EPWORTH LEAGUE.

May 2, 1915. 6 o'clock std. time. Topic—"The Promise of Personal Holiness."
Leader—Mrs. Ray Smith.
You are very cordially invited to attend.
Last Sunday evening's meeting was one of the best we have had. Miss Elsie Young was eminently fitted to talk on the subject, "The League in India," having friends there whose personal letters to her on the subject added a great item of interest.
The League there is doing great things for the church. They have gotten the interest to such heights that entire villages are being taken into the Christian churches. Their Junior Leagues are booming and preparing the younger children for the older League. In fact the League in India is doing every bit as much work if not more than those in our own country and should be an inspiration to our young people to do greater things. There is some talk of local League supporting a native student in India. Every chapter should do something toward missions and this would be the best way for us outside of sending one of our own number. The cost is low.
The largest number of people since the contest began were at the church last Sunday evening. One hundred four was the number. The Blues drew farther away from the Reds last Sunday and are now twenty-five points ahead but twenty-five points is but a small lead and can be overcome in one evening.
You have heard of the kind of suppers "That Mother used to Make." Well, the League is going to serve one of that kind tonight in Hamilton's hall. The price is but twenty-five cents and you will sure get your money's worth. Everybody invited.

RECEPTION.

The members of the Baptist church and congregation gave a reception to their new pastor and family at the rooms of the Women's Society last Friday evening. Nearly two hundred were present and the occasion was most enjoyable. Prof. Campbell gave the address of welcome in the behalf of the church and Rev. John Pinches spoke for the other denominations represented. The pastor responded in his usual happy manner and further convinced his people that they had made no mistake in the selection of a pastor. The company were well entertained by a fine rendition in the negro dialect by Miss Eva Bing, and through the entertainment furnished by the ladies in cup and plate was well received. The evening was by all considered well spent and will be remembered with much pleasure.

THO'TS.

This is a day of supreme opportunity and supreme responsibility for the Epworth League in India.
"More can be done with the young people of India in the next ten years than in the fifty following" says V. M. Habi-Baksh, a well known Indian Epworthian. In the face of this great task the League in India demands and deserves the united support of the League in America.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Everybody invited to the Baptist church on Sunday, May 2nd. The pastor will preach. Subjects: 10:00 a. m. standard, "Restoring the Erring;" solo, "Win Someone." 7 p. m. standard, "Sleeper, Awake!" duet "I Surrender All."

POTATOES.

Farmers, I will pay the highest market price for what potatoes you bring in up to Monday noon, May 3. After that date I will quit buying at the Michigan Cereal Elevator for this spring.
W. M. McCaskey.

BASEBALL GAME SUNDAY.

The Tawas City baseball team will play the first game of the season at Shien park next Sunday with Laidlawville. The game will commence at 2 p. m. A good game is expected as the Laidlawville team is reported to be a strong one.

THE OLD HOME TOWN.

Do you remember the lazy fellows who used sit around in the implement store and the barber shops in the old home town and predict the failure of every boy who tried to poke his nose above the common herd?
Up in the village of Salem they used to crack lots of jokes at the expense of a lank and ungainly young fellow who clerked in the village grocery, poled flat boats on the river and split rails for a living. They called him Abe in those days. He became the president of the United States and thousands from far places on the earth have visited his tomb at Springfield to do him honor.

They used to make fun of Bill McAdoo back in the old home town. Of course you've heard of Bill. He dug a tunnel under the Hudson river and is secretary of the treasury now.
But there are a lot of old tads back in the old home town who sort of hope that Bill will fall over something yet and land in the consomme.
Years ago there were a bunch of smart guys in a city not far away who used to laugh openly at a kid named Bryan who had an idea that he was an orator and could make a good speech.
And Orville Wright was a regular joke in his old home town.
It is the old home town itself that is the joke.—Ex.

SMITH AUTO TAX BILL.

With the automobile tax bill amended to provide that 50 per cent of the tax shall be returned to the county in which it is collected, the Newell Smith measure which failed of passage Thursday forenoon, by a margin of one vote was taken up again and passed. The vote was 22 to 8.
This bill provides for a tax of 25 cents per hundredweight and 25 cents per horse power and is in lieu of personal property assessments. It takes the automobile off the tax rolls and in its original form provided that 60 per cent should go to the state and forty per cent to the locality. This created no end of objection and when the measure was considered under first reading in the senate the vote was a tie, 16 to 16.
It was claimed by the backers of the bill that they had won over one or two votes enough to put the measure through the senate in its original form, but because of the lateness of the house and their desire not to delay legislation and realizing there would be a long fight and much discussion before a vote could be taken, they agreed to accept the 50-50 amendment and dispose of the matter in short order.—Bay City Times.

LINCOLN'S CHANCE.

I knew a small boy once who hated to go to school. Every morning just before nine o'clock he developed strange symptoms—headaches, and toothaches, and backaches, that disappeared marvelously after the ringing of the final bell. During his school hours he concentrated chiefly on weirdly drawn pictures and stiff balls of paper. He refused to do home work, balked utterly on studying. His mother, trying to teach by love, was in despair; his father gave up the thankless task after many spankings. Then at the psychological moment some one gave the boy a book about Lincoln. It told of the young man finally of his presidential career and his noble death. The boy read it carefully and then, to the surprise of his parents, began to do his school work. "Some day"—he confided to his mother—"I may be President. Look at Lincoln—he didn't have half my chance!"—The Christian Herald.

