Now that school has again begun in all the districts we should be glad to have a news letter from each one every week if possible for the "School Column" of the Herald. The monthly report of State Fire Marshal Winship recently issued for August shows that nine persons lost their lives and nineteen were seriously burned or injured in the state during the month from fire, explosions, bonfires and the careless use of gasoline and kerosene. Of the deaths three were children under sixteen years of age. Eleven persons received injuries from the careless use of gasoline, three children were burned seriously while playing with bonfires and two children were injured playing with dynamite. The report states that one hotel in the state was totally destroyed in a fire caused by gasoline.

A number of our citizens are planning on attending the fair at Whittemore this week. The Tawas City baseball team will play there Saturday. On Sunday they will play at Alpena.

Many barns and storage buildings are burned by the combustion of hay and grain, which being stored before it is properly dried, or becoming damp from some other source, generates sufficient heat to ignite the gases thrown off from the vegetable matter and thus starts a conflagration. Whenever hay or grain begins to show any indications of heating, it should be moved, aired, and dried.

January of 1816, it is said, was unusually mild. February was not much colder, March and April were so warm that the buds and leaves broke forth untimely. They were out as far in early April as they usually are in May.

Then winter, which seemed to have forgotten its usual visit, fell upon the country in May with a violence calculated to make up for any previous neglect. There was snow and frost and ice in plenty. The fruit was all killed, and even the leaves on the trees were killed.

June was as cold as May. Snow fell all over the country. Ice formed as far south as Tennessee. In Vermont the snow lay ten inches deep for several days. Crops were planted and replanted, but few of them reached maturity.

July and August were cool, far beyond the normal. There was even frost and snow in New England during these months.

By September winter had set in, and it remained. The months that followed furnished the bitterest winter weather anybody had ever seen. By the following spring nature had readjusted herself to the normal.

This is the sort of history nobody cares to see repeat itself. It has not happened since; but there is no assurance that it will not happen again. It has not happened this year, even though belated frosts and prolonged cool weather have plagued a very wide area, and even though the mild winter and unusually early spring of this year followed by the discomforts of May and early June, have formed a fair parallel for famous old "Eighteen Hundred and Froze to Death."

REQUIREMENTS OF A GOOD SILO.
A silo's walls should be air-tight when filled.

Round sios are preferable, are economical in construction, and most easily braced.

Silo doors may be either continuous or occasional.

Silo failures of twenty years ago are chiefly attributable to shallow, square or oblong bins that were not capable of proper packing.

The height of a silo should be at least twice the diameter.

Do not paint the inside of a stave silo; use linseed oil, or coal tar thinned with gasoline.

The inner walls of a silo should be as smooth as possible, so as not to hinder the uniform settling of the silage.

Extra capacity may be easily gained by using a dome or hip roof.

Always anchor a stave silo, using from three to four guy wires.

Always keep the hoops of a stave silo well tightened as the silo is emptied so the staves will not warp and to prevent racking by wind.

When filling the silo the swelling of the staves may make it necessary to slightly loosen the hoops to prevent the great strain from breaking some of them.

When setting up a stave silo, set the staves on the center of the foundation wall. When the hoops are tightened the staves will approach the inner edge of the wall.

Do not cement against the staves on the inside; this will prevent tightening.

The top of the foundation wall should slope slightly toward the outside.

YEAR WITHOUT ANY SUMMER.

"Eighteen Hundred and Froze to Death," grandfather says they called it; and it seems to have been well named. The year was 1816, and those who have been complaining of the wretched conduct of May and early June of 1915, the country over, have need of hearing of something that is in a contrast even with this belated summer.

January of 1816, it is said, was unusually mild. February was not much colder, March and April were so warm that the buds and leaves broke forth untimely. They were out as far in early April as they usually are in May.

DEATH OF JOHN A. GRANT.

Early Thursday morning at about four o'clock John A. Grant, a resident of this city for nearly fifty years, passed peacefully to his rest in the Great Beyond, at the family residence.

About four years ago Mr. Grant seemed to have a general nervous breakdown which resulted in a complication of diseases and he began to gradually fail until about two months ago when he was confined to his bed.

John A. Grant was born in Williams-town, Glengary county, Ontario, Canada, on June 16, 1846 and was 69 years of age at his death. In 1871 he was united in marriage to Miss Janet Urquhart in Martintown, Ontario, Canada.

