TAG DAY FOR THE BENEFIT OF CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

Miss Florence Dicus, social worker and officer of the Michigan Child Welfare League, is in the city arranging a tag day to be held Monday for the benefit of the work.

The Michigan Child Welfare League is incorporated under the laws of the state, is non-sectarian and its work is to hunt up and care for any crippled child that comes to their attention and who would not otherwise have the benefit of expert medical attention and hospital treatment. The work is supported by voluntary gifts and the best medical staff of Michigan gives its services gratis.

Many children have been benefited, some who were seemingly hopelessly crippled, having been made well and strong, and hundreds of children are today giving thanks to the league for the aid they have received.

The local committees are as follows:

Finance committee—L. G. McKay, N. C. Harting, H. N. Butler, H. E. Hanson, C. R. Jackson, F. F. Taylor. Ladies committee—Mrs. S. Anker, Mrs. H. T. Thomas, Mrs. W. M. Gardner, Mrs. G. A. Prescott, Mrs. G. A. Bisette, Mrs. J. A. Campbell, and Mrs. C. R. Jackson.

Twelve of the popular society girls of the cities will have charge of the sale of tags during the day.

Generously respond to this appeal! The citizens of Tawas City and East Tawas are requested to co-operate in the work and to report all cases of crippled, handicapped children to the officers.

Miss Dicus is at the Holland House and will be glad to meet any one wishing to know more about the work.

CHAUTAQUA AFTERMATH.

In response to a general invitation issued to the ladies of the Tawas who had attended the Chautauqua last week, about fifty ladies met at the home of Mrs. H. T. Thomas, Monday afternoon, to talk over the impressions received during Chautauqua week.

After a short time was spent in social greetings, the ladies were called to order by their hostess, and one after another was called upon to give her opinion concerning the program and any particular points of merit or demerit.

The Kilties with their soloist, Miss Jean Campbell, came in for the major share of favoritism. Dr. Spencer was heartily endorsed by all. Mrs. Demarchus Brown fairly won the hearts of the ladies by her sane discussion of woman's "Long Road," and her charming view of the relation of literature to life. The magician, Ray Newton, was a prime favorite with many. The different musical companies came in for varying commendation according to the taste of the critics. Mr. Kelly and Mr. Eastman were appreciated particularly for the practical views which their subjects presented.

In fact, there was very little adverse criticism for any of the numbers, the opinion being that the program was well balanced to please the tastes of such a number of patrons. The "experience" meeting was concluded by a rising vote of thanks to the gentlemen of the Tawas who by their thought and hard work had (Continued on last page).

T. C. WINS FROM PASTIMES

Beats Strong Pastime Athletic Club of Bay City 3-2.

In one of the fastest games ever seen in the Tawas the Tawas City boys won from the strong Pastime Athletic club of Bay City last Sunday on the Fair Grounds. This is the team that is conceded a very good chance for the championship of Bay City.

The game was a distinct refutation of the claims made that it is impossible to play fast ball on these grounds. The fielding of grounders was as snappy as is possible on any grounds, and the base running was a revelation of the merits of that department of the game. Moeller was in fine form holding his opponents to but five hits. A feature of the game happened in the first, when with the bases full, Don Garber struck out. There were but two earned runs, each team getting one. Johnson's base running scored Tawas City's and the base-running of Ruterbusch scored the Pastimes' one earned run. The Pastime boys are a fine bunch of fellows and their presence will ever be welcomed in our city.

First Inning.

Pastimes—Swartz fumbled Marvin's smash to short. He stole second. Ragan out Moeller to Nelem. Pomeroy singled, Marvin scoring. On an attempt to catch Pomeroy off first Moeller threw the ball away advancing Pomeroy a base. Krappe hit by a pitched ball. Pomeroy and Krappe worked the double steal. Storm fied out to Woizeschke. Ruterbusch walked filling the bases. Donald Howard Garber, our old pal, struck out. One run, one hit, two errors.

Tawas City—Swartz fied out to Ruterbusch. Johnson struck out. Musolf out, Krappe to Storm on a dropped third strike.

Second Inning.

Pastimes—Jarew struck out. Glockine walked. Marvin struck out. Ragan out Musolf to Nelem. Tawas City—C. Moeller singled. Samuels doubled. On the throw-in Glockine received the ball and threw over Krappe's head scoring both Moeller and Samuels. Nelem struck out. Crandall out on a bunt, Krappe to Storm. E. Moeller fouled to Krappe. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Third Inning.