YOU CAN DO IT.

You often hear the remark from some man that he would give a hundred dollars to have a nice tree in his front yard. Not all of them stop to think that there is a way to put a nice tree in the front yard. Large sized trees can be replanted at much less expense than $100, and it is being done right now in many places throughout this and adjoining communities.

A VICTORY FOR TAX REFORMERS

Certainly it was a victory for Michigan tax reformers of the site-value-tax stripe to have their governor tell them as he did at Lansing in the conference held there April 21, that "the poverty question, and to a large extent the health question is a land question," and that "the single tax will do more for the health of the people than all other agencies combined." It was a victory because it put the chief executive of the state on the side of those who have heretofore been thought somewhat "cranky" on the subject of the effect of equitable taxation on the prosperity of the individual and of the commonwealth.
And this victory was still further emphasized when Prof. Lewis J. Johnson, one of the professors in the department of civil engineering of Harvard university, after congratulating Michigan on having a governor who had given attention to the problem of the equitable collection of taxes for state governmental purposes and come to a wise conclusion, insisted that "there is something radically wrong where valuable land is not in use, while labor and capital are alike eager to use it," and that "the great value which attaches to land are people-values, and are the natural automatic revenue for meeting the common expenses which develop pari passu with the land values as the people gather in communities."
Certainly when a student-governor and a university professor stand on the same platform and clasp hands over the statement that sites are the natural sources for collecting revenue and that no man should be fined (taxed) for being enterprising and industrious, it at least indicates that these tax reformers are not crazy.
But the Michigan tax reformers won still another victory, when they had address their genuine farmers who backed up their opinion of the efficacy of site value taxation with the statement that, properly educated, the agricultural community could be won over to the site-value-tax plan.

THE EXTERMINATION OF PESTS.

The government and the states pile millions on millions in pursuit of the boll weevil, gypsy and other moths, San Jose and other scales, grasshoppers, beetles, caterpillars, flies, etc. Yet the damage to crops in this country from insect pests is placed at $800,000,000 annually.
In the long run these enemies of the food supply will be fought successfully only by introducing parasites, the natural foes of these insects. But that requires years for scientific investigation and experiment.
For some reason or others pests seem far more numerous than they were years ago. The killing off of birds is probably the principal cause. Yet this may not be the only reason. In these days when so much money is being spent by government agencies for pest suppression, does the individual farmer feel the responsibility for cleaning them off his own land? Or does he sit back and let the state and national agricultural departments do the work for him?
The old time farmer fought pests with a good deal of diligence. Years ago a plague of canker worms swept over the apple growing parts of the country. Many people will recall the care with which farmers took to trap the worms. Thus many orchards were saved, and after a few years the plague subsided. Government agencies need all the help the individual land owner can give in these efforts.
In sections now afflicted with the caterpillar and certain other insects, granges and other farmers' organizations are doing a useful work in enlisting the children to fight them. Many varieties of pests can be kept down by destroying their nests. The individual farmer may say that the individual bugs that he destroys are not the same ones that attack his crops. But if he sets the example of fighting the insects wherever possible, it will encourage his neighbors to take hold and clean them out or at least hold them down.

TAWAS CITY, MICH., APRIL 30, 1915

PROSPERITY ALREADY HERE.

It's an ill breeze that will not turn a Dutch windmill. The European war is a bull on American industry. For instance:

A Minneapolis firm has just filled the largest order for clothing it has ever known. This spells prosperity for the raisers of wool, for the manufacturers of buttons, for those who make machinery by which this clothing is manufactured and for the men who sell the coal for the boilers, etc. Those who get the money have now an increased capacity for purchasing other commodities and so the prosperity of one firm is extended until it touches nearly every citizen in the country.

New England shoe manufacturers have orders for over three million pairs of shoes from Europe. Stop for a moment to figure out what this means to the rural gentlemen who are shipping hides from which these shoes are made. Another firm has a order for two million woolen blankets. The French and English have ordered two hundred thousand saddles in Chicago and vicinity. Jefferson City, Mo., has filled orders for as many saddle trees. This means that people are actually getting rich in these falsely so-called dull times. A New England firm has shipped over a million sweaters to England since the first of the year. Another firm sent two hundred thousand suits of underwear. In one week four million pounds of wool were purchased in Boston alone. The orders come to the East first naturally, but the money flows right through to the Golden Gate. Fortunately, the ocean stops it. European nations have been buying steel for bayonets, etc., in Pittsburg in lots of ten thousand tons each. Baltimore mills are working day and night on shirt orders running into the millions. During the past winter months a Pennsylvania Stove Company has shipped two hundred thousand stoves for French and English camps and another big fence firm has exported miles of barbed wire for Russia. California has shipped canned fruits since the war running up into the millions of cans. American drug firms have been utterly swamped with unfillable orders for everything from aseptic cotton to anesthetics, the buyers literally waiting in line. The Chicago packing houses have shipped canned meats by the trainloads and what shall we say of the motor trucks and automobiles? The Studebaker people report that their profits have more than doubled in comparison with the year previous. The Quaker Oats people of Michigan have likewise doubled their net profits since the beginnings of European hostilities. Only recently, the great United States Steel Corporation, has re-employed men previously laid-off to the extent of over five thousand. And so it runs throughout the list of American industries, too numerous to mention.