The deceased has been a resident of East Tawas for 47 years and has endeared himself to a great many of the residents of this city and was highly respected by everyone. He was a faithful worker in the Presbyterian church all his life and was always devoted to the service of His Lord and Master. His was a life of unselfish Christian service for his fellowmen. He was a devoted husband and a loving, sympathetic father. He had a generous, loving disposition but was firm in his faith and his stand for the right. For ten years he was the superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday school and always gave his services as a teacher in the school and many friends will mourn his loss.

The funeral services will be held from the family residence next Sunday afternoon at 1:15 and from the Presbyterian church at 1:30, standard time. Rev. William Roberts of this city will officiate.

The deceased leaves a wife and six children to mourn his demise also one brother and four sisters besides several nieces and nephews and a grandson in this city.

The immediate family are: the wife, Mrs. Janet Grant of this city, the sons, Aleck of Port Arthur, Edwin of Saginaw, Clarence and Will of this city; the daughters, Miss Edith, now teaching in Cadillac and Mabel of this city. He also leaves a grandson, Wallace Grant of East Tawas.

The brother and sisters of the deceased are Mrs. Jessie Gordon of this city, Mrs. Christina Reimers of Jackson, Mrs. Margaret Urquhart, Mrs. Mary McClellan and Mr. Alexander Grant, all of Williamsstown, Ont., Canada. Other relatives in this vicinity are Herbert Gordon, a nephew in Curtisville, Mr. John Sullivan, a brother-in-law in Wilber and his daughter, Miss Adda, niece of the deceased. The sorrowing relatives have the sincere sympathy of the community in their distress.

BISON HERD INCREASED.
Ten calves have been added to the Government's herd of buffalo on the Wichita National Forest in Oklahoma, which is also a Federal game preserve. The herd now comprises 62 specimens of the almost extinct bison and is in good condition, the supervisor reports.

Eight of the calves are females, and bring the number of heifers and cows up to 30. The bulls number 32 and have been placed in a separate pasture.

ACQUISITIONS MUSICAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

The senior high school was pleasantly surprised last week when Dr. A. Stealy, of this city, presented a double record for the Victrola. The selections are "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Tales of Hoffman." Both are played by the Victor Concert Orchestra. Other records that have been donated are "Humoresque," violin solo by Kreisler, presented by Mr. L. G. McKay, and "Canzone del Toreador," sung by Campanare, presented by Miss Amanda Hamilton. Gifts of this kind are greatly appreciated. Their value educationally is certain.

The equipment for work in electrical measurements was materially strengthened by the addition of five Ammeters and one Voltmeter. These instruments were turned over to the school, for use in the laboratory, by the board of public works. They were formerly in use at the electric light plant but are not adaptable to the present system.

MAP OF MICHIGAN MADE IN 1835.

"A tourists map of Michigan exhibiting its internal improvements, roads, distances, etc., by J. H. Young, of Philadelphia, and published by S. Augustus Mitchell in 1835 in an exhibition among the relics shown in the store window of S. V. Wilkin, who as chairman of the pioneer committee has made a splendid collection of these old bits of history," says the Bay City Times. "The map is far from being an accurate one of this great state. Bay City at that time was known as Lower Saginaw and the Saginaw county line extended to Saginaw Bay. Midland county also extended to the bay, lying between Saginaw and Arenac counties. A sample of the inaccuracy of the map is shown in the location of Alpena which, according to the map lies at a point where Tawas City should be found. All the territory north of Gladwin and Arenac is described as Michillimackinac, then a dense wilderness. However, the map contains some interesting information for old settlers as well as the more recent inhabitants of the state."

ELBERT BEDE SAYS:

No one loves a knocker. Engagement rings cause a tinkling in a girl's heart. The common people are uncommonly popular along election time. The devil hangs onto his own long after they start backsliding. The man who swears over the wire at the telephone operator would smile and smirk upon her if he met her face to face. The person who wants to borrow trouble never has any trouble in getting accommodated at a low rate of interest. The park board of a big city has ordered all benches and seats specially illuminated. The light will be wasted, for there'll be no one there. The good bread makers didn't think much of the patent bread mixers until they found that their neighbors were using them and getting their hubbies to turn the crank. We may be old-fashioned but it gets on our nerves to see a man dressed so nearly like a fashion plate that you would think he might have been the model. Probably that is because the face in the fashion plate is so expressionless, and the position assumed by the men so plainly self-conscious, while the clothes are worn in a way that not one man in a thousand would wear them. It's not so much what you say, as how people listen to you. A woman who is happy always has a pretty face. It all lies with hubby as to whether or not he has a pretty wife. When misfortune overtakes them some folks think it hasn't paid them to be good. These same people if they had been bad, would have said the misfortune was a punishment for misdeeds.

