Well it does and there is new No. 3 rural route from this office until February 2, next. This only one way to dispute it. Try for delay was occasioned by the fact that the required number of 75 patrons had not erected or signified their intention of erecting boxes and using the service on Dec. 10, as required by the order establishing this route. A NEAT GREETING.

One of the prettiest and most out of-the-ordinary Christmas greeting cards that we have ever seen was that sent out by W. G. MacEdward general passenger agent of the D. & M. Ry. Was there any doubt as to Mr. MacEdward's nationality it would surely be dispelled by this card, as it is essentially Scotch both in design and wording.

o I. O. O. F. BOWLING ALLEY NOTES Bowling has been quite interesting of late and prospects are that there will be a matched game before long. The slogan during the fall campaign was "Hats off to Mr. Wilson." Now that election is over things seemed to have been centered on bowling and the same slogan seems to be in vogue and it is "Hats off to Mr. Dimmick," who has been holding all the timers at bay with his steady bowling. With Mr. Duffy and Mr. Dimmick bowling as a team there seems to be an obstacle in the way as far as getting defeated is concerned.. Of course they do lose a game or so occasionally but on an average they are victorious. Duffy has had the pleasure of getting the highest score for this season with 266, and also has bowled five games on different occasions and has had an average of from 170 to 183. Dimmick also has been up in line all season and on Dec. 25 topped off a game with a 235 score and also another later with 220. The old war may be depended upon for getting results is that being now conducted in New York city by the federal government through a grand jury and which is probing the sensational increases in prices of fuel, marking this season as one of the most exceptional ever known. In New York the results of for any man had grown up in her which will prevent rains from leachthe abnormal increases were almost tragical owing to the large population of poor people who at the best of times are obliged to purchase their coal in very small quantities and who this year often found themselves absolutely unable to purchase at all owing to the excessive prices.

information it has to be promptly forthcoming or those who withhold it, as they do under other forms of investigation, suffer the consequences. It has developed in this investigation through testimony given by authorized representatives of the great coal producing companies that the price of coal at the mines has remained the same throughout the year and that the big jump in retail prices has been due to efforts of wholesalers, jobbers and retailers to take advantage of the appearance of an acute shortage in coal for domestic consumption. The representatives denied with emphasis that either the coal mining operators or the shipping railways were in any way implicated in the rise in prices.

No conclusion can be arrived at until all the testimony is in, however, and the inquiry is to be thorough into all phases of coal mining, distribution and marketing. It is nevertheless the coal mining representatives be corroborated and established as fact, the investigation will proceed to ascertain if there has existed a criminal conspiracy to force up coal prices among those who handle coal after it leaves the mine.

It is looked upon as significant that since the federal investigation was threatened the wholesale prices of coal in New York droped in a few weeks from $13 to $7.75 a ton .-Saginaw News.

Make the Home Bright.

The interior decorations of a man's home may have much to do with his domestic happiness or unhappiness, as the case may be, according to the secretary of the International Association of Master House Painters and Decorators. The depressing effect of dark colors in wood finish and wall paper has wrecked homes which would have been happy had the colors been bright, is the opinion of this expert.

"Dark colors in home decorations are like dark, gloomy days in their effect on people," he said. "It is well known that gloomy days are commonly known to the police as 'suicide days.' There are many more suicides, murders and other crimes on rainy days. A man owes it to his family to surround it with bright rooms which will catch all the sunshine there is and turn it into domestic happiness.

"A room done in dark colors, has the same effect on persons entering it as utter darkness. One's senses cannot be so active as in bright surroundings, and there is a loss of buoyancy that breeds grouches, with all their disastrous results. Bright, clean, open minds are the sure result of bright surroundings."-Kansas City Star.

Why Watches Lose Time.

The reason for variations in time keeping qualities of a well regulated watch have been the subject of investigation by scientists recently. The popular theories that animal magnetism and bodily temperature are causes are denied by investigators. Rather, different rythms of movement as well as the angle at which a watch irregularities.

He always had eaten in the kitchen, he liked it, it was less trouble for everyone, he wasn't going to buy new furniture, and so forth and so on. All through the early part of the summer the eating in the hot kitchen had gone on, with Wilfred in his shirt sleeves at the head of the table. Mary's soul rebelled, but, as it seemed the one thing she could not gain without an open fight, she resolved to bide her

With the beginning of August, the work of taking the heavy loads of garden truck to the nearby city grew greater. Several times a week Wilfred himself drove into town, returning late. And the bank account grew. Meantime, Mary planned her dining-

Then Mary and her helper adjourned to the woodshed, and unpacked the results of Mary's visit to the city the week before. When bagging and excelsior had been removed, there stood revealed a very pretty oak dining table and six chairs. And out of another package came a straw rug. When all had been put in place, and the china moved from the kitchen stock. shelves to the glass-doored, old-fashioned closet, Mary looked around her with satisfaction. She was very tired, but very content. The muslin curtains she had been secretly making were hung. Truly, the room was inviting and tasteful. Mary kept her helper to assist in preparing an unusually good supper, and a little before time for Wilfred to arrive she appeared downstairs fresh and smiling in a pretty afternoon

When Wilfred came, she managed to get him by the closed door and upstairs to change his clothes. As he came down she was putting the supper on the table, and if ever a man had a surprise it was he. Mary's face paled a little, and her hands trembled as she moved the dishes about. Wilfred stood irresolute, swallowed hard once or twice, then pulled out his chair and sat down, remarking, as he did so, in an embarrassed and semijocular tone: "Pretty swell for a farmer, Mary.

