widow doesn't dance gracefully; she hops too much.

Grubbs—Yes; she's something of a grasshopper.

DEFINED.

PLEASED CUSTOMER.

"No; she is suing me for defamation."—London Opinion.

Alpena Chautauqua, Aug. 10-16.

The Chautauqua at Alpena last year was a complete success and attended by hundreds of people from the surrounding towns and country. Many of those who came for a day are arranging this year to spend the entire week in Alpena, so that they will not miss any one of the numbers. The common remark after every performance last year was, "If I do not come again I have had the value of my season ticket."

Kryl's band was a big sensation, and will appear again this season. The Ben Greet players will be seen in one of the best of Shakespeare's comedies, "Twelfth Night." The musical program will be given by the Dunbar bell ringers, the Welch-Christensen-Baker Co., a grand festival by the Westminster choir, the Bohumir Kryl band and the Denton Grand Opera Co. There will be interesting lectures on different days by Edward Amherst Ott, F. E. Wendling, and Montaville Flowers.

If the work in congress will permit there will be an opportunity to see and hear one of the most prominent public men of the country, the Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives. The program for the week is filled with the very best of vocal and instrumental music by world-wide musicians, speakers of highest ability and with amusement, entertainment and instruction.

The Alpena Chautauqua Association is permitted to sell 1,000 tickets at $2 each before the opening day, and the tickets thereafter cannot be sold for less than $2.50 for the season ticket. Single admissions are 35 and 50 cents, aggregating to $8. A single ticket is good for any member of the family, and may be used morning, afternoon and evening for the 21 numbers.

August 10 to 16 will be this year as it was last, a great week in the city of Alpena. Every one who attended last year is sure to attend this year, and there will be hundreds of others who did not know what they were missing until their enthusiastic friends told them how big and how interesting the Chautauqua was.

This year everybody and their cousins will attend the Alpena Chautauqua. Season tickets may be purchased by mail from the secretary of the Chautauqua Association, Alpena. adv

VACATIONS

Vacations are mistakes wrapped up in railroad tickets. They impede commerce, cause panics, and rob men of their wives and bank accounts. They were invented by a divorce lawyer whose father was a railroad magnate, and whose grandfathers had something to do with the first trans-continental steamship lines.

Vacations are made in all sizes and are for sale wherever there is a depot or a boat landing. The larger ones have the power to drag a man onto an ocean liner and keep him in sight of the Pearly Gates for days, charging him full tuition while he is not eating a bite, but is feeding the fish with the last sandwich he ate before taking steage. People who wonder how a steamship company can throw in meals with the passage fare do not understand how a man can throw them out after he gets the passage fare.

The smaller vacations chase one around in the United States and send him home with a souvenir of everything in them but our mints.

Vacations prove that naturalists have no conception of the dimensions fish may attain, or of the number that may inhabit a given body of water. They prove, too, that men would rather sleep among snakes than bedbugs, and that while they abhor a fly in their home they are willing to put themselves up as the meat course at a mosquito reunion. Vacations teach a man his wife is the best cook on earth, and that any woman who can turn an egg in a skillet without breaking the egg or saturating it with ashes is worthy of a man of her own choosing. A man with a job and a home is a child of fortune, and if he doesn't appreciate them he deserves a vacation.

Wise and Otherwise.
We hope that the youthful New York interne, who has found the germ of typhoid fever, will make certain to take the creature out and club it to death before it does further damage.

The United States senate has refused to approve the appropriation for free distribution of garden seeds, but the item is not dead. One house or the other knocks it on the head at every session, but the conference committee always revives it and the seeds come along as usual.

It is an established fact that incendiaries have caused the destruction of millions of dollars worth of property of the people of this state, and it would appear that the time is now here when this class of criminals should be dealt with in the manner they deserve.

Kitchen Kinks.
Get a few large knobs of chalk and lay them at the back and sides of a fire. They will burn as red as coal, give a lovely heat and will save your coal next winter. Try it.

If you want the best pie-crust it could be made the day before you should use it and put into a cold pantry, in the crust will be flaky and crisp, you wish to retain the crispness after baking let the pies cool thoroughly before putting them away.

Very frequently when separating the whites from the yolks of eggs the yolks become broken and fall into the white. Dip a cloth in warm water, wring it dry, and touch yolk with a corner of it, and the yolk will adhere to the cloth and may easily be removed.

