We have no desire to enter into a controversy with our esteemed contemporary, the Iosco County Gazette, but we wish to assure the editor of that publication that there is no case of 'green eye' or jealousy on our part because of his new-old typesetting machine, for the Herald has a hand compositor who sets more type each week than the machine, as a cursory glance at the two papers will show. The Herald editor also pays spot cash for anything he buys, and does not send to Sears, Roebuck & Co. for his goods, but buys of those who patronize him.

HEALTH AND FOOD SPECIAL

Exhibits at Tawas City This Morning Well Worth Seeing.

The health and pure food special train carrying educational exhibits from the Dairy and Food department and the state Board of Health arrived in the city last evening and will remain here until 10:00 this (Friday) morning. The exhibits are of intense interest to all persons interested in the purity of the food they eat and in the health of themselves and their families.
A corps of experts and demonstrators from the two departments accompany the train and the exhibits are explained in detail. It will be well worth your time to visit the train and become acquainted with the methods which are being used to educate the people of Michigan in regard to the things they eat and the care of their health.

Smith—Stevens.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. L. B. Smith at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, August 5, when her youngest daughter, M. Lucile, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Stevens of Ironwood. Rev. John Pinches of the M. E. church officiated and the ceremony was attended by only the immediate family and friends.

The happy couple left on the 9:15
train for a short wedding trip to Detroit, Niagara Falls and Chicago, after which they will return to Ironwood to make their home. Mr. Stevens is assistant cashier of the Gogebic National bank at that place.

The Herald joins with many friends of the new-married couple in wishing them all joy and happiness in their married life together.

Married, at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, on July 17, 1914, Miss May Graves of Spokane, Wash., formerly of Hale, Mich., and Albert Lambert of Walla Walla, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Munshaw of Lansing, who were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Taylor last week, left Monday on a trip up the lake shore,
to Mackinac and other points.

J. M. Boomer has just purchased a new cement brick machine which makes both plain and ornamental brick and which will enable him to considerably enlarge the scope of his business.

George Baxter of Ithaca spent a few days this week visiting relatives and friends here. George learned the printer's trade in the Herald office and is now employed on the Gogebic County Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Grueber attended the Gaul-Mau wedding at Bay City Wednesday. They will spend a couple of weeks visiting relatives and friends at Saginaw, Frankemuth and Ann Arbor before returning.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Johnson left Thursday on an extended auto trip to Detroit, Buffalo and Niagara Falls.
They expect to be gone about ten days,
and Mrs. Johnson will purchase her fall millinery stock before returning.

Married, at Bay City on Wednesday,
Aug. 5, Miss Hannah Gaul to Mr. Ben Mau, Rev. Buddach officiating. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
John Gaul and her many Tawas City friends extend hearty congratulations.

Misses Bertha and Lydia Sieloff returned to Detroit last Friday, after a two weeks visit at their home here.
They stopped at Bay City to visit their mother, who is a patient in the Bay City hospital, and who is reported as improving nicely.

During the gigantic war into which nearly all Europe has now been plunged, the Detroit Journal can certainly give all the news all the time, as it has both the Associated Press and the United States Press services—and is the only Michigan paper thus served.

In the list of candidates for nomination for county office published in the Herald last week the name of Albert Schroeder appeared as candidate for county drain commissioner on the republican ticket. This was an error, as Robert C. Arn is the only candidate for this office on that ticket.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE IS DEAD

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson Expired at White House at Five O'clock Thursday Afternoon.

HAD BEEN CONFINED TO BED FOR PAST TWO WEEKS

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president of the United States, died at five o'clock (Washington time) Thursday afternoon, after an illness which had confined her to her bed for the past two weeks.

Last February Mrs. Wilson suffered a heavy fall on a White House stairway and her health since that time has been greatly impaired, though her condition has not been entirely due to the accident, but to a complication of diseases.

For the past two weeks Mrs. Wilson had the services of the best medical specialists to be obtained, but their efforts were useless, the complications being such as to baffle their utmost endeavors.

The news of Mrs. Wilson's serious condition had been kept from public knowledge until Wednesday, when it became generally known and overshadowed even the war news.

All the members of the president's family were present at the death bed. Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo took up their residence at the White House some days ago, Miss Margaret Wilson returned hastily from a visit in Pennsylvania, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayres arrived Wednesday morning in response to a telegram.

The sympathies of the entire nation will go out to President Wilson in his heavy affliction, which comes at an especially trying time when the turbulent times in Europe demand his attention to critical affairs of state.

Broke Even.

Tawas City lost to Alpena Sunday on the Alpena fair grounds, thereby breaking even with them, having won from Alpena two weeks previously. The score, 11 to 3, is misleading as to the swiftness of the game, as the hits and errors were very evenly divided. Altee Mark and Ernest Moeller were the only ones who seemed able to connect with the ball in any kind of style. Simmons of Flint, who played with Alpena, did a great share of the scoring machine work for them. He had a perfect batting average.

