TRIED TO ROB COUNTY

Amateur Cracksmen Makes Bold Daylight Attempt at Safe Breaking.

Great was the surprise of Deputy County Treasurer Dimmick last Wednesday morning to find when he attempted to open the safe in the treasurer's office, that someone had made an attempt to open the same and had chiseled and hammered the combination in order to accomplish their object.

An investigation was at once started to find out how the would-be burglar had gained admittance, and it was found that he had entered through one of the windows near the desk, the prints of his hands being plainly visible in the dust on the window sill. Later a hammer and chisel were found in the entry leading to the basement of the building. The hammer was a small sharp-faced one and bore the initials R. G. H. The chisel was an ordinary heavy cold chisel and bore the initial R. Upon investigation it was found that the hammer was one which was stolen from R. G. Hartingh's garage some time ago, and that the chisel had been stolen from the D. & M. railroad shops.

Developments pointed the finger of suspicion at Archie Malcom, as he had been seen around the court house at about six o'clock the evening previous and had been seen by at least two people climbing up a stepladder placed against the window which was entered. At the time he was seen no one attached any importance to the fact, as he is often employed at odd jobs around the court house.

The evidence at hand was considered sufficient to cause his arrest, and in the afternoon he was apprehended on a warrant charging him with breaking and entering. His hearing was held before Justice Tait Wednesday afternoon and he was bound over to the September term of circuit court.

George H. Strauer was born in Germany Nov. 14, 1849. He served in the German army in the war of 1870-71, and shortly after the war was united in marriage to Christena Palcia. In 1898 his wife died, and soon after he came to Sherman township, Iosco county. In 1900 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Amelia Kohn, and to this union were born four children, all of which are living. In 1911 the family moved to Tawas township and have since resided on the farm where he died.

DEATH OF GEORGE A. BISSETTE.
Early last Friday morning, Sept. 1, at about 5:30 George Ashmun Bissette of this city passed peacefully into the Great Beyond. He had been in poor health during the past year but had never been confined to his bed with the exception of the last two days and news of his death came as a shock to many friends. He had been taken to the polls on Tuesday, being so interested in the last election.

Wednesday and Thursday he was confined to his bed most of the time and on Thursday evening he was taken with congestive chills. His attending physician Dr. Crane was not at home and Rev. Wm. Roberts was called and ministered unto him, but Mr. Bissette was unconscious several hours before death came.

George Ashmun Bissette was born at Black Rock, Ohio, March 21, 1840, and was over 76 years of age. On Nov. 1, 1865 he was united in marriage to Miss Julia Ogden of New York. The marriage took place at East Saginaw. The family have been residents of East Tawas for 36 years and for about 30 years Mr. Bissette was connected with the Emery Lumber company.

Funeral services were held from the family residence on State street last Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. William Roberts of the Presbyterian church officiated and rendered the Episcopal burial service very effectively. The remains were laid to rest in Greenwood cemetery, East Tawas.

