'Our New Minister' a Success.

The amateur musical entertainment entitled "Our New Minister," given at the Star theatre last Friday evening for the benefit of the local C. E. society, was greeted by a full house and received the unqualified approval of those who witnessed the production.

The play was a laugh producer from start to finish, and depicted in a realistic manner the impressions created at the prospect of a new minister.

The part of the new minister was very well presented by Bruce Campbell. James Mark, as sexton, elicited much applause with his homely humorous comments and songs. Miss Edith Bard took the part of Daisy Lovejoy, the "lady in the case," in a very acceptable and pleasing manner. In fact, each member of the cast took his or her part in a way that left no room for criticism, and the unstinted applause accorded the players testified to the fact that the audience was well pleased.

The financial returns from the entertainment were very satisfactory, the society realizing the sum of $36.85 after all expenses were paid.

Much Damage to Shipping.

The storms of the past week have seemingly been general all over the eastern portion of the country, as numerous wrecks and damage to shipping are reported from the Atlantic seaboard, as well as on the great lakes. Several wrecks are reported on Lake Huron, among them being that of the E. K. Utley, managed by Herbert K. Oakes of Cleveland, a former East Tawas boy. The steamer went on the rocks on Round Island across from Mackinac Island Monday. She is badly damaged, but not a total loss.

BE KIND TO YOUR HORSE and all Dumb Creatures—it shows the Gentleman.

A Proclamation By the Governor

IN ALL the years since eighteen hundred seventy-six there has been no greater reason for giving thanks to Almighty God than in the year nineteen hundred fourteen. The United States is at peace with all the nations of the earth. The stars and stripes symbolize to all the world, "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Sunshine, rain and toil have given us an abundance of the good things of life. Our glorious nation has gone forward unwaveringly toward the goal of civic justice and civic righteousness. We, the people of Michigan, are happy in joining every other state in reverent and hearty thanksgiving.

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby join the President of the United States in designating Thursday, the 26th of November, as a day for all the people of this commonwealth to celebrate in thanksgiving and prayer.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this fourteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred fourteen, and of the Commonwealth the seventy-eighth.

By the Governor: WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS,
FREDERICK C. MARTINDALE,
Secretary of State.

The Newspaper Guy.

I see a man pushing his way through the lines of cops where the work of the "fire-finders" shines. "The chief?" I inquire—but a fireman replies, "Gee, no! Why that's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man walk through the door of a show where great throngs are blocked by the signs, S. R. O.

"Is this man the star, that no ticket he buys?" "Star nothin'! He's one of those newspaper guys."

I saw a man start on the trail of a crook, and he scorns the police, but he brings him to book.

"Sherlock Holmes?" I inquire. Someone scornfully cries, "Sherlock H—! No, he's one of those newspaper guys."

I see a man sit in the seats of the great, and they ask his advice upon matters of state.

"A diplomat surely!" But to my surprise they tell me he's "one of those newspaper guys."

And some day I'll stand by the great gates of gold, and see a man pass through, unquestioned and bold.

"A saint?" I'll ask, and St. Peter'll reply: "No, he's only a plain, honest newspaper guy."

Forest Notes.

Although there were an unusual number of forest fires on the national forests of Oregon and Washington this year, the loss of merchantable timber has been relatively small.

The propellers of aeroplanes such as are used in the European war at present may be made of selected ash, which is both strong and light and will not split under vibration or shock, or of built-up layers of spruce with mahogany centers. The framework of the machines, too, is generally made of wood, spruce being used on account of its straight grain and freedom from hidden defects.

A surprisingly large number of substances, ranging all the way from the condensed fumes of smelters to skimmed milk of creameries, have been tried or suggested as means of preserving wood from decay. Most of them, however, have been found to have little or no value for the purpose. Certain forms of coal-tar, creosote and zinc chloride are the most widely used wood preservatives.

It is said that the German invaders of Belgium, whatever else they have destroyed, have been careful not to injure park trees. The cavalrymen, so a report goes, are forbidden to tie their horses to trees for fear that the animals will gnaw the bark. Germany was the first nation to apply forestry on a large scale, some of the crown forests having been under scientific management for over a hundred years.

From Albert Wandersee.

