TAWAS WINS FROM TURNER.

Last Sunday the Tawas City boys journeyed to Turner and defeated them on their own grounds by a score of 13 to 1.

The way the game started it looked as though it would be a hard battle and up to the sixth it was nip and tuck—and then the slaughter started, when our boys found St. John and landed on him.

In the fourth C. Moeller found him for a home run and it was the only run made before the sixth inning by either team. In the sixth and seventh rounds Tawas City added three more in each inning. St. John then stepped out in favor of Jennings who held them in the eighth. But in the ninth, oh my—they couldn't be stopped and before the third man was out six runs had crossed the plate making the total thirteen.

Turner got their only run in the eighth on two hits and a wild throw, and that one they didn't earn.

In that inning a squabble turned up which threatened to sew up the game, but Turner finally decided to abide by the umpire's decision and the game was finished.

By Mark threw a masterful game, having Turner at his mercy all the time and should have had a shut-out. He was in several tight pinches but by superb pitching and the good fielding back of him he pulled through in fine shape.

One of the features of the game was the hitting of C. Moeller, getting a home run, a double, two singles and a pass in five attempts.

Our infield played the snappiest kind of ball that they have done this season and supported their pitcher to the full limit.

CHAUTAUQUA A BIG SUCCESS.

Well, the Chautauqua has again appeared in Tawas City and this week our citizens, together with a great many from nearby towns and the country, are enjoying the splendid program offered for their entertainment and instruction. The weather has been threatening at times, but Jupiter Pluvius has thus far been more considerate than in the past few weeks and there have been no downpours to deter people from attendance at the Chautauqua.

The program started Monday afternoon with Montanelli's Venetian Quartet for the musical numbers and George H. Spencer as the lecturer. Though the music furnished by Mr. Montanelli and his party was mostly Italian, and was therefore not familiar to their audience, it gave excellent satisfaction. Mr. Spencer's afternoon lecture was on the subject "Preparedness for Peace," and while not an argument for "peace at any price," deplored the movement for a bigger army and navy for the United States, holding to the theory that preparedness for war invites war. His evening address, "Dreamers and Schemers," aroused a more responsive chord in the minds of his audience and gave more general satisfaction.

The afternoon program on the second day was given by Miss Sybil Conklin, a talented soloist, with Miss Mabel Snyder as accompanist, and Mrs. Demarchus Brown, a leader of the feminist movement, as lecturer. The Chautauqua Association was enabled to secure Miss Sybil Conklin through her inability to fill an operatic engagement in Europe on account of the war, and her selections, both afternoon and evening, were well received by her audience. Mrs. Brown's afternoon lecture on the subject "Her Long Road," presented the feminist movement from its inception up to the present time and showed the advancement made by the women in securing for themselves advantages in the business and political world which some years ago were supposed to be the sole prerogatives of the men. In the evening her subject was "Modern Life and Literature," which was presented in a pleasing and instructive manner, showing her thorough familiarity with the things whereof she spoke. Mrs. Brown is a talented woman, and while all may not agree with her ideas, she must be given credit for being true to her ideals.

The major portion of the evening entertainment on this day was given by Ray Newton, a clever magician, who ably demonstrated the old saying that "the quickness of the hand deceives the eye." Some of Mr. Newton's tricks appeared little short of the marvelous to the uninitiated, and his entertainment was very pleasing to both young and old.

On Wednesday the entire afternoon program was given by the Winifred Townsend Concert Company," who presented a repertoire of classic and popular musical numbers, together with some pleasing child impersonations by Miss Faerie Townsend. This company also gave the prelude to the evening program and their work gave eminent satisfaction.

The speaker of the evening was Congressman M. Clyde Kelly of the Pittsburgh district of Pennsylvania, who took as his subject "Machine Made Legislation." Mr. Kelly is a virile and forceful speaker, and his experience in the legislature of his state and in congress has fitted him to speak with authority upon the methods of legislation. He explained the numerous ways in which desirable legislation can be blocked by a few men under the present system, and pointed out the remedy which lies solely in the hands of the great body of American voters.

