PRIZE OFFERED BY BOARD OF TRADE FOR INSIGNIA.

About 35 members were present at an enthusiastic Board of Trade meeting at the city hall Wednesday evening. The membership committee reported that the total membership now numbers 61. The present membership committee was continued, and will redouble their efforts with the view of boosting the membership to at least 100. A motion was carried to hold the membership lists open until April 1, when they will be closed and additional members only admitted in accordance with the constitution and by-laws.

It was decided that the Board of Trade should have some design or insignia to be used on its stationery and other advertising matter, and a motion was made and carried to offer a prize of $2.50 for the best design and slogan for the use of the Board. The competition for this prize is open to anyone in the city, and the pupils of the schools are especially urged to enter the contest. If the prize is won by a pupil of the high school or of one of the parochial schools Mr. Thomas Davison very generously offered to pay the prize himself. To offer a further inducement to the young folks the Herald will add $1 to the prize offered if won by a school pupil.

The design must be an original one and must include a slogan to be used in connection therewith. The Board reserves the right to adopt the design submitted by one person and the slogan submitted by another if they think advisable, and divide the prize between the two contestants. To be eligible for a prize the designs must be in the hands of the secretary of the Board by April 20.

After disposing of some other business the Board adjourned until Wednesday evening, March 29.

EVERY CHILD TO KNOW HOW FLOUR IS MADE.

Grand Rapids, March 11.—That every school child in Michigan may receive practical instruction in flour milling is the plan of the Michigan Millers Association according to Stephen J. McDonald of Grand Rapids who has the work in charge.

Demonstration charts and especially prepared treatises on milling processes will be furnished free to all public and parochial schools whether or not domestic science is taught.

The need of these instructions is apparent from the large number of requests for information received and the short course furnished by the Millers Association is the first of a series of educational activities to be promoted by this organization.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The circuit court for Iosco county convened for the regular session on Tuesday of this week. As all the jury cases were either continued over the term or until next month, the jury was notified not to appear.

There were three criminal cases on the calendar, two of which, the People vs. Hugh Anderson, George Parker and Ralph Anderson, and the People vs. Frederick Woodman were continued over to the June term. The case of the People vs. Ralph Anderson was discontinued upon payment of fine and costs.

The cases on the civil and chancery calendar were all continued, some over to the June term, but most of them to April 24th. The jury will be summoned on the latter date.

The petition of Albert W. Black to quash the disbarment proceedings instituted against him by the Iosco County Bar Association was refused, the charges having been filed by the friends of the court, and the hearing of the case was set for April 18th.

The civil cases which were continued until April 24, are: Selig Solomon vs. H. Kimball Loud; Victoria LaBerge vs. John Schriber; John N. Goretaki vs. A. W. Black. The chancery cases are: Sarah Kohn vs. Joseph H. Kohn; Annabel Cook vs. Clarence Cook; N. C. Hartingh, sr. vs. John A. Mark, clerk of Board of Supervisors, et al.

Judge Widdis made quick disposal of the nearly eight hundred unfinished cases on the calendar, the cases being dismissed as fast as they could be read. This clears the docket back to the institution of the Iosco county circuit court, and hereafter only those cases which go over one year without action being taken thereon will be listed in addition to the regular calendar.

AN OPEN LETTER.

March 14, 1916.

Tawas Herald,

Tawas City, Mich.
Mr. Editor:—The item published in the Herald Feb. 25 headed "Let the People Judge," regarding the contempt of court, I would like to give you my fair opinion as a tax-payer of this county.

(1) Honorable Judge Sharp, in his address to the three supervisors states: "I cannot but believe that in your action in connection with the bill that was presented to you for allowance that you woefully misconceived your duty." Does that mean that those three supervisors did not do right? That statement substantiates Judge Widdis' action.

It is not my desire to place a penalty on any person that is not guilty of a wrong doing, but Judge Sharp has not shown a stronger point of law to free those men which he admits committed a wrong.

(2) The paper stated that they were released on a technical point. A technical point in law, if higher authorities are right, means a point that is based on a hair splitting system, a point that cannot be detected with the naked eye.

(3) Concerning the remarks set afloat that court had adjourned when Judge Widdis informed the chairman of the board of supervisors to proceed with their session, I would call it a recess of court to give the supervisors time to comply with the requirement of the court, and that said court remained in session to receive the approval or disapproval of such requirement.