More conclusive evidence of the present conditions of prosperity need not be mentioned than the fact that since the New York Stock Exchange was opened the prices of American securities have constantly increased in spite of the unprecedented "dumping" of European holdings.

Now, Mr. Country Merchant, are you sharing in this unmistakable wave of prosperity. If not, it certainly is not due to any lack of the general purchasing power of the public. In most cases, it is due to your persistent refusal to adopt modern methods of advertising. The people have the money as they never have had in the history of this country. If you are to get your share of that money, you must create a desire for your goods, otherwise the big city houses will supply your customers' demands right under your nose. I have told you repeatedly that it is utterly impossible to grow in business in this day and age and not advertise increasingly.—F. J. Milnes, Pres. National Indoor Game Association, Downers Grove, Ill.

Money considerations have broken-up more friendships than all other things combined.

Along Came Ruth.

"Oh, I'm so glad you came, Ruth," said Elsie as Ruth appeared at the door, her usual bright face spreading sunshine over the room that had become clouded.
"What's the trouble, cousin?" Ruth asked.
"Well, mother's worn herself out completely and has gone to bed with a terrible headache, and none of us can help her."
"Any Baume analgesic in the house?"
"No, we never heard of it."
"Never mind, then; get the camphorated oil. Just a minute, Auntie, and we'll have you so comfy you won't know you have a back."
Ruth busied herself for a few minutes in bathing the back with the oil, then warmed a pillow and placed cross-ways under the tired woman. "Feel any better?" she asked when through. "Much," answered her aunt. And along went Ruth.

Of Interest to Women.

Ventilate your sleeping room. Bad air means bad health, and a man or woman handicapped by bad health cannot make a success of life.
Flies do not develop during the winter. But their breeding places do. Every pile of rubbish accumulated during the cold weather becomes a hatchery as soon as the spring sun warms it and in a few days it begins to produce millions of disease spreading insects.
To cure neuralgia make a poultice from the common white bean. Boil the beans in water enough to make a thick paste, wash them and spread the paste thickly on a cloth, then cover the paste with a thin piece of muslin and bind on the painful parts. Repeat until the pain gives way to the treatment.

The success of canning depends on perfect sterilization.

When a vegetable has lost its firmness, soak it in very cold water until it is crisp and plump.

Potato Salad—One pint of potatoes pared and sliced thin while hot; add one tablespoonful of grated onion, and enough salad dressing to make the mixture moist. Sliced apples may be added just before serving and a few roasted peanuts with the skins removed.

Mayonnaise Dressing—To one-half cup of mayonnaise dressing, add one-fourth cup of heavy cream and beat thoroughly with an egg beater. Add three tablespoonfuls of finely chopped walnut meats and season with salt and lemon juice.

A Knock at the Door.

A knock upon the office door, may be a man to pay his debt; you bid your racing heart slow down and hope that luck is with you yet. Hopefully you say "come in" and then your racing pulse stops still; a lean and lanky guy comes in and says, "When can you pay that bill?" When will this cruel war be over, when will this mess of murders cease; and bill collectors leave our door, and us to live in quiet peace? The shipping bill is "ausgespielt," and other helpful laws as well, the only thing that's left to do is raise more grub or go to the poor house.—Ex.

The law provides a lot more ways of escaping punishment than of inflicting it.

When it comes to drawing conclusions all women are natural born artists.

After a woman has been married five times you can't tell her anything about men.

Any woman can keep an expense account, but not more than one in a thousand can make it tally with her cash.

Some of the greatest windfalls have come from hard work.

A marriage license does for a number of other things as well.

Good luck is the thing that goes with energetic, persistent effort.

When a person has a moral awakening he usually notices his neighbor's sins first.

WELL, HERE WE ARE AGAIN; IT'S MOVING TIME OF THE YEAR.

A young man carrying his mother-in-law's enlarged picture in one hand and an ax in the other ought not to arouse any particular comment at this time of year.

The young man probably has no evil intent.

He is merely toting those things he most cherishes by hand since he could not possibly cram them into the moving van.

The spring unrest is now on us and manifests itself in a desire to change landlords.

I move, you move, he moves.

We feel the need, perhaps, of locating in another house, where the rent may be higher, but the borrowers fewer.

The last June's bride is also infected and is now face to face with the crisis of the first move.

Her new linoleum is still unscarred by childish feet.

She is yet so new to the science of home management that she is compelled to label the nutmegs to distinguish them from the pepper.

Her experience is so limited that our sympathy is divided between her and the lost children of Belgium.

How often, in that torn-up house, will she cry herself to sleep on a roll of untacked carpet and dream of mother.

How she will wish she was back in those girlish days when Harold still brought her chocolates and the alarm clock held no terrors for her!

How she will long for the old order of things when mother ironed the shirt waists and left her to dream how she and Harold might keep pa bright red auto!

We see her separated for the first time from her husband, when each makes a field bed where possible among the boxes, crates, canned fruit and new chairs.

And sleeping apart from his manly arm the crash of a flat iron falling from the piano in the still night echoes like the crack of doom through the vacant rooms.

She dreams uncanny dreams of Indians and robber knights and starts up at their imaginary cries.

But the cries, she finds later, only emanate from her brave husband, whose feet, in his sleep, have fallen off the ironing board into the cactus.