Thursday was the big day of the Chautauqua. The attraction on this day was the "Kilties Band," a Scotch Canadian organization who presented a repertoire of Scotch music, songs and dances. Alfred Dunn, a bagpiper, gave several selections on that peculiarly Scotch instrument, and Miss Jean Campbell, soprano soloist, rendered a number of Scotch songs in an artistic and pleasing manner. The Kilties divided the time in the afternoon with Dr. E. G. Shouse, an interesting speaker who both interested and amused his audience with his lecture "The Humor and Philosophy of Habit." The evening was given over entirely to the Kilties.

Today (Friday) the program will be furnished by the Stratford Opera Company, who will present a program of operatic selections and popular songs, concluding the evening's entertainment with a presentation of a PORTION OF THE COMIC OPERA, "THE MIKADO," IN COSTUME.

Fred Eastman, a community expert, will deliver two lectures, one on "Taking Stock of the Old Town" and the other on "Waking up the Village." Mr. Eastman is a man who has had considerable experience in putting new life into sleeping communities and his lectures will undoubtedly be interesting and helpful.

Thursday afternoon and evening the question of another Chautauqua for next year was taken up and pledges for tickets solicited. As the Herald goes to press Thursday afternoon the results of this action is not available this week, but it is hoped that an even larger proportion of the people of Iosco county can be enlisted in the movement, so that the Chautauqua for next year may be assured.

PREPARING FOR THE FAIR.

A number of horses are working out nearly every day on the track at the fair grounds in preparation for the races at the coming fair. The prospects are that there will be a large number of entries for the race events, a number of outside horsemen having signified their intention of being present.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Sunday Aug. 29, 6 o'clock std. time. Topic—"Abide With Me;" "Be Strong! We Are Not Here to Play;" "O Mother Dear Jerusalem;" "The King of Love."

Leader—Miss Mamie Waterbury. Everyone very cordially invited. Tho'ts on Last Sunday's Topic.

"This love that makes the world go round. The happiness of love is in action, its test is what one is willing to do for others. Take away love, and not physical nature only, but also the heart of the moral world would be palsied.

Ask yourself "How May I Help to Make the World Happier?"

ELEVEN CENT STAMP.

An 11-cent stamp, the first of this denomination to be issued, has been authorized by Postmaster General Burleson to meet the parcel post demand. It is to be distributed to postmasters throughout the country.

The new stamp is dark green and bears the profile head of Benjamin Franklin.

AN IMPROVEMENT IN THE ORGANIZATION OF THE SCHOOLS OF EAST TAWAS.

Realizing that those pupils who cannot take time to finish a high school course are not getting from the schools as much value as it is possible to give them and that more efficient work can be done for all by a reorganization of the elementary and high schools the Board of Education of East Tawas has adopted the "Six and Six" plan for the coming year. It is generally conceded among school authorities that the division between the elementary and high school grades should come at the end of the sixth year instead of at the end of the eighth as is now the case. So the six and six plan means a six year elementary school followed by a six year high school. As a further advantage, the six year high school is divided into two groups. The first group consisting of the seventh and eighth years will be known as the junior high school and the second group consisting of the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth years will be termed the senior high school. Each high school will have its principal and assistant principal.

One general course of study is to be offered in the junior high school. In the senior high school there will be two. The "General Course" is designed for those who do not intend to go to college. It is principally elective work. The "College Preparatory Course" is more rigid in its requirements but it fits those who complete it to enter any higher institution of learning in the state. East Tawas high school is the only school between Bay City and Alpena that is on the accredited list of the University of Michigan.

Educational Advantages of the Six Year Plan.

1. It is a matter of common observation that children undergo certain physical and mental changes that occur about the time they finish the sixth grade. Truancy and other irregularities are pronounced at this time. High school methods and suitable high school courses are best adapted to meet the problems that come with this change in the child.

2. The pupil will be given early opportunity to exercise some choice as to the group of studies he wishes to pursue. The teacher and parent should of course always direct the pupil's selection.

