EXPERIENCES IN EUROPE

M. E. Friedman Tells Some Incidents of Their Return Trip.

In last week's Herald we promised our readers a story by M. E. Friedman regarding his experiences in Europe, where he was visiting when the present trouble which is devastating that continent started.
In pursuance to this promise, the Herald man interviewed Mr. Friedman this week and the following is the story in substance as related by him:
"When Austria declared war on Serbia we were visiting at the home of my brother in southern Hungary, where I have also a number of other relatives. My brother and I were planning on starting in a few days on a trip to Palestine, but the outbreak of hostilities necessarily caused a change in our plans. My brother has five sons, with whom he intended to leave his business while absent, but the sons were all eligible to military service and when war was declared were called to the colors.
"As soon as military activities commenced, all trains were commandeered for the transportation of the soldiers, and we were compelled to start at once in order to get out of the country at all. As it was, all the trains were crowded to their utmost capacity with soldiers and civilians alike, and it was extremely difficult to find seats, or even standing room. The trains were long, there being from 60 to 70 cars in each, and often it would be necessary to walk the entire length of the train before finding room. On account of their heavy loads the trains moved very slowly, so slowly in fact that often one could walk almost as fast as they moved.
"The soldiers on the trains through Hungary were mostly wild, half-civilized Slavs, and their wild songs and savage actions made them anything but pleasant traveling companions. Through Austria and Germany, however, a different class of troops were encountered and travel was much pleasanter, though still uncomfortable because of the crowds. Through Germany the soldiers, and civilians, too, were well treated, at every important station people being on hand with refreshments consisting of hot coffee, lemonade, sandwiches of all kinds, etc. In some places these things were furnished by the Red Cross Society, but in others by the citizens.
"In Budapest I purchased tickets through to London, intending to take passage for home at Southampton on the Hamburg-American line on which I had tickets. The declaration of war between England and Germany prevented this, however, and we were forced to make our way to Holland and take passage on the steamer Noordam of the Holland-American line. We encountered some difficulties in making our way to Rotterdam, from which port the ship sailed, but the only place where we were held up and forcibly delayed was at Elton on the frontier between Germany and Holland. Here all foreigners were compelled to detain on account of a military order that no foreigners be allowed to leave the country. An emphatic protest was made against this order, with the result that only half a day was lost before we were allowed to proceed.
"At Rotterdam we encountered our first serious obstacle, and almost despair of being able to finish our journey to America, even after reaching a seaport. On visiting the steamship offices it appeared that all the accommodations were taken and that it would be impossible to secure passage. However after some delay I managed to secure a stateroom, but another obstacle immediately arose which seemed fully as insurmountable. I had taken with me what I considered sufficient funds in ready money to serve all purposes, but the expense of tickets which we could not use and some other extras had used up all my ready cash, and the steamship company absolutely refused to accept a check or anything else but cash for the tickets. Fortunately I met an acquaintance from Chicago who was better supplied than I, and thus I was enabled to secure money enough to pay for our tickets. The accommodations on the boat were not of the best, as she carried about 1800 passengers instead of her regular number of 600 or 700. The overcrowding was caused by the transference to the

Had Served St. Joseph's Church for Fourteen Years.