(4) I also believe that to do justice to the taxpayers of this county this case should be carried up to the supreme court for a decision, and as taxpayers and citizens we should have a right to compel Sheriff Johnson to carry this case to the supreme court to approve or disapprove of Judge Widdis' action. We as taxpayers have a right to demand such a decision from the supreme court, and the sheriff would comply only with his oath of office supporting the constitution of this state and the constitution of the United States.

(5) I would like to make the suggestion that every taxpayer of this county mail a postal card to the Tawas Herald stating for or against a decision of the supreme court.

Signed,
A Taxpayer.

THE GLORY OF MICHIGAN.

Magazine Writer Concisely States Why Michigan Is Great. Some of Her Needs.

In the January 1916 issue the American Magazine began a series of articles on "The Glory of the States." In the April issue which was published March 16 appeared an article on Michigan, written by A. P. Johnson, publisher of the Grand Rapids News. Following are a few excerpts from the article, which we reproduce by special permission from the American Magazine:

"You cliff-dweller on Manhattan, what would you do without Michigan? You arise in the morning from a bed made in Michigan. Pull up a window shade that came from Michigan; the janitor's carpet sweeper, are Michigan handiwork. Your breakfast fruit was picked in Michigan, and your cereal manufactured there. If perchance, your eggs did not come from our great poultry-producing state, and the bacon from a Michigan hog that was raised on our nutritious corn, you can be assured your salt was mined in Michigan.

"If you ride to your work in a motor car, ten to one it was made in Michigan. The copper wire for your street cars came from Michigan mines, and—

"Your office? "Begin all over again. "Your office furniture, fixtures, filing cabinets, everything, from a typewriter machine to the sticky fly-paper and the janitor's carpet sweeper, bears the stamp of Michigan. That is, if you buy the best. We make nothing cheap in Michigan. Your letters are written on paper from the immense paper mills of Michigan, as are those you receive. You can't get away from Michigan coming or going. You can't do without it. Your every surrounding from the steel girders that knit together your skyscrapers to the delicate wall tints made from gypsum, testifies to the productiveness of our state.

"Do you doubt that Michigan is still good?"

"Michigan needs advertising. It needs to be advertised by its own people. Michigan natives seem to think it a sin to talk about themselves. We dub along, believing the world knows as much about Michigan as we do. Wherever men and women assemble to praise their own commonwealths, there are those who sit quietly aside and say nothing. Make a bet that those who say the least are from Michigan. You'll win. The people of Michigan are still living by the old outdated adage that silence is golden.

"We have twenty million acres of uncultivated land within twelve hours of the world's greatest markets, but who knows it?"

"We have the most invigorating, God-given climate in the north temperate zone. Mention that to a Michigan native, and he'll agree with the same reluctance that he swear to an improvised alibi.

"Michigan, by its admission to the Union, brought us its dowry the present system of education. Did you know that? Of course you didn't, because Michigan people don't talk about it, and rival states won't admit it.

"We need an alarm clock in Michigan, a big one that can be heard all over the state. We need something to keep us awake. We are woefully indifferent to opportunity.

"One great trouble with us in Michigan, is we're too rich.

"We're rich, and we don't know it. We're great, and we won't admit it.

"We need competition. We need to be stirred up. We have drawn on the wealth of this state until we got tired and went to sleep on the job.

"And with it all, Michigan is still good."

THE NORTHEASTERN MICH. DEV. BUREAU PLACES EXHIBIT IN CHICAGO.

By co-operating with the Immigration Commission of Michigan, the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau has placed an exhibit of Northeastern Michigan farm products in the permanent exhibit from Michigan at the headquarters of Zone No. 10, Federal Employment Office, Chicago, which is a branch of the U. S. Department of Labor.

This office is maintained by the federal government to assist the immigrant in securing his needs in employment, labor or farm land. With the exhibit from Michigan conspicuously before them it is hoped they will be influenced to settle here. Northeastern Michigan literature is easily accessible to all visitors.

Secretary T. F. Marston, of the Bureau, went to Chicago and personally supervised the erection and placing the exhibit which is arranged in a conspicuous place on South Wabash Ave.