MODERN FABLES.

The Fable of the Champion Fudge Maker.

Once upon a time in a thriving little hamlet just far enough distant from a regular city to acquire all the "big town crazes," there dwelt with her immediate ancestors a comely maiden of doubtful summers. The household of which she was the ornament was perfectly organized in two separate and distinct divisions—the producing and the expending. The parents, the male portion of whom was a contractor, had the responsibility of providing, while the daughter searched, hunted and sought for ways to exhaust the accumulations. If the old man put a roof on someone's barn, the daughter at once had to have a new floor in the neighbor's kitchen meant a new pair of boots that laced up the back, for the daughter, while a new house, the contract for which had been awarded to the paternal end of this family, meant an entire new wardrobe for our heroine. Of course, the lass never paid any attention to household duties. She had a mother for such things, while she delighted the beaux of the community with her chafing dishes. She sure was there when it came to making rarebits of any kind, while her fudges were just simply heavenly. How could anyone expect such a girl to know how to darn hose, sweep, wash dishes, or the like? And finally, did some rich, young Lochinvar come and carry her away to a heaven where cupid reigns? He did—not. The girl married a street car conductor from the adjoining city who, after eating her meals for 365 days, left her with a child and a new view of the world. Moral—Competency is more valuable than good intentions.

Isn't it Queer?
The actor man should happy be; He lives a careless life and free; For every week he draws his pay For just appearing in a play.

Old Pomes Re-Writ.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
"I know I am feeble and blind and old
And toothless, too, and my blood is cold.
I know my dome is devoid of fuzz,
But I'm just as good as I ever was."

Ruth Sends Word.

"I do wish Ruth had left her face lotion at home, or that I knew how to prepare it," Ruth's sister was saying to her friend.
"Why! Does she make it herself?" the friend asked, much surprised.
"She certainly does, and I'm going to write her this very minute and ask her how she does it."
In two days Ruth's answer came, reading: Let a little oatmeal, say a couple of tablespoonfuls, boil in water for several hours. When cool, pour off the liquid and add the juice of one lemon; also a tablespoonful of pure alcohol.

Learn a Little Every Day.

Last year the income of the Government, cities, towns and countries from liquor licenses amounted to $350,000,000.

Every year more lives are lost by accident and preventable deaths than have been destroyed in this country in all our wars since the Declaration of Independence.

Saffron is obtained from the dried flowers of the saffron crocus. It is used as a coloring matter for some articles of food and medicine. The earlier Romans and Greeks used it both as a dye for cloth and a perfume. In the time of the Caesars there was a Roman law which made it a crime punishable by death to adulterate saffron. The plant is now cultivated in Persia, Afghanistan, Southern Europe and England.

Homey Items for Women.

To remove wine stains from linen soak the spots in sweet milk.
All the military influences are fading out except the soldier blue.
Two-color schemes in fuchsia colorings are charming for negligees.
Shot lavender and yellow is a peculiarly discreet and pleasing color.
Tailored frocks are trimmed with belts and buckles, buttons and braid.
Vinegar is one of the best liquids for cleaning windows—or lamp chimneys.
Silk handbags of black, lined with bright figure silks, are effective with dark frocks. Many of them have a big colored stone for a clasp.
An old cook book tells us "if we suffer from indigestion, to masticate slowly a half a teaspoonful of wheat bran." Try it.
Full pleated skirts and Norfolk coats of crepe meteor make very charming dresses worn with white crepe blouses for young girls.

Cleaning Jewelry.

All jewelry that is constantly worn should be washed every month or six weeks. It is not a difficult matter, either. All you have to do is to make a soapy lather and add a few drops of ammonia. Take an old tooth brush and brush all the dirt out of the crevices. When quite clean, take the jewelry out of the water and rub perfectly dry with a chamois leather or ordinary tissue paper.
When cleaning any article that is set with stones, such as a ring, be more gentle with the toothbrush.
If you are the lucky possessor of any pearls, remember they must never be put into soapy water, though sea water is good for them.

THE FLIES' REVENGE.

Ten little flies
All in a line;
One got swatted,
Then there were....
Nine little flies
Grimly sedate;
Licking their chops—
Swat! Then there were....
Eight little flies
Raising some more.
Swat, swat, swat, swat!
Then there were....
Four little flies
Colored green-blue.
Swat! (Ain't it easy?)
Then there were....
Two little flies
Dodged the civilian,
Early next day
There were a million!