Mr. Jas. Ballard:

Among other things published in the Tawas Herald of Friday, Nov. 13, I read your account of war ships destroyed or damaged so as to be put out of commission. You list Germany with a loss of 46, England 23, Austria 23, etc. You also state that the reports are official and unofficial. Now Mr. Ballard, nine times out of ten you don't believe the unofficial reports yourself. In the second place nobody cares for those "unofficial" reports and—yes it is deplorable, that every, or nearly so, "official" report from London, Paris or Petrograd proves to be a base lie. You have probably seen the cartoon in a New York paper showing the English 42 C. gun. This, the cartoon shows, is nothing but the big mouth, and remember, a war has never yet been won with the mouth. I refuse to believe that you have been inoculated with that disease, with which nearly the whole American press is affected, namely to print the lies as received from London, and to help England win her battles with the mouth.

The official losses on the sea, that have been admitted by London as well as Berlin concerning the German navy are seven war craft and none of them with a capacity of over 5,000 tons. Those unofficial reports from London, that would have sunk the whole German navy by this time, must counterbalance the English losses which are eighteen war crafts without the 24,000 ton Audacious. Eight of these being from 10 to 14,000 tons, seven from 5 to 10,000 tons, two mine layers and one training ship, to say nothing of the little "Emden" which sank 35, the Karlsruhe 19 English ships. Think of a nation that boasts for a few hundred years of ruling the seas, that must call on the navies of Russia, France, Australia and Japan, a combined navy of 70 war ships all of them two times as large and larger, to help hunt down one little 3,000 ton German "Emden." So far we have just heard the 42 C. English guns about the Emden affair. Maybe the Sydney saw a little smoke too. Well there is no use of my writing more as you know more about these things than I do. But please try to avoid catching the sickness so many other editors are affected with, that is to give us the one-sided, tainted reports from the "All Lies." So far the Herald has been very fair with its articles on European war, and I only hope that it will not join the big "Lie brigade" already running the Germans off the map of Europe with their mammoth 42 C. guns.

Yours,

ALB. WANDERSEE,
Ann Arbor, Mich.

P. S.—If you will not censor this quite as closely as the London censor censors the war news, I should like to have you publish it, for the majority of Germans at Tawas read the Herald and no other paper and would surely like to hear the other side of this ship story.

[In connection with the above, we would state that the article mentioned by Mr. Wandersee was taken from one of the daily papers and inadvertently failed to be credited to the paper from which it was taken. The Herald aims to be fair to both sides and will not knowingly publish false statements.—Ed.

THE DAY OF THANKS.

Next Thursday, Nov. 26, is the day set apart by custom as a day of thanksgiving for the blessings vouchsafed us during the past year. In addition to the reasons which each individual or family may have for rendering thanks this year, there are numberless reasons why we should, as a nation, be especially grateful. Our harvests have been even more bountiful than usual; we are at peace with all the world when so many of the other nations are at war; the Panama canal, the greatest engineering feat of the time, has been completed and opened to commerce; and thousands of other reasons might be cited why the American nation should be thankful.

But despite the bountiful crops and the fact that our country is not wrung by the turmoil and devastation of war, there are many who will have but little cause for thanksgiving this year. Illness, lack of employment and other causes have reduced many to poverty and they will be fortunate if, on this day of general feasting and joy they are able to secure food to satisfy their hunger or clothing to protect them from the cold.

Thousands, yes millions, of dollars of American money are being spent in relieving the necessities of European war refugees. This is a worthy movement and should be encouraged, but in our enthusiasm in this cause we should not forget the needy and destitute at our doors. In every city, village and hamlet are those who need aid, and at this Thanksgiving season none should be left without special cause for rejoicing.

Who Does Your Thinking?

What is it that sets man above the rest of the animal kingdom? Is it not the power to think? All through the history of the world there have been a few great thinkers, and there have been a great many who let some one else do their thinking for them.

Which kind are you? Do you think for yourself? People who think for themselves are human beings living on a high plane. Those who let others think for them are living in a rut, where prejudice, foginess, superstition and ignorance prevail. The world is full of people who travel in a rut and seem to like it, although it is close scrouching.

The habit of thinking is not easy to acquire. It means that you must reason, use the faculties of your mind, about things you see and hear. It means cultivating an open mind. It means self control. It means that you refuse to accept the ready-made thoughts of others until you have analyzed them.

Are you letting some one do your thinking for you? The next time you notice yourself saying, "I think so-and-so," ask yourself the question, "Was that my thought or not?"

