Autos could be seen going in all directions on the bay last Sunday. The ice was in fine condition and the balmy weather made it great sport for the autoist, while the ice boat fellows had to stand on the shore for want of breeze.

The pupils of the AuGres schools issued a challenge through the columns of the Enterprise to the business men of that city to a spelling match to be held at such time and place as the men may name. It is evident that the AuGres youngsters have confidence in their ability to "put 'ne over" on the old fellows.
A number of people of this city attended the "Martha Washington" supper given at the Orange hall, on the Hemlock, Wednesday evening, by the Ladies of the Hemlock Road Baptist church. A musical program and "Backwardness" by Levi Emerson furnished the large attendance an enjoyable evening's entertainment, while the ladies quieted the ravings of the inner man with one of the finest suppers ever served on an occasion of this kind.
The Cecilian Concert Company on March 10th is the number on the local entertainment course, and without doubt is the finest musical concert ever offered to people of the Tawas. The program is composed of both vocal and instrumental selections rendered by the highest class talent. The single admissions to this number has been placed at 35 cents, which is a very low price for an entertainment of this class, and no lover of music can afford to miss it.

THE LADIES' 20TH CENTURY CLUB BANQUET.

The annual banquet and Gentlemen's night of the Ladies' 20th Century club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith Friday evening, February 19th.
About forty partook of the good cheer furnished for both the physical and mental man. The program consisted of a half hour farce presented by several of the ladies; duets and piano solos by others.
At the close of the literary and musical numbers, the guests adjourned to the banquet room, and did ample justice to the toothsome and tasteful spread.
Shortly after midnight we mended our several ways homeward, with only one regret that this pleasant occasion only comes once a year.

BASKET BALL.

The Whittemore Independents defeated the Tawas City Normal team in a hard fought game at the East Tawas opera house, last Friday evening, by a score of 19 to 16. The Whittemore boys with the addition of Belknap put up a much stronger game than they did when the Normal met them on their home floor the week previous. With the exception of the weakness shown by both teams in throwing foul baskets the game was well played.
In the preliminary game the Tawas City juniors swamped the East Tawas Junior by a score of 55 to 1.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

February 28, 1915. 6 o'clock std. time. Topic—Winsome to Win Home. Leader—Mrs. A. W. Colby. Everybody invited.
We had a fine meeting last Sunday evening. The discussion on the topic of "Samuel: The Benediction of a Spiritual Home" showed the presence of much real productive thought in our meetings.
The attendance last Sunday was very gratifying. Sixty-one people were present. Twenty-six of them were members but many of the visitors intend to become members at the next business meeting. The "Reds" jumped from a bad second place to a better first place but they are not far enough ahead to sit back and let things slide. The "Blues" have some hustlers on their roll so look out for a record-breaking crowd next Sunday.
We were glad to see so many young men interested in coming to League. Their presence is mutually beneficial.
The March business meeting and social evening will be held in the Hamilton hall over Mr. Hamilton's store next Wednesday evening March 3, 1915. All Epworth League members, prospective members and friends are invited and urged to be present. Begins at 7:45 o'clock standard time. Tho'ts.

A CARD.

Desiring to have no misunderstanding as to the reason why the stunt "Backwardness" was refused to my signature the following facts as indicating no home interest. This is no new departure bearing solely upon my case. It is too true of every community, with its own members.
June 13, 1913 the first public exhibition of Backwardness was given in East Tawas, a second exhibition has never been requested. Four offers for private entertainment have outlived for lack of request. A home paper is supposed to furnish items in which popular interest is concerned. There appears to be but one conclusion. No interest and which we are bound to respect as every man, woman and child has an unquestionable right to an opinion.
April 1st 1913 was the first and only exhibition given before Tawas City citizens. Except for the very sincere attitude of the Herald the above remarks define conditions here. Regret the refusal that had to be made to the Normal class and it follows that no other request can be accepted in justice to their prior invitation.
Wish only a right to our opinion as we grant to all the right to theirs. Sincerely, L. H. Emerson.