3. The six year plan will permit departmental teaching in the seventh and eighth years. This will insure more expert instruction in all branches.

4. At present many pupils are held in a certain grade because they have not satisfactorily passed some one subject of that grade. Many a pupil quits school in the seventh or eighth

TAWAS CITY, MICH., AUG. 27, 1915

ELBERT BEDE SAYS:

If nothing were covered up, what a terrible old world this would be.

A girl can marry a man for his money but she can hardly be a wife to him.

The United States has a hardy constitution or it couldn't have stood so much battering.

A man who starts smoking with the idea, that it is easy to break off any time, has a pipe dream.

Did you ever say, "Oh, that's all right," when you wanted to condemn the person to eternal fires.

The only kind of popularity that is worth while come from doing the things that are worth while.

Most of us can comfort ourselves by saying, "Well, the neighbors said we were a pretty baby, anyway."

If some people could have all the money they could use, they would still kick about the price of things.

We are quite frequently surprised at the good we unexpectedly find in those we had condemned as wholly bad.

The slim-legged girl becomes conscious of the shortness of her dress quicker than the stocky built maiden.

What's the use of promising to love. If you already love it is unnecessary to promise and if you do not love it will do no good to promise.

KENTUCKY FEUDS.

Not many years ago Clay county, Kentucky, was one of the most notorious counties for the famous feuds that broke out continually. The newspapers made frequent mention of the Baker-Howard feud that was waged bitterly. Today there is no newspaper notoriety for Clay county, for there is no feud there. The remarkable story of what conquered the feuds is to be told in The Sunday School Times by a well-known writer who visited the county and met the man who is the hero of this thrilling story. This man who brought about the transformation in the county was once in the thick of the feud himself. A three weeks' free trial of the Sunday School Times may be had, (as long as the supply lasts), for a post card request, asking for "Kentucky Feuds," addressed to The Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, Pa.

ENRICHING LIFE.

The man who has cultivated his mind has resources unknown to those who let their minds lie idle in fallow fields. Though he finds his isolation remote from the centers of society, he knows no solitude. The rugged mountains, the broad prairie, the spreading expanse of ocean cannot make him lonely. Nature speaks to him in the waving of a blade of grass, the color of a flower, the flight of a bird. These all open up whole histories to him. Beside them, he has in his books the best companionship of all the ages. All of us fall naturally into some philosophy of living. The man of culture deliberates, reasons and gradually forms his philosophy, changing it from time to time as experience teaches him the flaws in his judgment, and always welcoming the change, because culture does not imply a finished perfection, but rather a constant pruning and enriching. He learns to direct his life and not to allow circumstances and surroundings to smother his individuality. He is not discouraged by failures, for he knows that the effort is often more valuable than the end. He finds happiness in work and not attainment, and so reaches every day what too many of us think of as a goal that is always afar off.

The patience of the amateur gardener is deserving of all praise. In the face of cartooning and bantering, of the foolish questioning and the sarcasms of the neighbors, he stimulates the poor clay of his back yard into productivity, bends his back over his plantings, chases dogs, warns off small boys, lays traps for bugs and expresses a contentment with such increases as the earth chooses to give him. There must be some joy and reward in gardening of itself that can carry the amateur gardener over the hillocks of funmaking and the barriers of irritations, such joy and reward as the angler obtains in lieu of fish. The exercise is obtainable in other ways less straining upon unused muscles and good temper. The work might more profitably be employed upon other affairs. And as for the yield in things good to eat, it very often costs much more than were the money planked down upon the grocer's counter. The returns must consist in watching plant life develop out of the unpromising looking seed, bulb and cutting and in feeling that it is one's exertions and care which have brought about this wonderful germination and growth.