In the first Swartz scored on two wild throws and two stolen bases. Alpena came back, and with a hit batsman and a stolen base and three singles, got three across. Thien in Alpena's half of the third Moeller gave two hits and a base on balls, and hit two batsmen. At that Alpena would have gotten only two instead of four had Swartz not let a thrown ball go past him, and then Musolf pick it up, and see how far over the backstop he could throw it to catch a man going home. With one down, Murphy went in, struck out one and retired the third pitcher to first.

In the fourth Tawas City got one on A. Mark's single and steal of second and Musolf's single. Alpena came back with one on a wild throw and a single. They got another in the fifth on two singles and a wild throw.

Tawas City got one in the sixth on a dropped ball, a passed ball, and a single. Alpena came back with two on a dropped fly, stolen base, base on balls, passed ball, a passed grounder and a sacrifice fly. That finished the scoring.

But in the ninth was a play that the Tawas City boys claim should have been theirs. Stepanki walked and died stealing. Birney reached first on a dropped third strike. E. Moeller singled him to second. Swartz's infield flied to pitcher. Then Birney and Moeller worked the double steal. Fitzpatrick walked J. Mark, but the fourth ball got past Catcher Allen. Birney ran for home and Moeller for third. Allen threw to Fitzpatrick, and in the dust raised by the hardwood ashes Umpire Wentz called Birney out. Well, it was a good climax, as our boys would have lost anyway, but they want another crack at the same team this summer.

Everybody had a good time and were used fine. They have the same trouble up there about rosters on the base lines that Tawas City used to have. A special officer was necessary.
A number of good bookings are expected this week, but at this time we are unable to give any dates. The Pastime Club of Bay City, Rose City, Harrisville and East Tawas seem to be the cities involved. Following is the Secrets of Success.

Some wise rules for success are wittily laid down by an anonymous writer in the following punning ways:
What is the secret of success? asked the Sphinx.
Push, said the button.
Take pains, said the window.
Never be lead, said the pencil.
Always keep cool, said the ice.
Be up to date, said the calendar.
Never lose your head, said the barrel.
Make light of everything, said the fire.

Aspire to greater things, said the nutmeg.
Be sharp in all your dealings, said the knife.
Never do anything off-hand, said the glove.
Do the work you are suited for, said
the shoe.
Do a driving business, said the hammer.

Spend much time in reflection, said
the mirror.
Make much of small things, said the microscope.
Find a good thing and stick to it, said
the glue.
Strive to make a good impression, said
the seal.—Ex.

Has 2,976,030.

There were 109,021,992 persons living within the territory embraced by the United States on July 1, 1914, according to a bulletin containing the estimates of population for the years subsequent to the 13th census, made in 1910, prepared under the supervision of C. S.
Sloan, geographer of the department of commerce, issued last week.

The population of the United States in 1910 was 101,748,269, so there has been a gain of population estimated at more than 7,000,000 in the last four years.

The population of the 48 states of the Union and the District of Columbia in 1914 is 98,781,324, whereas in 1910 it was 91,972,266. The bulletin shows also the estimates of population in 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914 for states and territories and for cities which had 8,000 inhabitants or more in 1910. There is also presented in the bulletin a statement of the white and colored population on April 15, 1910, together with estimates
of the white and colored population on July 1 of each of the years following.

Beats All Records.

The congress now in session has been the "talkiest" congress in all history, according to an examination of the statistics as to the comparative volu-bility of the members of this and preceding congresses. The Congressional Record, up to this date, contains about 14,000 pages for the present session, which began the first Monday in December. The largest record achieved in a single session prior to this time was in the regular session of the 59th congress.
It met in December, 1889, and continued to October 1st, 1890—304 days.
It filled a record of 10,800 pages. It is generally thought that the present congress will last at least six or eight weeks longer, which will add just that much more to a record that is already perfectly awful to contemplate.

There used to be a fine old tradition that a new senator "should be seen and not heard" during the first congress, but that has been relegated to the scrap heap, for the new senator does as much, and sometimes more talking, than his older colleague, which necessarily adds largely to the size of the Record.
Senator LaFollette gave the Record this session a big boost when he had inserted a mass of letters and other matter sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission to influence its decision in the advanced rate case. That material filled 365 pages and captured the championship for putting the most matter into the Record at one time.

EIGHT NATIONS AT WAR

European Struggle Promises to be Greatest World Has Seen.

In the titanic war game now being played with the continent of Europe as the theatre of operations, eight nations are hurling their forces against each other, and before the conclusion of the struggle there may be two or three more.

The following statement taken from the Detroit Times of yesterday (Thursday) gives a concise view of the present status of the opposing forces:

ENGLAND.—Army mobilized; minor fighting in the North sea, off Scotland and Yorkshire; main battle fleet steaming toward German coast, with orders to "capture or destroy" German fleet; food shortage evident; poor suffering.

FRANCE.—Enormous invading German army already across frontier, headed for Paris, engaged by French in skirmishing preliminary to general battle; Mediterranean fleet has sunk German cruiser, captured dreadnought and cruiser.

GERMANY.—Army battling with England, France, Russia, Holland, Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro, getting little assistance from Austria, which is pressed by Russia and Serbia, has appealed to Italy to assist him. Fully 5,000,000 men are under arms.

RUSSIA.—Invading Austria and Prussia; war fleets bottled up in Black sea and Gulf of Finland; mobilization proceeding very slowly.