The citizens of East Tawas and Tawas City, especially the members of St. Joseph's Catholic church, were grieved and saddened Monday evening when the news was circulated that Rev. E. A. Kinney had passed away at 7:07 that evening. The news was not unexpected, however, as he had been in ill health all summer and for the week before his demise had been confined to his bed. The cause of death was heart trouble.
Rev. Kinney was born in Grand Rapids and passed his youth in that city. Immediately after being ordained as a priest he accepted the pastorate of St. John's church at Essexville, where he remained for nine months. He was then appointed to the pastorate of the parish of St. Joseph's church, which comprises East Tawas, Tawas City, and the surrounding country.
During his residence here Rev. Kinney has demonstrated his liberality and broad-mindedness. He was a faithful expositor of the tenets of his religion, and endeared himself to the members of his congregation. He was also in the forefront of any movement tending toward civic betterment and earned the respect and admiration of those who differed from him in the matter of religious belief. In regard to this the Bay City Tribune speaks as follows:
"For several years he has addressed the graduates of St. James' parochial school, his popularity being manifested by the repeated requests that were made upon him to speak. During his pastorate at the Tawas church, it is affirmed, he did more to cement the different classes and creeds than the efforts of any single man in that section. His endeavors along the lines of civic progress and moral uplift have frequently been referred to by his fellow townspeople, evidencing the appreciation which was felt in the direction of his whole-souled interest in the permanent progress of the city of his adoption."
The body lay in state at the church in East Tawas Monday evening and was viewed by hundreds of his loving communicants. The Knights of Columbus and others kept watch through the night and several were always in attendance until the time for services in the morning. Services were held Tuesday morning, seven of his brother priests being present to assist in performing the last ceremonies. The body was taken to Grand Rapids, where the funeral was held at the cathedral and interment made in the cemetery of that city.
The deceased leaves four sisters and one brother and a host of friends to mourn his demise.
What the Editor Knows.
A good many editors are said not to know much, says an exchange. The trouble is they know a lot of stuff that they dare not tell. They know who drinks the beer, and they know the ladies who deviate from the straight path of rectitude, and the boys who smoke in the alleys and dark places, and the girls who are out auto riding till the roosters crow at daylight.
They also know the fellows who are good pay, and they know the fellow who can't get trusted for a small bag of salt. They could guess at once why some fellows are as they are, and they can guess pretty closely what they do to make themselves so. Even in a town like this they know enough to make one of the red-hottest, rip-snorting, high-g geared, triple-action, chain-lightning papers you ever read, but they also know that it is best for the community and themselves to let the law take care of humanity's development, and publish only such news as will do to read in the house. Editors generally pursue this policy, and thereby live longer and get more enjoyment out of life.
Card of Thanks.
We wish to express our sincere thanks to the kind friends and neighbors who extended their help and sympathy during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father Albert Scherrett. Also for the beautiful flowers contributed.

LOCALS DROP ANOTHER

Brooklyn Athletics Take Game 8 to 5. East Tawas Next.

The loss of Murphy was severely felt last Sunday when the Brooklyn Athletics of Bay City won by a score of 8 to 5. Although the Broadways got 16 hit, errorless ball would have blanketed them. About three of their hits were called hits because Tawas City fielders held the ball wondering where to throw it until the batter reached first. Clarence Moore, back on second base, accepted nine out of ten chances—which is some fielding. He and Atlee Mark caught the only two attempts at stealing second quite easily. Atlee's wing was in fine fettle in spite of the banging it got the week before. He caught a man off third by feet. Had it not been for he and Charlie Moeller having their eye on the ball our boys would have gone scoreless, Atlee getting three doubles and Charlie two singles and a double. Fred Swartz with a single and a double was a great factor in the scoring also. Hughes pulled off a great throw from right, straight to third in the fourth inning.

Had Served St. Joseph's Church for Fourteen Years.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Sommerfield on the Townline, at 5:30 p. m. on Saturday, August 29, occurred the marriage of Miss Anna Sommerfield to Mr. Elroy Wood of Bay City, Elder O. J. Hawn of Bay City pronouncing the words that made them husband and wife.
The bride's dress was of white, crepe de chine and she carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. She was unattended. After the ceremony the assembled company gathered around a well filled table and enjoyed a bountiful wedding supper.
The bride and groom left Monday for Bay City, where they will make their home for the present, the groom being engaged in business in that city. **

Short Milk Measure.

Despite the warnings sent out by the state dairy and food department, and the ocular demonstration which was given when the exhibition car was here some weeks ago, there are still some of the local milk vendors who are using short measures and giving from a quart to a half pint less than the regulation quart.
The demonstrator on the dairy and food car that was here showed by actual measure where a Mason fruit jar, supposed to hold a quart, was about half a pint short of the actual measure. He said nothing about the milk pails in general use, but if anyone interested will pour the milk contained in the pails in general use in Tawas City and supposed to contain a full quart, into one of the Mason jars, they will find that the two vessels hold about as nearly the same quantity as it is possible to get.
We do not question the honesty of any of the local vendors of milk as they undoubtedly bought their pails supposing they held a full quart, and they fill them to full capacity, yet it is a fact that every customer who buys milk measured in one of these pails is losing about half a cupful on every quart.
The Home Newspaper.
When a man is through with his day's work and is sitting down resting in his home, he cannot read the advertisements on the fence nor the handbills and circulars that were left on the doorstep during the day and which have been blown away or have been destroyed. He calls for his home paper and there finds not only the news of his immediate community, but the announcements of his home merchants, who are his neighbors and friends, and with nothing to bother his mind he reads it carefully and calls his wife's attention to it, and they decide to go to the stores and examine what is advertised. If the merchant has not over-stated his facts, he will profit by his announcement in the public press. If he is a prevaricator and doesn't say what he means, he need not expect advertising to save him, for when a business man is tricky it doesn't take long for the news to travel over the neighborhood and he will be the one to suffer in the end.—Ex.