We see all the time men who think controlling those who do not—in business, in religion, in politics, in war, in everything the thoughtful man rules. Sometimes, and particularly in politics, he rules selfishly. Very often he uses the power he has to enrich himself at the expense of those who do not use their reason. A hired agitator, in the pay of fanatics or extremists—whose narrow minds object to this or that, or the other thing—plays upon the feelings of his hearers. The unthinking, after listening to his tirade, exclaims: "He's right! I think there should be a law against it!" Do you think, or are you only reflecting the suggestions of a clever talker? The greatest showman the world ever knew, said, "The American people like to be humbugged."

He certainly knew what he was talking about, for he made a fortune in that business.

A Dangerous Pastime.

The first question an honorable man asks when he sees a girl flirting is whether she is a respectable girl or not. You see how it raises doubt at once. This being the case no modest girl can afford to indulge in this pastime among strangers. When the down is brushed from the peach the beauty is so marred that it can never be restored, and so when a girl throws lightly aside that sweet and modest reserve so becoming to a maiden, she loses her greatest charm and becomes rather common and cheap. Flirting may seem to the giddy and thoughtless girl to be wonderfully amusing, and she may even get an idea she is quite fascinating, but it is a degrading pastime and should be frowned upon by every young lady who has an ambition to be a worthy and charming woman.

The Home Paper.

Ex-Gov. Francis once said the following of newspapers: "Each year the local paper gives from $500 to $1,000 in free lines to the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his town than any other ten men, and in all fairness he ought to be supported—not because you like him or admire his writings, but because the local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be brilliantly edited or crowded with thought, but financially it is of more benefit to the community than the preacher or teacher. Understand me, I do not mean mentally, and yet on moral questions you will find most of the papers on the right side. Today the editor of the local papers do the most for the least money of any people on earth."

Try This for Your Cough.

Thousands of people keep coughing because unable to get the right remedy. Coughs are caused by inflammation of throat and bronchial tubes. What you need is to soothe this inflammation. Take Dr. King's New Discovery, it penetrates the delicate mucous lining, raises the phlegm, and quickly relieves the congested membranes. Get a 50c bottle from your druggist. "Dr. King's New Discovery quickly and completely stopped my cough," writes J. R. Watts, Floydale, Texas. Money back if not satisfied, but it nearly always helps.

Notice to the Public.

D. & M. Ry. trains Nos. 3 and 4 will continue to run between Alpena and Cheboygan on the same schedule that was in effect prior to November 1st.

COYOTE PROVED A SCRAPPER

Fought Four Trained Dogs Furiously In River for More Than an Hour.

The fighting abilities of coyotes were demonstrated recently when one fought more than an hour with four dogs belonging to Asa Ireton, a farmer in the east part of this county, says a Salina (Kan.) dispatch to the Kansas City Star.

After fighting several minutes the coyote took to the river, and in water from six to eight feet deep the battle waged an hour. The coyote swam about with only its ears and nose above the water until attacked by the dogs, and after fighting as long as the dogs could fight the coyote would break away and rest by floating. When the dogs had recovered their wind they would make another attack, working all the time to get the coyote out of the water. They were successful two or three times, but each time the coyote would leap back into the river.

After an hour's work the coyote was driven away from the river into the open. There it lasted more than fifteen minutes against the four dogs, which have been trained to work together against coyotes and bobcats. The dogs were exhausted as well as badly battered.

NOT SUCH A FAVOR

Harold—You know, Helen, it's awfully kind of you to let me come to see you so often.

Helen—Don't mention it, Harold. One must make some sacrifice of one's feelings sometimes.

END OF TEN YEARS' STRUGGLE.

Peace between Great Britain and France was proclaimed one hundred years ago June 2. For ten years the two nations had been constantly at war, the struggle ending only with the overthrow and abdication of the Emperor Napoleon. England's triumph over her enemy, however, was dashed by the more doubtful fortunes of the struggle in America. But before the close of the year the war with the United States was to end, at a most opportune time for England, since it left her hands free at a moment when Napoleon's escape from Elba and his reappearance at Paris called England and her continental allies to a new and final struggle with France.

NOT A FIGHT.

"Here, here, stop fighting with all those boys."

"I ain't fighting."

"Yes, you are."

"No, I ain't. I'm just trying to punch Bud Hicks in the nose, 'cause I'm mad at him. I ain't mad at his brothers, but I will be if they don't quit kickin' me in the shins."—Detroit Free Press.