BUREAU HAS MADE GOOD

Has Overcome False Impressions Relative to North Michigan.

It is now demonstrated that the investment made by the counties and property owners of Northeastern Michigan in the organization of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau has been well invested. Organized efforts always brings results.
For many years knockers have been engaged in misrepresenting Northeastern Michigan, and the unorganized efforts of its people were not sufficient to offset their labors.
It is only a short time since powerful state commission spent all its time in collecting evidence and distributing information detrimental to this locality. The editor of this paper, while a member of the state senate, was sandbagged with abuse at the instigation of this commission by all of the daily newspaper outside of Bay City for insisting that the report of this commission was prejudiced and untrue, that the soil of Northeastern Michigan was one of the great resources of the state, and that the state should assist and not retard the development of this territory.
Out of the agitation which ensued at this time, for self protection the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau was born. The counties within the district contributed to its support. Its business men subscribed liberally. From Saginaw to the straits of Mackinac a solid front was presented, and the solemn-faced commission engaged in misrepresenting northern Michigan was legislated out, and in its place the Public Domain Commission was organized for the purpose of aiding the disseminating true information in regard to the agricultural resources of the state. This commission has put out literature containing valuable and reliable information as to the state and Northeastern Michigan in particular, having no cheap fads in mind, championing no freak notions, but desiring to bring together the fertile virgin soil and the men and women who will make it do its part in supporting the human family.
This change in front on the part of the state is the result of organization by the people of Northeastern Michigan. So long as the bureau is in operation state officials will find this section of the state prepared to fight when imposed upon.
This locality has only within the last few years had any part of the publicity which it deserves. California, Saskatchewan and other unknown, far away sections and their advantages have been made household words by giant organizations. For Northeastern Michigan there was no one to speak, yet Northeastern Michigan people who have been lured to those far away lands have been only too glad to get back. Streams of emigrants have gone to those localities not realizing that here close to market, in a land of diversified crops, they passed by greater opportunities than could be found at their destination.
H. L. Dow, chairman of the board of supervisors, at the Michigan state fair found the bureau's Northeastern Michigan exhibit one of the big centers of interest. He was astonished to discover the depth of ignorance which Southern Michigan people showed of their own state, and stopped to explain that Northeastern Michigan had just as good soil, raised just as good crops, was inhabited by just as good people and was as desirable a place to live as could be found. He came home a firm believer in the mission of the bureau.
During the past summer E. A. Coan, of this place, while in the localities in which the bureau's automobile had exhibited found that exhibit was the talk amongst the farmers. Their interest was greatly excited. Many of them visited Gladwin county last season, some purchased, and all went home to say that the bureau's exhibit was not a fake.
The bureau's efforts are silencing the knocker, and they are calling attention of home seekers to this locality. It is creating a sentiment of appreciation for its resources. It has stopped the mouth of the official liar, and has caused the private liar to hesitate. It is directing the attention of the tenant farmers of Southern Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois this way to their advantage and our gain.
This is the work of the bureau. It is not spectacular but it must be continuous and persistent. The change in sentiment which the bureau has brought about is worth many times its cost, but the full measure of advantage can only be had by keeping at the good work.—Gladwin Record.

Her 99th Birthday.

About thirty members of Irene Rebekah Lodge assembled at the home of Mrs. Charles Morrell last Wednesday evening, February 24. The anniversary of Mrs. Malinda Dewey, mother of Mrs. Morrell, and who has been residing with her daughter since their arrival in East Tawas almost three years ago.

Mrs. Dewey's maiden name was Malinda Jeanette Adams. She was born in Jefferson County, New York state, February 24, 1816 and is of English descent. At the age of fifteen she married Samuel Nestle in Canada. Of this union eleven children were born, five sons and six daughters, of which three sons and one daughter are living.