But in time they get settled.

The "God Bless Our Home" motto is in place over the parlor door and the lost minute hand of the clock has finally been found.

Peace finally abides.

Then they learn two things—never to pack the stove legs with the crockery and to buy a home of their own, a real home with flower beds, garden, vines and trees, a home to come back to instead of moving away from.—Detroit Times.

REFORMERS AND SKATES.

The roller skate is "coming back." It never really went out, as far the children are concerned. Now, however young ladies have taken it up—not in skating rinks, by the way, but in the open air,—for exercise and fun on the sidewalks and smooth pavements of the city streets. On any fine evening on the best and most exclusive streets in the residence districts of Chicago, groups and couples of girls from 18 to 22 may be seen gliding along over the smooth surface of the walks.

The fad has struck many of the smaller and already the village killjoys are places in different parts of the country protesting and calling for laws to prohibit skating on the sidewalks. It was ever thus. No sooner does youth find a new way of amusing itself—no matter how innocent—than some long-faced, vinegar-blooded reformer is out with a protest and a demand that the young people be presented with the alternative of abandoning their fun or becoming criminals by the infraction of a prohibitory ordinance. There was at one time a well-grounded prejudice against skating rinks. These places, nowadays, are usually so well conducted that they are comparatively safe. But there can be no just objection to the young girls bringing the bloom of health to their cheeks by such beneficial exercise as roller skating on the sidewalks of their own home town and in company with the same girls with whom they associate at other times. Let the reformers purchase roller skates and use them. It will work off some of the bile and give them a brighter outlook on life.

Digestion During Sleep.

Digestion goes on effectively during sleep. The evening meal is digested during the night. The midday meal, especially when it is heavy, causes drowsiness in some persons. The proof that digestion is active in the night is the fact that waste is generally accumulated in the morning. Furthermore, in the case of persons who have died during the night, the autopsy shows that digestion is further advanced the longer the period intervening between the last meal and death; from this fact the probable time of death has been indicated at coroner's inquests.

NEW MONEY NOT IMPRESSIVE

Emergency Currency issued by the Bank of England of the Most Severely Plain Description.

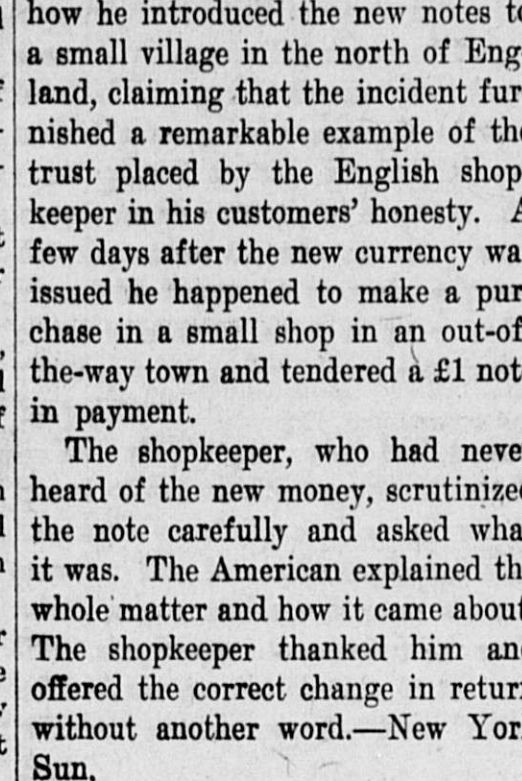

Those who have seen a specimen of the new Bank of England emergency notes would not be surprised to learn that they had been received at first with a certain amount of suspicion. They are distinctly unimpressive.

The note is insignificantly small, printed on what is apparently a very inferior brand of paper, and is as much unlike the £5 Bank of England note as could be imagined. And yet it appears that the British public took to the new currency with amazing ease.

A Wall street man who has just returned from the other side tells how he introduced the new notes to a small village in the north of England, claiming that the incident furnished a remarkable example of the trust placed by the English shopkeeper in his customers' honesty. A few days after the new currency was issued he happened to make a purchase in a small shop in an out-of-the-way town and tendered a £1 note in payment.

The shopkeeper, who had never heard of the new money, scrutinized the note carefully and asked what it was. The American explained the whole matter and how it came about. The shopkeeper thanked him and offered the correct change in return without another word.—New York Sun.

THESE GIRLS

Tom—Do you think you could learn to love me?
Tess—Yes, but I'm awfully forgetful.

THE "MARSEILLAISE"

The Belgians, it is said, have not a national anthem, but they have a stirring, catchy song that might well be used as such. This is La Couronne, which at the time of the present king of the Belgians' accession four years ago was sung, played and whistled all over Belgium. But as a fighting patriotic song there is nothing to beat the French "Marseillaise," which has been used by many countries whose own productions fail to strike the right note.

AFFABLE FOLKS.

"Boston people are mighty nice to book agents."
"Good customers, eh?"
"Not so much that. They've read all the books in the world. But they're always willing to discuss 'em with you."

A STRONG POINT.

"Fat girls are said to be good-natured."
"Take my advice, old man, and marry a thin one. They can fasten their own waists up the back."

ABSENT-MINDED.

"What do you suppose that fool has gone and done?"
"What?"
"Here's a package of sausage I told him to tag, and he's put the dog license on it."