WONDERS OF OCCULT SCIENCE.

"The fortune teller told my wife that a dark woman would cross her path and bring trouble into our home. And it came true!"

"You don't say so!"

"Yes. Our new cook took umbrage at something and smashed up the kitchen."

THE EASIEST WAY.

"When they get that fellow in jail they'll soon smooth him down."

"How so?"

"By ironing him."

ACCOUNTED FOR.

"It ought to be easy to raise the wind for baseball games."

"Why so?"

"So many fans are interested."

BUT DIFFERENT.

"I see there are a great number of 'dips' about now."

"Of course. Ever since the tango craze everybody's doing 'em."

NEW IDEA SEEMS GOOD ONE

Various Forms of Insurance Might Tend to Lessen the Horrors of the Modern Plague.

Over in England a new form of insurance has been devised. Persons intending to go on holiday trips may take out policies indemnifying them against loss or damage or disappointment due to rainy, stormy or unpleasant weather. Novel idea, isn't it? In this country no such insurance is yet obtainable—but before long the idea may be imported and improved. There may be a special policy devised, for instance, for picnickers to indemnify them for the pies used as cushions, for the discomforts of anthills as headrests when sprawling on the more or less green-sward and for the consequences of using a chaplet of poison ivy leaves instead of the laurel of renown. Or a policy may be gotten up to insure the holder against the sudden decision of the boss that the holiday must be postponed so that he may himself go to the ball game—or to pay the doctor for attending little Johnny for injuries and pains resulting from raiding the green-apple supply in the farmer's orchard—or the like. And when this form of insurance is general and popularized some of the drawbacks to picnicking and holidaying will be more or less quashed, won't they?

SPEECH IN PLEISTOCENE PERIOD

Scientists Avert That That Method of Communicating Ideas Was Then in Existence.

The remarkable conclusion has been arrived at, by putting two and two together in high expert pronouncements, that man had the power of speech a million years ago.

This important point arises out of the address delivered before the Dublin Royal society by Prof. Arthur Keith on the ancient Pitsdown skull known as the Eoanthropos Dawson.

If it be granted that Professor Keith is right in fixing the date of the Eoanthropos as a Pliocene, and that Professor Elliot Smith, who also examined the discovery, is right in interpreting the features of the brain as indicative of speech, the remarkable revelation is made that mankind in the Pliocene period, a million years ago, or even more, had the power of forming and communicating ideas by means of speech.

CENSUS OF BIRDS.

In a weekly letter to crop correspondents the department of agriculture invites public participation in the very interesting task of compiling a census of all the birds in the United States and lovers throughout the country are asked to co-operate with the work. The object is to determine how many pairs of birds of each species breed within definite areas. The figures submitted will be compared with those of subsequent censuses in an effort to ascertain whether the present state and federal laws are effective and game insectivorous birds are increasing or diminishing in numbers.

MAKING BUSINESS.

Things were dull with the Centerville Palladium. There were sixty business houses in town and only ten of them advertised.

In the next issue of the Palladium appeared the following item:

"A certain business man in town is altogether too fond of the girl who poses as his stenographer. We may have more to say about this later on."

Next day the other fifty business houses sent in advertising copy.

REGULAR PROGRESS.

"Some sneak thieves got in my house and stole my best rug."

"And then what?"

"Then they beat it."

THE REASON.

"Then I suppose she must have been in hot water."

FARM ANIMALS

AVOID THE SPRING DISEASES

Give Extra Attention to Health and Condition of All Farm Stock—Worms Cause Much Trouble.

Now is the time to give a little extra attention to the health and condition of your sheep and hogs; in fact, all farm stock. Never was a "stitch in time" more profitably taken than right now in doing all you can to rid our stock of worms and parasite infection. Practically all spring diseases and troubles of all farm stock are caused by worms, and with the opening of spring these pests will develop and multiply in incalculable numbers and with such ravenous and destructive appetites it is impossible for farm stock to thrive when they are present.

Their presence is indicated by drowsy, dull eyes, rough coats, gauntness, general rundown condition, indigestion, finally resulting in the development of a disease. Sometimes the animals may have a good appetite, but the food they eat does them little, if any, good. The trouble is the worms in the stomach are getting all the nutrition and the animal is practically starving. Get rid of the worms early and when spring opens up your stock will have every chance to thrive and keep healthy.