In one of the New York dailies there recently appeared an advertisement announcing that "Mr. —, a native American, born in the United States, has been admitted as a partner in our firm." It is an unusual form of announcement in the double stress laid upon the nativity of Mr. —. Evidently American birth has become an asset of commercial value in the East. The firm this gentleman is connected with is engaged in trade with the British West Indies, which rather adds to the significance of the emphasis placed on his simon-pure Americanism. Possibly one of the benefits we will derive from the war is a higher estimation of what it means to be an American, says the Chicago Evening Post. Amid much employment of hyphenation we welcome this as a sign of a healthy reaction.

In constructing a vault in the basement of one of the Los Angeles banks, a plan has been followed which makes the six sides of the chamber visible to a watchman and eliminates all chances of its being entered by tunneling beneath it. It is set on concrete columns in the middle of a white-tiled pit which is brightly illuminated. To make it possible to command a view of the space beneath the vault, from the level above, mirrors have been arranged on the floor at such an angle that every part of the space is reflected in them. Light is reflected by the white walls so that the top of the vault is illuminated and easily inspected.

A French physician, Professor Vincent, chief of the Val de Grace military hospital, is credited with having used ether in the production of cholera antitoxin with the effect of eliminating elements which heretofore have proved injurious to patients. If the new antitoxin accomplishes what is hoped for its discovery will set up another milestone in the history of medical progress.

A New York judge has ruled that one may become engaged through a glance or a nod. How things have changed since men fell upon their knees and bumped their heads on the floor in the process of becoming engaged.

Nature knew what she was doing when she arranged for birds of a feather to flock together. A dove would not look good among battlefield buzzards.

HOME TOWN BUILDING

A Farmer's Plan for Keeping the Young Folks at Home

I am indebted to a friend for a copy of your paper containing an article on Home Town Building, and I want to congratulate you on the good work you have started. It's a move in the right direction and I wish you success.

My nearest town is one of the kind that you describe. It has been going down hill for the past twenty years. We formerly had a newspaper, but that went out with the last street lamp together with the only spark of enterprise remaining after some fifty farmers of the county rented, or sold their farms and moved into town to take things easy.

I have been through the mill in both ways, and it seems to me that the job of keeping the young people at home is very simple. If we will treat the boy and girl like human beings instead of handling them like young criminals, we can easily get the desired results. I am a farmer, as my grandfather was before me, and there has never been any trouble worth mentioning in keeping the young folks of the family on the farm, although I did try city life for six years a long time ago.

Right here it is but fair to say, that long before I came back from roughing it in the city, father had established a new order of things at the farm. He said that he had figured it out and found it too expensive to raise children to the age where they might be of some value and then have some other fellow coax them away from him. His plan for safe-guarding his "little bucks," as he called them, was very simple. It consisted of, first, a change in working hours, so that the life of the boy and girl on the farm did not mean work from daylight until dark, and then chores until bed time. He ascertained the working hours prevailing with some of the largest manufacturers and wholesalers of the city and arranged his work on the same time schedule. He then started in to provide home amusements that would fill in the gap and keep the young people busy.

Favorite expressions of his were, "never say don't to a child; never let it know that you see more than one-tenth of the things that it does, and always keep it busy during every minute while it is awake.

SEPTEMBER.

As seen by the—
Iceman: Alas! 'twill soon be o'er.
Coal man: Ah! a brighter spot on the horizon.

Consumer: Life is just one..... thing after another.

School boy: The school bell tolls the knell of parting fun. Displayed in windows are book and rule. It seems vacations hardly is begun when here again we're trotted back to school.

Sixty-four years ago this month gold was discovered in California. In a short time thereafter Easterners had carried it all on the other side of the Rockies and now California is putting on a couple of expositions in an effort to get it back. It has been but sixty-eight years ago this month, too, since the United States went down and took Mexico City, and now it looks like history would have to repeat itself, as it has a habit of doing.

The twenty-third the moon will full and Autumn will begin; the housewife, fearful of a frost, will bring her garden in. Then pickle-lilly, chili-sauce, preserves, and butters, too, will fill the jars they filled last year, and many that are new. It seems incredible that we could ever eat it all, but mother knows how much it takes—she does it every fall. The fields of corn are ripening, the streams are running low; the summer wanes—but let'er wane—there'll be no yard to mow. "Another thing—we soon can dress in comfort and in peace without a feeling that we are but melting chunks of grease.

