On Thursday the fourth grade wrote a story on ostriches and Grace Sommerfield had the best one in class.

The Ostrich.

By Grace Sommerfield, fourth grade. The ostrich is the largest and most legs, large wings, long bare neck, flat head, large eyes and a short wide bill. A full grown bird will weigh from three hundred and fifty pounds to four hundred and fifty pounds. It stands eight feet in height and will easily reach from ten to twelve feet for oranges, apples and other kinds of fruit. The ostrich can outrun the swiftest horse. Its voice is deep and hollow, and not easily told apart from that of a lion. It can kick as hard as any horse. The ostrich kicks forward and is sometimes known to kill large beasts with a single stroke.

The food of the ostrich is alfalfa, grain and other vegetables and are fond of oranges, apples, sand and gravel. The chicks are delicate and eat nothing the first four days. They are then fed chopped alfalfa, mixed with ground egg shells and later soaked bran, corn and gravel.

The first plucking begins when the ostrich is nine months old and afterwards about three time every two years. The bird is to be driven into a triangular enclosure and a hood drawn over its head. They pick about twenty-five feathers from each wing. About three hundred feathers are taken from each bird in a season.

The nest is made by the male bird scooping out a shallow spot in the sand. The hen lays about the rate of one egg every day until fifteen or sixteen eggs are laid. The birds take turns in sitting on the eggs, the male at night and the female in the daytime. The eggs are about thirty times as large as a hen's egg and weigh about three pounds. The shells are used for the making of ladles, spoons and for other things.

Large ostrich farms are in different countries, such as Africa, Egypt and in the U.S. In Cape Colony ostriches are cared for and several million dollars worth are sent to London.

ASK EVERY FARMER TO RAISE A CALF.

"Raise a calf" has been adopted as a slogan by the animal husbandry department of the Michigan Agricultural college to boost beef production in Michigan. The department declares that if every farmer possessing 50 acres of land or over raises and fattens but one additional animal, the move will in 1918 increase the state's dressed meat supply by at least 62,000,000 pounds for shipments outside, or will provide 21 pounds more per year for every individual within the state.

"Many farmers," the statement adds, "have been slaughtering their calves, but the raising of one animal would place a burden on none. Dairy farmers should keep their male calves. The animals can be raised and peculiarly rapid development of the fattended on a 50 acre farm without the cost of feeding ever being felt.

"The step would go a long way towards enabling the state to enlarge its food supply."

WHY TIRES WEAR OUT QUICKLY Oftentimes new drivers of motor cars are disappointed in the mileage they obtain from their tires and are at a loss to understand why a tire should show wear in a few hundred miles. Seek Substitute for Rubber.

That the future, even more than the past, is to be the scientist's opportunity is illustrated by the serious thought already being given by the nations of the world to the problem of maintaining a supply of rubber, or of a suitable substitute, adequate to the growing demands of industry.

Ever since the world was young, tribes and nations have fought for possession of one or another of the supposed indispensable materials of comfort and luxury.

Once it was for flint for arrowheads, once for metal for utensils, again for fuel, sometimes for salt, and as the demands of mankind became more complex, for a hundred other things about which the aboriginal had not even heard. Just now, owing to a certain automobile in transportation, rubber is taking a leading place.

Use for Horsechestnuts.

The soapy nature of the kernel of the horsechestnut has led investigators to search for a way to use it in removing dirt and grease from textile goods. According to Les Matieres Grasses, several methods of extracting this soapy substance have been patented, and, moreover, profitable uses have been found for other constituents of the horsechestnut. The shell is rich in tannin, and is used in preparing an extract for tanning leather. The kernel contains about six and six-tenths per  cent of a pale yellow oil similar to altracted, the residue, treated with dilute alcohol, yields an extract containing about 15 per cent of esculic acid. a saponaceous substance that has excellent lathering and cleansing properties. Steady work the year around. Good wages.

BEST TOWN IN THE THUMB--On Huron Shore. No better schools in the state. Six churches. Electric lights. Pure water. Good place to live.

Work for the boys and girls too, at Resort Association in summer, at Macaroni factory in winter.

For the family who wants to get on in the world this is their opportunity.

The Company will build homes for employees which may be paid for in small monthly payments.

If you are looking for a real chance to better your condition and want steady work under good conditions, write to