HOME TOWN BUILDING

A Farmer's Remedy for Keeping Young People at Home

As explained in my letter printed in your issue of last week, we have solved the problem of keeping our young folks at home. My father started the plan of home amusements and I have followed in his footsteps. My greatest extravagance in this whole business has been, I think, in our tool shop. They tell me that I have inherited a craze of my grandfather's, who, it is said attended all of the auction sales held within a radius of twenty miles, for the sole purpose of buying mechanics' tools of various kinds for which he had no earthly use. Be that as it may, I certainly have a strong liking for our workshop. It gives our billiard table a lively competition on rainy days, except with the women folks, who favor the more genteel amusement. Every male member of the family is a handy jack-of-all trades in the workshop, and I think that in expense saving for repair bills, the workshop has been a paying investment regardless of my habit of buying more tools than we can possibly find use for. In any event, it is mighty big asset in keeping the boys busy when nothing else under the sun would do so. They can mend anything from a Waterbury watch to a twenty-ton traction engine, or think they can, which is essentially the same thing.
Our swimming pool, tennis, croquet and baseball grounds, as well as the indoor games, including the billiard table, are open to the boys and girls of the whole neighborhood. We make them feel that they are welcome at all times, except during the hours scheduled for work. This rule is rigidly enforced. I could not afford to have our working hours interfered with and we never have any annoyance in that connection. Our workshop is sacred to the use of the family. Elsewhere about the premises visitors are always welcome and they come in numbers.

In addition to keeping our young people perfectly contented with their home surroundings, I find that they go at their work with more vim and energy and seem to take more of a personal interest in the management of the affairs of the place than they otherwise would do. And last, but not least, I never experience any trouble whatever in getting all of the farm help that I require at any season of the year, while some of my neighbors frequently pay more for less dependable men, especially since the neighboring town commenced to go backward and the young people left for the city or elsewhere.

Every school boy knows that the value of land of every kind, no matter whether it be town or country, is affected by an increase or decrease of population in the district. My farm is not for sale and is not likely to be, but an enterprising, prosperous town near at hand is more desirable as a neighbor than a deserted village. That's why your campaign of home town building appeals to me and why I am interested in your success.

My father's plan, which I have followed and enlarged upon to keep pace with the times, has been absolutely successful. It is a paying proposition in making farm home life desirable and it helps to solve the farm labor problem. The same principles applied in a modified form in the country town would serve the same purpose, but the first move should be in the interest of the stores who are being put out of business by their big city competitors. I read advertisements to compare prices—it's what the women folks call shopping—for pastime. If no prices are quoted the advertisement has no interest for me. I like the idea of making the home town paper serve as a catalogue. It would pay all right.

AN ENGLISH RIFLE CHAMPION.

In England, small bore rifle club shooting has been developed to a high state of perfection and along with this development some of the best marksmen in the world have been brought to light. This shooting is done at short ranges with .22 caliber target rifles. The distances are 25, 50, 75 and 100 yards, and when it is said that there are over four thousand of these clubs in existence, a fair idea may be obtained of the hold of the sport has upon shooting men.
Probably no shooter is better known among the small bore enthusiasts of

Between watching both the flag and the pennant in these strenuous war and base ball times, the average male citizen is kept pretty busy.

Colds Do Not Leave Willingly.

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why you should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles these cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c and $1.00 adv-3

London than is S. W. Briggs, who won the Remington-UMC competition at the London meeting held on the Ham and Petersham range during the week of June 21st to 26th. This big shooting tournament was given under the patronage of the Duke of Connaught and was promoted and managed by the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs.
The competition which Mr. Briggs won was a single entry affair, with all competitors shooting at one time, each firing ten shots at 100 yards on a target having a 4-inch bull's-eye. The prize which Mr. Briggs won was a gold medal.
It is interesting to note that Mr. Briggs began shooting in the Spring of 1913 and for a few months after becoming a member of the Alexandra Palace Rifle Club, did not do any very remarkable shooting. However, after he won his first spoon competition, he was placed at scratch and subsequently had the distinction of making a possible score—the only one made in the club during the year.
In 1914 he fired in seventeen matches for an average of 99.20 out of the possible 100—a remarkable record indeed. Believing, however, that he was not securing the maximum results of which he was capable with his outfit, Mr. Briggs secured a new rifle which he found to be extremely accurate, and effected a perfect shooting combination by selecting Remington-UMC ammunition.