IMMATURE CORN SAVED WITH A SILO.

Unless the growing season this year holds unduly long the corn crop cannot reach maturity. There is considerable corn which will not finish its growth before the frost hits it. If the corn is left in the field or is shocked in its immature state it will deteriorate to a very great extent. Every farmer is familiar with the difficulties which arise in trying to preserve the corn crop in this green condition.

The logical way to preserve a corn crop which is not mature and to get the greatest amount of feed value from it is to put it into a silo. Under ordinary conditions the best silage is made from corn that is thoroughly mature and has reached the limit of its growth. It then contains the maximum of food value and makes silage that is comparatively sweet and palatable and is eaten well by the stock.

For ordinary conditions when the crop can properly mature, it is not best to cut it before the last stages are reached. Under conditions like those that exist this year, however, it is best to put the crop in the silo because the amount of deterioration and the loss in food value will be much less in the silo.

If the crop is harvested while it is green and containing a large amount of moisture the silage from it will have a tendency to develop a little more acid than the mature crop. The time to cut an immature crop for the silo is just after it is frosted the first time. There is no advantage in letting it stand after this because there are other forms of deterioration that will set in and destroy the food value of the corn. If this immature corn is cut and shocked and left in the field there will be a loss in both grain and fodder, while if it is put into the silo practically all the nutriment will be retained.

It will be a great economy to every farmer to put the corn into the silo this year instead of harvesting the grain and leaving the fodder in the field until winter time or shredding it and allowing it to mould and rot. There is a great difference in

His first move toward a place of amusement was to put a couple of the farm hands with teams and scrapers at work in the little creek with roses the farm near the house. A substantial sluice gate was built, so that surplus water could be disposed of. The earth scraped from the banks of the creek was piled in half circle shape at each side of the sluice gate, so that it reached a higher ground at each end. In less than a week we had a miniature lake covering about one acre of ground, with a depth of six or seven feet. This makes a superb swimming pool in the summer and a good skating rink in winter. It is now plentifully stocked with fish.

A tennis court, and a baseball diamond followed as later improvements. For indoor games, we have a handball court and a billiard table. The latter is usually working over time.

I have made some additions to our home amusements since my father's time, but at no great outlay of time or money.

The plan pays mighty good interest on the investment by keeping the young folks at home.

I agree with Mr. Moorehead of Kansas City, who said in his Chicago speech that the boy must have companionship. You must provide him with means of recreation and amusement. If he longs for outdoor sports in summer and bowling, billiards, roller skating or indoor baseball or even dancing under proper restrictions, as winter pastimes, see that he gets them. Give him commercial opportunities at home. Educate your country town merchants in advertising. Show them the value of their home town papers. These are the cheapest and best advertising mediums in the world. Teach both the editor of the weekly newspaper and the merchant how to copy the display advertisements of the big stores of the city. Show them the necessity of the up-to-date methods of quoting prices in plain figures. That will enable them to hold their own in getting their share of the business. It will improve the business of the country town and will give the boy and girl a chance at home. That will help to settle the whole question.

(This letter will be continued in our next week's issue.

the cash value of the crop handled in these two ways in an ordinary year, and in the peculiar season like the present there is likely to be much more difference than usual.

Remarkable Success of These Talented
Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

Offer their Services Free of Charge

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan, for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever, except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the results obtained to their friends and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys, or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall these diseases are treated without stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as operation or hypodermic injection.

They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment, consult them. It costs you nothing.

Remember, this last free offer is for this visit only.

Ruth Sends Words.
"Here is a letter from Ruth," said her sister happily, as she held it out to her mother. "she is coming home next week and wants me to wash her white corduroy skirt for her, and she has given me directions for doing it. This is what she says: 'Make a soap jelly of any of the good white soaps, and put the skirt to soak in water strong with the jelly. Then put a cupful of the soap jelly into a boiler, and boil the skirt for twenty minutes. Rinse in clear water until all the soap is gone, blue and hang out to dry while dripping. Do not wring or squeeze. While on the line pull into shape, and do not iron. She says if I follow these directions her skirt will look like new.' "Well, get right to work on it," said her mother, "after all Ruth has done for the rest of us, we should be willing to do almost anything for her."