Must have cost something." Mary knew that her battle was won. "I paid for the things out of my savings bank account, Wilfred, and I haven't been so happy since I came to the farm!"

Her husband, usually undemonstrative, rose from his chair, went around hangs are given as real causes for to his wife's place, and gave her a resounding kiss. Mary's new dining room was a success.

Small Area of Land in Ionian Sea Has Been for Centuries a Shuttlecock in the Game of International Diplomacy.

The reported occupation of Cephalonia by French and British forces, for strategic purposes, marks another cycle in the strange history of this island in the Ionian sea, which has national diplomacy for more than 2,-000 years. Its unique story is told in the following bulletin issued by the National Geographic society:

With an area about three times as great as that of Martha's Vineyard on the Massachusetts coast, Cephalonia is the largest of the seven Ionian islands. The origin of its setttlement is shrouded in the fascinating uncertainty of Homeric legend, but from mans, 180 B. Venice again, France, the Russo-Turkish allies, the French and the British. Great Britain finally relinquished its protectorate and ceded the islands to Greece after the latter had allowed the court of St. James to name a brother of the princess of Wales as king of the Hellenes in 1862.

The chief city of Cephalonia is Argostoli, which has an excellent harbor and which is especially noted for its curious sea mills, operated by a current of sea water flowing through a chasm in the rocky shore. Across the bay from Argostoli is the rival port of Luxouri.

Cyclopean and Hellenic walls are still standing on the sites of the ancient cities of Cranii, Proni and Somos, while a few miles beyond Argostoli there rises a relic of Venetian days, the strongly fortified castle of St.

The Cephalonians, who are mentally alert and who are more purely Greek than the inhabitants of any of the other islands of the Ionian group, have shown great ingenuity and industion of the vine and olive. One of the chief products of the island is a peculiarly flavored currant which found a ready market in Holland, Belgium and Germany. In addition to their agricultural pursuits, the Cephalonians are interested in ship building, silk spinning, basket making and the manufacture of carpets. An odd lace, made of aloe fiber, is exported. Elato, also known as Monte Negro (black mountain), which is more than 5,000 feet high, gets its name from the dark pine forests which clothe its

The following facts about oysters are given by a member of a family that has been connected with the oyster trade for 300 years:

The average oyster, before suitable for consumption, is between 3 and 4 years of age. They are undoubtedly the cleanest as well as the most nutritious of fish, for it is a fact that if the year of its surrender to the Ro- anything in the way of dirt gets into the shell of an oyster it immediately

The embryo, when it is about twelve months old, is planted in the most suitable waters. The young oysters are taken out in flat-bottomed boats, shoveled overboard in likely spots, and allowed to remain there until they are sizable and ready for catching. This is done by means of dredges, which go over the oyster beds with a large rake arrangement dragging from ropes on the bottom of the sea, the oysters being thus forced from the bed into the large nets fastened to the inside of the rake.

The breeding powers of oysters are simply amazing, and it has been computed that 1,000 full-grown parents There is rarely a season when we empire. Funny Man of Japan.

The "Tads." Bud Fishers, and Goldbergs are not all confined to the realm of American journalism, for Japan, too, says a writer in Cartoons Magazine, has her comedy sketch artists. The endeavors of these men, he says, show a striking similarity to much quite of the order that one finds in such series as the 'Katzenjammer Kids' and 'The Adventures of Willie Westinghouse Edison Smith,' predominates in the Japanese pictures. There is only slight evidence of that element which to the American mind makes a large proportion of European work risque and vulgar. The humor is childlike, possibly even more so than our own, but it has the crowning virtue of having cleanliness without being sterile or insipid. "The Japanese have not created a new style of comic cartoon. On the contrary, they have remained thoroughly true to their proclivity for imitating the ideas of others. They have copied the American strip closely, and since we are prone to know them for this trait more than almost any other, few persons will wonder at the fact."

So it is that one of the pictures in the Ferris exhibition of historical American paintings at Philadelphia finds itself being talked about. The painting represents Columbus' caravel the night before the big find. There is a full moon just above the horizon, while the reflection of the setting sun is seen on the ship's sails.

A critic opened a controversy, and Dr. Eric Doolittle, professor of astronomy at the University of Philadelphia, settled it. The critic said he didn't think there was a full moon that night. Doctor Doolittle, consulting his charts, proved there wasn't .- Philadelphia North American.

Effects of Baking Powders on Bread. That modern methods of milling remove from wheat and corn flour the vitamines that are now believed to be an essential to health is made certain by Drs. Carl Voegtlin, M. X. Sullivan and C. V. Myers in a recently issued public health report.

Another point of importance in their report is that the peculiarities of dough made from these highly milled flours make necessary the use of much baking powder. Plain bicarbonate of soda is often used as such, but the experiments conducted by the authors prove that in baking this separates, discharging carbon dioxide gas and remaining as carbonate in the bread. Now carbonate of soda is highly alkaline, and the alkali destroys the vitamines. If, however, buttermilk or tartaric acid be combined with the bicarbonate of soda, it neutralizes the alkali and protects the vitamines.

"There, now!" said Amy saucily. "It's enough to make me weep, even though it's only a make-believe case, but I'm dying to know who the poor girl really was and how she took it."

"Perhaps she was too piqued at first to listen to an explanation," said Elsie F. H. RICHARDS, East Tawas, Mich. promptly, to ward off Amy's further conjecture, "but I'm sure that when she did know all about it she was orry she had acted childishly."

"You are quite sure, Elsie?" asked Fred, as if they were alone. And, indeed, they were practically alone, for Amy and Jack had exchanged knowing glances and had drawn the other two men over to the doorway to see whether the rain was slackening.