NATURAL TENDENCY.

"It is surprising how often Miss Jennie manages to fall overboard."
"I guess it is because she will wear duck suits."

ITS CLASS.

"There seems to be a matrimonial wave just now."
"Yes, what you might call a tied-al wave."

CERTAINLY NOT.

"Would you permit a young man to kiss you, Bella?"
"I wouldn't give him a written permit."

THE YOUNG MAN AND YOUNG MAIDEN.

Consider the young man. He goeth forth in the morning and bloweth himself to glad riment.

And the pants thereof are two cubits from the ground.

He wrappeth his ankles in sox that are white as the lily and as near silks as the bazaars will sell for one quarter of a shekel.

Behold the shirt. It hath cuffs that are soft and that turneth back.

And his necktie shrieketh like unto a 42-centimeter shell.

And his gloves are of the skin of the chamois. Yellow are the gloves and the stitching thereof is black.

And he is some kid.

He weareth a lid of fuzz and the bow thereof is cute and followeth on behind.

Yea, he looketh like one thousand shekels, but alas, all is not as it seemeth.

For, behold, he meeteth at the apothecary's a maiden with eyes like the gazelle and with lashes of midnight. And the maiden pretendeth that she hath but even now asked the clerk of the fountain to mix her a nut sundae. But she will suffer the young man to blow her off to one.

And behold, when the sundaes are gone the way of all things, the young man tippeth the clerk with a wink and passeth out gaily with the Maiden.

And the clerk is on. He knoweth that the young man is broke.

And will the young man slip the clerk the twenty pence? Yea, even so, as soon as his father's pension check arriveth.

Consider the maiden, lo, though the winds blow and chilleth, she weareth upon her feet sandals that are low and hose that are silk.

And the neck of her gown existeth not. Yet she sweareth that she is as warm as toast.

She goeth forth into the highways and she carrieth a party box.

And therein are many things where-with to kalsomine her countenance.

Puffs there are and the skin of the chamois and many pigments, white as the lilies of Hebron and red as the evening skies over Jordan.

She maketh up where she listeth and careth not who observeth.

And though her lips become as Pomegranates, yet the denieth that there is any color in the stuff.

With gaze of reproof she telleth thee that it is as camphor ice and that it tincteth not.

And, behold! She putteth it over upon thee.

She goeth forth at night and she tangoeth until the dawn is on the mountains and the morning breeze stirs the cedars, and she is not a bit tired.

But when her mother begeth her to go up into the market place for a cubit of calico, lo! She withereth upon the vine.

Wondrous are the ways of a maiden.—Ex.

THE LOAFER.
They say that I am worthless and I guess, at least, I be, 'cause kids and other people's dogs they all shine up to me. While decent men is scrambling to nail a dollar down I spend the best part of my time in aimless rambling 'round'. I pity lots of well-dressed folks that coolly pass me by, the weariness that's on their lips, the pain that's in their eye. In winter, just a corner near to some one else's fire; in summer-time a patch of shade's the top of my desire. A gun when fall winds whistle, a pole when fishes bite, three meals, or less if need be, and a place to sleep at night. To turn a little favor for a stranger or a pal, to get a tender smile from a youngster or a gal, to grin with them that's grinning, and weep with them that weep, to never mind my enemies and like my friends a heart, nor do never hurt a woman's head, nor do a man a wrong—I ask for nothing else except—to drift and loaf along.

SPRING RAIN.
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining daffodils
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on the hills.
The clouds of gray engulf the day
And overwhelm the town—
It isn't raining rain to me
It's raining roses down.

It isn't raining rain to me,
But fields of clover bloom
Where any buccaneering bee
May find a bed and room.
A health unto the happy
A fig for him who frets—
It isn't raining rain to me
It's raining violets.

—Robert Loveman.

Making a Skylight Drip-Proof.
A Pennsylvania wire glass company has evolved a new type of glass that solves a problem of much importance to many manufacturing plants—that of eliminating the drip from the underside of skylights. In many of the arts, in silk and cotton mills, paper factories, or chocolate works, the falling of a single drop causes much damage. The new glass has an under-surface with eight webs or channels to the inch, the webs being of such form as to give the greatest degree of capillary attraction. The result is that even when pitched as low as ten degrees above the horizontal, all condensation is held and carried down to the gutter at the foot of each sheet.

WHEN TO TURN COVER CROP UNDER.
The state at which a cover crop should be turned under depends upon the soil, weather conditions, and the crop that is to follow. Where corn is to be planted on crimson clover land, the clover should be turned under just when the boom begins to appear. The crop at this stage will contain about the maximum amount of plant food. Besides, it will decay much more readily than if permitted to reach full maturity. It may be necessary to turn the clover under a little earlier, in order to get the corn planted at the proper time.

ESTIMATING WORTH.
"What this town needs most," said the eminent publicist, "is a thorough cleaning up, about a dozen new bridges and a first class subway system."
"You are mistaken," replied the average citizen. "What this town needs most is a good left-handed pitcher."

Under a section of Alabama's Prohibition Laws, one of the largest news dealers in Birmingham has been arrested and is liable, if convicted, to a fine of not less than $50.00 or more than $500.00, and in the discretion of the Court, to imprisonment at hard labor for not more than six months. The crime consists of selling copies of newspapers published outside of the state which contain liquor advertising. The prisoner explained that he received hundreds of such newspapers and magazines every day and that if he attempted to comply with the law and cut out all liquor advertising before he sold any of them that there would be no time for any other kind of work and when he got through the publications would be useless because of their mutilated condition.