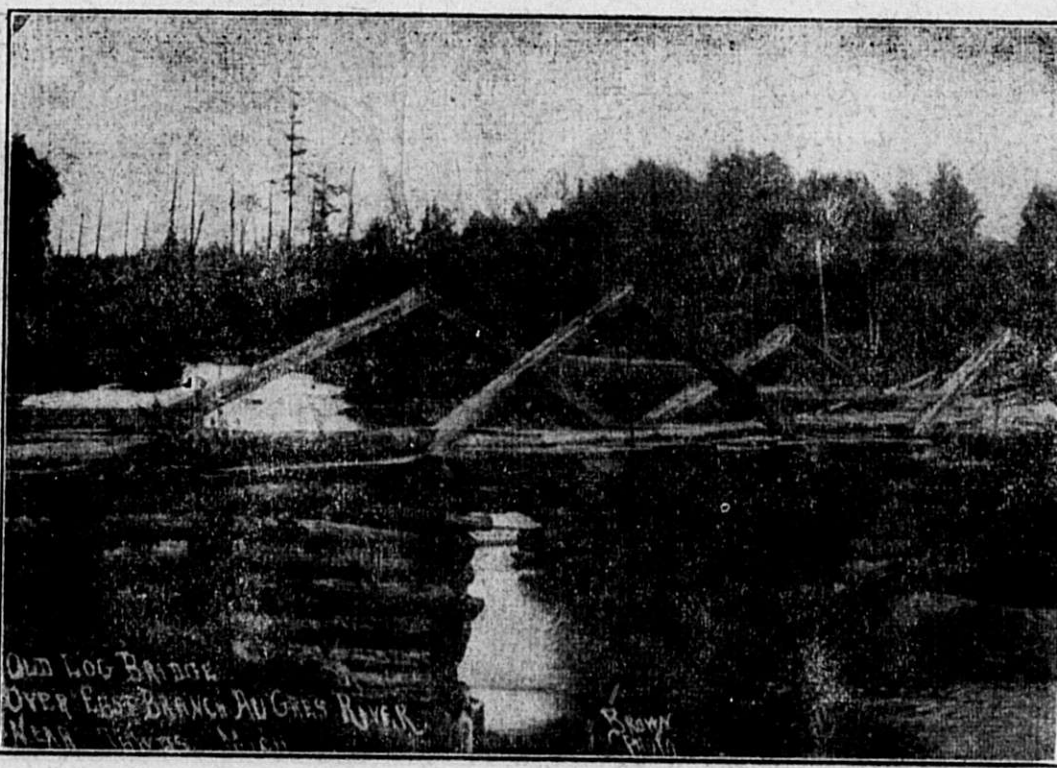

The following gentlemen of this city were in attendance as pall bearers: F. H. Richards, W. M. Gardner, Henry Hanson, J. W. Applin, J. G. Dimmick and John Schreiber.

Always generous, honorable in all his dealings and true in his friendship, he had endeared himself to many friends in this community.

A Newspaper.
A newspaper is in no sense a child of charity. It earns twice over every dollar it receives, and it is second to no enterprise in contributing to the upbuilding of a community. Its patrons reap far more benefits from its pages than its publishers, and in calling for the support of the community in which it is published it asks for no more than in all fairness belongs to it, though generally it receives less.

REMEMBER OCTOBER FIRST.

We again call the attention of our subscribers to the fact that on October 1st the Herald will be placed on a strictly cash in advance basis and that all subscribers who are not paid in advance on that date will be discontinued from our list. This step is made necessary by the enormous increase in the price of everything going to make the publication of a newspaper possible, and the practice of some of our subscribers of letting their subscription run for a long time without paying for the same.

A considerable number have already paid up since our first announcement two weeks ago, but there are a large number in arrears, whose subscription must be paid before October 1st if they wish to continue receiving the paper.

Beginning next week we shall begin to publish an "Honor Roll" containing the names of those who have paid their subscription during the preceding week. Look at the date opposite your name on the label of your paper, which shows the date to which you are paid up, and if it does not read in advance of October 1st, 1916 be sure and get your name on the honor roll during the next three weeks.

Miss a Meal Occasionally.

There are those who imagine that if they do not have their three regular meals a day they will perish. The majority of people eat entirely too much, with them eating is a habit. If they miss one meal they are totally incapacitated until the next meal comes around. It is these people who should miss a meal occasionally; they should cultivate a certain amount of indifference to their meals and the result will be that their minds will be clearer and their physical condition better.

Lost—A chain purse containing between $4 and $5, on Sept. 7, 1916, between Woizeschke's store and Frank Long's residence. Finder please return to Mrs. J. H. Brown, Tawas City.

SUBORDINATION.

Learn to take orders and carry them out. Like the great railway president who has just closed an honored career, "be a good subordinate." No one on this earth can have his own way all the time. We must all take orders. Sometimes we must take orders from persons who are not really able to give the right sort of orders. But when an order is given it must be obeyed. When a request is made things are different.

One of the best things to learn early is to carry out orders as given promptly and cheerfully. It is also a good thing to learn what to do when you think an order is wrong. But do not get the habit of thinking so. You may not know as much as you suppose. But you can obey.

There is a long word that gets most of us into trouble. It is insubordination. Look out for that. Avoid being insubordinate. Get out your dictionary and look at the parts of that long word. Then see what a subordinate is. Then be a good one.

The one in charge must have good subordinates. The streets are full of men who are not good subordinates, looking for jobs. When you are in charge you must learn to discover and get rid of insubordinates. Sometimes you must do it by driving people away; but the best way is to manage so that insubordinates become good subordinates.

Kindness and good cheer help both the subordinate and the one in charge. Both should practice both.—The World's Chronicle.

U. S. Forest Service Issues Warning Against Causing Accidents With Firearms and Starting Fires.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Emphasizing the destruction of property and human life caused by careless hunters, a warning issued by the Forest Service urges all sportsmen on the National Forests to use the greatest possible care to prevent forest fires and to avoid such accidents as the one which caused the death of Forest Ranger Clark on the Cabinet National Forest in Montana last year.

Mr. Clark, it is said, was mistaken for a bear by a careless hunter who fired without waiting to be sure what he was shooting at. To show that such accidents are not uncommon, the warning quotes an estimate of the Biological Survey that between 150 and 200 persons are annually killed in hunting accidents in this country and that this number is increasing.

Furthermore, it is stated, 15 per cent of all the forest fires in the National Forests are caused by careless hunters and other campers.

The National Forests, it is pointed out, contain the best hunting grounds in the country. The number of game animals is increasing on account of the protection from forest fires and illegal killing which is afforded by Forest officers. On many of the Forests deer, elk, mountain sheep and other species are fairly plentiful, while small game is usually abundant.

Bear, mountain lion and other predatory animals are found on most of the Forests and the killing of these meat eaters is encouraged because they prey on domestic stock and the herbivorous game animals.

The value of the Forests for hunting grounds depends largely upon whether they are protected from fire, says the warning. Forest fires destroy the range and breeding places of the game and often kill large numbers of the animals themselves, while a great many more are driven out of the country by the flames.