SOME GOOD ADVICE.

Keep your store in the limelight. It is a satisfaction to sell reliable and worth while merchandise, but don't take it for granted that all your possible customers are as familiar with the high quality of your goods as you are. See to it that they get this information. Advertise. There is a lot of truth in the old adage—

"He who whispers down a well About the goods he has to sell, Will never reap the golden dollars Like him, who climbs a tree and hollers."

AN INTERESTING POEM.

Tawas City people will be interested in the following poem, "Michigan vs. West," which was written by Mrs. M. E. Valentine, wife of the former superintendent of schools here, and published in one of the educational magazines, under her maiden name.

Michigan vs. West.

Fritz Van Syckle.
You may talk of the west and its grandeur,
Of its fruits and its gold and its wine,
Of its air and wonderful climate,
From the valleys up to the "snow line."

I have been to the "Fair" and I've seen them,
And I'm prouder than ever before
Of the state of which I'm a native
With her rivers and lake-bound shore.

I've been shown the groves and the gardens
I have traveled the "State Highway";
I have seen the sun set in the ocean;
I have felt the fog from the "Bay";
I have shivered until my teeth chattered.

And slept under blankets a score,
While the wind and the fog from the ocean
Crept through every window and door.

I have breathed in the dust of the valleys
A quiver with the tropical heat,
Till I wished I were only a Fiji
And beads made a costume complete.
I have gazed on acres of vineyards
And seen sections of golden grain;
But give me green grass and a forest
With an occasional summer rain.

There are real estate agents and "boosters"
On every foot of the road;
From the size of your hat to a section,
They have land they wish to unload.
They will tell you of chicken ranches
Where profits roll in every day,
And give you a tip on investments
That are turning such wonderful pay.

My trip was worth all it cost me.
I am glad I have seen the "wild west."
Michigan is glory in summer,
In winter we welcome the guest
With cheer and with warmth and with comfort.

No matter how stormy and cold;
And I'll never complain of the weather
After a summer of "sunshine and gold."

DEATH OF JOHN SCHREIBER.

Early Wednesday morning, March 22, John Schreiber, who has been ill for so many years passed away. He was apparently feeling quite well the day previous, ate a hearty supper and then retired about eight o'clock. He was heard stirring around the house about 2 o'clock. In the morning he did not call for anyone as was his habit, but thinking he was resting no one disturbed him. After breakfast he was found dead in his bed. The cause of death was due to dropsy and heart trouble. The deceased had been ill for about seven years with dropsy and Bright's disease and has been confined to his bed almost constantly since the fall of 1914.

John Schreiber was born in Germany June 16, 1852 and his age was at the time of his death 63 years, 9 months and 5 days. On the 3rd of October, 1874, he was married at Ghent, New York, to Miss Susannah Grinke. Two years afterwards the couple came to Michigan and took up their residence on a farm in Wilber where they have spent thirty-eight years of their life. Two years ago the old homestead was destroyed by fire and they moved to East Tawas where they have been residing since. The deceased has hosts of friends in the Tawas and vicinity who will mourn his demise.

He also leaves a wife and six children, four sons and two daughters, to mourn his loss, his wife, Susannah Schreiber of this city; the sons, Charles, of Cook dam; John A., jr., of Wilber; Fred S., of Flint and Ernest B., of this city; two daughters, Mrs. Amelia Cordo, of Coloma, Wisconsin, and Mrs. Fred Brooks, of Wilber. ### SUNSHINE A GERMICIDE.

Tests Show That Germs of Disease Can Not Survive When Exposed to the Sun.

Sunshine is an amazingly potent germicide for the farm housekeeper and in the dairy and stables. The practice of exposing cooking and other utensils used in connection with food to direct sunlight makes use of this fact, although comparatively few appreciate exactly the work done by the sun in this regard. Probably only those who are acquainted with tests which have actually been made realize how quickly sunshine kills disease germs exposed to it. Hence the following tests may be generally instructive and interesting.