Give them a good tonic—something that will kill and expel the worms and at the same time tone and condition the stomach. Do it now, and you will be a good many dollars better off a few months hence.

There are some excellent preparations on the market for worms which you can test without risk before you pay. Look them up and get rid of these profit-eating pests before they get a firm spring footing among your stock.

MAKES LOADING CHUTE SAFE

Every Farmer Knows Importance of Arranging Floor So That Animal Escapes Injury by Slipping.

(By JOHN Y. BEATTY, in the Farm and Residence.)

Every live stock farmer knows the need for a good loading chute, but anyone who has had the misfortune to have an animal slip on a chute realizes the great importance of having the floor so arranged that there is no chance for the animal to slip even when the boards are wet.

Cleats sometimes break off, but the chute shown in the accompanying drawing never causes trouble in this way. Instead of laying the floor in the usual way, the boards are each laid up over the edge of the one just in front. This makes the edge of each board a cleat, and these cleats do not break off. It takes just a little more lumber to make such a chute, but the safety of it much more than repays for the extra cost. When you come right down to it the extra cost amounts to but little anyway.

ATTENTION TO COLT'S FEET

Practice and Observation Will Soon Enable Man to Determine Amount of Trimming Needed.

Regular attention to the feet of colts is absolutely necessary in this country. The hoofs often tend to grow in abnormal ways, too long on one side, tending to twist the fetlock joint, or too long at the toe, which tends to strain the ligaments, and which also tends to faulty action.

In trimming the hoof all that needs to be done can be done with a rasp. The hoof wall should be rasped off, on the bottom surface until the relation of the heel, side and toe is approximately one, two and three in length, and the work should be done in such a manner as to cause the foot to rest squarely on the ground. Practice and observation will soon enable a man who has fair judgment to determine just what trimming each colt needs and how often attention will be required. As a general rule the feet should be examined every six or eight weeks.

Handy Hoof Hook.

A hoof hook should be included in the equipment of a well regulated stable. The feet of the horse should be cleaned every morning before he leaves the stable. The hoof hook will remove all litter, pebbles or anything that may have become lodged in the foot. This precaution may prevent injury to the sole or sensitive structures of the foot. If the feet become very dry, pack them daily for a week with some form of clay. Then apply lard to the wall, to which may be added pine tar and rosin.

WHEN MIRANDA FORGOT

By CONSTANCE NESSLER.

"I mustn't postpone dusting them another minute," said Miranda, as she opened her bookcase door in order to find room for a new volume and noticed how the tops of the old ones were covered by a layer of dust.

With Miranda the dusting of books was a prolonged and serious ordeal, usually attended with much sentimental reminiscence. She couldn't merely wipe the dear backs and faces of her favorite volumes without renewing acquaintance with them. Generally before she had reached the second shelf she was seated on the floor, a pile of books about her, the soiled duster lying by her side and some once loved novel open at her favorite scene. It was where Lord Ormont had confessed his inability to exist without his Evelina, or where the spirited Miss Bennett had dismissed the haughty Mr. Darcy, or where—but there was no stopping and no dusting when once Miranda had fairly started on this dual feat of dusting her books and refreshing her memory.

This morning she banged the book backs and flirited her duster without a pause until she reached the George Elliot shelf, and noticed a telltale vacancy in that beloved set. "It's 'Daniel Deronda' that has gone," wailed Miranda as she carefully dusted the top of each volume after giving it a bang that was enough to bring all the characters to life again. "And I know who has it. I loaned it over a year ago to Lina Helt, and though I have seen her a dozen times since then she has never mentioned the book. And now she has moved to the suburbs and I suppose she has taken my book with her and will never think of it again or remember that she has broken my set.

"It is like breaking up a family to lose one out of a set," she continued, "and I think that there ought to be a special punishment devised for people who borrow books and never return them. Now, when I borrow a book I always read it at once and then put it on a table in plain sight so that I shall remember to return it."

"I Wonder Who Gave It to Me."

The fourth shelf was full of painful memories for Miranda and she hastened through the slapping and dusting process without stopping to peep within a single cover. The fact was that this particular fourth shelf set was a subscription set and had caused Miranda many an anxious tear. She had paid $2 a month for it, having in a moment of bookish weakness and vanity put her name to some book agent's pledge, and there had been times when it was difficult to get the $2, and when she was obliged to ask the agent to call again. How she hated the sight of that man and how sick she was of those books before she had paid for them!