LAMBS NEED SOME EXERCISE

Sunshine and Open Air Will Prove of Great Benefit to the Youngster, and Also to His Mother.

The man who has a grassy lot on the southern slope of a hill should turn all his young lambs and their mothers into this inclosure during their first weeks. The lambs should have a chance to stretch their young limbs. They will do far better, and so will the ewes if turned into the open during the hours of daylight. There are many farmers who keep their lambs and ewes housed up until the pasture is long enough to turn them in permanently, says an Indiana writer in the Farm Progress. Even though the lambs are very young, a long sun bath daily will work wonders with them. It will be good for the ewes, and still better for the lambs. If possible, the southern side of the sheep barn should be utilized for this purpose, as it will keep the youngsters out of the wind most of the time. Play is the very blood of the young lamb, and when he is playing he is growing. If he lies down in the wind he will chill easily, so the southern hillside for the pasture lot in the lee of the barn will make an ideal place for him to spend the days while he is waiting to be turned into the summer pasture. Young life needs exercise if it is to do well. The lambs that are kept in the shed from the time they are dropped until they are a few weeks old will get a bad start. It is mistaken kindness to house them in close quarters when their young legs are aching to be out in the open. They will be far more thrifty if allowed to spend hours in the sunshine. Of course, they must be sheltered on rainy, chilly days, and in long periods of cool, damp weather when the wind is high. It takes some time and a good deal of trouble to shift the ewes and lambs from their quarters in the shed to the lots and back again daily. In freedom from diseases, quick growth and general vigor it will be worth all that it costs the shepherd.

Wool and Mutton Breed.

DON'T DIE ON THIRD.

Editorial from the Detroit News. It was several weeks ago, when the Tigers were playing the team from Cleveland.

Moriarty was on third base. Around the chalk-lined arena 18,000 persons strained themselves in tense expectancy. The score was a tie. Two men were out. The fate of the game centered in the white-bloused figure that shuttled back and forth near third. Tigers and Naps stood up at their benches, for the decisive moment had come.

Moriarty was at third. He got there by the ordinary events of the game. At the bat he hit the ball and ran to first. Another player bunted and sacrificed himself to run Moriarty to second. Then a long fly advanced him to third. There he stood, alert and active, with the fate of the game in his quick eye, his quicker brain and his running legs.

If he failed, he failed not alone, for the team failed with him. If he won, he won not alone, but gave the men behind his chance for home. In him centered the hopes and fears of thousands upon thousands of spectators who had forgotten to breathe, and so still was the great park that even the breeze seemed forgetful to blow.

Moriarty was at third.

Much as it meant to have advanced that far, nothing had been accomplished by it. Three-quarter runs are not marked up on the score boards. Third base runs never raised a pennant. Third base is not a destination, but the last little way station on the road home. It is better not to run at all than to run to third and die. The 18,000 spectators that kept ominously silent at that moment could be changed into a vortex of cheering hero-worshippers or into an animated groan by the kind of work a man did between third and home. There is not time for self-congratulation on third. The question is how to get safely away from it. The man on second wants your place—he can get it, but if you get safely home no one can take that achievement from you. One way to get off third is to wait for some fellow to bat you off; another way is to get away on your own initiative and according to your own secret plan.

Mariarty was on third.

It is 90 feet from third to home. Sometimes that 90 feet is a leaden mile, sometimes a mere patter of lightning-like steps. If it is a mile to you, you are a failure, and the great circle of spectators groan for your incompetency; if it is but a lightning streak, you are the great man of the baseball day. Moriarty was intent on dwindling that 90 feet instead of lengthening it.

How many things converged in the few moments he stood there. He watched the signals of the Cleveland catcher—he gathered they meant a high ball. A high ball meant that the runner might duck low to the base while the catcher's hands were in the air after the ball. Moriarty knew, too, that a high ball required that the pitcher wind up his arm in a certain way. He knew also, that pitchers have a way of winding up when they don't intend to throw the ball. More than that, he knew the pitcher in the box was left-handed and could not keep his eyes on third when winding up. That was why Moriarty closely followed all the strange little signals pitcher and catcher were making.

There was another consideration, too—Mullin was up to bat. Moriarty knows that Mullin has a batting average of something like .250, which means that Mullin hits safely about once in four times at bat. Would the ball about to be thrown be one of the hit, or one of the missed? No human calculation could even guess at it. If Mullin missed, it would be useless for Moriarty to run. If Mullin hit, there were still chances of his being put out at first, making Moriarty's run wholly uncounted and ending the inning.

There was only one thing to do—make home between the time the pitcher wound up his arm past all recall and the time the ball landed in the catcher's glove—make home in the second of time when Mullin's hit or miss hung in futurity.

It was to be a contest in speed between a five-ounce ball delivered with all the force of a superb pitching arm and the 170 pound body of Moriarty. An unequal contest at that, for the five-ounce ball travels only sixty feet while the runner from third must hurl his body over a distance of 90 feet.