After the death of Mr. Nestle she was a widow for four years. She then married Benjamin Dewey in Canada. Four children were born, two sons and two daughters making in all fifteen children. About twelve of these of these children were born in Wales, St. Claire Co., Mich. Mr. Dewey died about thirty-three years ago.

Mrs. Dewey has been a resident of Michigan for almost seventy-five years. Thirty-two years ago she moved from Wales to Harrisville and lived there until 1908 when she came to live with her daughter Mrs. Chas. Morrell at AuSable. She lived there four years and experienced the horrors of the AuSable fire of July 1911.

She was rescued by Mr. Morrell and was carried for more than a mile thro' the fire. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey lived in AuSable for more than a year after the fire, moving to East Tawas in the fall of 1912.

Today there are four sons and five daughters of Mrs. Dewey living. The sons Lyman Nestle of Los Angeles, Calif., age 82 years, C. M. Nestle of Colorado, age 68, William Nestle of Harrisville, Lewis Dewey of Lincoln.

Mrs. Dewey has over seventy grandchildren, great grandchildren, etc. There are six generations living. Mrs. Dewey has been in good health all her life up to two years ago. Three years ago she did the sewing and all the mending for the family. She is very intelligent, has a fine memory, witty and of a bright disposition. Her sight and hearing are excellent. Near the close of the evening's entertainment a birthday cake was brought in lighted with pink and white candles and every one wished Mrs. Dewey another happy year hoping to meet with her on her 100th anniversary.

HOPE OF THE COUNTRY.

We wonder how many of our readers ever read that fine little book called the "Friendly Road," by David Grayson. It is a simple story of how this David Grayson was a farm reared boy and then went into the city and lived until he had become nearly worn-out. To save his life he took up farming and regained his health. But one spring morning he started for a tramp of a week or more on the country roads. He had gotten tired of his pigs, his hens and his cows. He wanted to be free of the farm and its constant exactions for a time and so he took this tramp with but little money in his pocket and a small store of provisions in his haversack.

Finally his money and his provisions ran out and he was face to face with sharp hunger. He came to a farmer and his boy who were hurrying to get a field of potatoes planted. Grayson threw off his pack and coat and asked the farmer for a basket and went at dropping potatoes without a word of explanation. Back and forth over the field they went—Grayson, the farmer and the boy, Ben, and soon the task was ended. The farmer asked Grayson to supper which, of course, he gladly accepted. He found the wife a good motherly woman, two daughters, and an older son, all of whom gave him a good welcome because he had given the farmer a much needed lift. And so it continued for a couple of days. Then Grayson went on his way rejoicing. He records a deserved tribute to the American farmer in these words:

"No country after all produces any better crops than its inhabitants. And as I traveled onward I liked to think of these brave, temperate, industrious, God-fearing, friendly, American people. I have no fear of the country while so many of them are still to be found upon the farms and in the towns of this land."—Hoard's Dairyman.

MARCH.

We used to say that if March came in like a lion it would go out like a lamb.

Revised version: If March approaches like a suffragette it will die as calmly as the husband of one.

But, taking her by and large March is some month. She is just like a wild, gleeful girl, scampering hither and you with no one even imagining what to expect of her next. Her changing skies, her warmth and cold, will most of us with gripe unfold. She trantailizes with her smiles and from our winter clothes beguiles us 'til we take them off, and then she makes us hike 'em on again. She bids the sleeping daisies come and bask beneath her soothing sun, but scarcely have they left their beds until, with frost, she nips their heads.

Among important events credited to the month was the invention of the circular saw, in 1780, since which time the number of fingers have decreased pro rata with the increase of population. A circular saw probably is as reckless and inconsiderate apparatus as was ever placed before a trusting workman. Feed anything into it and it will wade through with a song of wild delight. They soon, however, to be especially fond of nipping the loose ends of one's anatomy.

Stenography, too, was invented in March—1817. We have seen stenographers who looked like they might have been invented before their machines, but of course we didn't mention it to them. Stenography is a wonderful thing for the busy business man so long as he does not permit it wonders to detain him at the office after business hours.