AUSTRIA.—Army unable to penetrate Serbia now menaced with Russian invasion.

BELGIUM.—Entire frontier devastated by overwhelming German army, but holding invaders in check at Liege;
bloodiest fighting of war in progress
here, with hundreds killed and wounded.

JAPAN.—War fleet coaling, will strike in aid of England should fighting spread to far east.

HOLLAND.—Germans attempting to cross country, attacked by Dutch troops on border; dykes will be cut and country flooded should invasion continue.

Teachers Attention.

The next regular teachers' examination will be held in the court house, Tawas City, August 13-14, 1914.
Reading will be based on "Enoch Arden," (Tennyson.)

Respectfully,
J. A. CAMPBELL,
Commissioner.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

The general war now in progress in Europe, which promises to engage all the leading nations of that continent, is bound to have more or less effect on the commercial and financial situation in the United States. There will be an unprecedented demand for foodstuffs with which to feed the warring factions and prices in this country will go to figures unknown since our own internal conflict in 1861-65. Money will also be at a premium, for it will take uncounted millions to finance the huge military movements on the other side of the Atlantic, and the United States, as the only nation of any consequence not embroiled in the conflict, will be the natural place to which the warring countries will turn to secure funds.

There is no cause for undue alarm, however, as this country is well able to stand the strain. We can raise enough here to feed the nations of the world if necessary, and the men who have the financial situation in hand may be depended on to proceed in such a manner that the resources for trade and development at home will not be strained.

As a matter of fact, the war in Europe is more likely to develop better conditions in the United States than to destroy those already existing. The ocean carrying trade has for many years been directed and controlled by foreign interests. Most of the foreign ships which have been engaged in this international trade have been withdrawn for use as transports and other war uses, and the field is left free for the United States to develop her mercantile shipping and again obtain the supremacy which she once held.

The neutral position taken by this country, as stated in the proclamation issued by President Wilson this week, leaves the United States free from all entanglements and in a position to act as mediator between the warring countries when the proper moment appears. That we have the good opinion of all the nations at war is evidenced by the fact that United States consuls have been requested to act for them in the capitals of the countries with which they are fighting, and it is practically certain that after the first enthusiasm of war has worn off they will be ready to listen to plans for mediation and the restoration of peace.

War is to be deplored at any time and under any circumstances, but in the present conflict we Americans need fear nothing. There is not the remotest chance that this country will become involved and there is every reason to believe that we will benefit by the terrible conflict in which Europe is involved.

It would be well for some of the candidates for nomination at the forthcoming primary election if they would read up on the primary law before going further in their campaign. One section of the act provides that campaign cards shall not be tacked or posted on any building, post, vehicle, or other object within the territory where he is a candidate. Notwithstanding this provision, some candidates have tacked up cards and thereby openly violated the law and made themselves liable to prosecution.

How Trapshooting "Grew Up."

In an after-dinner speech, recently, a Pennsylvania trapshooter traced the origin and growth of trapshooting to the enjoyment of the assembled sportsmen. In part, he said:

"From the beginning of the amalgamation of races into the American people, powder and the gun have played a big part in life on this continent. In the early period of our history we were a nation of riflemen, and few indeed were the men and boys who could not bring down a marauding savage or draw an erring bead on the head of a tree-top squirrel. In our fights for national independence, Bunker Hill, and later New Orleans, proved how true was the aim of Americans.

"The lack of need of defense of the home and nation, and the multiplication of populous centers, removed the necessity and opportunity for the continuance of the general use of the rifle. Another factor in the decline of rifle shooting has been the rapid development of high-powered arms with excessive range. The lesser range of the 'spatter' or shotgun, the greater certainty of the unskilled marksman getting what he shot at, and the fact that the small shot did not mutilate the game led to the general adoption of this firearm for hunting. But increase in population and decrease in the quantity of game, with the consequent enactment of stringent game protective laws, establishing long closed seasons, and limiting the amount of game that a hunter might kill, long since caused the beginning of a general disuse of the shotgun.

"Yet, by no means had we lost our love for powder burning. It is present, even if latent, in every true-blooded American's veins. The children's noisy observance of an insane Fourth of July proves how innate is the desire.

"An outcome of the inclination to use the gun was the introduction of live bird shooting, the killing within certain limits of pigeons released from coops, located some distance from the shooters. While this sport had considerable favor with the great mass of American sportsmen, live bird shooting is now prohibited by law in most states.

"Killing pigeons was superseded by glass ball shooting, and this, in turn, by clay-pigeon shooting. At this point the sport came near dying in embryo, due to the uncertainty of breaking targets of varying degrees of hardness and the trouble caused by the unsatisfactory traps then in use. Fortunately, inventive genius came to the rescue and perfected traps positive in action, and with the ability to throw the 'bird' at unknown angles, thereby closely approximating the condition under which field shooting is done. The targets are now made of river silt and tar, pressed into shape by hydraulic pressure, thus insuring uniform pattern and breaking strength."

Alpena Chautauqua, August 10 to 17.

A year's growth of the Chautauqua movement is marvelous. Seven hundred more tent Chautauquas than last year.