The big games come Sunday and Monday. Tawas City vs East Tawas at the Fair Grounds Sunday and at Tawas Beach Monday, Labor Day. As each team has won a game and the rivalry between the towns is so great, it is expected that these games will bring forth the best efforts of each so everyone is assured of seeing the best games of the year.
Tawas City won from East Tawas by a larger score than they did from our boys so look out for Tawas City now.
Musolf was a little off color Sunday but promises to be good in the rest of our games.
The last of the first looked bright for us. Swartz walked and stole. J. Mark singled him to third and stole. Then with no one down Musolf and A. Mark fanned and E. Moeller popped to second base.
Three games scheduled with East Tawas and we're after them every one.
Had Moeller pitched as hard against the rest as he did against Joe Brabant and Don Garber things would have gone differently. Joe didn't see first base, while Don didn't get a hit though he got on with a base on balls, again on a fielder's choice, and again on an error.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., SEPT. 4, 1914

Another graft which has been practiced for years by members of Congress has been squelched. Heretofore it has been customary for the honorable gentlemen to draw full pay, whether they were present and attending to business or taking a vacation and attending to private affairs. So many of the congressmen have been absent recently that it has been practically impossible to obtain a quorum for the transaction of business, and this has led to the enforcement of an old law which has been ignored in the past, providing that members shall not receive pay for the time they are absent from their duties. The forfeiture of that little $21 per day has caused the delinquent members to scurry back to Washington post haste.

As might be expected, President Wilson's plan for a government owned line of trans-atlantic ships is meeting with tremendous opposition from the private shipping trust and the financiers who have their money invested in foreign vessels. The trust is willing to take all the profits from the business but would prefer to have the government insure the cargoes so that said trust would not risk losing any money in case the ships were lost. President Wilson's idea is that if the government is to take the risks it should also have the profits, and it is all right, too.

The national woman suffrage organization has recently issued a "black-list" containing the names of senators and representatives who are opposing their cause, and is urging the members of the organization to work for the defeat of these men. There doesn't seem to be much difference between the methods of the women politicians and the old "machine rule" which dominated the leading political parties for years. Politics is a game, whether conducted by men or women, and any trick which will win is deemed legitimate.

If anything was wanted to assure the re-election of Governor Ferris this fall, the lack was supplied by the nomination of Chase Osborn as candidate on the republican ticket. The fact that Chase is a republican-democrat-progressive-socialist won't help him any when it comes to the election in November.

Isn't it a shame to make a Congressman really earn his salary?

To the Voters of Iosco County.

So far as I can in words, I desire to thank each one who honored me with his vote at the primary. I trust that by vigorous effort, should I be elected, to do so well the duties of your congressman that you will feel that I am doubly grateful to you. I am proud that dear old Iosco has honored me with such unstinted measure, and proud indeed of the overwhelming endorsement that came from my old home in Oscoda and AuSable. I am most gratefully yours, adv-36 Geo. A. Loud.

Effect of a Motto.

Above his desk hung the familiar motto, "Do It Now!" At quitting time the desk was neat and clear; the day's litter had all disappeared. Each morning the man sat down to it as to a clean slate. Under the same roof were desks that looked as if they had just been flung with a cyclone. No mottoes hung above them; the litter didn't leave any room. Whether it was the motto or just his temperament which made the one man prompt and orderly while others seemed lax he himself didn't know. "Oh, I just hung that there because a fellow gave it to me and I agree with the sentiment. I don't remember ever having been specially influenced by it," he said.

That's the value of a good motto; it's so insidious. Of course, he didn't know when the motto "took." If somebody, say the boss, had come around several times a day and lectured him on the wisdom of being prompt and orderly, he might not have heeded at all. But there, on the wall, staring him in the face, in attractive type, patiently awaiting his glance, was the pithy suggestion upon which so much depends; and it "got" him irresistibly. Get one yourself. The kind that aims straight at your worst weakness. Let the law of silent but pitiless suggestion bore its way into your very soul. It may be just what you need.