Pastimes—Pomeroy out Musolf to Nelem. Krappe and Storm out Crandall to Nelem. Tawas City—Woizeschke out Pomeroy to Storm. Swartz fouled to Krappe. Johnson singled and stole second and third, scoring on Musolf's single. Musolf caught off first Glockine to Storm. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

Pastimes—Ruterbusch doubled and stole third. Garber pushed an easy one between the pitching box and third. He would have been an easy out but on an attempt to get Ruterbusch at home, both were safe. Garber stole second. Jarew fied out to E. Moeller. Garber died stealing, Samuels to Crandall. Glockine struck out. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

Pastimes—Marvin singled and stole second. Ragan popped to Swartz. Marvin stole third and attempted to score on a short passed ball but Samuels got him at the plate. Pomeroy out, Crandall to Nelem. Tawas City—Crandall popped to Garber. E. Moeller out Glockine to Storm and Woizeschke out Pomeroy to Storm.

Sixth Inning.

Pastimes—Krappe made second when Swartz threw his grounder over Nelem's head. Storm popped to Musolf who touched second, getting Krappe. Ruterbusch singled and stole second. Garber popped to Swartz. Tawas City—Swartz out, Garber to Storm. Ruterbusch made a spectacular catch of Johnson's drive into deep center. Musolf out Krappe to Storm.

Seventh Inning.

Pastimes—Jarew fanned. Glockine hit by a pitched ball. He stole second. He died attempting to steal third, Samuels to Crandall. Marvin walked. Ragan struck out. Tawas City—C. Moeller fied to Marvin. Samuels singled and stole second. Samuels out Glockine to Ragan. Nelem singled and stole second. Crandall hit with a pitched ball. E. Moeller out Ragan to Storm. (Continued on fourth page).

MEETING OF CHAUTAUQUA ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Iosco County Chautauqua association was held at the court house Tuesday evening for the purpose of settling up the year's business and electing officers for the ensuing year.

The association feels very much encouraged over the outcome of the Chautauqua this year, the receipts being within $1.56 of enough to pay all expenses for this year. There was, however, a deficiency from last year to be made up.

The association decided to purchase the lumber used for seats this year, as they already had some money in it and the lumber will be carried as an asset to offset a note given for its purchase.

A motion was made and carried that a vote of thanks be extended to the ladies of the Tawas for their hearty endorsement of the work of the association and their liberal contribution toward the deficit.

The old officers were re-elected for another year, as follows: President, E. F. Taylor; vice-president, N. C. Harting, sr.; secretary, John A. Mark; treasurer, Jas. E. Ballard.

SOCIALISTS AND WAR.

In the last issue of the Appeal to Reason, the socialist sheet that flaunts the red flag of radical socialism throughout the country, Eugene V. Debs, several times candidate of the socialist party for president of the United States, comes out with an article entitled "Never be a Soldier." Besides reproaching the soldier with the vilest epithets to which he can lay his tongue and yet not bar the paper from the mails, he enunciates the following sentiment: "Working men and working women of America! Let us swear by all that is dear to us and all that is sacred to our cause, never to become a soldier and never to go to war."

Isn't that a patriotic sentiment for a would-be president of this great United States to utter? Where would the boasted freedom of this land of the brave be had Mr. Debs' forefathers and ours advocated these sentiments and stuck to them? Would we now be living in a free country where every man has the choice of being a soldier or a private citizen, or would we be the vassals of the war lords of Europe who are now engaged in the bloodiest war in the history of the world? Vassals who would have no choice, but would be compelled to go to war when their masters willed and be shot down, not for patriotism but that their king or emperor might have a mightier realm to reign over.

If this be socialism, perish the thought that it could ever become the moving power in this government of ours. Were this the sentiment of our government officials any little country with an eye to conquest could send an army over here and if the people were all of the same mind as Mr. Debs there would be no resistance and they could shoot down our citizens and take possession of our rich and prosperous cities without a protest.

Shades of George Washington! Could the great and the wise men who have brought our country through the vicissitudes of five wars know that such sentiments were being advocated they would rise in their graves to confound them. The United States has never entered into war simply for the lust of carnage nor for conquest, but our battles have always been fought in the name of freedom, right and justice. And then to think that a man who is enjoying these benefits wrested from their opposers at the price of the blood of thousands of patriots, can be such a traitor. Yes, traitor, for it is nothing less than traitorous to advocate such an oath as that suggested by Mr. Debs. The very things by which he would swear would be lost were his followers to accept his recommendation.