Further, more streams flowing through burned-over areas are subject to such extreme variations of flow and are often so choked up with deposits of sediment that fish can not live in them.

Each year, it is stated, sees an increase in the numbers of persons who visit the National Forests for hunting and other recreation purposes. Every effort is made to encourage this use of the Forests. Maps showing the recreation resources have been issued, and the trails built by the rangers open up new country to visitors.

The best indication of a man's fitness to be in the woods, the warning points out, is the care which he shows in handling firearms and fire. None but the most inexperienced tenderfoot will shoot without getting a plain view of his game, while the man who lets his campfire escape or who carelessly drops a lighted match or hot tobacco ashes betrays at once his ignorance of the fundamental principles of woodcraft. Such men, says the warning, should keep out of the woods.

Things are getting serious for the wets in Chicago. Since the mayor has revoked 200 licenses there are only 5000 saloons left in the city, and it is said there are districts where one must walk two whole blocks to get a drink.

All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in time. But there must be no hurry. There is no music in a rest, but there's the making of music in it. COOPERATIVE DAIRYING.

Usually Results in Elimination of Waste, More Economical Production, and Better Cows.

There are so many leaks in the dairy business that only by the use of the best business principles can it be made permanently profitable. Individual cows must each make a profit over the cost of feed; this can be determined only by weighing each cow's milk and the feed that she consumes. The old argument that the best cows are known may have some foundation, but few men know the poorest cows, and the latter go to make up the average as well as the good cows. No dairy is better than its average production. If this is too low, the herd is not paying a profit. Business principles must therefore be applied to lowering the cost of milk production. Efficiency is as much a necessity on the farm as in the factory. Few men feed their cows in proportion to the quantity of milk produced, yet what could be more simple and more nearly right? With little regard for her needs, feed is put before the cow in plenty if it is cheap and in less quantity if the price is high. Cows use about 60 per cent of their feed merely to keep their bodies working, and it is the quantity that is fed above this fixed necessity that furnishes the material for the milk. Too often the dairyman says: "I would do all the up-to-date things if I had the time." Can the storekeeper afford to run his business without keeping books? Yet that is what the farmer is doing.

Benefits of Cow Testing.
Working in cooperation, dairymen can obtain the benefit of business methods at a very small cost through the organization of a cow-testing association. An organization of this kind that hires an expert to determine the feed cost of milk or fat production for each cow in the herds of the members is easily possible. Such an expert travels from farm to farm, spending usually one day at a place. Each cow's milk is weighed and tested, as is her feed. An account is opened in the ledger for each animal and at the end of the year the profit or loss of each one can be ascertained. The heifers of good cows should be selected and the poor cows should go to the slaughterhouse, otherwise they may be the means of ruining the owner's business. A cow-testing association is a cooperative organization with local officers, and one that can be of use also for advertising the sale of cattle. The results obtained with such advertising have often been remarkable. Dairymen and breeders are certain to be interested in such a movement for the bettering of the business.

At present about 350 of the organizations keep the records for about 150,000 cows owned by about 7,500 farmers. These men are realizing the benefits of cooperation. The dairy business is well adapted for cooperative organization, and concerted effort by dairymen usually means much greater profits on milk and cream through the elimination of waste, the application of more economical methods of production and manufacture, and the development of more productive cows.

TAWAS NOW TIED FOR FIRST.
By Mark held Omer to nine singles scattered into eight innings, didn't hit a man, neither did he give a base on balls and yet he lost five to three. The error column as shown in the appended box score tells the story. Not a run was earned by Omer.

Tawas hit Frank Matuzak safely ten times, two of them doubles. Matuzak also gave a base on balls. And yet they scored safely but three. It was awful. The boys looked almost as good as Twining did during most of the season. We think it must have been just an off day. Because we know they can play ball. They've done that against Omer.
The crowd of about one hundred Tawas City rooters were game even after the fight was over and are going to root for all they are worth when Omer and Tawas play off the tie.

The theory is taught in the colleges, but when they go into strange territory and see the work done and help to do it they will get lasting benefit from the experience. This is one of the ways that the colleges of the country are getting down to a practical basis that will enable them to turn out graduates who can actually do things without having to learn them all over again from the practical side.—Ex.

LYRICAL LINES OF LIFE.

By Ernest C. Foster.
The Heat.
I can stand for politicians, or the tales of statisticians setting forth in rounded numbers when the sun and earth will meet. I can stand the village choir, even tolerate a liar, but deliver me from him who's always talking 'bout the heat. I can stand a long oration on "Our Great and Wondrous Nation," when I know full well the speaker or wifed collar keep at work and never hotter, but I hate the man who asks me "Is it hot enough for you?" Ship me east into the jungle where the wild beasts roar and rumble, feed me to the heathen chieftain, of my carcass let him eat. Ship me north where it is frigid, where one soon is numb and rigid, but protect me from the fellow who must talk about the heat.