The Prevailing Pronoun.

Some day, when you are wondering what to do, stand in a public place with a pad and pencil and take note of what the folks who pass are talking about, as revealed in snatches of their conversation. If you object to being an eavesdropper, change this to social curiosity. It won't do any harm and the chances are it will prove interesting. Try the test on a hundred young men, a hundred elderly men, a hundred young women, and a hundred women past the middle age. That will give a basis for percentages. To simplify the task still further, confine your notes to the pronouns you will overhear—whether the talk is about "he," "she," or "it."

If you want to heighten the interest you can make an estimate in advance of the pronoun that each hundred will use most, and then see how shrewd a guesser you are. If you observe your own conversation a bit, you will not make any miscalculations. And your pad will be literally covered with the upper-case "I."

Parcel Post Eliminates the Middleman.

Officials of the United States department of agriculture have been testing out the parcel post as a means of marketing eggs, and have found it highly satisfactory. The department has shipped 466 lots, consisting of 9,131 eggs, to various parts of the nation, and upon arrival at destination, only 327 eggs, or 3 1/2 per cent of the total, were broken. Ten dozen eggs can be shipped in one container a distance of 150 miles at a cost of 4.7 cents per dozen. This includes the cost of transportation and container. Michigan postal authorities advise that the farmers and farmers' wives of this state are utilizing the parcel post extensively in selling farm produce direct to the consumers, and excellent results have been obtained. Last winter when eggs were being sold by retailers at from 50 to 65 cents to the consumer, the farmers were only receiving 20 to 25 cents per dozen for their product, giving the middleman from 30 to 40 cents on each dozen eggs he handled. The parcel post system of marketing entirely eliminates the middleman's profit, and divides the profit of the middleman among producer and consumer.

FRUIT AND NUT TREES

"Observer" Would Have Them Used For Shade.

By "Observer." What would you think of a suggestion to change all of the trees in Tawas City from mere shade trees to really useful trees—trees that would furnish as much shade as those we now have and in addition give us fruits and nuts of various kinds? And then, what if we should set to work not only to protect the birds we have, but to really encourage them till we really had our little city located in a great forest virtually alive with birds! A fine idea, but wholly impracticable, eh? Well, that conclusion is the very thing that will keep us from having such a town—and the only thing.

Personally, I have never seen a town where all of the trees were nut and fruit trees, but I can see no reason why those in every town are not. Supposing every citizen in Tawas City should decide to plant right now half a dozen nut trees in his yard, and an equal number of fruit trees, if there be space for them. A few years would see them of an age to furnish shade, and another few years would turn them into both shade and really valuable property. The subject is worth consideration, and I should like to see our schools urge every pupil to plant at least one fruit or nut tree this fall.

I am well aware that most of the older readers of this article will be of the opinion that most birds are a nuisance and should be killed or driven away, rather than encouraged to live among we "city folks." But the younger generation does not think so. A few of them may, but the universities in almost every state and even the government itself has learned the mistake of destroying bird life and is urging its protection. Actual tests from New York to California, from Minnesota to the Gulf, have proved that for every piece of grain or fruit a bird eats, it eats dozens—or even hundreds of insects to recompense the owner of the grain or fruit. To reach a quick conclusion, just imagine what humanity would do in six months time from this day if every bird in the United States were killed today!

Personally, I am a great bird lover, and I do not think very much of a man who doesn't like them. True, I have gone out and killed quail, mourning doves, and other game birds, but I have invariably felt ashamed of myself every time I did it. I never yet have pulled the head from a quivering bird but that I felt that I was a great big coward in human form, although the dozens of companions who knew me well never suspected I had such emotions. Not long ago I was shown the enjoyment bird life would bring to one if he would let it, and unless your editor deprives me of the space, I will tell you about it at some future time.

Of Interest to Potato Growers.

The editor of the Herald is in receipt of the following letter from the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, which will probably be of interest to the potato growers in this vicinity.

"Believing our Fairs and exhibitions should do more to stimulate an interest in potato growing, we have been instrumental in getting the prizes at the State Fair changed from the old system of $1.50 and $2.00 for each of many different varieties, to six prizes of $20.00, $15.00, $10.00, $6.00, $5.00, and $4.00 respectively; both for the best bushel of early and the best bushel of late potatoes; these potatoes to be shown in bushel baskets with the name of the exhibitor and a card stating variety, when planted, when ripe, when dug, kind of soil, and giving county and township wherein grown.