But we cannot believe that the rank and file of the socialist party will uphold these vile sentiments. The true American citizen, be he socialist or plutocrat, will fight for his freedom and to protect those he holds most dear when occasion needs. We do not want war, any of us, Mr. Debs to the contrary, but if it is forced upon us by those who would abridge our rights of freedom, then we will have war and we will fight to the last drop of our blood and the last dollar of our treasure to protect those rights and assure the continuance of that freedom.

If there is no law to punish such treasonable utterances as that enunciated by Debs, one should be made and that soon. He may not have a large following, but he should not be suffered to go about the country preaching his infamous doctrine. It is cranks such as he who inspired the assassination of our martyred presidents, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, and it is dangerous to let this class of propogandist run at large.

It is well for this United States that during their past year it has had as president a cool-headed statesman who hates war, and will take any and all honorable measures to prevent his country from going to war, rather than a hot-headed, war-mad jingoist like Theodore Roosevelt. If the people needed any further evidence that it was well that Teddy was defeated in the last presidential election, the evidence was furnished by his speech at the military instruction camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., on Wednesday of last week. His condemnation of the pacifists and arbitrators, and denunciation of the course pursued by the president in the Mexican and European crises were unworthy of the meanest American citizen, let alone a man of the prominence of Roosevelt. Had he been president during the trying times of the past twelve months there is no question but that this country would be engaged in conflict of arms both in Mexico and with one or more European countries. He would fight first and argue the question afterward. Roosevelt is primarily a fighter, and as he has not been able to show his militant spirit for some time he is discontented. His most recent utterances have shown his unfitness for public office, and undoubtedly his influence as a politician has been so weakened that he will never again be able to wield an appreciable influence in American politics.

URGES PLEA FOR TEACHING THE THREE "R's."

Fred Keeler, superintendent of public instruction, in his talks about the state has been putting in a plea for the three "R's," "readin'," "ritin'" and "rithmetic." He might also have added spelling to his curriculum, as a large portion of the young people being graduated from high schools today cannot spell the most common words correctly.

Many come out not only poor readers and spellers, but are very poorly equipped in many ways, to take up a business career.

Mr. Keeler's late talks before Ann Arbor students and faculty is worthy of reproduction. In part he said:

"Inasmuch as 60 per cent of all school children in the United States leave before they have finished the sixth grade, particular attention should be paid to the teachers and the curriculum offered in those first six grades.

"I would pick the best teachers for the first grade and have them give the children the reading habit. I'd have no arithmetic in the first and second grades, only oral in the third and fourth; practical problems for written arithmetic in the fifth and sixth grades, and have every example an example of community life rather than of theory.

"I'd have every teacher correct every paper and hand them back. That applies to university professors. Too many of you throw the papers submitted to you into the waste paper basket without looking at them.

"I'd teach penmanship. One-eighth of the letters that come to my notice I cannot read. Some of them come from faculty members of this university and of the normal colleges of this state. It is not a bad thing to teach spelling. Some of the superintendents of schools in Michigan are able to teach Latin, the sciences and higher mathematics but they cannot spell. "The greatest thing of all is to teach the boys and girls how to think. But two people out of every hundred ever think, the rest follow."

NOT LIQUID BREAD.

In a pamphlet entitled, "Alcohol and the Power of Resistance," distributed among the recruits of the German army, the following statement concerning beer is made:

"There is no justification for calling beer 'liquid bread,' a glass of heavy beer costing 25 pfennigs, has no more nourishment than a piece of cheese costing one pfennig. Almost all excesses and disturbances in the army are traced to drink. It is mostly beer that causes the mischief. Beer is not the harmless drink that it is supposed to be."

To Keep Milk From Curdling.

An important particular in which cow's milk differs from mother's milk for feeding infants is that the former is likely to curdle. Some children fed on cow's milk are apt to suffer from the formation of large, tough curds. If citrate of soda is added to milk in the proportion of half a dram of soda to a pint of milk no curds will be formed. Given in this proportion, citrate of soda is said to be entirely harmless and is often found very useful in feeding infants. The addition of barley water or any other thin cereal gruel, has much the same effect.

HOME TOWN BUILDING

How to Turn the Trade of Outlying Districts Toward Local Stores

In my previous letter, I promised to say something about the business of the mail order catalogue houses' viewpoint.

In the first place, the mail order business is here to stay, simply for the reason that it is popular and is looked upon as a blessing by the farmers of the country. It is based upon a principle of barter and exchange, which always has and always will get the business. The big well illustrated catalogue has become the family guide book in many of the rural districts of the United States and of England as well.

