Human remains have been found in a field on the farm of Colliston Mill, on the estate of Colliston, owned by Mr. Peebles-Chaplin of Colliston castle, Ireland. The coffin was about three feet in width. The skeleton was practically intact, the skull being complete, while the upper row of teeth were in a splendid state of preservation. On being exposed to the air the lower jaw began to crumble away. Near the head of the skeleton an urn was found, chased with gold. The urn was five or six inches in height, and resembled an Indian vessel. The farmer communicated with the county police, who had the remains removed. The place where the discovery was made is in a field near the farm steading and in close proximity to Colliston castle, an ancient residence of much historic interest.

Loammi Baldwin, years before the Revolution, cut scions from a wild apple tree near surprised his neighbors with a crop of red apples of remarkable flavor. His name was given to the apple by common consent, and when the original tree died the site was marked by a monument.

Since Loammi Baldwin found the wild apple tree that bears his name scores of different varieties have been produced; but the Baldwin more than holds its ground among people who judge fruit by its flavor rather than by size. The fancy western WANTS, FOR SALE, ETC. apples are unworthy of comparison with the Baldwin, and Mrs. Farmer's recognition of the merits of the old-time brand thus rests upon fact pride.-Providence Journal.

Mules.

The mule is a big chunk of power, stubborness and stupidity stuffed into a hide and used for motive power when steam and electricity fail. No one has ever learned just how much power there is sewed up in a mule. The only secret it has ever divulged is the alarcity of its rear limbs. The front end of a mule generally is docile enough, but no man with a wife and children has a right to let his life monkey around behind one.

OVER A MILLION AND A HALF WOMEN WORK AS FARM HANDS IN THE UNITED STATES.

By Peter Radford Lecturer National Farmers' Union.

Our government never faced so tremendous a problem as that now lying dormant at the doors of congress and the legislatures, and which, when aroused, will shake this nation from center to circumference, and make civilization hide its face in shame. That problem is-women in the field.

The last federal census reports show we now have 1,514,000 women working in the field, most of them south of the Mason and Dixon line. There were approximately a million negro slaves working in the fields when liberated by the emancipation proclamation. We have freed our slaves and our women have taken their places in bondage. We have broken the shackles off the negroes and welded them upon our daughters.

The Chain-Gang of Civilization. A million women in bondage in the southern fields form the chain-gang of civilization - the industrial tragedy of the age. There is no overseer quite so cruel as that of unrestrained greed, no whip that stings like the lash of suborned destiny, and no auctioneer's block quite so revolting as that of organized avarice. The president of the United States was recently lauded by the press, and very properly so, for suggesting mediation between the engineers and railroad managers in adjusting their schedule of time and pay. The engineers threatened to strike if their wages were not increased from approximately ten to eleven dollars per day and service reduced from ten to eight hours and a similar readjustment of the overtime schedule. Our women are working in the field, many of them barefooted, for less than 50 cents per day, and their schedule is the rising sun and the evening star, and after the day's work is over they milk the cows, slop the hogs and rock the baby to sleep. Is anyone mediating over their problems, and to whom shall they threaten a strike? Congress has listened approvingly to those who toil at the forge and behind the counter, and many of our statesmen have smiled at the threats and have fanned the flame of unrest among industrial laborers. But women are as surely the final victims of industrial warfare as they are the burden-bearers in the war between nations, and those who arbitrate and mediate the differences between capital and labor should not forget that when the expenses of any industry are unnecessarily increased, society foots the bill by drafting a new consignment of women from the home to the field. Pinch no Crumb From Women's Crust of Bread.

No financial award can be made without someone footing the bill, and we commend to those who accept the responsibility of the distribution of industrial justice, the still small voice of the woman in the field as she pleads for mercy, and we beg that they pinch no crumb from her crust of bread or put another patch upon her ragged

We beg that they listen to the scream of horror from the eagle on every American dollar that is wrung from the brow of toiling women and hear the Goddess of Justice hiss at a verdict that increases the want of woman to satisfy the greed of man.