"This should enable the farmer and professional potato grower, raising but one or two varieties, to compete for prizes worth while, whereas under the old way it was not worth while unless the exhibitor was an exhibitor of many other articles.

"So far as Northeastern Michigan is concerned, the Development Bureau will pay $20.00 for the bushel winning first prize providing same is grown and exhibited by a Northeastern Michigan resident and I am writing you this thinking you might be interested in giving the matter some publicity among your potato growers with the idea that they would make an exhibit.

"Anyone desiring to enter potatoes may, if they wish, send them to the Development Bureau, and we will look after their entries, placing of exhibit, etc. or they can send the potatoes to the Detroit State Fair in care of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau. If sent to the Bureau the should arrive not later than September 2nd and postal should be sent notifying us of shipment. "Premium list can be secured from Geo. W. Dickinson, Secretary Michigan State Fair, Detroit."

What the Governors Like to Eat.

Mrs. Lister, wife of Governor Ernest Lister, of Washington, says her husband is fondest of a pan roast of Puget Sound oysters. Following is the recipe Mrs. Lister gives for cooking them:
To a pint of oysters, drained dry, use a piece of butter the size of a walnut, salt to taste, two tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup, one tablespoonful of mushroom catsup, one tablespoonful of Worcester sauce, and two teaspoonfuls of grated horse-radish.
Put the oysters in a chafing dish with the butter and cook very little. When thoroughly heated they are done.
Add the condiments and stir until well mixed.

Wise and Otherwise.

Huerta may yet have to return to Mexico to find rest and quiet.
We are told the custom of women taking the inside when walking with a man dates back to the middle ages. But what did a woman care about the inside, then, when there were no shop windows?
A woman will run farther—and faster—to see a new gown pass by than her husband will to see and hear a brass band. And, speaking of bands, why is it that we cannot enjoy them by hearing without seeing them?

Of Interest to Women.

Blouses are showing decided tailored tendencies.
With the more fluffy gowns, poke bonnets are worn.
Some of the new coats show a new shoulder effect that suggests a cape.
Nothing in the way of headresses is incorrect if it recalls those of the ancient Greek and Roman women.
If screws, gas-fittings, the sides of bedsteads, or anything else of the kind become tightly fixed and cannot be moved, the following method will generally be found to loosen them. Pour a little oil on the tight parts, and then hold a lighted candle underneath until it is warm. You will then find that it is easy to separate or unscrew the fixed parts.

A Hundred Years Ago.

One hundred years ago Napoleon, cooped up on the Isle of Elba, was spinning the intrigues that finally set him at the head again of the legions of France and gave him the "100 days" that led straight to Waterloo. One hundred years ago Europe went through a war that had tumbled thrones and changed the boundaries of the Western world. The blood of Frenchmen, Austrians, Russians, and Prussians was hardly dry on the fields of Dresden and Leipzig. For 16 years all Europe had been harried by the little Corsican.

Civilization?

It is a truth that cannot be ignored that the world's belief in the policy of peace is less than skin deep when real provocation or even opportunity for waging war arises. In spite of fair-weather conferences throughout Christendom, and all that has been dreamed at the Hague, there is needed only a spark in the realm of international dissension and a flame leaps into being. A scratch on the fabric of civilization reveals the ancient reliance upon brute force.

Taploca Glue.

An excellent glue that is harmless, colorless and odorless is made of taploca. Cover the desired quantity with cold water, put it over the fire and stir, adding more water as it boils to make a good paste. It can be used to glue wood, leather or paper. For scrapbooks or photographs it may be necessary to add a little water.

TO ALL ENGAGED IN DAIRY BUSINESS

Making butter on the farm is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Any housewife knows what it means of drudgery to make good butter, and what difficulties she encounters in her attempt to find a satisfactory market for her product. Her outlet is limited. The creamery has every large city on the continent within its reach. The creamery is plugging every day for the interests of the dairy farmer as well as for its own.

We are now in the midst of our third season and business is humming. Prices are good and the outlook fine. We are making nearly four times as much butter as we did in 1912. That also means that we are able to handle your cream to the very best advantage for you. Come and see us or ship us a can. We know we can please you.

We are selling the "Diablo," a separator of the Highest Merit, at prices that you would pay for mail-order and other inferior machines.