The possession Alaska is another worth-while event credited to March. Uncle Sam bought Alaska for a paltry seven million dollars, and now anyone can go up there and kick that much gold out of any mountain side. The great drawback to going to Alaska to accumulate wealth is that you cannot bring it back with you. It costs more gold than any man can carry to buy a ticket back to the United States. And, since there are no movies or baseball games in Alaska, one cannot spend his wealth while abiding there, so for the present it probably will be just as well to remain at home and see how much money you can accumulate for the tax collector.

Hard Luck.

His horse went dead and his mule went lame; he lost his cows in a poker game, then a cyclone came on a summer's day and blew his house and barn away. An earthquake came when they were gone and swallowed the ground the house was on; the tax collector then came 'round and charged him for the hole in the ground.

WHAT SHALL WE PLAY?

The persistent and widely varied sources of inquiries, received at this office, concerning the relative merit of games, indicate a living public interest in the subject which compels attention. For instance:

"Will you please suggest something new for amusement at our socials?"—An Epworth League President.

"If you can show me how to make my two boys contented with their home I shall owe you a life's gratitude."—A Mother.

"What can you offer by way of assistance in solving the recreation question for our young men?"—Baptist Pastor.

"Please tell me what you regard as the most wholesome games for the home. What games does your Association endorse or condemn and why? What is your attitude toward dancing and card playing?"—A Young Lady.

"Just what stand does your Association take on the subject of public billiard halls? Do you favor closing them up or regulating them? When they are closed up, what substitute do you offer? If you would place your Association on record definitely on this question, it would greatly increase your power."—An Editor.

These are only specimens of hundreds of letters now on our files, in reply to which we submit the following:

First—Outdoor games generally are superior to indoor games, but the winter season in this climate means indoor games, and we therefore confine our discussion to the field covered by our Association.

Second—It is of little consequence what games we endorse or condemn. Only our reasons for so doing, based upon scientific analysis, are of any value.

Third—To draw intelligent conclusions concerning the relative merits of games, it is necessary to entirely eliminate prejudice and the disadvantages arising from all abuses and bad associations for which the games themselves are not responsible. For instance, many good people approve and enjoy rolling wooden balls over the green lawn, because it is called croquet, while they would not think of such a thing rolling ivory balls over a green cloth, because it is called billiards, notwithstanding that billiards is a much superior game from the test of science and skill. This, no doubt, due to the fact that the latter game is frequently found in bad company. This however, is not an inherent merit of the game, but only a testimony to the devil's appreciation of the best things going.

Fourth—We have no patience with mere amusement. We endorse only those games most highly which bring joy of recreation. That means active participation rather than passive on-looker, and ranks all sedentary games, such as checkers, chess, dominoes, cards (whether Flinch or Cinch) as secondary. We endorse those games most highly which ring into activity the greatest proportion of human potentialities, i. e., muscles, nerves, judgement, skill, accuracy, promptness of decision, etc.

Volley Ball.

In view of these general limitations and requirements, therefore we unhesitatingly place at the head of our list the versatile game of volley ball. Invented in Germany, it is rapidly coming to the front in this country. It is a form of indoor tennis, the naked hand being a substitute for the racket. The number of participants are limited only by the capacity of the room. The players are separated by a net. The object of the "serving" side is to cause the ball to strike the ball in the opponent's territory on the opposite side of the net. The violence of the exercise is determined by the limitations of the participants. The game is equally adapted to boys and girls, big and little. In an ordinary engagement, there is brought into play nearly, if not every muscle in the body. Leaning backward with arms thrown up is a frequent posture which affords, as few other games do, the splendid exercise for shoulders and spine.

Of course, this game requires a higher ceiling and a larger room than is commonly found in a home. But we advise it strongly for Y. M. C. A.'s, "Community" Houses or "Social Centers," in towns and villages, sufficiently awake to take any serious interest in their young people or in the solution of this vital problem.