Not many people know that the mail order plan of selling goods originated in England, but that is a fact. Upwards of sixty-five years ago, a few of the employees of the Government in London pooled a few dollars, placed the amount in the hands of the Purchasing Agent of the Navy Department, with the consent of the Secretary of the Navy, and from the purchase of household supplies for these few clerks developed the great co-operative mail order business of the Naval Junior Stores of London.

The founder of the first mail order business in America simply copied the plan of the English Navy department clerks, and eliminated the shareholder feature, which is part of the original, as well as of the present Naval Junior stores method.

When the first order was passed by the Secretary of the English navy, granting the privilege of making use of the facilities of the Purchasing Department, it was stipulated that the goods so purchased must be for the exclusive use of the department employees only. This resulted in a shareholders association, which was limited to the clerks in the Navy Department, as long as the buyer in that department was made use of, but the advantages of the plan were quickly realized and the employees in all of the other departments of the Government clamored for the privilege of participating in it. The shares were then increased, a small warehouse secured, and a special buyer was employed, after which the government purchasing department was not made use of. It was not long before relatives and friends of the government employees were indirectly buying their household supplies through the co-operative store. Then the plan was extended, so that the general public might become holders of shares, or parts of shares. One share may be divided up among not less than fifty people. Each of these decimal parts of shares participate in very excellent dividends, which are paid quarterly. The selling business of the association is confined exclusively to the shareholders. The only reason why this plan has been continued to the present time, is that it is part of the English habit to stick to traditional methods. That is where the mail order catalogue plan of doing business originated. The Chicago man who started the first mail order house in the United States was not a pioneer, except in the changes made in the selling plan.

It is true that the mail order houses of the big cities have monopolized the bulk of the business of the rural districts, but they have made themselves very popular with the farmers of the country and many people look upon them as a blessing. That plan of doing business has come to stay. It is the common sense method and it will continue to get the orders. The big catalogues are instructive and interesting. There are few magazines which are more so.

I take the same interest in newspaper advertisements if prices are quoted, otherwise they are a blank to me.

Everybody is interested in goods for home wants that are advertised in the newspapers, but only when the price and a description is attached. Such an advertisement in any home town paper will get results that will astonish you. I think and I often wonder why storekeepers don't use that plan.

BACK FROM THE FROZEN NORTH

Crocker Land Expedition Preparing to Return After Two Years of Thrilling Experiences.

THE DIANA (Mr. Ekblaw in Insert)

"True vikings' they have started forth
To find a land in the frozen north—
A land that is fresh from the hand of God.
Where never the foot of man has trod.
A land hemmed in by ice and snow;
A land that the seal and walrus know;
The home of the arctic fox and hare,
The trackless haunt of the polar bear:
A land where the moon and the northern lights
Make brilliant as day the six-month nights;
Which, lit by the rays of the midnight sun,
Gleams white when the Winter night is done."

—thus sang the poet, and the Brooklyn navy yard resounded with cheers as the good ship Diana, with the Crocker Land expedition aboard, steamed out into the East River late in the afternoon of July 2, 1913.

Now, at the end of more than two years of battling against the Northland's terrible odds, this brave little party, of which Donald B. MacMillan is at the head, is planning to return home. True, they have not found Admiral Peary's "Crocker Land," but they have at least proven that there is no such country—they have succeeded in the one fundamental object of the journey: "that the world might know just one thing more."

This month, members of the party are "packing" for the home-coming. Much exploring of great scientific value has been carried on during the past few months.

In letters to friends in the United States, W. Elmer Ekblaw, one of the scientists with the expedition gives some side lights on life in the Land of the Midnight Sun that are highly interesting. Some extracts from these letters are quoted:

Life up here is strenuous, hazardous and eventful, but I imagine there isn't a happier, jollier people on earth than these Eskimos who have such hard conditions to face and so many dangers threatening them constantly. They are all fatalists, and while life is joyous to them, death apparently has no terrors. They are much like children in many ways, but capable, self-reliant and resourceful with a sort of instinctive knowledge when they are out on the trail.

"Two of the Eskimos who went bear hunting in Melville Bay some three weeks ago were carried out on a field of ice when it broke away and are now undoubtedly lost. Last year three hunters were thus carried out, and after twenty-three days on an iceberg, during which time they used up their sledges for fuel, ate all their dogs but three, and cut their long hair to put in their boots to keep from freezing their feet, they came back safely!