Pounding meat before cooking is an old-fashioned method of making it tender, but while it has the advantage of breaking down the tough tissues it has the disadvantage of being likely to drive out the juices and with them the flavor. A very good way of escaping this difficulty is pounding flour into the meat. This catches and retains the juices.

Facts Worth Knowing.
COOKING TIME TABLE
Following is a table showing the time

"Give your job work to a traveling man, and then ask for half rates for church notices. Get your lodge letter heads and stationery printed out of town and then flood the editor with beautiful thoughts in resolutions of respect and cards of thanks. They make such spicy reading, and you are so proud of your local paper when you pick it up filled with these glowing mortuary articles.

"But money—scorn the filthy thing. Don't let the pure innocent editor know anything about it. Keep that for sordid trades people who charge for their wares. The editor gives his bounty away. The Lord loves a cheerful giver. He takes care of the editor. Don't worry about the editor. He has a charter from the state to act as a door mat for the community. He will get out the paper somehow and stand up for the town and whoop it up for you when you run for office. Don't worry about the editor—he'll get on. The Lord knows how—but somehow."

CURSE OF THE LITERAL MIND

East Indian Thinker Ranks Its Possessor Among the Earth's Unfortunates.

Man is never literal in the expression of his ideas, except in matters most trivial. Very often man's words are not a language at all, but merely a vocal gesture of the dumb. They may indicate, but do not express his thoughts. The more vital his thoughts the more have his words to be explained by the context of his life. Those who seek to know his meaning by the aid of the dictionary only technically reach the house for they are stopped by the outside wall and find no entrance to the hall. This is the reason why the teachings of our greatest prophets give rise to endless disputations when we try to understand them by following their words and not by realizing them in our own lives. The men who are cursed with the gift of the literal mind are the unfortunate ones who are always busy with their nets and neglect the fishing.—From "Sadhana—The Realization of Life," by Rabindranath Tagore.

PAULINE WANTED HER TURN

Wasn't Exactly Sympathy That Caused Small Girl to Make Protest to Mother.

Little Pauline lived up in the neighborhood of the Thomson school. She enjoyed a reputation of being exceedingly sympathetic, and she would weep over the delinquencies of her erring big brother, who had a weakness for tying cans on dogs' tails and "sicking" cats around the corner.

One summer she accompanied her mother, brother and a small masculine friend to the mountains and while there adopted a tiny black and white kitten. It was her constant companion, living night and day in her arms. But one morning the two boys began to amuse themselves by tossing it into a mountain rivulet that trickled before the door. One boy would give it a pitch, watch it crawl out on the bank mewing, and then the other would take a "go."

Presently Pauline fled to her mother bathed in tears. "Oh, mamma!" she exclaimed, "brother and Billy are throwing my kitten in the creek!"

The mother went out front and proceeded to deliver a lecture. But just as she got to the most impressive part her eloquence was quenched by Billy, who piped up:

"Deed, now, Aunt Ada, there ain't nothing the matter with Pauline except we did not give her any turn to throw in the kitten herself."—Washington Star.

NO OVERTIME WORK FOR HIM.

"I was down at Far Rockaway with my machine and wanted to get to Belle Harbor, but I didn't know the road. I saw a policeman in uniform and pulled up beside him.

"Will you please direct me how to get to Belle Harbor?" I said.

"No, because I'm off duty. You'll have to ask the man on post," was the surprising answer."

FUTURISTS NOT IN FAVOR

Italian Audience Gave Unmistakable Evidence of Its Disapproval of the Cult.

The Florence correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, in describing a meeting of futurists at the Teatro Verdi, in that city, says: "Long before any of the futurists appeared on the stage the large audience indulged in noisy demonstration of disapproval, using torpedoes. The tumult became greater when Marinetti, Papini, Carra, Soffici and their associates appeared. A shower of eggs, potatoes, apples and paper fell upon the artists and the noise continued for two hours. When the storm was at its height Marinetti, with coat collar upturned, stepped close to the footlights and called the people before him forwards, while Papini gathered apples from the stage floor and threw them back at the shouting people. Then the police stepped in and endeavored to quell the near-riot. A potato struck Marinetti in the eye, but, like all the others in use on the occasion, it had been boiled and did no great damage."

WEATHER SUPERSTITION.

