In agreeable contrast to this action of the board is the action of the boards of supervisors of the counties of Alpena and Cheboygan, who did this very thing and thereby extended a helping hand to the farmers of their communities. The Iosco board decided that such action was illegal, but if so how does it happen that other counties can do it?

If you can't fight, you can at least show your loyalty to the government by putting a part of your savings into a "Liberty Loan" bond. Your money will be safer than in a bank, and your interest return will be nearly as much.

A meeting of the state industrial accident board was held at the court house last Friday to hear the case of Mrs. Helena Ziehl vs. the U. S. Gypsum Co. and the Employers' Liability Insurance company in the matter of indemnity for the death of Ernest Ziehl, which occurred in the mill at Alabaster last February. After hearing a large amount of testimony Mrs. Ziehl was awarded partial indemnity amounting to $4.50 per week for 800 weeks.

WATCH YOUR STEP. Sheriff Hill has been to quite a lot of trouble this spring to put the court house yard in condition. He has had the grounds all cleaned up and sowed flower seeds in beds along the sides of all the walks. But he has been considerably incensed the past week by people who persist in walking on these flower beds and even riding bicycles thereon. Therefore he has decided to take severe measures to stop the nuisance and states that all persons discovered in acts such as mentioned will be arrested and summarily dealt with. He has also posted "Keep Off the Grass" signs, and says that these signs mean just what they say.

Therefore, we would advise all careless persons to "Watch Your Step" and avoid getting into trouble.

SPLENDID MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE.

The fine weather Wednesday forenoon, May 30, drew out a large attendance at the Memorial Day services in this city, and an excellent program was carried out.

At nine o'clock a procession was formed at the court house and proceeded to the cemetery, where the graves of the deceased soldiers were decorated with the regular ceremonies. The people then returned to the court house, where the program was carried out.

The program began with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," after which followed a flag drill by the third and fourth grades of the public schools. This drill was a very pretty and intricate affair and showed careful training on the part of the teacher, Miss Grace Laidlaw, and elicited a great deal of applause from the onlookers.

A flag salute by a dozen of the older girls and a few maneuvers by a platoon of boy scouts were next and these were also well received.

The address of the day was delivered by State Senator W. A. Collins of Bay City, who was secured as a substitute for Senator Ganssner, who was expected to be present but who was prevented by other engagements. Mr. Collins is a fluent and forceful speaker, and very clearly and succinctly presented to his audience the duties of every loyal American citizen during the present trying times.

Mr. Collins' address was mostly devoted to the subject of the 1917 Liberty Loan, and he tried to make it plain that it is the duty of every person who can possibly do so to buy one or more of these bonds. We regret that lack of time prevents us from publishing a full resume of this address, as it contained a multitude of thoughts that should be impressed in a forcible manner upon the minds and hearts of everyone.

Taken altogether, it may be said that the 1917 Memorial Day observance was one of the most successful ever held here.

THE GLEANER RALLY.

They came, they saw, and they conquered. Whom are we referring to, the Gleaners of course.

Despite snow, rain and bad roads the different arbors of Iosco and neighboring counties made a fine showing at the rally last Thursday. They began to gather and by noon the court house was filled. After partaking of a picnic dinner they were ready to pull off the afternoon's program, which was a most excellent one. Space will not permit me to do justice to all taking part. Mr. Marvin of Detroit presided in a pleasing manner. His stories and frequent sallies of wit kept all in good humor. Mr. Middley of Big Rapids responded to the excellent address of welcome given by Mayor Bing. Mrs. Middley did much to make the program a success. Recitations were well received. Miss Bellam's readings proved that the young lady had excellent training as well as native ability.

A pleasing feature was the singing by Hale Arbor of an original song composed by Mrs. Fred Jennings. Reno Arbor executed an intricate drill so well that they elicited hearty applause. A burlesque drill by an Arenac county arbor was very amusing. I thoroughly enjoyed Lew Nunn's singing. If applause is any indication, all present did also. In fact every number on the program was well rendered. Mr. Livingston of Gleaner headquarters delivered a masterful address on Gleaner principles. The East Tawas orchestra enlivened the proceedings with fine music. The evening's program was devoted to work of the order, so yours truly could not be present.

WILL SHOOT STRAY DOGS AS WAR MEASURE.

Battle Creek, May 29.—As a war measure Battle Creek proposes to shoot all stray dogs, whether licensed or not. With every home owner cultivating gardens there is a strong protest against dogs that tear up young potatoes and carrots. The city attorney is preparing an ordinance giving the dog warden the right to shoot at sunrise any dog found loose on the streets at any time.

Tawas City might well adopt some such plan, and also include the chickens which are so destructive in scratching up the neighbor's garden.

BOOST FOR THE RED CROSS

Iosco County Chapter Formed. Will Put on Campaign June 11-16.

In accordance with the information published last week, a local chapter of the Red Cross has been formed here, to be known as the Iosco County Chapter, and a vigorous campaign will be instituted to obtain a large membership in this county.