A pasty, creamy mass of tuberculous material, which was proven to contain uncountable number of virulent tubercle bacilli, was obtained from a tuberculous cow and spread in thin smooth translucent layers on sheets of glass, pieces of wood, and strips of muslin. Some of the sheets of glass, pieces of wood, and strips of muslin were then placed outdoors on a moderately warm, clear, calm day where the sun could shine on them, and an equal number were placed in a dark room. After 15 minutes exposure to the sun, the tuberculous material on the glass, wood, and muslin still contained large numbers of living, virulent tubercle bacilli, which were proved to be fully capable of causing tuberculosis, but after 30 minutes exposure to the sun no living tubercle bacilli could be found; every test that could be made proved that they were all dead.

Similar tests with quite large opaque masses of tuberculous material, larger and denser than any tuberculous person is apt to expectorate, proved that the bacilli in such masses on glass are still alive after 4, but entirely dead in less than 8 hours, and still alive in the material on wood and muslin after 8, but dead in less than 16 hours.

The tuberculous material in thin layers on glass, wood and muslin, kept in a dark room, was proved to contain fully virulent, living tubercle bacilli after 30 days. The contrast is remarkable, tubercle bacilli of the same kind, on the same kind of material, dying in a smaller number of minutes in the sunshine than the number of days they remained alive in a dark room.

As most varieties of disease germs are more easily destroyed by germs, acids the tubercle bacilli, and as tubercle bacilli, in the thin layers in which they are likely to adhere to clothing, blankets, rugs, draperies, furniture, walls, floors, etc., are killed by the rays of the sun in less than half an hour, though they remain alive in dark places a month and longer, it is reasonable to draw the following conclusions:

1. As a general sanitary principle it is desirable that all dwellings, stables, etc., should be so constructed that an abundance of sunshine can reach their interiors.
2. As a general protective measure against disease germs, it is an excellent practice to expose utensils for handling milk, and milk cans after they have been cleaned, to direct sunlight, and to hang or spread wearing apparel, blankets, bedding, rugs, horse blankets, etc., periodically where the sun can shine on all parts of them.

THE HISTORY OF ALABASTER.

By Dorothy Morley.

On the eastern coast of Michigan between the thumb and finger by Saginaw Bay which joins Lake Huron was a large tract of land unsettled, covered with very thick woods and inhabited by Indians.

In the year of 1860 a salt water seaman and fisherman by the name of John Tompson came upon the land and home-steaded it from the state. He built a log shanty and lived there alone until the land became his own.

The state road was being put through from Bay City to Alpena. Two men by the name of Patricks had the contract for surveying it.

Finding Tompson alone, one of them entertained him in lumberman's fashion while the other looked about to see what the land was worth. He found the woods very good for lumber also that earth was very rich with gypsum rock. When he returned to the shanty he found Tompson half intoxicated with liquor. They traded a silver watch, a double barreled shot gun and a hound for the land.

In 1860 the Patricks sold the land to George B. and Benjamin F. Smith of Ohio, for $20,000.

Two years afterward (1862) the Smiths came and built a saw mill. Men came to work and they built tents at night. A dock was started in 1862 and finished in 1863. Also a small, flat roofed, frame store which leaked very much.

Benjamin Smith acted as store-keeper. The goods were all brought

Will One Million Workmen Lose Their Jobs If The Saloons Are Closed?

By Charles Stelzel

According to the defenders of the saloon 1,000,000 workmen would permanently be thrown out of the labor market following the introduction of national prohibition. This argument is based entirely upon the absurd proposition that if the liquor dealers fail to get the money now spent for beer and whiskey nobody else will get it. It is assumed that if a man does not spend a dollar for booze he will throw that dollar into the sewer or into some kind of a bottomless pit, instead of using it to purchase some other commodity which will do good instead of harm, which will give the workmen of the country more work, more wages, and greater prosperity every way than if the same amount of money were spent for beer and whiskey.

A good deal is being said about the enormous amount of capital invested in the liquor industry, and yet, according to the Statistical Abstract of the United States, for every $1,000,000 invested in the average industry practically four times as much raw material is required, four times as much wages are paid, and four times as many workers are employed as is the case in the liquor industry.

Let us take five leading industries in the United States, and compare them with the liquor business, with reference to the number of wage earners employed. For every $1,000,000 invested in each of these industries the following number of wage earners are employed: liquor, 77; iron and steel and their products, 284; paper and printing, 367; leather and its products, 469; textiles and their finished products, 578; lumber and its manufactures, 579. These figures prove that the iron industry employs nearly four times as many, paper and printing nearly five as many, leather six times as many, textiles seven and one-half times as many workers for every $1,000,000 invested as does the liquor industry.