Dance.

The most mooted question, however, and perhaps the most futile, is the dance. But since my opinion has been called for, I submit it herewith: The old-fashioned democratic dances like the "Square" dance, the Schottische, Waltz or Two-Step were enjoyable, and when conducted properly, comparatively harmless. But the dance has deteriorated. It has become commercialized and professionalized. New steps and movements of very questionable attitudes are constantly invented. The managers of the modern dance seem dominated by two motives: First, to change the style often enough to charge the instructors busy at fancy prices; second, to make the feminine attitudes sufficient alluring to draw the crowds. Not long since I watched the "Turkey-Trot" danced "properly." Now, I do not believe I can be accused of pious bigotry or narrowness, but I want to say emphatically that the Indoor Game Association positively disclaims any endorsement of the modern dance.

Billiard Halls.

As to our attitude on billiard halls, we have expressed ourselves so often that repetition seems almost unnecessary. Our ideal is a "Recreation Center" under municipal or church or school auspices, which shall include billiards, for the reason that billiards possesses certain points on intrinsic merit not found in any substitute yet known to us. This explains its irresistible appeal to the game instinct of youth. It involves no luck, no chance. It is pure science, pure game. I have made a special study of the billiard hall subject, and I insist that it is not the impurities of disreputable places that attracts our young men. It is their God-given instinct for play and the masculine love for conquest. That instinct will not and cannot be crushed by mothers' "don'ts" of fanatical legislation, but it may be used as a developing factor in the shaping of a character. I have newspaper clippings by the score showing how the prohibition of this game to the young man resulted only in driving him to play "poker" and other worse pastimes. Close up the disreputable game rooms, but do not permit the devil to cheat us out of their beautiful game.

SHOEMAKING IN AMERICA

More than $350,000,000 is now invested in American shoemaking and more than 200,000 wage earners are employed.

Thomas Beard, arriving by the Mayflower in 1629, was the first shoemaker to come from England to America. He settled in Salem, Mass.

Ebenezer Breed of Lynn is credited with securing by personal influence the first protective tariff on shoes. He was a merchant of revolutionary times.

William F. Trowbridge, at Feltonville, now a part of Marlborough, Mass., applied horse power to the shoemaking machinery of 1855. Steam and water power came later.

The poet Whittier was a shoemaker in his youth. Henry Wilson, eighth vice president of the United States, was "the Natick cobbler," and was always proud of his shoemaking days.

John Brooks Nichols of Lynn adapted the Howe sewing machine to sew the uppers of shoes in 1851, and this was the first important step in the application of machinery to shoemaking.—A Primer of Boots and Shoes.

Who Wrote the Constitution?

It is generally understood that James Madison was the chief author of the Constitution of the United States. Beyond a doubt the great instrument was the joint product of the entire convention, but from the best accounts Madison was the man who put it into shape as we have it today.

There Never Was—
A baby who could not get a complete Noah's ark in its mouth.
Or one that could not wriggle a pin into some part of its anatomy every twenty-four hours.
An alarm clock that did not give a click of delight just before performing in wicked duty.
A bed-bug that did not delight in disporting itself in the presence of your most fastidious guests.
A collar button that did not prefer the dark recesses under the bed to its rightful place in a shirt band.

Answered.

O, what has become of the old-fashioned boy
Who didn't talk back to his pa?
And what has become of the girl—such a joy
Who didn't know more than her ma?
They have wandered away; they have gone hand in hand,
With the parents who mounted the skids,
Those old-fashioned parents who used to demand
A little respect from their kids.

Wise or Otherwise.

A true friend will criticize your faults.
If a man is truly great he lives to forget about it.

Many an orator makes his best point when he comes to a stop.
People can enjoy living close to nature if they don't have to.

Why would it not be a good idea to make England a present of a few hundred of our latest official flags? She may be using old ones without the regulation number of stars on them. Of juice from a lemon, heat it thoroughly before using.