All these considerations are in the mind of Moriarty. He builds up his prospective run as an engineer builds a bridge over a torrent, step by step with infinite pains. Now the Cleveland pitcher is winding up his arm—round and round it swings—he poises himself—there is yet a fraction of a second in which he can recall his intended throw—Moriarty is crouched like a tiger about to spring—Now! Now!

Miss Anna Riley spent the week end at her home. Miss Julia Sheller spent a couple days at her home. Chas. Mark made a business trip to East Tawas on Friday. Herbert Heriman is home from Flint for a few days visit. Dr. McDowell has made many professional calls here of late. The base ball team organized last Tuesday. Success to you boys! Amil Scharrett was a business caller at the Tawas on Saturday. A. B. Schneider and Geo. Schroeder were at Tawas City Wednesday. Mr. Geo. Lapski and family spent Sunday at the home of Geo. Sase. The U. B. all met at the home of Mrs. Robt. Binegar last Thursday. Henry Jordan of Grayling attended his father's funeral here on Tuesday. There was no school in District No. 1 on Tuesday, on account of Grandpa Jordan's funeral. An ice cream social was given by the base ball team at the town hall Wednesday evening. Henry Sase who is a time keeper on the road train near AuSable spent Sunday at his home. George Sase is rapidly improving the last few days and we hope he will continue to improve. Elmer Higgins of Wisconsin spent a couple days with his sisters, Mesdames R. C. Arn and Matt Jordan. "Bill" Rhodes and Louis DeFrain spent Sunday afternoon fishing at Alabaster. Ask "Bill" when he is going there again. Miss Kathryn Pavelock of Detroit came here Monday to attend her grandfather's funeral. She will visit at her home here for two weeks. John Jordan left Wednesday morning for the Mercy hospital at Bay City where he will undergo an operation for appendicitis. He was accompanied by his wife. The play "A Court of No Account," which was given at the town hall Saturday evening by the high school pupils for the benefit of their school was not as well patronized as it should have been. All of the characters did splendidly in their respective parts and in part at least they are indebted to their energetic professor, Mr. Osterhout for presenting this play in such a pleasing manner. The play was much enjoyed by everyone present and the correspondent thinks it was more advertised there would have been a much larger audience. There is no danger of these young people to ever be stage frightened from the manner in which they gave this play. We are pleased to say that we were also able to witness the wonderful work of the "Backward" man. Mr. Emerson of Tawas City, showing the great concentration of mind which he possesses. This work of his was very much appreciated, and this being his first visit to our town we hope it won't be his last.

"Grandpa" Jordan Passed Away.

Joseph Jordan, sr., died at his home here Sunday evening after a short illness. The announcement of his death brings sadness to his many friends here. He is one of the very few pioneer residents of the township. The deceased was born 88 years ago in Germany. He came to Sherman about 40 years ago, where he resided until his death. Besides his aged wife, he is survived by seven children, Matthias, John and Joseph, jr., and Mrs. Gertrude Pavelock, who reside here, Henry of Grayling, Mrs. Anna Wood of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Kitty Zinder of Cleveland, and 30 grand children. The funeral services were held at St. Joseph's church at East Tawas, on Tuesday morning, Rev. Faucher officiating. Interment at the Catholic cemetery at East Tawas. The mourners have the community's sympathy during their sad hours.

The money a man's wife saves out of her allowance seems like velvet to the husband who borrows it. When we read of the many who get caught in some sin just because the markets or something go wrong, we wonder how many others commit the same sins but do not get caught because the markets or other things go right.

McIVOR MITES.

Mrs. Elias Smith is recovering from her late illness. Nick Ecker came up from Flint and spent Sunday with his family. It is not surprising how easily some people learn to run an auto, eh, George? Mr. Crittenden and Misses Dillon and Fillingham spent Friday evening at the home of W. E. Pringle. Frank says he does not care if he did have to walk home in the morning, as he had a delightful time at the dance. Mrs. Edward Groves, of Union City, Pa., and Mrs. Joshua Minthorn, of Mikado, were guests of Mrs. G. A. Pringle this week. If any of the Ladies' Aids are short of help Mr. Drager will gladly assist them, altho he prefers to visit our nearby city's Aid. Quite a bunch of McIvorites took advantage of the ideal weather last Saturday and visited the lakes. They spent a most enjoyable day. Yes, I guess "mite" is appropriate. Once upon a time a poor widow gave her mite and the wisest and best man of all times said "she has given more than you all."

Quite an exciting time was had at the ball game in District No. 3 last Friday. So much in fact that the young ladies are now talking of organizing a club. Sacrament services will be held at the L. D. S. church next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock; Sunday school at 1:30 p. m., and preaching at 7:30 p. m., standard time. Everybody welcome at all services.

New Patron Saint.

Polar explorers now have their patron saint in the person of St. Christopher, whose medallion, presented by Queen Alexandra of England, is affixed to the Endurance. Not long ago the equally modern profession of shorthand writers was similarly equipped. They fixed upon St. Genest, who suffered martyrdom for refusing to transcribe an imperial decree. That is an odd reason, but not more odd than many which have weighed in other transactions of the kind. The patron saint of skaters is St. Ludwina, who fell on the ice and sustained injuries which she bore with exemplary patience, and St. Cyril was long regarded as the patron of Slavs on the ground that he was "the apostle of the Slav."

Man Takes His Own Medicine Is An Optimist.