There used to be a tradition in England that January 25 was a day which indicated the happenings of the rest of the year. In the church calendar it was the day celebrated in honor of the conversion of Saint Paul, but no one seemed to know just what relation this fact had to the weather-predicting feature of the day—although old writers think there must have been some such relation. At all events, if the weather January 25 was fair the year was expected to be prosperous. Snow and rain and fogs and cold indicated calamities of one sort or another, and the death of much cattle among them.

Tree Bears Hands.

A curious tree is growing in Los Angeles, Cal., the seed of which was brought from Mexico. In general appearance it resembles an English walnut. The leaves are much like those of a buttonwood, but very much larger. The most marked peculiarity of the tree is its blossoms, from which it has been named the "hand tree." The flower is an inch and a half in diameter, with short russet sepals and long reddish-lined petals. The fat scarlet pistils protruded an inch beyond. They are so joined to resemble a hand, with fingernails like the claws of a Chinese grandee. The resemblance to a hand is striking.

It Doesn't Pay.

The trouble with the man who falls is that he wants to wait until tomorrow to study the lesson of the hour.

FORMING HABIT OF HEALTH

Infancy is the Time When This Most Important Matter Should Be Attended To.

"There is no time when the habit of good health can be more easily formed, and no other period when illness is so easily contracted and meets with so little bodily resistance as during infancy and early childhood.

"Babies should be naturally like healthy little animals; if they are not, it is because of wrong living on the part of their parents, resulting in inherited low vitality; or wrong environment due to ignorance or neglect of right health methods.

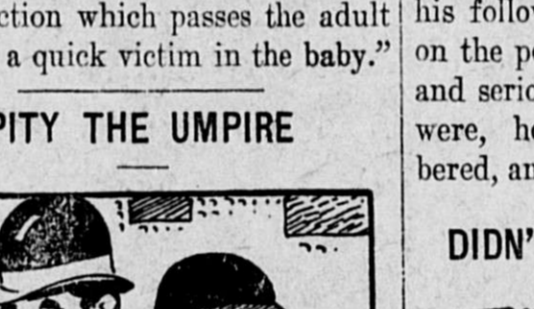

"The well baby needs simple guidance to see that he keeps well; the sick baby needs, and usually gets, attention in the effort to make him well; but the merely delicate baby, with enfeebled powers of resistance to disease and of constant low vitality, needs both guidance and the best attention that medical science affords.

"The basis of all modern medicine is prevention of disease. To keep the baby well is far easier, safer and surer than to cure him after he has once become ill.

"It takes very little to cause illness in the baby, and the result is often seemingly out of all proportion to the cause.

"The same digestive disturbances that, in an adult, would cause at the most a passing discomfort will result in acute illness in the baby, often with the most disastrous effect, and the infection which passes the adult by finds a quick victim in the baby."

PITY THE UMPIRE

Dinks—I had no idea you were superstitious.

Winks—I'm not.

Dinks—But you were carrying a horseshoe when you entered the ball park yesterday.

Winks—Oh! that was to heave at the umpire in case he got gay.

PERSIAN SOCIETY.

The Persians are a very punctilious race, and it is the sensible custom of the country, on making a call, to announce beforehand that you are coming. A thousand and one little points of punctilio have to be observed. A certain number of cups of tea are de rigeur, three pipes at least have to be smoked, a few whiffs from each; the rank and precedence of every guest is rigorously observed, and each visitor intrigues for, and generally receives, a little more than her due. To omit to return a visit is an unpardonable offense. The particular place in the apartment of each guest is regulated to a nicety, and many and bitter are the feuds on this subject.

THE TROUBLE.

Mrs. Jones—With these high prices, it is very hard to make both ends meet.

Mrs. Robinson—Indeed, it is quite as hard to make one end meet.

LOGICAL CONCLUSION.

"The scene of this play is in the Nutmeg state."

"Then it ought to have grate situations."

FATE THE SCAPEGOAT.

"Rogers is always grumbling against fate."

"Yes, he has to blame his incompetency on something."

THE OUTLOOK.

"Do you think the women will take kindly to the new fashion of green and purple hair?"

"Oh, they'll be just dyeing for it!"

A BAD ASSOCIATE.

"What's your friend, John?"

"He's a criminal lawyer, dear."