"I have shot two polar bears—the only bears yet killed by members of our expedition—and five musk-oxen, among the game I have hunted, and one shot has done the work for each. As yet I have had no chance at walrus, but I am confident that I shall. The Eskimos admire my rifle very much. The little twenty-two is the favorite small rifle in our armory. I shall have only warm words of approval for the Remington arms when I get back, and my well-worn .32 shall hang in my study always.

"I have had my share of experiences—traveled some 2,500 miles over glaciers, ice-caps and bay and sea-ice; eaten everything from whale-steak to raw bear brains; slept in Eskimo igloos, tupiks, snow-houses, snow drifts and a good many times with the temperature 45 to 65 degrees below. I've slept on my sledges on the ice; I've frozen my feet so I could scarcely walk on them; I've been so pained by snow blindness that for four days only morphine gave me relief; but I've enjoyed it all and wouldn't have missed it."

DATE SET FOR END OF WAR

November 11 or April 11 is the Prediction Recently Made by a "Soothsayer."

A soothsayer from Zagarabia, who wishes to remain unknown, has predicted the end of the great war toward the end of the year, and he insists that peace will be concluded on November 11. His prediction is based on logical mathematical calculations which he says cannot fail, as proved by past experience of former wars.

In fact the same rule which enabled him to find out when this war is going to end works to perfection when applied to the last Napoleonic war and the Franco-Prussian war of 1870.

The last war against Napoleon started in 1813 and ended in 1814. The soothsayer adds up these two years and divides the total, viz.: 3527, into two numbers of figures each, viz.: 36 and 27. Then adding the two figures of each number, viz.: 3 plus 6 equals 9, and 2 plus 7 equals 9, he gets the ninth day of the ninth month, viz.: September 9, the date when peace was signed.

The same result is obtained in the case of the Franco-Prussian war, begun in 1870 and ended in 1871. In fact, 1870 plus 1871 equals 3741, or 37 and 41, and 3 plus 7 equals 10, while 4 plus 1 equals 5, so that the date of peace was May 10.

Assuming that the present war ends this year then 1914 plus 1915 equals 3829, or 38 and 29; hence 3 plus 8 equals 11 and 2 plus 9 equals 11, and the result is November 11.

Supposing, however, the war lasts until 1916, then peace will be signed on April 11.

The soothsayer does not explain on what his prophecy that the war will end this year is based.—New York Sun.

CURIOUS LIZARD OF MAINE

Spotted Salamander Declared Not Uncommon, but Seldom Seen in Daylight.

Edward C. Pope of Manchester writes the Kennebec Journal as follows: "In your issue of May 15, under Maine Gossip, you tell of a curiosity . . . somewhat resembling an alligator . . . nine inches long, with bright yellow spots along its sides," found by Mr. Blanding of Great Pond.

This creature is a spotted salamander (Amblystoma punctatum) and is an amphibian, like the frogs, but is much more closely related to the newts or salamanders of our streams, commonly mis-called lizards.

The spotted salamander is not rare in this state, but is not often seen, because it is a night feeder, lying concealed in moist spots during the day. At this time of year it may be found in pools and puddles, at night, where it goes to deposit its eggs, which occur in roundish masses of transparent jelly, resembling frog spawn.

The young, when first hatched, swim freely in the water, and breathe by means of fringed gills on the sides of the head. When they have attained a length of two or three inches they begin to breathe by means of lungs, the gills are gradually absorbed and the youngsters begin to travel about on land.

I have kept two of these salamanders in a glass tank in the house for two or three years past, with plants and moist moss for shelter. They are very tame, and will eat quantities of earth worms, slugs and insects, but are not very active.—Bangor Commercial.

Playing Out of Doors.

This is the time of year when every man has within him a desire to get out of doors and play. And those who have fewest opportunities to obtain out-of-door recreation during the year are very likely to have the play fever in a most virulent form. The sober and dignified man, who sits all day and every day in a sober and dignified office feels that he really must get out somewhere, where the grass is green and the air is clean, and kick his sober heels far toward the sky and release a series of startling whoops from his dignified interior. So, granting that this is the time when people who work desire to play out of doors, is it surprising that the people whose work is called "playing" should also have the fever of spring? Just as the regular indoor workers get the fever, so do the players—and each year more and more of the players are ending their season's work with out-of-door performances.

GROWTH OF A PENNY.