He has absolute faith in his medicine—he knows when he takes it for certain ailments he gets relief. People who take Dr. King's New Discovery for an irritating cold are discovering they know this cough remedy will penetrate the linings of the throat, kill the germs, and open the way for nature to act. You can't destroy a cold by superficial treatment—you must go to the cause of the trouble. Be an optimist. Get a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery to-day. adv-3

When her friends compliment her on looking so young a woman doesn't know whether to be pleased at the compliment or to get mad because of the insinuation that she is older than she looks.

Just out of curiosity some time count up the number of successful business men in your town who have had a university training. You'll be surprised.

AMONG MAN'S WORST FOES

Nebraska a Battlefield Where Enormous Wealth Is Annually Destroyed.

One of the most fascinating exhibits in the University building at the fair is the collection of glass cases containing the more common and destructive insect enemies of the Nebraska farmer, exhibited in their historic development from the egg to the worm and on to the moth or beetle. This series, the Nebraska State Journal says, is the work of Prof. Myron Swenk of the agricultural college. Looking at this panorama of obscure life, costing the people of Nebraska every year millions of dollars which no statistician dare compute, one realizes that man's greatest enemies are the most minute. The fight is no longer with the tiger or wolf or serpent or panther. The mites and midgits, the slugs and cutworms, the aphids and corn-root lice threaten man's food supply, the bacilli threaten his very life. Here is a battle field where the question of man's existence upon this planet must be fought. For this militia service Nebraska needs every man and woman, boy and girl, between the ages of five and ninety-five, and for the line, staff and officers the best and brightest intellects our prairies can produce.

DON'T GET THOSE RATES

Corn Raisers Would Be Happy If Able to Command Prices Charged by Lobster Palaces.

"If the farmers in this country who raise corn," remarked a spectacled business man from Warren street, "could open lobster palaces in Broadway and supply their own places with it there would be a new set of millionaires around town before a great while. I judge so from eating an ear of new corn in one of those joints the other night that a friend of mine was paying for."

"The price of it was 35 cents, and I should say it weighed considerably less than half a pound, but call it that. Now, there are 56 pounds of corn to the bushel and we raise about 3,000,000,000 bushels annually. Calculating half a pound of corn to the ear, we have 112 ears to the bushel, which, multiplied by 3,000,000,000, gives 336,000,000,000 ears, which at 35 cents an ear amounts to $117,600,000,000 for the farmers' pockets annually."

"Some money, ain't it? Just the same that's what they'd have out of their corn crops if they got lobster-palace rates."—Philadelphia Ledger.

PERPETUAL LEADERSHIP.

"I hear that your wife is an authority on the subject of votes for women."

"Sir," replied Mr. Meehton, "while it may please her to change the topic from time to time my wife is always an authority."

THE BUSINESS PROCEEDING.

"Why do you persist in biting us men so?" asked the human being of the mosquito.

"Because," answered the mosquito, "the world owes me a living, and, naturally, I send in my bill."

CASTING ASPERSIONS.

Mr. Pester—You seem more proud of that dog than you are of your children.

Mrs. Pester—Why not? Fifi is eugenical.—Puck.

RARE PERFORMER.

"Miss Heftun seems to be an accomplished musician."

"She is indeed. When that girl starts to playing something dreamy on the piano I forget that she weighs 200 pounds."

AN IMPOSSIBLE TASK.

First Student (in a burst of admiration)—Professor Gabby is a wonder as a linguist. What tongue hasn't he mastered?

Associate Professor (dryly)—His wife's.

HIS EXCUSE.

"This is a pretty time of night for you to be coming home, Jeremiah."

"I know, my dear, but I hadn't anywhere else to go."

THE RETURNED TOURIST.

"What were the most beautiful things you saw in Europe?"

"A ham sandwich and a steamboat ticket."

Children's Plays Changing.

Watching the youngsters in the parks during holiday time, I have been struck by the change that has taken place in children's games. I hope I am not unduly pessimistic, but it does not seem a change for the better. Boys play cricket, girls seem to have no recognized games at all, and the impression given the onlooker is one of aimlessness and monotony. Why is it that our boys no longer play "over-buckle," "prisoners' base," "weak-horse," "widdy-widdy-way" and other like strenuous games which some of us enjoyed immensely no more than a decade ago? And why have the girls forgotten "tag" and "ee" and "ring-a-ring-a-roses"?—London Chronicle.

Wooden Beads.

Children always like beads, and their stringing passes many hours away happily. At the same time, the children gain a knowledge of color and color combination and form from the bead work. Large wooden beads are the easiest for the small child to thread on a piece of stout thread. The end can be waxed, or a blunt-ended needle can be used. These beads, half an inch in diameter, are sold at 15 cents for three dozen, or 40 cents a gross. They are shaped in spheres, cubes and cylinders and are colored red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet.

Golden Invitations.

A successful Moscow merchant named Spiridonow, who had made a vast fortune, thought of a novel way of inviting the guests to his golden wedding. The invitations were engraved on golden cards. When the recipients opened the envelopes, they were naturally pleased with the beautiful invitation, but supposed that they were only gilded. A closer examination, however, showed that the millionaire had actually sent out cards of real gold. Mons. Spiridonow sent in all 200 invitations. The cards were made by a Moscow jeweler by a special process, and the material was taken from a mine owned by the millionaire. Each card was worth about $25.