The women behind the counter and in the factory cry aloud for sympathy and the press thunders out in their defense and the pulpit pleads for mercy, but how about the woman in the field? Will not these powerful exponents of human rights turn their talent, energies and influence to her Eucalyptus oil will remove grease relief? Will the Goddess of Liberty enthroned at Washington hold the calloused hand and soothe the feverish brow of her sex who sows and reaps the nation's harvest or will she permit the male of the species to shove women-weak and weary-from the bread-line of industry to the back alleys of poverty? Women and Children First. The census enumerators tell us that of the 1,514,000 women who work in the teen years of age and under. What is the final destiny of a nation whose future mothers spend their girlhood days behind the plow, pitching hay and hauling manure, and what is to become of womanly culture and refinement and enthuse man to leap to glory in are raised in the society of the ox and the companionship of the plow? In that strata between the ages of sixteen and forty-five are 950,000 women working as farm hands and many of them with suckling babes tugging at their breasts, as drenched come of that nation where poverty breaks the crowns of the queens of the home; despair hurls a mother's love from its throne and hunger drives innocent children from the schoolroom to the hoe? The census bureau shows that 155,-000 of these women are forty-five years of age and over. There is no more pitiful sight in civilization than these saintly mothers of Israel stooped with age, drudging in the field from sun until sun and at night drenching their dingy pillows with the tears of despair as their aching hearts take it all to God in prayer. Civilization strikes them a blow when it should give them a crown, and their only friend is he who broke bread with beggars and said: "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest." Oh, America! The land of the free and the home of the brave, the world's custodian of chivalry, the champion of human rights and the defender of the oppressed-shall we permit our maidens fair to be torn from the hearthstone by the ruthless hand of destiny and chained to the plow? Shall we permit our faithful wives, whom we covenanted with God to cherish and protect, to be hurled from the home to the harvest field, and our mothers dear to be driven from the old arm chair to the cotton patch?

In rescuing our citizens from the forces of civilization, can we not apply to our fair Dixieland the rule of the sea-"women and children first?" There must be a readjustment of the wage scale of industry so that the women can be taken from the field or given a reasonable wage for her services. Perhaps the issue has never been fairly raised, but the Farmers' Union, with a membership of ten million, puts its organized forces squarely behind the issue and we now enter upon the docket of civilization the case of "The Woman in the Field" and demand an immediate trial.

RAILROADS APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

The Common Carriers Ask for Relief - President Wilson Directs Attention of Public to

Their Needs. The committee of railroad execuives, headed by Mr. Frank Trumbull, representing thirty-five of the leading railroad systems of the nation, recently presented to President Wilson a memorandum briefly reviewing the difficulties now confronting the railroads of the country and asking for the cooperation of the governmental authorities and the public in supporting railroad credits and recognizing an emergency which requires that the railroads be given additional revenues.

The memorandum recites that the European war has resulted in general depression of business on the American continent and in the dislocation of credits at home and abroad. With revenues decreasing and interest rates increasing the transportation systems of the country face a most serious crisis and the memorandum is strong presentation of the candle burning at both ends and the perils that must ultimately attend such a conflagration when the flames meet is apparent to all. In their general discussion the railroad representatives say in part: "By reason of legislation and regulation by the federal government and the forty-eight states acting independently of each other, as well as through the action of a strong public opinion, railroad expenses in recent years have vastly increased. No criticism is here made of the general theory of governmental regulation, but on the other hand, no ingenuity can relieve the carriers of expenses created thereby."

President Wilson, in transmitting the memorandum of the railroad presidents to the public, characterizes it as "a lucid statement of plain truth." The president recognizing the emergency as extraordinary, continuing, said in part:

"You ask me to call the attention of the country to the imperative need that railway credits be sustained and the railroads helped in every possible way, whether by private co-operative effort or by the action, wherever feasible of governmental agencies, and I am glad to do so because I think the need very real."