Many a man has owed his start in life to a sudden realization of the latent earning power of a very small amount of money. Children who have been provided with lavish allowances for which they have done no work are not so likely to realize the value of a penny or a dollar as those who have been paid wages for a fair return in labor, or those who have been given a small amount of money as a nucleus for a greater sum to be obtained by their own efforts. A Sunday school in Indiana wanted to build a chapel and in return for $7 in pennies—one to each child—has reaped $175. One youngster with the cent bought an egg; from the egg a chicken was hatched, and finally the chicken was sold for a dollar. This case was typical. The history of many large and flourishing concerns points back to inconspicuous origins. Men of great faith labored unceasingly in the day of small things, and those who now survey the imposing result can hardly bring themselves to believe that it was reared on a foundation far richer in honor and in determined intent than in money. The most valuable asset in any form of trade or business still is character.

Moral progress is not an intellectual matter. That is an affair of the soul. Only the sensibilities, the emotions, the aspirations, the intuition and the faith are concerned in moral advancement. All the intellect in the world will not advance the moral situation a jot. Dr. Alfred Russell Wallace says the social situation has not improved a particle in the past 3,000 years. This is because it has set up intellect as the motor that moves our civilization. The world has set intellect above the soul; it has ignored the divine impulse, the intuition, the self-powers. The intellect deals almost entirely with matter, with figures, with form, with argument, with analysis, with dogma; but the soul deals with honor, virtue, courage, purity, sacrifice and faith. One deals with circumstances; the other with virtues. One is environment, the other is the divine energy. We emphasize intellect in church, in school-house, in legislature, in court, in society. That is the reason the world grows better so slowly, if at all. We ignore the divine impulse, the intuition, the self-evident, and rely on dialectics, on knowledge and the form of expression.

A news item from Alaska says: "The first spike of the government's Alaska railway was driven by Martha White, the first white child born in Alaska." One is prompted to exclaim "Nonsense!" Probably the first white child was born in Alaska of Russian or Finnish parents a hundred years or more ago. That hardy climate evidently breeds hardy fabricators. And yet, as we read the paragraph again, we are disposed to modify the first impression. We notice the name of the child—Martha White. Possibly the item may be precisely truthful. Possibly we have been led astray by a mere typographical error. Possibly it should read "the first White child." The romantic touch may be one of nomenclature rather than color.

Iceland, now demanding independence, was uninhabited until the middle of the ninth century. It was first discovered by a little company of Irish monks, who had fled their own land to escape the ravages of the pagan Norsemen. They built themselves a home in the new land, and seemingly intended to stay there, when, after a few years, the Norsemen also discovered Iceland and the monks fled back to Ireland. Not a few Irish and Scotch emigrants, however, found their way to Iceland in later times.

To bring up a child right you will have to bring up its parents right. A stream doesn't rise above its source. Many parents go waddling through the world as if they did not amount to much, but they do—they determine the character of their child. Sometimes a child rises above its origin, but that comes because it has fallen into environment that helps it upward and onward. The greatest circumstance in education is environment. Some parents don't seem to care a snap for it.—Ohio State Journal.

Doctor Montessori, the famous educator, says she can make children adore the multiplication tables. Those who know the vast chasm yawning between juvenility and mathematics are curiously watching to see how she is going to figure it out.

"It is a poor comet these days that has not at least two tails," says Professor Barnard. "Often they have five or six." Comets ought to moderate their passion for adornment.

It has been declared by scientists that there are 10,000,000 microbes in every dollar bill. Even at that dollar bills are not always safe in a husband's pocket.

An optimist knows that his dream will come true and that his nightmare won't.

"Can I get Ruth by long distance telephone?" asked a friend of hers one day when she was calling upon Ruth's mother.

"Why yes," the latter replied, "it will only cost you ten cents to talk with her for five minutes." "Well it's worth it," the friend said, "and I'll just use your phone if I may. You see I want to ask her how to renew the gilding on my tarnished mirror frame."

And when she had connected with Ruth and had made known her wants, Ruth gave her this information:

"To clean and renew your gilt frames dust them carefully with a soft cloth first, and then wash them with a fluid composed of one ounce of soda beaten up with the whites of three eggs. If there should be any scratched places, they should be touched with gilt paint."

"If that girl should ever move entirely away I don't know what the community would do," commented the visitor as she hung up the phone.

Paper mache or paper pulp was first used in Persia, Cashmere and Japan. The present method of manufacture dates back to the eighteenth century and consists of submitting the required number of sheets of paper to heat and immense pressure and treating with an oil and tar mixture. Paper mache has been successfully used in the manufacture of doors, waterpails, and even car wheels.

Naming the Country Place.