The past year's growth of the Chautauqua movement in the United States has been little less than marvelous. The number of tent Chautauquas in this country has increased from 1,500 last year to more than 2,200 this summer. One thousand of these Chautauquas are under Redpath management, of which there are 300 more than during the past season.

Never before in a year has such wide publicity been given the name of Chautauqua in the press of the country. This in part, of course, was due to the wide discussion of Mr. Byron's appearance on the Chautauqua platform last summer.

The army of people now employed in all the different features of Chautauqua work over the wide expanse of the American continent also serves to emphasize the movement's importance.

This season the Redpath Chautauquas began in South Carolina and came up through North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, and will appear in Alpena on the morning of August 10 for a full week's entertainment, with lectures, music and various forms of entertainment morning, afternoon and evening. There will be Kryn's band, which ranks as one of the five best in the country, also Suss and Brooks, Creature and the United States Marine band. There will be grand opera, a Shakespearean play by the Ben Greet players, impersonations, lectures by men who will be interesting every minute of their addresses. There will be enough of amusement for everybody, enough of educational charm, enough of the great variety of music to make the week memorable.

The Alpena Chautauqua association has sold season tickets to guarantee a big crowd for Chautauqua week, but will continue selling during next week at $2 for the season tickets, which are good for all the entertainments or any number of them. At the close of the week the tickets will be sold by the Redpath Co. at $2.50, with single admissions 35 and 50 cents each. Many tickets have been sold to people outside of the city of Alpena who are planning to spend a great part of the week there. These tickets may be purchased by letter addressed to the secretary of the Alpena Chautauqua association.

On Friday and Saturday special rates are given on the D. & M. railway and a large crowd is expected on these two days. adv

GAVE HIM FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Captain's Statement, to Put It Mildly, Was Calculated to Make Nervous Man Penitent.

He was an inquisitive old gentleman, and he wandered about the deck with a freedom that threatened to bring down on him the wrath of the observant skipper.

He carried on a one-sided conversation with the "man at the wheel," and the features of the skipper were not good to look upon.

Then, in the blissful innocence of his heart, he actually approached the captain himself. It was inevitable that there should be something said, but it was the little old gentleman who proceeded to take the first innings.

He told how his great-grandmother's second cousin had been a sailorman, and prattled of storms that carried all before them.

"In the last emergency, I have heard," he continued, "it was customary to throw overboard the whole of the cargo to lighten the ship. Did you ever do that, captain?"

"Well, yes," admitted the skipper, with surprising cheerfulness. "But only as a last resource. I never waste my cargo until I've used up my passengers! They go first!"

Then the little old gentleman had a thoughtful fit that kept his tongue quiet for two hours.—Pearson's Weekly.

TRAGEDY IN COOKERY CLASS

Youngster Who Spoke Out for Beer as a Luncheon Beverage Horrified Her Teacher.

A fond parent was fearfully indignant a few days ago because her small daughter came home from her cookery class in tears. It appears that the lady who presides over this branch of instruction asked her pupils to draw up a menu for lunch. When it came to the beverage item most little girls declared for tea or coffee, but one original youngster decided for beer.

Consternation of cook-lady shocked reproof for pupil!

"Disgusting!" announced the teacher; "respectable people never drink beer," and she held forth eloquently upon the vulgarity and iniquity of such a taste. The poor little girl was mortified to anguish, and cried through her tears that she always drank beer at lunch at her home—at least mother and father did.—Los Angeles Times.

ASPHYXIATING BULLETS.

Monsieur Kling, director of the Paris municipal laboratory, has invented a pistol that fires a cartridge, or small bomb, charged with certain chemicals. When the cartridge strikes an object the chemicals immediately vaporize into suffocating fumes that confuse and overcome temporarily any person near by. The pistol is used by policemen and detectives in the capture of desperate criminals. The physician-in-chief at one of the largest hospitals in Paris believes that the new pistol will be of great value in subduing lunatics, alcoholics and other dangerous persons; and, indeed, the pistol has already been tried in the case of such persons with good results. The fumes that it discharges are entirely harmless, but extremely painful, for they blind the victim, nearly suffocate him and make him think that he is about to strangle.—Youth's Companion.

HER CROWNING GLORY

By MARGARITA WILLOUGHBY.

(Copyright.)
Dorothea was very happy in the first weeks of her engagement, happy in the serenely unconscious way of the newly betrothed. I scarcely understood why in this case, for marriage to the Puritan could be nothing but a marriage of convenience—that is, convenience, as far as his wealth was concerned, inconvenience when it came to his piety.

Perhaps the trousseau was the source of her beatitude, for Dorothea is an artist in regard to clothes and loves them with an artist's fervor. And an artist's fervor was put into that trousseau!

In the midst of these splendid preparations came Aunt Nan's sickness, and Dorothea was called South.

The Puritan chafed somewhat at the sudden postponement. During the months of Dorothea's absence I knew very little of her, for her letters were mere telegraphic notices of Aunt Nan's condition, but the moment she stepped off the train on her return I noticed a change. It was quite evident she had met "some one" else, and I knew indeed it was "some one."

"You left Aunt Nan quite well?"
"Quite." Oh, the frigid finality of that tone!