What is the ratio of wages paid the workers to the amount of capital invested in the liquor business, as compared with each of the industries noted? Here are the figures: liquor, 5.6 per cent; iron, 17.6 per cent; paper, 21.3 per cent; leather 23.5 per cent; textiles, 23.8 per cent; lumber 27.1 per cent. A quick glance at these figures shows how comparatively little the labor man gets out of the liquor business. If the $2,000,000,000 which we now spend for intoxicating liquor were spent for bread and clothing—the two staple articles in the life of the workingman—it would give employment to nearly eight times as many workers, who would collectively receive five and one-half times as much wages as is now the case in the liquor business.

Besides this, it would require $600,000,000 worth of additional raw material to what the liquor industry now uses. It would not be necessary to spend all of the $2,000,000 for bread and clothing if the liquor industry were destroyed, but if the transfer of this money into the legitimate industries mentioned above would produce the results described, is it not fair to say that substantially the same general results would be achieved if the total sum were distributed among all of the industries that would receive the benefit of increased business were men to spend money for the necessities of life, as well as for its legitimate luxuries, instead of for beer and whiskey? If this were done, the men who make glass bottles, barrels, automobiles, signs, printing material, cabinet work, and other products for use in the liquor business, would find jobs in turning out of these same materials for other industries.

The figures given by the liquor interests to the number of men who would be affected by the abolition of the liquor traffic are greatly exaggerated. The Census Report for 1910 tells us that in all manufacturing industries there were then employed 6,616,046 persons. The liquor industry employed 62,920, or just about one per cent of the total. But of this number only about 15,000 were brewers and maltsters, distillers and rectifiers. The remainder of the 62,920 were employed as engineers, carpenters, machinists, teamsters, bottlers, etc.—occupations which are not at all peculiar to the liquor business. There were more teamsters employed than there were brewers and maltsters, distillers and rectifiers.

There are about 100,000 bartenders in the United States. What will become of these when the saloon is abolished? What is it that makes a successful bartender? It is his ability as a salesman, and a man who is a good bartender will make a good clerk or salesman in practically any other kind of business. Furthermore, it requires many more people to sell $2,000,000 worth of bread and clothing, for example, than it does to sell liquor of the same value. And it is more than likely that at least as many salaried employees, such as traveling salesmen, bookkeepers and stenographers will be employed.

But what about the 15,000 or so brewers and maltsters, distillers and rectifiers? They will, of necessity, be compelled to adjust themselves to changed conditions. But this does not mean that they will either go adrift or cause a labor panic. The constantly changing situation in the industrial world in this country often compels men to transfer from one occupation to another, many of them being required to learn entirely new trades. Take, for illustration, the situation when the Mergenthaler typesetting machine was introduced. The printers thought that their trade was destroyed. However, they immediately learned how to run typesetting machines, with the result that today there are more printers employed than ever before, and they are receiving higher wages than at any time in their history. As a matter of fact, however, more workmen lose their jobs because saloons are open than would be the case were the saloons to be closed.

As somebody put it, "When liquor puts a man out of a job it unfits him for another job. When no-license puts a bartender out of a job it makes him a wealth-producing workman. It is better that the bartender should lose his job and get a better one than that dozens of his patrons should lose their jobs and be unfitted for any job."—Advertisement.

In 1910 the second mill burned on a Sunday and another was built, also a Catholic church. The school house was raised in 1911, making two more rooms upstairs. The town hall was also built.

Mat Kinney, of Decatur, Michigan, a widely known farmer of that section, takes pleasure these days in telling his friends how use of Tanlac, the "Master Medicine," has given him relief from stomach trouble. A few days ago he made the following statement:

"For a long time I suffered from stomach trouble and flatulency and could get no permanent relief. I would always suffer from gas, after eating. Severe pains in my stomach would cause me much trouble. I had a fine appetite but my digestion was extremely poor. I suffered from malnutrition.