The officers and directors of the association have been chosen, and are as follows:

Chairman—G. A. Prescott. Vice-Chairman—Jas. E. Dillon. Secretary—Frank F. Taylor. Treasurer—Lloyd G. McKay. Directors—W. J. Robinson, C. W. Luce, N. C. Hartingh, W. B. Murray, Burley Wilson, J. G. Dimmick.

It was at first planned to begin the campaign next week and celebrate a Red Cross Week for this county June 4-9, but on account of the non-arrival of the supplies needed it was found necessary to postpone it for one week, and Red Cross Week will therefore be celebrated June 11-16. Workers will be appointed in each township to solicit memberships and it is hoped that a large amount can be raised for the cause.

The Red Cross organization is bearing nearly the whole expense of maintaining the hospitals and caring for the sick and wounded on the battlefields of Europe, and has in many cases been hampered in its work by lack of funds. Much money has already been subscribed in the United States to help carry on the work, but with the entrance of this country into the actual warfare the work of this noble society becomes of more vital import to the citizens of this country, and every person should be ready and willing to contribute to the cause.

Remember, when the United States troops get into action on the battlefields of France, it may be your boy who will need the services of the Red Cross, and in such an event the little that you are asked to give now will seem but a drop in the bucket. Thousands upon thousands of lives have been saved through the ministrations of this organization, and there are countless other thousands who will need such aid before the war is over.

There are various degrees of membership, graded according to the amount contributed. The largest portion of the money, however, is raised through the $1 memberships, which entitles the donor to a Red Cross button and makes him or her a member of the chapter. Undoubtedly most of the money raised in Iosco county will be through these small contributions.

"Do your bit." Give your dollar cheerfully and be glad that you have a chance to contribute to a cause so worthy as this one is.

THREE ARRESTED IN SMALLPOX CASE.

Considerable comment has been heard in various parts of the county during the past week on account of an article regarding the smallpox cases in Sherman township which article appeared in the Flint Journal on May 22. The article purports to be a statement regarding the report of Dr. Edward Goodwin of Bay City to the state health department. Dr. Goodwin was in Sherman township a few weeks ago and made an investigation of the conditions there, and if the article in question is a true report of his findings the guilty persons should be given the extreme penalty for their carelessness and disregard of the law. Three men have been arrested in connection with the matter and will have their hearing before Justice Mount in Tawas City on June 25th. The Herald is in possession of a copy of the article in question and if the evidence at the hearing substantiates the allegations made therein we will publish the same in full. There has been too much neglect and violation of the law regarding smallpox in this county recently and someone should be made an example of to act as an incentive to responsible persons to do their duty.

THE PENALTY OF GREED.

In these trying hours there may arise a few who will try to get rich quick at the expense of the nation and its people. But it will be neither profitable or wise for them to attempt anything of the kind.

If their business is national in its scope, the government will handle them without gloves. The president has so warned them.

If their business is local in its character, we, the people, will see that they get their just deserts.

There must be no price boosting, no gouging, no angling for sudden wealth for the few at the expense of misery for the many.

The man who can not be a patriot from choice must have it thrust upon him from necessity.

The people are mighty and their will must prevail. It must be a period of loyalty and live and let live.—Ex.

"SOME SOCKS."

It is reported that a young lady member of the Bay City Red Cross, who is knitting for the soldiers, placed her name in a pair of socks she sent. In due time she received the following in reply: "Some socks! Some fit! I use one for a hammock and the other for a mitt. I'd like to meet you when I've done my bit, But who in the devil taught you to knit?"

MRS. HENRY SCOTT, DECEASED.

Mrs. Henry Scott of this city died very suddenly at the family residence last week Thursday afternoon, at 5:30. She had been in poor health for several years but had been able to be around and to attend to household affairs. Last Thursday she had been seen sitting out on the porch and shortly after she had gone into the house it was found that she had passed away suddenly, the cause being pronounced heart failure.

Mary Sedgeman was born in England, Nov. 14, 1849, and was over 67 years of age. On September 14, 1867 she was married in Port Huron to Mr. Harrington and to this union four sons and one daughter were born. After the death of her first husband, Mrs. Harrington was united in marriage to Henry Scott, the marriage taking place in East Tawas in September of the year 1893. To this union one son, Percy Scott, of Flint was born.

The family have been residents of East Tawas for 35 years and have a wide circle of friends.

TAWAS TOWNSHIP FARMERS IN LINE.

Supervisor Anschutz of Tawas township informs the Herald that the farmers of Tawas township are doing their share towards growing a large crop this year. He also finds that the soil is better tilled by the majority of farmers, which will also be a great factor towards the increase. Of all the crops sowed or planted, beans and corn take the lead in extra acreage, which by the way is 621 acres over last year, divided amongst sixteen different crops.

The reason that corn and beans are so extensively grown is that it takes less money to plant an acre than it does for potatoes, which heretofore took the lead. Beans can also be stored for a longer period than potatoes and can be shipped in freezing weather without loss, which cannot be done with potatoes as they must either be shipped in the fall or spring to insure safety from freezing. Much of the extra acreage in corn will be used for ensilage, this means more beef and butter.