Need Not Be!

That is—if you use the right remedy—Sloan's Liniment is a real necessity in every home—for young and old. Its merit is praised in dozens of letters. A stiff neck from colds, children's sprains, those aching muscles, that sharp neuralgia pain—these find guaranteed relief in Sloan's Liniment. Every home meets with sudden aches and accidents. Your home needs a bottle. 25c, 50c and $1.00. adv-3

BELIEVING WRONG FOREVER.

Because a man has committed a wrong, perhaps even a crime, it is not necessary to condemn him to never-ending distrust, or to stamp him with the brand of Cain. Many times it happens that a wrong is committed in extraordinary circumstances and bitterly regretted soon afterward. Experience teaches its own terrible lessons and perhaps a man's first fall would be his last if only the world would leave him alone and forget. But because the world scents sensation and thrives upon it, it remembers forever, and the man who goes wrong rarely has the chance to completely retrieve the past. He may make the effort and brave discouragement and hard experience and perhaps appear to make some headway in his fight to regain his lost footing, but, generally speaking, there is always someone who never forgets, someone who by a word undoes the patient work of years and breathes renewed life into the specter of the past. The soul that has been wounded with its own knife-trust never forgets, but it is one thing for a man to remember his own misdoings and the lessons they teach, and quite another thing for someone else to bring them to light as horrible examples to others.

Surgeon J. C. Pryor of the navy openly advocates the complete banishment of the last picturesque trimmings from life in United States war vessels. He would reform the sailor's costume to do away with the wide collar, the billowing blouse, the lanyard strung about the neck and the bell-shaped trousers. If he has his way, the bo's'n's mate will be indistinguishable from an elevator operator. Traditional sailor garb is cumbersome, says he. The lanyard, to which is attached knife or whistle, may be of use, it is conceded. The bell-shaped trouser has a valid reason, since it is conveniently rolled up above the knee in swabbing down the decks. But let us not argue for any retention of things old and beloved. Port is no longer port, but left, and starboard now is right. The run of seamen could not reef a topgallant if the job were to be done in a glassy harbor. They are mechanics now, operating huge steel machines, and next we know the ship's goat will be exiled to dry land.

A Californian has invented a shower bath which a traveler can carry in his pocket. It is a nickel-plated brass tube with a cork. The tube is bent like a fishhook and one end inserted in the cork through a hole in the center, with a round plate to keep it from slipping. The other end of the tube is flattened to make a narrow slit about half an inch long at the end. This slit causes the water to spray. The other end is fitted to any faucet in a bathtub or washbowl, and the force of the water causes a fine and sufficient spray to spout that gives a refreshing shower bath. The spray is not great or strong, but it is enough to be the means of great refreshment to the tired traveler. The cork is inserted in the faucet and, of course, can be made to fit any size aperture.

Russia lacks only ten longitudinal degrees of stretching half way round the earth, and possesses, the Liverpool (England) Daily Post and Mercury tells us, one-sixth the landed area of the planet. Perhaps the strangest fact is that Russia's Asiatic possessions are forty times as great as those of Japan, even since the new Asiatic balance that followed the Russo-Japanese war was struck. The variety of Russia's resources make the empire second only to the United States as the greatest food-producing country in the world. It leads all nations in mineral wealth and timber supply.

And now it is the chautauqua salute, upon which we had always looked as the very acme of innocent enthusiasm, that comes under the ban of medical science. A Doctor Brown of Patterson, N. J., declares the handkerchief waving fashion of silent applause is a most dangerous and reprehensive practice. Instead of being the mild expression of middle-class exuberance, the chautauqua is a deadly assault upon health. Every waving handkerchief releases millions of microscopic enemies of mankind. And the worst of it is there seems good reason for the doctor's theory.

Bets are being made in New York at odds of $100 to $800 that the war in Europe will end before December 30. If it doesn't end before that time a great many "experts" will be discredited.

Our mint at Philadelphia has just shipped 4,700,000 nickel coins made for the government of San Salvador. That is one of those Central American jitney republics.

When it comes to dispensing wisdom the average man thinks he has Solomon beaten to a frazzle.

Don't forget the Boy Scouts. Remember you were young yourself once.

THE CARE OF FIREARMS.