Learn a Little Every Day.
Among the wonders of the Pan-Pacific Exposition is a block of coal weighing 4,250 pounds. It measures 6½ by 5 by 3 feet and came from Montana. A small pocket manual in which was average about $15,000 to kill a man. In the Boer War this expense ran up to nearly $40,000. Mica is the name applied to a group of metals which are noted as being easily split into sheets. These sheets may be so thin that 1,000 of them are required to make an inch in thickness. It is found in granite and quartz and is mined in Norway, Sweden, New Hampshire and North Carolina. It is transparent, will stand heat and is used in place of glass where there is more or less heat.

Why He's Called "Tommy Atkins."
The sobriquet "Tommy Atkins" as applied to the British soldier dates from the time when it was the custom to supply every man in the army with a small pocket manual in which was entered a record of name, age, date of enlistment, length of service, wounds and medals of honor of the individual soldier. In sending out these forms for information the war office used a hypothetical name, "Tommy Atkins," instead of the real one to be written in later. In this way the name came to be applied to designate any British soldier.

In the same way the British sailor got his name, "Jack Tar."

Honey Items for Women.
If salt and alum are added to whitewash it will stick much better. Air the blankets at least twice during the "packed away" season. Awning stripes in silks are used for shirtwaists for morning and sports wear.

Almost every morning frock and skirt this summer boasts one or more outside pockets. Blouses of white organdy, generously tucked and adorned with a bow of black velvet, are effective if worn with black taffeta skirts.

Boil half a pint of linseed oil and after it is cool mix in a half-pint of vinegar, and keep about the house. It will be found ideal for softening shoes or other leather—and you'll need it after school begins.

Wash and bleach in the hot sun all small linen pieces. When dry and white dip in sweetened water, using a tablespoon of sugar to three cups of water. Roll pieces in heavy towel and iron while wet.

MODERN FABLES.

The Fable of the Anti-Gambling Crusaders.

Once upon a time in almost any city there thrived a little bunch of perfectly nice women who raved and shouted continuously at the city officials for permitting gambling within the city's gates. To be sure no accusations were made, because the ladies did not know who was gambling, where they were gambling, how they were gambling, or when they were gambling. But they just knew there must be gambling going on somewhere. Of course they knew their husbands sometimes bet a little on a ball game and that their children played marbles for "keeps," but they only did that for fun.

And then one day the city's arm of the law stumbled into a poker game. The players were arrested and the lady crusaders sent for the state's attorney. All of the gamblers, save one, had money to pay off. The lone one was sent to jail for ninety days to "lay it out."

The day after the trial one of the crusader's husbands cleaned up seven-hundred dollars on the stock exchange, and that night the crusader, herself, brought home a lovely cut-glass bowl that she had won at a tea party.

GETTING RID OF WARTS.

To get rid of warts, but not in vinegar two or three times a day and put collodion on at night. Another often successful cure for warts is to press upon them until a pain shoots through them, as though a needle had been stuck into your flesh. They will shortly after dry up and disappear.

GOT HIS "SPENDING MONEY"

Humorous incident in the Early Career of the Late Comedian, Sol Smith Russell. When a boy Sol Smith Russell, who later rose to eminence as a comedian and to high material fortune through a combination of large earnings and ingenious frugality, was employed as a member of the celebrated Peak Family of Bell Ringers. He was billed as Master Solly. His "turn" was ballad singing, and it was stipulated that he was to receive no compensation other than board and lodging until experience should make him more affirmatively valuable to the organization. When the second season was nearly at an end Master Solly suddenly was struck with an idea that he ought to have some kind of remuneration for his work, since he was "featured," and really the best drawing card Peak could boast. So, plucking up courage, he accosted Peak in these words: "Mr. Peak, I have been with you nearly two years and in all that time you have paid me nothing for my work. I don't ask for much, but you can afford to give me a little spending money every week—just enough to get along on." Bill looked at him in sorrow, not to say amazement. "How much do you want, Solly?" he managed to gasp. "Oh, I guess about five dollars a week." The demand almost sent Peak into convulsions; but he rallied, and in a tone of melancholy resignation, he said: "Very well, Solly. I am your friend. I will give you the five dollars; but for God's sake don't tell my wife!"