"I suppose I ought to read them," she said to herself as she gave each of the 17 volumes a spiteful slap, "but really, I know I should see that agent's face on every page. And, besides, they are the kind of book one likes to own but doesn't care to read. They are not the sort that are what Charles Lamb called 'take downable,' and some day I mean to take them to some second-hand book store and see what I can get for them."

On the fifth shelf Miranda came across a volume that did not look familiar, though the story itself was one with which she was well acquainted.

"Why, I had forgotten that I had a copy of 'The Cloister and the Hearth,'" said she, as she opened the volume and glanced at the name of an old friend inscribed on the fly leaf. "Dear me! I must have borrowed this book ages ago and then, after I had read it, put it among my own books and just forgot all about it. And I don't know what has become of Elsie Braddon or whether she is Elsie Braddon now. I really don't see how I could have failed to do with this book of hers as I always do with borrowed books—that is, keep them in sight until they are returned—but I don't suppose this belongs to any set, and so it will not be missed like my 'Daniel Deronda.' But perhaps I had better keep it out and see if I cannot look up Elsie, for though I can hardly recall the circumstances of my borrowing I have a faint recollection of Elsie's telling me that this was her favorite novel, and that she wanted my opinion of it.

"Well, I suppose she has her opinion of me by this time!"—Chicago Daily News.

OUR SCRAP BASKET

Of Interest to Women.

To remove tar stains rub the spot first with lard and then with soap. Leave for an hour, and then wash in hot water, softened with ammonia. If traces still remain rub with turpentine.

If stains have been neglected and fixed by soap in the laundry, it may be necessary to apply diluted oxalic acid or chloride of lime, or to treat them with lemon juice and salt, afterward exposing the articles to the air and sunshine.

To remove mildew stains on linen dissolve one ounce of chloride of lime in one pint of cold water, then add three pints of boiling water. Soak the stains in this from three to twelve hours. Remove, rinse thoroughly, and send to the laundry. If the chloride of lime is not thoroughly washed out the fabric may be injured.

Wise and Otherwise.

The man who leads a dog's life has some excuse for growling.

Occasionally an important item of American news is squeezed in after the war dispatches. For instance it is announced from Tarrytown that John D. Rockefeller prefers hot water to Oolong tea.

After hearing a political speech one feels that all that would be necessary to settle the European war, tranquilize Mexico, end financial troubles and raise every one's income would be to elect that speaker to the office he seeks.

Facts Worth Knowing.

CARE OF SCREENS.—After the dust is removed make a mixture of linseed oil, one part—turpentine two parts. With a thin flat brush apply this mixture all over the wire netting, both sides, and the frame as well. Apply this sparingly so as not to clog the meshes. The screens can be stored away anywhere in this condition, and in the spring need only to be wiped free of accumulated dust before being placed back in the windows.

Kitchen Kinks.

In making a fruit cake, pour half the batter in a pan, before adding the fruit. The fruit will not then sink to the bottom of the cake.

A satisfactory washcloth is made of two or three thicknesses of mosquito netting. The edges are finished by crocheting a scallop in pink or blue.

Hard boiled eggs should be plunged into cold water as soon as they are removed from the saucepan. This prevents a dark ring from appearing around the yolk.

When next serving chops, bake them instead of broiling. Put them in a dripping pan and cover each chop with onion sliced very thin. Bake for about 20 minutes.

Get a square sheet of iron, light one burner of the stove, and place the sheet iron on top. The heat travels through the iron so quickly that several saucepans can cook their contents at the same time with only one burner going.

It Really Does Relieve Rheumatism

Everybody who is afflicted with rheumatism in any form should by all means keep a bottle of Sloan's liniment on hand. The minute you feel pain or soreness in a joint or muscle, bathe it with Sloan's Liniment. Do not rub it. Sloan's penetrates almost immediately right to the seat of pain, relieving the hot, tender, swollen feeling, and making the part easy and comfortable. Get a bottle of Sloan's liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against colds, sore and swollen joints, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief. adv

One Lump Instead of Two.