Use porcelain jars for cooking acid fruits and they can be put away in the dish without danger of metal poisoning.

Kitchen Kinks.

To insure a rich, brown color, brush pie crust with cream.
To get the greatest possible amount soon.

When ivory knife handles become discolored, rub them with a piece of lemon dipped in salt, then wash immediately in warm water.

A sure way to prevent eggs from sticking to the pan or breaking is to add a spoonful of flour to the grease in which they are fried.

After you have used all the ham that will cut nicely from the bone, and after chipping the remaining meat for frizzled ham, boil the bone with cabbage.

Household Helps.

Boiling water will remove tea or coffee stains and many fruit stains if poured over them before any soap is used.

A raw potato cut in half will clean marks off black material. A black serge garment can be made spotless and as new, if washed in potato water.

If black cashmere aprons are washed in cold water with a little soap, then rinsed in plain cold water and hung in the air to dry, they will keep a very good color. Warm water will turn them a rusty black.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Stuffed Apples.

Cut the blossom end off from good cooking apples. Remove the core with an apple-corer and fill the cavity with broken walnut or pecan meats. Sprinkle a spoonful of sugar over the top of each apple, place in a baking pan with a little water and bake until tender, but not out of shape. Before serving, press into each apple, three of four candied cherries.

Reading.

Standards of good reading. Silent reading is good reading when the reader reproduces in himself the experience of the writer. Oral reading is perfect reading when it reproduces in the audience the experience of the writer.

The standards used by critics are those of time, pitch, quality and force. The rate of reading used to convey the experience of the author is known as time. Pitch may be high or low. The graduated feeling used to express the varying emotions of the author is quality. The ideas to be expressed will clothe themselves in loud or soft tones, thereby exhibiting force on.

What determines the rate of reading—the time to be spent on the different words. The necessary time to make the audience feel the experiences of the author.

In judging the excellence of reading the teacher may use two tests. First is, does the pupil actually understand and feel what he reads? The way in which he reads is the best answer to this. If he reads understandingly and feelingly it is a token that he understands what he reads. The second test is—does he make his audience understand and feel what he reads?

This is more difficult to decide unless the teacher is part of the audience, and the effect on him is an indication of the readers influence on all.

The teacher may gain some idea of the effect of the reading on the audience as a whole by asking several well chosen questions, which will have a tendency to show how much the auditors understood. The intensity of the feeling aroused may be often judged by the expression of the faces of the listeners.

For grade reading the standard ought to be set for plain rather than dramatic reading.

If a pupil seems to understand what he reads, if he reads intelligently enough has been accomplished. Let pupils be natural. Sometimes we read the lesson for the class, to give them an idea of how the selection should be read. There is possible danger that in this way the children may become mechanical readers, artificial rules may work well when used by excellent teachers of reading, but young and inexperienced teachers, without much training should not make the attempt to develop emotional expression by the same methods. The only way for the young teacher is to guide his pupils in gleaming from the printed page the experiences of others. If this is well done the expression of the varying emotions will take care of itself.

contest will probably go to the district contest.

On account of the bad weather Monday and Tuesday a large number of pupils were absent on those days.

The primary room has had no tardy marks for four and one half months. A Longfellow celebration is to be held in the primary room on Friday. The fourth and fifth grades have finished their spelling contest, which ended in a tie. Each grade has its banner hanging on the wall.

At the close of the spelling contest in the seventh grade room Friday the sides stood as follows:

Nona Long and Veronica Kovich against Gregory Murray, Emil Buchholz, Christopher Reinka, Clarence Fowler, Leonica Hosbach, Luella Brown, Lydia Bertsch, Eleanor Carr, Catherine Klish.

Gregory Murray won in the quotation contest Friday morning.

The copies of the play "Count of No Account" have been received and the characters are busy learning their parts.

Willard Shotwell was the winner of the spelling contest Friday afternoon. The state traveling libraries have been received and the pupils are busy reading the books.