HOMES OF THE STRAWBERRY

Eight Districts of the Country in Which the Succulent Fruit is an Important Crop. A survey of the production and marketing of strawberries in the United States made by the department of agriculture indicates that the eight most important commercial strawberry districts are central California, Tennessee, Maryland, Delaware, southern Louisiana, North and South Carolina, Virginia and the Ozarks. Great quantities of strawberries, the report says, are also grown in the North in small patches and shipped to market by trolley, express or in the producer's own wagon. The first strawberries of the year come from central Florida, the movement beginning in December and continuing until the end of March. By the first of March the first strawberries from southern Texas and southern California find their way to the market. About the middle of March the Louisiana crop begins to move, continuing about two months or until the middle of May. By that time the season of carload shipments is at its height. The greater part of the Tennessee and Virginia crop is shipped in May, as well as much of the Delaware, Illinois and Maryland output.—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Bright Salesman.

The depression in business caused a local jeweler to discharge his experienced man, replacing him with a high school graduate—a youth just out of school. He appeared very anxious to learn, and the proprietor at the end of the first week was much pleased with results. One day the merchant was obliged to be away from the store, and upon his return inquired: "Well, Frank, did you sell anything?" "Yes, sir; I sold five plain band rings." "Fine, my boy!" said the jeweler, enthusiastically. "We'll make an Al salesman out of you one of these days. You got the regular price for them, of course?" "Oh, yes, sir. The price on the inside was 18c., and the man took all that was left, sir."—Harper's Magazine.

My Smile.

Our smile still holds its wonted place, due east and west across our face, and sometimes it seems half inclined to reach around and tie behind. We cannot dance, nor can we sing, but we can tote a smile, by jing! Sometimes we push it from its place, but that is when we shave our face, and when we have done shaving, then, our smile is on the job again. Worms may kill our tomato plants, hot irons may scorch our Palm Beach pants, laundries may spifficate our shirts and fix our collar so it hurts, a neighbor's dog may kill our cat, but our smile stays right where it's at, and being such a happy cuss makes the old world smile back at us. Misfortune cannot get your goat if you have got a smile to tote.—Judd Mortimer Lewis, in Houston Post.

Found.

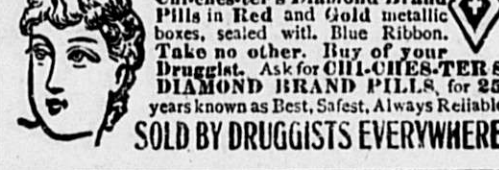

Mrs. X. lost her cook and had telephoned in vain for another. Dinner guests were expected and she was desperate. Finally, putting on her things, she went out, and she hadn't gone far when she met a neat-looking colored woman. She explained her dilemma and the colored woman listened in silence, then she said: "Where do yo' live, missus?" Seeing a ray of hope joyfully, Mrs. X. gave her address, to be met with the reply: "Well, yo' jess go home an' look in yo' glass an' yo'll see yo' cook."—Boston Transcript.

Jimmy and his Uncle Charles were great pals and spent as much time together as was possible and convenient. One of their favorite pastimes was a card game which Uncle Charles called match, and which usually became quite exciting before a climax was reached. One evening they were getting ready for their usual round. Jimmy was hurrying about getting the cards, arranging the table, etc. "In the pocket of his little white suit was a highly prized new ten-cent watch. Just before he climbed into his chair to play he took out his watch and handed it to his father, saying, "You watch out for this, daddy; I'm going to play tards with Uncle Charles."