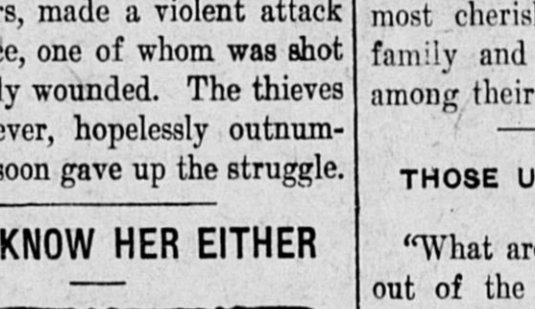

"Dear me, John, I never dreamed you associated with criminals."

ROBBERS' CAVE IN BIG CITY

Police of Budapest Find and Take Possession of Rendezvous of Thieves Who Were Becoming Rich.

An Ali Baba's cave has been discovered in the fashionable St. Leopold quarter at Budapest, within a stone's throw of the new Palace of Justice. Following the directions of three pickpockets whom they had arrested, a force of secret police agents came upon a vacant site, formerly occupied by a windmill which was demolished to make room for the new law courts. Behind a great heap of old bricks a secret entrance was discovered giving access to the extensive cellars which had formed part of the former building. As in the story, it required an "open sesame" to obtain admittance. The magic formula in the present instance consisted of a password in use among the robbers. No sooner had it been pronounced by the police than the brickwork in a wall became displaced and entrance was at once gained to the cave. Here the police found not gold nor jewels, but merchandise of every description, from bags of sugar and coffee to articles of furniture, even including pianos. Most of the thieves were absent, each member of the gang being occupied in his own particular task. Towards dusk one after the other of them made his appearance, every man laden with his share of the spoils of the day. The last to arrive was the chief, a gypsy who was known among the band as "Charlemagne." He, as well as several of his followers, made a violent attack on the police, one of whom was shot and seriously wounded. The thieves were, however, hopelessly outnumbered, and soon gave up the struggle.

DIDN'T KNOW HER EITHER

The Lady—But I don't know you, sir.

The Beau—Well, I'm takin' as much chances as you are.

DUAL OBSERVATORY.

The Royal Observatory of Belgium, at Uccle, near Brussels, has been divided into two distinct establishments; one devoted to astronomy, together with astrophysics, geodesy, gravity and seismology; the other to meteorology, along with climatology, terrestrial magnetism and atmospheric electricity. The former will be known as the Royal Observatory of Belgium, the latter as the Royal Meteorological Institute of Belgium. The effect of this new arrangement is to give the national meteorological service of Belgium an independent status, whereas it was formerly merely an appendage of an astronomical observatory.

THE HARDEST WORK TO COME.

"There! I've written the last line in that poem," said the verse writer.

"I'm glad you're through with it, dear," replied his wife.

"Oh, I'm not through with it, I haven't sold it yet."

INDEFINITE.

"What did your fiancee do at your request for a kiss?"

"She was up in arms at the mention of the idea."

SOLUTION OF THE DIFFICULTY.

"There are no hats worn in this theater, madam."

"Then my hat's all right; it isn't worn, it's brand new."

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

Father—Your friend has a very open countenance, Sarah.

Sarah—There! I told him to keep his mouth shut!

GOOD EXCUSE.

Railroad Superintendent—What was your motive for running ahead of schedule time, Mr. Engineer?

Engineer—A locomotive, sir.

Descendants of Aborigines in Virginia Furnish a Surprise for Their White Neighbors.

Down in Virginia, not far from Richmond, there still lingers a remnant of a once powerful tribe, the Pamunkey. Though civilized and living in modern houses, they have not developed to any high degree of progress. Once a year, in accordance with ancient custom, they send to the governor of the state a fine turkey in lieu of taxes. It was with astonishment that their white neighbors recently learned that some of them had organized a troupe which was playing the drama of the rescue of Capt. John Smith by the beautiful Pocahontas, the daughter of the old chief, Powhatan.

Powhatan belonged to the Algonquin tribe, but as the early Indian blood doubtless mingled, it is possible that among those very actors depicting the red man of olden days may be a descendant of the doughty, copper-colored native Virginian who played such an important part in the settlement of the country.

Pocahontas married an Englishman, John Rolfe, and went to England, in which country she died. Their only son returned to Virginia. In colonial times the Pamunkeys were ruled by a queen, who was much persecuted by the whites, and once, when fleeing from their wrath, she left a silver crown which had been a gift from English royalty in care of a man named Morson. Today the silver crown is one of the most cherished possessions of the family and it may still be seen among their heirlooms.