The grades of the intermediate room began to study the lives of the common birds of Michigan.

John Robinson and Willard Shotwell had the highest average in the Michigan's eight hundred for the last week.

The school board presented the school with a six bottle Babcock tester, the first tests will be made Wednesday and everyone is invited to bring milk to be tested.

The eleventh grade having completed commercial law are taking United States history and civics in its place.

A typewriting class has been organized and there are eight applicants. The time is from 8 o'clock to 9, from 12:00 to 1:15, from 4:00 to 5:30 and on Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 7:00 to 9:00 p. m.

The pupils of the high school room are going to have a debate the latter part of this week. The question is "Resolved that Washington was a greater man than Lincoln."

The Long Engagement.

Long engagements are an injustice to the girl, and the man, too. It cuts her off from her man friends entirely, and unless "the" man happens to have extraordinary powers of entertainment, unhappiness is almost certain to follow. Not that a girl should be amused all the time, or the man either, but memories will recur, and after a long time spent in useless waiting with no prospects of change, thoughts of the others are bound to creep in. A man is bound, hand and foot, by a long engagement. He cannot force success or make an opportunity out of the empty air, yet the thought of the girl drives him on—sometimes to desperate measures. Of the two, it would be better to keep the engagement a secret, and not to see each other too frequently.—Exchange.

Queer Husband.

A husband and wife ran a freak show in a certain provincial town, but unfortunately they quarreled and the exhibits were equally divided between them. The wife decided to continue business as an exhibitor at the old address, but the husband went on tour. After some years' wandering the prodigal returned and a reconciliation took place, as the result of which they became business partners once more. A few mornings afterward the people of the neighborhood were sent into fits of laughter on reading the following notice in the papers: "By the return of my husband my stock of freaks has been permanently increased."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Gleaner's Installation.

Say, Gleaners have you heard at all How the Reno Arbor went forth to install?

The meeting was held in the township's hall.

The 19th of January bright and clear One thousand nine hundred and fifteen the year.

The Gleaners gathered from east and west,

Eight from Hale and from Reno the rest.

And young people too of their brightest and best.

In a Gleaner Row sat their officers all Awaiting their officers to install.

They are fat and jolly and make a good pair.

"Dunder and Blitzen" you will hear her remark

When she steps on a carpet tack after dark.

A good chief Gleaner she'll make no doubt.

Bemis was vice chief and bears a good name;

Degrow holds the money is honored the same.

Mrs. Mark Robinson dignified, and straight,

Was chosen for chaplain I'm glad to relate.

The way she can manage is simply great

For lecturer her daughter Hattie May,

When it comes to a program she'll have her say.

For conductor Ben Charters, Mrs. Bemis his mate

To conduct the uninitiated thro' the wide open gate

That leads to true brotherhood so friends do not wait.

For inside guard Mark Robinson a black-smith by trade

He'll guard well the door be not afraid.

Outside guard Tom Frockins who is bashful and shy.

Was gently lead by Mrs. Harsch to his station near-by.

Who has not paid their dues or ridden the goat.

He'll make a good guard, I'll wager my coat.

The increased assessments may make you all balk,

But Streeter can tell why changed this way

And make us all glad we are Gleaners today.

The meeting was closed without any preface

And as the table was bountifully spread

All gathered around it with visitors ahead.

The banquet was sumptuous ask Glenwood and Fred

Who sampled the oysters the cake and the bread.

Then helped wait on other who were there to be fed.

All honor to Reno who has some great cooks

They know lots of things not all found in books.

Games were played in the corner with gusts and vim

He tried to catch her she tried to catch him

And if you came out whole you'd be far from prim

But looking like school-boys just out of a frye

With your hair in a touzle and your tie in your eye.

When people grew tired and morning drew nigh

Merry sleigh bells jingled and all said good bye

We had a good time there is none can deny

You could hear them exclaim as they drove to their home

We'll come again Reno and come again soon.