People are getting over the idea that it is an affectation to name the country place, and to put a sign at the gateway declaring it. Why this feeling should ever have gained ground is hard to explain, unless it was because some of the early advocates of the plan used silly names. Across the water, and especially in England, the names of country places are handed down for generations.

By all means, name the suburban or country home; but be sure to select a name that is appropriate and not freakish. Your home and its grounds should have individuality, and their naming adds to that quality.—The Countryside Magazine.

The fashion of the smock has been charmingly adapted to young girls' dresses.

It is attractive to have the ribbon on the Panama hat to match the stripe in the skirt.

To keep the hair light and fluffy shampoo it with castile soap and put a little soda in the water.

Taffeta cuffs are put on many sleeves of tulle and lace, in separate blouses or in frocks, either of tulle, lace, satin or taffeta.

Violet and pansy shades are coming into prominence, and there is indication that by next winter they may be in high fashion.

Parasols trimmed in the inside are one of the features of the summer. The trimming takes the form of embroidery frills of tulle and chiffon and applied flowers of birds of silk.

WOOD ALCOHOL—POISON!

Despite unceasing endeavor to prohibit the sale of wood alcohol, this poisonous article is still used in the manufacture of quack medicines, hair-tonics, cheap whiskey, essences, etc., and every now and then some innocent person is killed or made blind from its effects. Recently three persons died and two others were made completely blind from drinking a cordial made partly of wood alcohol. It is not generally known that poisonous symptoms follow its external application, as well as from taking it into the stomach. Thus rubbing the body with it after Turkish or other baths, burning it in "alcohol" lamps, using it for varnishing pianos, beer-yats, small rooms, etc., may induce slow and often unsuspected but serious damage to the digestion, sight, and nervous system. The manufacturers of wood alcohol have succeeded in removing the unpleasant odor and taste, disguising it in this way to facilitate its sale; but its poisonous properties are still there, and this "deodorized" alcohol under whatsoever name it may be called should not be purchased for domestic use. It should be the self imposed duty of every citizen, not only to abstain from using the poison himself, but to use his influence in bringing about a law to stop its manufacture and sale. All preparations containing this ingredient should be put on the list of poisons, and labeled with the skull and cross-bones.

WHEN THE GATE CLOSED

By DONALD HOPPER.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was a lovers' quarrel. It was even more serious than a lovers' quarrel, for they were no longer engaged. Nancy had given Robert his ring—and he had taken it. She could hardly forgive him for that!

Mrs. Arden sat in the living room, reading the evening paper. The windows were open to the balmy night. She knew Nancy and her lover were walking in the garden.

Her daughter came in. She was quite pale, but her blue eyes gleamed strangely.

"What was that sound I heard?" went on Mrs. Arden. "A creaking sound—did you hear it?"

Nancy flushed.

"It was the gate," she said.

"The gate!" Mrs. Arden's voice expressed her wonder.

"Bob closed the gate," said Nancy. "But—why?"

"I told him to, mother."

"It has never been closed all these years. I don't understand it. I don't like it." The little lady was visibly disturbed.

"I told Robert to close the gate; our engagement is broken," explained Nancy.

Mrs. Arden was silent for some time. Her eyes were thoughtful, and she did not reproach her daughter, as Nancy expected.

"Perhaps it is just as well, my dear. Of course you and Bob are almost too young to be quite certain of your hearts. We were all very happy over the thought of the families being united; still, it may be for the best, after all."

"Why, mother?" asked Nancy in a queer tone. "Best for me—or for Bob?"

"I was thinking that now Bob would be free to take that trip to India with Professor Morrison. Colonel Leigh said it would be a world of benefit for Bob to go merely as the professor's private secretary."

"They are to be gone a year," said Nancy, slowly.

"Eighteen months, I believe," said Mrs. Arden, picking up her paper.

"I've just been reading about it—the expedition sails day after tomorrow. Bob will have to hurry."

Nancy stared into space.

Colonel Leigh looked across the table at his placid wife.

"What was that sound, my dear?" he inquired.

"It sounded like a gate," she said.

"It could hardly be a gate," said the colonel. "There is only one gate on the place, and that has never been closed."

Just then Robert came in, tall and grave.

"Your father thought he heard the gate closing," smiled Mrs. Leigh; "but I told him the idea was absurd—the gate has never been closed."

"It is closed now," said Robert grimly.

Two pairs of eyes questioned him. "Why?" asked his mother.

"It's all off between Nancy and me—we are no longer engaged." Robert picked up a magazine and sat down under the lamp.

The colonel and his wife stared at each other in consternation. Then Mrs. Leigh dropped her eyes to her knitting and a long-forgotten dimple appeared at the corner of her mouth.