"The Puritan will be very happy to see you again—he is out of town just now."

"Yes?"
When we were cozily at tea that evening, with a merry grate-fire and the warmth of red roses from the Puritan, Dorothea grew a little more talkative.

"Dorothea, your seclusion and Aunt Nan's troubles have got on your nerves. You are not well," I said.

"No—I am quite well—I think I must be tired. If you don't mind, I will go up now and unpack. No, I don't need any help."

She rose listlessly and walked to the stairs; half-way up she paused and leaned over the rail. "No, I'm not sick," she said; "I'm just bored."

Next morning she still wore her tragic air.
At breakfast, Katie, the maid, entered the dining room precipitately after answering a ring at the door—she held a yellow envelope at arm's length and the tears were standing in her eyes.

"I hope it's not so bad, Miss Dorothy, dear," she said, thrusting it at Dorothea.

Dorothea lazily tore open the envelope, read the message and sighed, then handed it over to me.

"No one is dead, Katie," she said. And Katie went back to the kitchen, quite comforted.

The message read:
"Home tomorrow. Shall have pleasure of escorting you to church."
"F. Van Doort."

F. Van Doort, of course, is "the Puritan."

Dorothea did not show any signs of enthusiasm, and I did not have the courage to make any remarks—so the meal drifted on. Once I looked up from my plate and found Dorothea looking out the window with the most mischievously amused expression I have ever seen any one wear. Then she arose, still with the smile in her eyes and the little upturn at the corners of the lips, and said: "I am going to town as soon as possible."

She went to town and came back with a few small packages, but said nothing in regard to their contents. The next morning I knew.

It was ten when the Puritan's trap dashed up to the gate. From my open doorway I heard Katie admit him, heard Dorothea come downstairs, and heard—a most unusual conversation.

She—Good morning, Frederic.
He—Good morning, my dear Dorothea; it is good to have you back again.

She—Thank you—it seems years.

He—What have you done to yourself, Dorothea? Your hair presents a most unusual appearance.

She—Oh, that! Do you like it? It's the same old hair you've always seen, only—I've done it a bit differently, that's all. It's just pinned on—you know.

He—And Dorothea! Is it powder on your nose? Really, Dorothea, I never imagined—I loathe powder, Dorothea—it is like cheap finery, and it is such a palpable lie!

"You are right. I had not thought of it just so. Your wife must not powder her nose. But really I have to, you know, to make it match the rest of my complexion. Give your powderless lady this with my best wishes."

"Dorothea! Your ring! I did not mean—"

"Take it!"
I felt sure he took it, because you have to do what Dorothea tells you.

"You will always be glad of your discovery—about my nose," she added.

"The Puritan got away sometime, after remarks which were quite incoherent, but I heard Dorothea say "Good-by" in a very cheerful and friendly voice.

In a few minutes I went into the hall, where I found her gazing in front of the grate-fire, smiling meditatively as one by one she unpinned "little bunches of curls, undulating 'puffs,' and a fat braid, and dropped them into the fire.

"Sie transit gloria—" I began.

"My crowning glory," she interrupted. "And now I must write a letter to 'some one' down South."

To the voters of the 28th senatorial district of Michigan, comprising Osceola, Clare, Gladwin, Arenac, Roscommon, Ogemaw, Iosco, Oscoda, Alcona and Crawford counties: I am candidate for state senator on the progressive ticket in the August 25, 1914, primaries. I have never asked for a public office before. I believe I am qualified to understand what the needs of the farmers and laboring men are. Thrown upon my own resources at the age of 12 years I have lived and worked amidst all classes. I make this appeal direct to the voters as an independent candidate. I have no money but what I work for, and can not advertise very strongly, and by virtue of this fact I cannot see you, all but believe the time has arrived in this age of progression when the laboring men and farmers are going to vote for men and principle, not politics and politicians. If my platform that follows meets your approval and you will vote for me in the August primaries and I am nominated and elected, I will vote for any measure in the halls of legislation that benefits the masses and not the classes. With the highest appreciation for your support I herein present the platform that I stand upon in this campaign: Private banks filing bonds with the state guaranteeing deposits; nursery companies guaranteeing their goods to be true to name—uniform text books throughout the state and an industrial commission established by the state to adjust controversies between labor and capital. Thanking you for your support on August 25th, I am,

When Col. Loud "Lumberjacked" and How He Fared With the Boys.

Reminiscence of An Old-Timer—It Was George Loud They Appealed to in Times of Trouble, and It Was George Who Never Failed Them.

When Col. George A. Loud reached Au Gres in his big touring car last Friday this is the land of his youth. Raised in the county of Iosco, he became familiarly known from Mackinac to Bay City. Consequently Mr. Loud's arrival here was of special interest to a newspaper man. Well known by almost every one he met it seemed a good barometer from which to base opinion of the former congressman as a man amongst men.

"Hello, there goes Colonel Loud," said August Herman of the lumber firm of Herman & Johnson, as the former congressman passed in his car.

"Are you well acquainted with the Colonel?" the newspaper man asked.
"Well, I guess yes," was the ready response. "I used to work with him."
"Work with him! You mean for him?" inquired the writer.