The beet sugar factories throughout the country are facing a peculiar situation. After working at full capacity to meet a supposed demand for high-priced sugar, they find that there is no such demand. Although the sugar is offered at six cents per pound, wholesale, sales are slow. The jobbers and wholesalers, it seems, stocked up heavily when the war broke out and, with warehouses loaded to the rafters, they are not eager to put more money into the product. So the sugar is going begging at six cents. How long this condition will last is a question. The consumer, however, as long as he uses the usual quantity of sugar, may rest assured that he will not profit. The retail price of sugar has been advanced to about eight cents a pound and it is likely that it will be kept there, indefinitely. The old "law" of supply and demand appears to have been repealed in this century. The only way to touch the speculators is through the pocket. A lack of demand or a falling off in demand is likely to result in a reduction in price, for the jobbers will not care to carry big stocks that are slow sales. Therefore if every American would cut down his allowance of sugar, just a trifle, we would see the prices tumbling in a few weeks. One spoonful or one lump, instead of two in your coffee every morning for a month would result in a return of five-cent sugar before Christmas.

Chip on the Shoulder.

"We love and we value peace," said Jefferson. "We know its blessings and experience; we abhor the follies of war, and are not untried in its distresses and calamities." A God-fearing nation confides in its strength without boasting of it and respects that of others without fearing it. The weak nation, like the weak man, carries a chip on the shoulder.

SHERMAN TOWNSHIP FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Probably the most profitable farmer's institute ever held in Sherman township closed Tuesday evening after an all day session. It was a "field day" event, combining an indoor picnic dinner with a speaking and literary program of unusual merit. Chairman Calvin Billings gave an introductory address and the pupils of the five schools sang "America." Edwin A. Goodwin gave a short address, showing the value of 100 young men of the local schools, socially, morally and economically, giving some interesting figures on the human beings as an economic asset.

Following the noon luncheon, R. D. Baily, of the M. A. C. institute staff, using many charts to illustrate his subject, discussed soils, stock breeding and feeding and other similar farm subjects in quite the most illuminating and entertaining manner that has been heard from a Sherman platform. His discussion of farm dairying was a most helpful effort, inspiring many of the local farmers to new ideals.

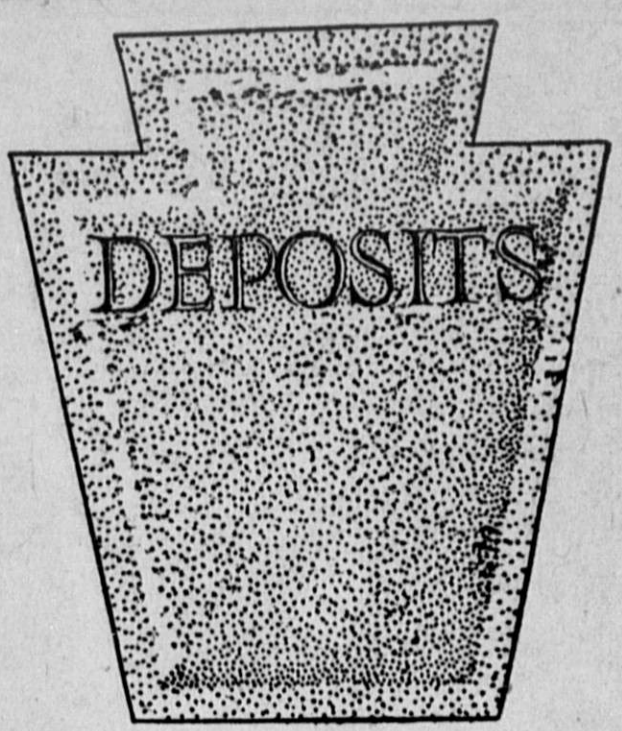

The literary program was in charge of the teachers of the schools, Misses Anna Sands, Mildred Ruth Dillon, Elsie Musolf and May Murray, the pupils rendering some excellent selections and the teachers contributing either recitations or addresses. Exhibits were on display, showing many varieties and specimens of fruit and vegetables. Prizes to girls under 12 for the best cakes made by their own hands were awarded as follows: 1st, Etta Jordan; 2nd, Dora Thomas; 3rd, Lucile Pavelock. Prizes for hand sewing for girls under 12 years were given as follows: 1st, Beulah Norris; 2nd, Myrtle Holman. Prizes to boys for the best specimens of farm products were given to the following: 1st, Dan Norris; 2nd, Frank Thomas.

In the evening John A. Campbell, county commissioner of schools gave an interesting address on school problems, and the institute closed with a popular address by Mr. Baily.