Her husband recognized that dimple—in younger days he had surrendered to its wiles. Now he watched it, fascinated.

"So the engagement is broken," murmured Robert's mother. "Dear me, I am sorry, but perhaps it's all for the best. Nancy is a dear girl, but perhaps she would get along better with a man who could manage her more than you do, Bobby dear. But I shall finish that luncheon set I am embroidering for her. It will be ready as soon as she does marry. There's that young Kenyon from Overbrook—he is very devoted."

Mrs. Leigh rambled on, her dimple always in evidence.

The colonel watched his wife, and Robert stared at nothing.

"It's not too late to join Morrison's expedition," reminded the colonel, after a while. "Of course, we hate to let you go, son, but if you feel now that you are free—why hello—where's the boy gone?"

He stared at Robert's empty chair. For the first and last time in her conventional life Mrs. Leigh actually winked at her husband.

Somewhere in the distance a bell was striking ten.

The moonlight still flooded the garden, and shone on the closed gate. Nancy stepped hurriedly down the path to the closed gate. She laid her hands on the gate to push it open. At the same instant a pair of warm, strong hands covered hers.

"Nancy!" exclaimed Robert. "What are you doing here, dear?"

"I came to open the gate," she whispered. "Oh, it must never be closed between us again!"

"Never, sweetheart," he said tenderly, and then, together, they opened the gate.

Mrs. Arden heard the sound and she looked at the picture of Nancy's father and sighed and smiled.

The Leighs heard it, too, and Colonel Leigh bent over his wife and kissed the dimple.

THE ADVERTISEMENT.

It is an axiom among advertising experts that anything can be sold by advertising at any price provided the reason for the sale is strong enough. There is a good deal of truth in the belief. This idea brought out what was known as "reason why" copy, in which, as briefly as possible, the advertiser told about his goods and why the buyer should take them in preference to others. Results have proven that, while this kind of copy has excellent pulling results for the advertiser, it is not always sure fire. The shrewd advertiser these days will not resort to any particular kind of "copy" for telling his story. He will apply a test for advertising "copy" just as he would apply a test to a plan for a special sale. "Copy" must fit the article to be advertised, and it must be so written that it will not only attract the attention of the prospective buyer, but will convince him that he should buy that particular article and should buy it at once and from the person who advertises it. Many advertisers become dissatisfied with the results of their advertising, blaming the newspaper for the lack of sales, when the "copy" itself is to blame. When he writes his ad, he hurries the work through or turns it over to the newspaper man with the injunction to "write something for me." Maybe he is paying a hundred dollars or more for the advertising, but he dismisses it with a flourish. As a matter of fact advertising is an investment and it should have as careful attention as the investment of an equal amount of money in a business, a piece of real estate or a bond. The newspaper can only offer circulation and white space to the advertiser. In justice to himself the advertiser should give careful attention to the preparation of his "copy" and the results cannot fail to be profitable.

CHAUTAQUA AFTERMATH.

(Continued from first page.) brought about a week of such pleasure, and both intellectual and spiritual uplift. One lady showed her practical turn of mind, as the vote was being taken, by saying that something more was needed than votes of thanks. At this, the hostess gave five minutes in which pledges were taken from those whose husbands were not the burden bearers of the movement, and $21 was raised to apply on the debt of the previous year. Mrs. John Baguley of Tawas City, was made treasurer, and payment of pledges was to be immediate. The discussions were interspersed by music, the selections being those which had been played during the Chautauqua week. Mrs. G. A. Bissette and daughter, Mrs. Thompson sang beautifully, "Long, Long Ago." Dainty refreshments were served, Mrs. G. A. Prescott presiding at the table, and Misses Fox, Luce and MacDonald serving. This meeting proved to be another of those delightful community gatherings which Mrs. Thomas is so happy in bringing about, and is a forerunner of others which will develop the true community spirit which says: "Let me live in the house by the side of the road, And be a friend of man."

MEADOW ROAD JUNIORS VS. HEMLOCK ROAD.

Last Sunday the Meadow road junior team played their last game of ball for this season, and defeated the Hemlock road team by a score of 7 to 4. This is the fourth game these teams have played, Meadow road winning three of the four. This game was fast throughout, Hemlock taking the lead in the first, but Kobs was unable to keep the Meadow road boys from taking the lead in the seventh, which won the game. Following is the score:
Hemlock . . . . . 2 0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0-4
Meadow Road . 0 1 2 0 0 0 3 1 *-7