The conference was certainly a fortunate one for the nation and the president is to be congratulated for opening the gate to a new world of effort in which everyone may co-oper-

There are many important problems in our complex civilization that will yield to co-operation which will not lend themselves to arbitrary rulings of commissions and financing railroads is one of them. The man with the money is a factor that cannot be eliminated from any business transaction and the public is an interested party that should always be consulted and happily the president has invited all to participate in the solution of our railroad problems.

PAYING QUALITIES OF MULE

Three-Year-Old Span Will Be Good for Twenty Years' Service-Always in Demand.

Much has been said and written about the Missouri mules. Envious residents of other states have even intimated that the Misseurian and the mule were so closely allied that there is a marked resemblance in looks and disposition, says an editorial in the Missouri Ruralist. This of course is a slander, but we are proud of our longeared hybrid just the same. It is nothing unusual for a good team of mules to sell at $200 and upward, but when they double up on that figure there is comment, even in Missouri. A span of raw three-year-olds sold at the American Royal for an even thousand dollars. This was a record for Kansas City, but had been topped at other Before the show was over a world's record had been established. A yearling mule sold for $550, more money than had ever been paid for a mule of that age before.

Probably just as valuable animals are raised in other states, but they lack the prestige, and the Missouri farmer gets the cash. Imagine a Kansan, or a man from Iowa or Illinois selling a yearing mule for over half a thousand dollars. The idea is

When you come to think the matter over the price is not exorbitant after all. Good Results Obtained at Missouri and Nebraska Stations-Strengthening to the Bones.

All kinds of bonemeal are used in the manufacture of fertilizers, but not all kinds are suitable for feed for swine. Bonemeal from a glue factory which acid was used is not suitable ests. feed. But any bonemeal, especially green bone that is ground finely enough, may be fed. Steamed bonemeal is good.

At the Missouri station bonemeal was fed with good results. About an ounce of meal was fed to each hog per

At the Nebraska station four lots of pigs were fed to determine the value of wheat short, tankage and steamed ground bone as supplemental to cornmeal. The hogs were pastured on alfalfa, and for this reason the lot fed on corn alone made about as satisfactory gain as any, although the lot which was fed bonemeal in addition to the corn had the strongest bone.

Shorts strengthen the bone some and tankage with corn produced much stronger bone than corn alone. Where mixed rations were given, or skim-milk or good pasture, all which supply ash material, it doubtful that bonemeal is of much value other than for the purpose of strengthening the bones.

Ration for Lambs.

The best ration for the lambs wil not be the best ration for the ewes evertheless a fairly good though ather expensive feed mixture for both of them will be oats, four parts; bran, four parts; corn, three parts; cil meal, two parts. If it were possible to separate the ewes from the lambs, it might be advisable to give the lambs a larger proportion of corn corn. Enough grain should be given to keep the ewes in good flesh, but not fat. The roughage ration for these sheep is not of first-class quality, and therefore it will be necessary to give a good grain ration.

RED BOTTLES BEST FOR MILK

French Physician Asserts Color Will Keep the Contents Fresh for Some Ten Hours.

To keep milk fresh, put it in red bottles. That is the explanation given by Dr. Eduard Pantet of Versailles, France. He has reported some interesting experiments concerning the influence of red light on milk, and says red bottles solve the milk preservation problem by keeping it fresh for ten hours. That light is a detriment to the preserving of milk is well known, but which of the rays really did the mischief was not known until Doctor Pantet experimented. He found after testing all colors that red rays were beneficial, but that those toward the violet side of the spectrum caused the milk to "turn."

Doctor Pantet proved his experiment by placing sterilized and unsterilized milk in uncolored bottles in the light for a full day. They were both spoiled and both equally bad. At the same time both kinds of milk were placed in red glass bottles. and at the end of the day both kinds of milk were found to be fresh, even the unsterilized milk being good for many hours.