"Tanlac was recommended to me and I began its use. To date I feel very much relieved. I do not bloat any more. I suffer no more from gas or sour stomach. I seem to have more energy and am feeling fine. Tanlac is the first medicine to help me and I can praise it highly."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S LIFE STORY AS HE TOLD IT

(This is a continuation of Charlie Chaplin's life story. It was written by Harry C. Carr, who recently achieved fame as a war correspondent for the Los Angeles Times. No contribution to "movie" literature has created so much interest among film "fans" as this simple, straightforward account of the life history of the world's most famous comedian.—Editor.)

(This story is copyrighted by Photoplay Publishing Co. All rights reserved.)

CHAPTER VII.
Chaplin's idea is that one of the oldest-thing rough comedies gives absolutely no chance for real effects. When the paperhanger has pasted down the back of the duds and somebody has been pushed off into the lake, the comedy has been exhausted. Plays like "The Tramp" open up all kinds of chances for contrast—lights and shade. He does many things now because he believes "the public wants them so"—and for no other reason.

Chaplin also believes that scenarios will be longer. He is a great admirer of "The Birth of a Nation." He saw that play nearly every week during its long run in Los Angeles. His idea is that comedies will also come to a point where one funny man provides a whole evening's entertainment. "Tillie's Punctured Romance" he believes an example of this tendency.

He has two reasons for wanting to put on longer plays. One is that it will give more time in which to carefully work out his effects. The greatest reason is that he can produce the same financial returns without appearing so often.

Chaplin is of the opinion that it is taking an awful chance with his popularity to be absent in a corner even a week or so. We see Maude Adams at long intervals—once a year, perhaps, and we are eager to see her. But would we be so keen if we could see her in four or five different plays the same night in the same town?

As Chaplin says, this is a terrific test of popularity.

King Charlie.
In the meantime, however, his popularity continues to increase to a veritable craze. When Charlie Chaplin goes to a summer resort near Los Angeles, it is like the triumphant visit of a king.

It is an open secret that Chaplin doesn't expect to be in the pictures long.

"I want to make all the money I can," he says. "Then, in a few years, I am going to quit. I am going along and let some other fellow have the center of the stage. I have made a bigger hit than I ever thought possible in my wildest dreams. And I am much obliged to everyone for laughing. For the public is the entertainer's court."

That Charlie Chaplin is a born actor, entertainer, clown and buffoon, not only while posing before the camera, but from the time he rises in the morning till he goes to sleep at night—generally late at night—is the sum of the opinion of his colleagues at Niles, with whom he worked for months. Some of these actors and actresses, as is the way with stage folk, do not speak very highly of Chaplin's "art," yet all of them recognize that there is some sort of mad genius in the little chap who has made the whole country laugh at his antics. As for Chaplin himself, he stoutly contends that it takes as much conscientious preparation for a comedy as for a higher art.

Selecting His Partner.
Now for a few instances to prove the above verdict of his colleagues:

Five or six months ago, the Essanay company decided that Chaplin ought to have a madcap partner of the opposite sex to hurl through his dizzy series of utterances illogical exploits. Chaplin and his managers had the whole field of musical comedy, comic opera, comic dramas and burlesque. The golden megaphone of the Essanay company could summon any one of a thousand or two of sprightly young women with lots of stage experience, praised and petted in public—and funny!

"Let's just put an ad in the paper," suggested Chaplin, scratching his curly poll. "Let's get some new blood in the game."

The following morning there was a small personal advertisement in one of the San Francisco papers, offering a position in "movies" to a young girl without previous stage experience. During the text, Chaplin looked over his shoulder more than a thousand fair applicants. The cat was out of the bag. The stage-struck young women of San Francisco knew that Chaplin was looking for a girl to play against him, and the competition became hysterical.

Picked a Winner.
Chaplin, unaided, selected one, Miss Edna Purviance, who did not know even the alphabet of the stage business.

She has made good. She has appeared in a number of reels with Chaplin, offering an excellent foil for him. There were some heartaches at Niles, but the work of the new film actress convinced both actors and Chaplin's employees that she knew something about the show business which they had never suspected in one so guileless.

"How the Dickens did he manage to do it?" asked one of the veteran comedians at Niles. "That job of picking a new woman is one of the tricks of the trade which ancient and honorable managers have spent scores of years in mastering."