"Call it what you will. I only know we worked together in the woods. Though the walking boss of a big company we lumberjacks, as they call 'em now, never thought of that. George wasn't above swinging the axe, nor using the canthook, and it required some skill to beat him. And he could hop on a log during the drive and ride it as nimbly as any of us.

"We never looked upon him as our boss, and didn't think in those days of his becoming a Michigan statesman. I say we didn't look upon him as our boss, but I'll qualify that statement. When it came to an emergency we always went to George Loud. When any of the hundreds of men in the woods were hurt the first thought and inquiry was:

"Where's George?"
"It was always George we appealed to in our troubles, or to right our wrongs. It was George Loud who hurried the doctor to the camp in case of sickness or injury. It was George who made our camp life more comfortable, and while he was one of us there was something about him that commanded the respect of the men—and some of them mighty rough men, too. None ever became unduly familiar with him. The boys intuitively knew that wouldn't do."—From Au Gres Enterprise, July 31st. adv

FREDERICK C. MARTINDALE

As promised in our last, here is a summary of reasons given by over 250 of Michigan's leading citizens from the various walks of life for supporting Mr. Martindale for governor.

1. Because he stands for all that is good in public and private life.
2. Because from his record in positions of trust we would be assured of an honest, straightforward, economical, business administration.
3. He never stampsedes or overreaches, but is always right.
4. He is a man of steady nerves and sound judgment; he keeps every promise. With him there are no empty or hollow promises or mere platitudes.
5. He is a man of a square-toed, honest man and one who will give everybody a square deal.
6. Because with him for governor every man, woman and child, and every interest and industry would be guaranteed a square deal. All men, rich or poor, with or without political influence, look alike to him and receive the same treatment at his hands.
7. Because he is a vote-getter and his nomination would mean a united party and guarantee a republican victory, not only for the entire state ticket, but for the congressional legislative and county tickets as well.
8. He is progressive and yet conservative; progressive, insofar that he advocates and works for every measure that is for the good of the common people; conservative, insofar that he believes in protection to every human and property right.
9. Having been associated with him in the legislature, I know him to be right on public issues and well qualified for the position of governor.
10. His record is one of service and he has proven faithful to every trust and thereby endeared himself to the common people.
11. Of all the candidates, Mr. Martindale is best fitted by experience, training and temperament to be governor of a great state like ours.

Facts Worth Knowing.

CURIOSITIES OF OUR CALENDAR.
There are some curious facts about our calendar. No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday or Sunday. The same calendars can be used every twenty years. October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April as July, September as December. February, March and November begins on the same days. May, June and August always begin on different days from each other and every other month in the year. The first and last days of the year are always the same. These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between days before and after February 29.

Wise and Otherwise.

We can learn faith from the seasons. If we only wait the sun will shine, the rain will fall.
A prominent person does not care what he, or she, talks about, so long as the interview is published.
The average man's idea of a garden is the spoiling of $50 worth of clothes to grow a mess of stuff that could be bought of any grocer for 50 cents.
We can forgive the fool, the careless, or even the selfish man, but he who neglects his mother in poverty, sickness, or old age has no place in the estimation of good men.
As Kentucky has cut down its production of whisky this year by 20,000,000 gallons, it is expected that scientific interest in the Mammoth cave and other wonders of the state will be less than usual.

Kitchen Kinks.

If a lemon is warmed before squeezing nearly double the quantity of juice will be obtained.
In buying brooms do not select those of a green color, for they do not wear as long as those of a natural shade.
When washing anything that has raw egg or milk in it always soak in cold water first, then wash in cold soapsuds.
A clothes line may be conveniently cleaned by wrapping it around a wash-board and thoroughly scrubbing it with soapsuds.
Save oil papers that come around bread or cracker boxes to clean sad irons. Rub the irons over a layer of salt if rough or sticky.

Of Interest to Women.

Never use a brush when cleaning silk goods. Wipe carefully with a piece of velvet.
When pressing woolen goods cover with sheet of brown paper in place of cloth. No lint will be the result.
To remove jelly from a glass put glass for two or three minutes in warm water. The jelly will slip easily from the glass and be perfect in shape.
If you put ordinary blueing in the water for cleaning windows you will find they will be polished much more quickly and will retain their brilliancy much longer.
If kerosene and water be put into a sprinkling pot, and all outhouses and places where flies breed and increase in thousands, be sprinkled carefully with the mixture occasionally during the summer months, the eggs will be destroyed and the household spared an intolerable nuisance of real danger.

Infection and Insect Bites Dangerous.

Mosquitoes, flies and other insects, which breed quickly in garbage pails, ponds of stagnant water, barns, musty places, etc., are carriers of disease. Every time they bite you they inject poison into your system, from which some dread disease may result. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. It is antiseptic, and a few drops will neutralize the infection caused by the insect bites or rusty nails. Sloan's Liniment disinfects cuts, bruises and sores. You cannot get rid of them without it in your home. Money back if not satisfied. Only 25c. At your druggist. adv

JOSEFA'S "BANDIT"

By HENRY KIRK.