"I am using a rifle that has been shot over 10,000 times, and it could be sold today as a new gun, because I have taken care of it and never, under any circumstances, put it away 'soiled,'" says E. P. Thomas of Morehouse, Missouri, writing on the subject of "Care of Firearms."

"When learning how to handle a gun I often wished," continued Mr. Thomas, "for a word of advice from some experienced person. I burned pounds of powder in the old muzzle loaders before I learned my lesson well; therefore, I feel that when we have something good we should pass it along."

"Briefly then, my experience tells me that first you should own a good standard arm. In shooting practice, use small objects to shoot at and train your nerves to be steady from the beginning."

"Acquire the habit of pressing (not pulling) the trigger and try to fire as soon as you have the proper aim."

"Always grip a gun of any kind firmly but not too tightly. If the grip is too tight the tendency is to tremble. Don't hurry, be careful and deliberate. Do not expect to hit the mark every time. You cannot do it. Be patient, but optimistic. Try, try and then some more. Speed will come with practice."

"There is one thing the marksman must not overlook under any circumstances; the condition of the inside and outside of his gun. Never lay it away without carefully cleaning and oiling it outside and inside."

"Do not think that the .22 is a toy for children to play with. It isn't. It is built for serious work and is a mechanism of great accuracy. It will send the tiny 29 grain bullet a distance of 100 yards in less than half a second. By using the .22 long rifle cartridge, you can increase the distance to 200 yards and secure greater accuracy."

"In conclusion, I can only say, do your part as a marksman, have faith in your gun, and the results will not only please but astonish you."

Ruth Sends Word.

"I'll bet if Ruth were here she would know of some better way of putting up this pineapple, than the old fashioned method I am using," mused Ruth's mother, "I wish she was home from her vacation."

Just then the telephone bell rang and Ruth's voice was heard at the other end of the wire.

"I was just wishing you were home Ruth," observed her mother after a short preliminary conversation, "I need your help with the pineapple I am canning."

"Well, Aunt Minerva is putting up her pineapple too, and she has such a simple way of doing it. Here is how: We use the leaved end as a handle to hold it by, and pare the pineapple with a sharp knife, just deep enough to remove the outer skin. The eyes will then be seen in spiral rows. Following these rows we cut a groove or channel just deep enough to cut out the eyes. This will leave the pineapple resembling a large screw. Next cut off the leaves, split the pineapple lengthwise and remove the core. Or if you desire to slice whole, the core may be removed from each piece afterward. Now run along and do just as I've told you mother, and you'll have no trouble."

Honey Items for Women.

Tiny hand-painted pearl buttons and dyed pearl buttons in odd shapes, are to appear on autumn waists.

Navy is often trimmed with a certain light shade of gray-blue which suggests a soldier's uniform.

The white linen skirt cut on similar lines and adorned with pockets is always in good fashion for morning wear.

Sleeveless silk sweater coats are a welcome novelty, for they solve the problem of giving a little warmth without giving too much.

The smartest sleeves promise to fit closely at the top and to flare at the wrist. The dressy frock should have the flared collar of lace.

Mulberry purple, gray, tete de negre, dark green and navy are the favorite schemes, not forgetting the always distinguished black and white.

Cement.

You can make at home and it is cheaper if wanted in large quantities. This recipe makes nearly two gallons, but of course, you can make it up in as small an amount as you like, mixing the ingredients in the same proportions. White glue, 4 pounds, dry white lead 1½ pounds, isinglass ½ lb. salt water 1 gallon, alcohol, 1 quart, white varnish ½ pint. Dissolve the glue and isinglass in the water by a very gentle heat. Stir in the lead, mix the alcohol and varnish together and then stir in the rest. Keep in a cool place closely covered. One-sixth of these quantities really makes quite enough to last the ordinary household for a long time, but making in small amounts it is cheaper and more satisfactory to buy one of the good reliable cements that are already on the market.

THE LAND OF BY-AND-BY.

There is a land, as I've heard tell, where nothing's ever done; the people who therein do dwell, no work have yet begun. "Tomorrow" is the watchword there, and "Pretty soon" the cry—the name of this unpleasant land—the land of By-and-By.
Procrastination there is king; he rules with a high hand, but makes no laws or anything to benefit the land. The lessons they are never learned—no use to question why; the chores are left unfinished in the land of By-and-By.
And if you put things off and say you'll do them pretty soon, and shrink your tasks from day to day, perhaps some afternoon they'll take you off to this bad land—no friend will heed your cry—and there is no tomorrow in the land of By-and-By.