The selection of Miss Purviance might, of course, be explained as a lucky accident, a lottery chance. But then there is Dick Turpin, whom Chaplin selected for his most ancient and honorable manager. Turpin is at most as funny as Chaplin himself and divided honors with him in several film comedies. Here was another instance of Chaplin's astuteness. His ability to pick winners was further shown recently in the selection of Bud Jamieson, with whom the comedian recently became acquainted in San Francisco. Jamieson is big, fat, genial, jolly, and an excellent musician, but he had never been on the stage till Chaplin and his associates invited him to Niles, not for the purpose of entering the "movies," but just to amuse the player folk out there! A sort of court-jester to the jester-royal.

(The next installment of this interesting biography will be run in an early issue. Watch for it.)

Difference of Opinion.
Dinks—is his new play serious, or is it a comedy?
Winks—There's a difference of opinion.
Dinks—How's that?
Winks—He told me it was serious, and a manager who read it said it was a joke.

His Kick.
"These automobiles are a nuisance."
"What's de matter, pard? One of dem run you down?"
"No; but last night dey put me in a cell wid a chauffeur, and I couldn't sleep for the smell of gasoline."

You Can Win— Or Lose Your Corn Crop

It is entirely up to you. You can lose all the feeding value of your corn crop or you can save it. You know that your corn will not mature, that you cannot cash in on an empty crib. Are you going to stand still, continue to look about conditions and lose what you are entitled to?

Save the Corn Crop

Hundreds of farmers are ordering silos now. They know, as you surely do, that this is the only way of getting full feeding value from their corn. You will save the price of your silo if you save this year's crop. A silo full of succulent and palatable silage is better than an empty crib. Don't try to sidestep present conditions, you can't do it. McClure agents all over the country tell us conditions are about the same, that crops are not what they are cracked up to be, and the man with plenty of feed will have plenty of money in the bank this coming season.

Nature Will Have Its Way

Neither you nor we can control the weather. You cannot stave off the frosts. You cannot take the moisture out of the ground that is preventing the crops from maturing.

But you can be prepared to save this crop. You can let it grow, give it every change to mature, and after the first frosts you can put it into a Saginaw Silo, thus getting tons of fattening and milk producing feed. Without a silo you haven't a thing to show for your work.

With the unusual demand for live stock, prices will undoubtedly be high, and it is easy to see that feed prices will also be high. The silo is the only answer, both for the man who raises stock and for the dairyman.

Now Is the Time For Action

You know these conditions as well as we do, you only have to look at your own corn fields and those of your neighbors and you know that a silo is the only means of being absolutely sure of saving your corn crop. It will produce plenty of silage, but what else? Never before have the farmers of this country needed silos like they do right now.

Immediate Shipment

This is our sincere message to you. You will thank us for it after your silo is up and your immature corn safely put away for next season's feeding.

All our factories are naturally busy working to supply the farmers of this country, but with our facilities we can ship immediately. You will have your Saginaw Silo in plenty of time for filling.

You know this Saginaw Silo, a permanent Steel-Built structure that gives the perfect silage keeping quality of wood and the wonderful strength of steel. And you can get a Saginaw Silo made of Redwood or Siloed Yellow Pine—both permanent. The Saginaw Silo is your permanent insurance against known conditions. It will save your corn crop, not only this year, but every year. Take the bull by the horns, and don't let a day go by without wiring us.

You may wire us today at our expense. We will put you in touch with a Saginaw man. Delay means big losses.

ELBERT BEDE SAYS:

Sometimes it is better to have loved and lost than to have won. The person who never gets fooled is too big a fool to be inquisitive. Sometimes it doesn't seem to pay to be good, but you don't have anything to be remorseful about afterwards. When a young lawyer's courting ends in marriage he thinks he has won the greatest case in his career. A woman gets fully as much enjoyment out of telling what she had at a swell feed as a man does out of eating it.

It is probably a mistake to say we do not see our own mistakes, but we do not talk about them as much as we do about the mistakes of others. In this queer old world comedy and tragedy are strangely interwoven. Smiles and tears, tears and smiles follow closely upon one another.

Quite often a man who begins by telling a girl he can't live without her ends by telling the court he can't live with her. We admire those who are perfectly frank in talking about others—but we say they are too mouthy when they talk about us.