When I was seventeen I had an adventure that comes to very few. I went to a ball at the house of Don Antonio Fuentes, ten miles from ours, on the Carmel road. Don Antonio was a cousin of my mother. My aunt Mercedes was with me, and some of the servants, and I promised my father I would be home in good time. I wore a white gown, with a single string of my mother's pearls around my neck. There was a rose in my hair, just below the pearls. It was white, like a pearl itself.

I danced with Don Francisco. The people shouted and clapped their hands, and every man threw his hat upon the floor.
Don Francisco begged me for the rose in my hair, but what could I do? Twenty others had been before him. He was no more to me than the others, even though we had known each other from childhood, and our fathers before us.

Well, it grew late, and I told Don Antonio we would have to go. My aunt Mercedes was with Dona Arcadia. I could see she did not wish to go, but I had told my father.

"Francisco will go with you," said Don Antonio.
"No, he will not," I said. "There are enough of us."

"It is folly Josefa," cried Don Antonio. "Morelo has been seen in the hills."

"Well, Don Antonio," I said, "I am not afraid of all the Morelos that ever were. I think I would like to see a real bandit. If he should come our servants will frighten him away, and my Aunt Mercedes with one stroke of her fan could put fifty bandits to flight."

We said good night to Don Antonio and Dona Arcadia. When we got out into the patio there were twelve young men awaiting us. I waved them away. I would have no one. Diego was there with our horses. He had taken care of me since I was a baby. I was as safe with him as with any man in the country.

The twelve men looked at me with their hats in their hands. I laughed. "We have ten miles to go," said I. "Will you think of me that long?"
Then we went out of the patio and down the hillside into the valley.

Diego rode with us, the rest of the servants ahead. They reached the river and disappeared in the willows by the ford. Soon we were in the water ourselves. As we climbed the top of the opposite bank I saw Diego look suddenly straight ahead of him queerly. I grasped the bridle of his horse.

"Diego!" I cried. "What is it?"
I looked ahead.
A man upon a horse was coming toward us. He was so far away I could not see his face. He reached our men and stopped them.

"It is Morelo," I gasped.
"It is only a traveler, Nina Josefa," said Diego, but I could see he thought it was Morelo.
"Do not shriek, Aunt Mercedes!" I whispered. "Perhaps he has not seen us and he will go away."
For our servants were moving on, the man with them.

"He is deceiving them," I gasped.
"It is Morelo. What shall we do?" He knows I have been to Don Antonio's, and that I am wearing my mother's pearls, and that Aunt Mercedes has her topaz! We must reach him before he has a chance to slip away."
"No, Josefa," sobbed my Aunt Mercedes. "We shall all be murdered."
"With so many of us?" I asked.
Our horses went faster down the road. Our servants stopped and awaited us. We reached them, and I looked straight into the face of the man. He took off his hat and bowed to my Aunt Mercedes and to me.

"I am Josefa Berna," I said.
"And I—" he began.
"Yes, we know," I interrupted. He bowed again and smiled, as if he did not mind, but I saw an odd look upon his face. No doubt an adventure like this did not happen to him very often.
"I am in good company," he said, "for I am going to your father's. I was just asking the way."
"Since you have never been there before," I said, "we shall be glad to have you with us."
"Josefa!" cried my Aunt Mercedes.

"Ah," I said, "pardon me; I present you to my aunt, Dona Mercedes Castro."

We went on down the road. The air was in my face like some one's dead breath. Something choked me. I put my hand to my throat, but there was nothing there but my mother's pearls. In my terror, I could not help thinking how handsome he was—as an angel!
"Your father is not expecting me," he said.
"No," I replied. "You did not tell him you were coming."
"It is so late," he went on. "But I did not wish to stay anywhere else. Since I have met you I am doubly favored."

"We were at Don Antonio's," I said. "He wished some of them to come home with us, but I was not afraid. I am afraid of nothing," I said, and laughed.
But I was nearly dead with terror. "He had seen my pearls," I thought, "and Aunt Mercedes' topaz, and he is going home to murder my father."

We were nearly at the end of the valley. Beyond us was a wood and the hill with our house. In the darkness of the trees he would murder me and take my pearls and my Aunt Mercedes' topaz.
"This wood is half a mile long," I cried. "Who will get through first?"

We flew into the darkness of the trees. We could see nothing but the dim line of the road. Our horses went on like the wind. Every moment I was expecting my death. I cried out in terror.
That awful choking came. I put my hand to my throat, but there was nothing there, not even—yes, the pearls were there, but any moment his hands might be.

"Diego!" I cried. "Diego! Diego!"
The blackness of the wood was like a wall before me; then it opened. I was at the foot of the hill. The road flew under the feet of my horse. There was some one coming. Morelo! for I could hear the whizz of his rista.

God in heaven, to have that thing around my neck with the pearls of my mother!
There was the house. The dogs ran toward me, barking furiously. The horse stopped at the corridor. I stumbled to the door and fell into the arms of my father.
"Get every one," I cried. "Morelo is coming!"

Then there was darkness.
When I opened my eyes I was in my room. The sunlight was coming through the windows. My Aunt Mercedes was sitting beside my bed.
"Ah!" I cried, "my Aunt Mercedes! Is my father alive?"
"Nothing has happened," said she. "I have had an awful dream," I said.