It's one of the funniest things about a man that he will kick about his taxes, carry the money around in his pocket rather than pay them—and then blow it in on a good time. The fellow who tells that he is so much smarter than other people is different from the rest of us only in the fact that the rest of us keep that part of our thoughts to ourselves. A well known professor is given credit for saying kissing is worse than whiskey. If the professor will pardon a slip in grammar, we would state that we're fully prepared for the worst.

There are those who profess contempt for what is said about them, but we venture the prediction that fear of public opinion keeps more men in the straight and narrow path than fear of the law.

BAD ROADS KILLED HER.

A few years ago a beautiful woman in the prime of life lay suffering upon a sick bed in a rural community. It was imperative that she have a physician at once.

The hired man was dispatched for one in haste.

He made the best time possible, but the roads were muddy, and bad, and cut up, and traveling at best was very slow.

He lost much time in going and the physician was equally delayed in his progress.

After many hours he finally reached the side of the sufferer. But death had beaten him—for death had no bad roads to cover.

Had the physician reached her a little sooner her life could have been saved.

But he did his best and bad roads did the rest.

Bad roads killed this woman.

And bad roads are killing others every day in like manner.

Now isn't this a compelling argument in favor of better country roads?

Or is the life of human beings of less value than the cost of a few dollars spent in road improvement.

A member of your own family may furnish the subject for the next story.

THE STREET CORNER SAGE.

Sufficient Reason.

"If I had my way about it I'd shore keep a lot of chickens an' a cow, jest fer my own use." The Sage was talking to a poultry dealer. "The price 'at farm produce has gone to in th' past year 'er too's terrible. A feller has got to pay three 'er four prices fer eggs, an' butter's higher'n a cat's back, an' it's th' nex' thing to impossible to get regular cream at any price. If a feller had a cow an' a couple dozen hens of his own, look how much he could save in a year's time besides havin' all he wanted to use to home an' some to sell. I shore wish I could arrange it so as to have 'em."

"Why don't you?" asked the dealer.

"You've got the money."

"Taint money," replied the Sage.

"If I get 'em, I'll have to do th' milkin' an' feedin'—least th' ole woman says positively that she won't do none of it."

When Children Dislike Certain Foods.

In thorough accord with the views of certain authorities who believe, with limitations, that people are better off if they eat what they like is the following letter printed in the Christmas issue of the "Woman's Home Companion":—

"I am constrained to protest against the advice given mothers to oblige their children to eat food which they dislike. Most grown people have their likes and dislikes, and if it were a punishment to them to eat a despised article, how much more so it is to a child to whom small troubles loom as tragedies. The child's distaste should not be discussed, simply ignored until he has forgotten how much he hated a certain article. There are so many good and nourishing things, that if one is fancied disliked, how much better to substitute something else, thereby avoiding issues and friction, which everyone knows are harmful to a child's nerves and health, and disposition as well. And as for letting a child go without his needed nourishment till next meal if he refuses one article—the injustice of it is too apparent to need comment."

Optimistic Thought.

It is no merit to give when provisions are cheap.

The Primrose is Built for Service

BOTH the reasons why you buy a cream separator are met fully by the Primrose. The first is to get all the cream with the least work; the second, to buy a machine that you or your wife can easily keep in operating condition, and that will skim closely for years.

You know that there is nothing about a Primrose to get out of order. You know, too, that it has a splash oiling system that takes care of every bearing, and that it is a clean machine—no oil in the milk, and no milk in the oil.

But the Primrose has some other exclusive features you ought to know before you buy any separator. For instance, at any position, the handle takes hold the instant pressure is applied, and lets go the instant the pressure is taken off. The spindle stays in the separator, where it belongs. When you place the bowl on the spindle, it centers itself automatically without any pounding and without trying more than once—that saves the lower spindle bearing and prevents dangerous springing of the spindle itself.

No matter what separator question you bring up, you will find it fully answered by the Primrose. Come in and take a good look at it before you buy.

Through the Long Days,
 Some day, in the years to come you will be wrestling with the great temptation or trembling under the great sorrow of your life. But the real struggle is here now, in these quiet weeks. Now it is being decided whether, in the day of supreme sorrow or temptation, you will miserably fail or nobly conquer. Character comes to the test by steady, long continued practice.