I could scarcely think it had happened at all.
"Come into the air," she said. "You will die if you do not have air."
You see, I was upon the point of death.

When I staggered into the corridor, there was my father, and heaven above—Morelo, looking at me with those wonderful eyes.
"Josefa," said my father, "this is Don Luis Ortega of Santa Barbara. He rode with you last night."
And my father laughed.
Don Luis stayed with us a month. He came again three weeks later. You know what happened. We were married.

My father has never allowed me to forget my adventure with Morelo. (Copyright.)

CANAL BENEFITS JAPANESE.

Shipping men declare that the opening of the Panama canal will reduce the time between the Orient and New York about forty days. This distance from Japan to the Pacific mouth of the canal should not consume more than thirty-five days, according to their calculations, and the trip from the canal to New York not more than six days. It is believed that the forty-one days' trip thus outlined may easily be squeezed into forty days by ambitious skipper. The Japanese are preparing to play a very important part in the increased travel and freight business which will be promoted by the canal.

WHITTEMORE VS. TURNER.

The Whittemore team won its hardest game of the season last Sunday, Aug. 2, by defeating the strong Turner team on the Whittemore grounds.
After the first half of the seventh inning the game was called on account of rain. In the first half of the seventh inning Turner secured four runs. This put them in the lead, but in the equal innings the score stood 7 to 5 in favor of Whittemore.
The following rule verifies the fact that the game belongs to Whittemore:

CALLED GAMES.

"If the umpire calls a game on account of rain, darkness, fire, panic, etc., at any time after five innings have been completed the score shall be that of the last equal innings played."
The feature of the game was the excellent pitching of A. Jacobs, who struck out ten men, and the hitting of L. Schroyer, who got three hits out of four times at bat.

Following is the

No Money, But Roads Are Built.

State Highway Commissioner Frank Rogers says that although his department is absolutely "broke" financially since the decision of the supreme court declaring unconstitutional the automobile tax law under which he expects to receive hundreds of thousands of dollars to carry on road construction work, nevertheless hundreds of miles of highways are being built under the state reward plan.
The county officials evidently have faith in the next legislature as over 70 per cent of the state reward roads planned to be built this year are being constructed or have been completed. In all about 100 miles of state trunk line roads will be finished by this fall and about 500 miles of state reward roads which are not on trunk lines.

OLD CONTROVERSY REVIVED.

The old question of whether the Norsemen beat Christopher Columbus to the shores of the new world has been reopened in the London press by the display in the windows of the London agency of the Canadian Pacific railway of a stone discovered at Yarmouth, N. S., 100 years ago, on which is a Norse inscription. Henry Phillips, Jr., of Philadelphia is said to have deciphered the inscription as reading, "Harki's son addressed the men," and in ancient writings he discovered the name of Harki as the leader of an expedition of Norsemen that left Greenland in the year 1007. The stone will be exhibited at the centenary exposition in Christiania, Norway.

NOT PERMANENT CONVICTION.

"Do you think there is any such thing as justifiable homicide?"
"Not really. I just feel that way once in a while at a ball game when the umpire gives a rank decision."
The Flocking Habit.
While man has been defined as a gregarious animal, Americans seem to have the flocking habit more strongly developed than any other people. When there is no public attraction to draw multitudes there are private gatherings. This tendency has done much to destroy the home circle as it was once known.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
The Kingdom of Today.
O, thou, that pinest in the imprisonment of the Actual, and criest bitterly to the gods for a kingdom wherein to rule and create, know this of a truth: the thing thou seekest is already with thee, "here or nowhere," couldst thou only see!—Carlyle.

Five of a June Morning.

Got up before five and went down to replant corn. As I topped the hill the crows flew off, cawing angrily. "This is our time," they seemed to say. Found hill after hill scratched over and the sprouting corn scattered about. At 5 a. m. in June one has the weather of 9 a. m. in October or high noon in December.—From "A Farmer's Note Book," by C. E. D. Phelps.

Modern Youth.

"What did Gwendolyn say when you asked her to marry you?" asked Mr. Cumrox. "She told me to come and see you," replied the confident youth. "Having done so, I shall go back and tell her that I don't object to you in the slightest."—Washington Star.

Bohemia exports annually about 1,307,900 cubic yards of forest products to Germany.

Not the Worst Investment.

Yet the woman who invested $25,000 in a cattery is making a better investment than the gentlemen who sink huge sums in an occasional kitty.—Chicago News.

TO ALL ENGAGED IN DAIRY BUSINESS
Making butter on the farm is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Any housewife knows what it means of drudgery to make good butter, and what difficulties she encounters in her attempt to find a satisfactory market for her product. Her outlet is limited. The creamery has every large city on the continent within its reach. The creamery is plugging every day for the interests of the dairy farmer as well as for its own.
We are now in the midst of our third season and business is humming. Prices are good and the outlook fine. We are making nearly four times as much butter as we did in 1912. That also means that we are able to handle your cream to the very best advantage for you. Come and see us or ship us a can. We know we can please you.
We are selling the "Diabolo," a separator of the Highest Merit, at prices that you would pay for mail-order and other inferior machines.