What the farmers now need is good weather and proper help to take care of the work at the right time. All available farmer boys will find plenty to do, and can best serve the country by helping to do their share to provide for the multitude. The suggestion made to draw on the cities for help will not work. Farmers cannot take time to instruct and teach green hands and take care of the crops in proper time. Farming cannot be learned in a few days, it takes years of training to know how to do the work. Farmers would be in the same position as a general would be with an army of recruits that did not know anything about warfare. He could not win battles. Soldiers must be trained to know what is expected of them, so must the farmer.

IOSCO COUNTY FOOD CROP ACREAGE DOUBLED.

That the food crop acreage in Iosco County will be nearly doubled is the statement of Food Preparedness Agent Prescott, who spent the week in the county.

A number of cases of lack of seed or money were investigated during the trip and most of them were satisfactorily adjusted.

There is one seed—potatoes—which is universally called for but which is unobtainable at a price which the farmer can pay. Consequently there are many farmers who will use their potato ground for some other purpose, and there are few acres of tilled soil which will not be worked to capacity this summer. While there are cases in the district where the shortage of labor will reduce production, in most cases the farmer is overcoming the lack of help by use of the more easily handled crops and farm machinery.

Taken altogether the crop situation in the district is very satisfactory so far as acreage is concerned, though better crop weather would be appreciated by the agriculturists.

There still seems much misunderstanding regarding the method which the state is using in helping the farmers to increase food crops. This is very simple, being a purely commercial transaction. When seed is applied for the agent simply investigates the case, and makes arrangements with the applicant's bank to handle the loan. The banks and elevator men are cooperating with the state in this respect as to rates, and are stretching every man's credit to the limit of safety for the seed cause.

LADIES' DIVISION OF THE RED CROSS CHAPTER.

All ladies vitally interested enough to come with their dollar and become a member of the Red Cross movement are asked to meet at the home of Mrs. G. A. Prescott, sr. on Thursday afternoon, June 7, 1917, at 1:30 standard time.

At this time Mrs. Howard Smith and Miss Betty Clements of the Bay City chapter will be present to explain and illustrate the work they are doing in Bay City.

This movement will extend throughout the county of Iosco and for further particulars write the secretary, Mrs. A. W. Black, at East Tawas.

THE BASES OF A JUST AND ENDURING PEACE.

The problem is now fully before us. We may look at it from any angle. We may turn it inside out and outside in. The tissue remains specific, unalterable. There can be no enduring peace on this earth until absolutism is destroyed. A peace program that does not squarely face this fact is a pipe dream.

If we do face it squarely we shall think straight about the possibilities and practicalities of all proposed leagues to enforce peace.

A universal league, including all the sovereign nations, would be nothing more or less than the existing state of affairs under another name. It would be the most absurd perpetual motion machine ever yet experimented with. The relations of the nations to one another, as defined and regulated by the international law of the world as it stood on July 31, 1914, constituted a world league of peace, neither more nor less, and it went to smash. A league to keep the peace presumes that its component nations will honorably keep faith with one another. A league to enforce peace must be composed of nations that will both keep faith with one another and practically act in cooperation with one another against the law breakers.

Practically, therefore, there are now only two possibilities open to the would-be makers of the leagues to enforce peace. There can be no universal league. That would be nothing but the adoption of a sounding name and a platform of pious resolutions. There can be no coherent workable league made up of both democratic and dynastic nations. Fellowship of the wolf with the lamb has not yet been invented. Peace between the hyena and the dog does not endure, and wild, or domesticated asses have not ceased to be the prey of lions in the wilderness. But there can be a league of democratic nations to safeguard republican civilization in the world, and there can be a league of dynastic nations to perpetuate authority and power.

These two leagues exist now, and into one or the other of them every nation in the world will inevitably be drawn. One is a league to enforce peace, because peace will come and will endure when the other one of these leagues is crushed.

Happily the United States has dropped the fatuous belief that it could stand aside and, from safe isolation, watch the titanic struggle between liberty and despotism. In the moral order of the universe it is not permitted to a nation, any more than it is permitted to an individual, to be neutral upon the great fundamental issues of conduct. He who does not care to stand for what in his inmost soul he believes to be right must surely die that second death of those who become the craven slaves to what they once held to be wrong. The United States will worthily play its part in the league of the democratic peoples to safeguard those political principles which the league of the thirteen original American states was the first to proclaim. Pacifists, like the givers of indiscriminate alms, whom they mentally resemble, we may always have with us, but the American nation will not be a partner and accomplice of dynasty.—Dr. Frank H. Giddings in American Industries for May.

MANUFACTURERS AND THE WAR

The limit of our national forbearance has now been reached, and we have been forced to enter the war thrust upon us by the autocracy of a great nation. Toward the German people, there can be no feeling of hatred; for, without doubt, an overwhelming majority of them abhor the war and execrate the author of it, while those who have been stirred to deeds of violence were incited by the false ideas and false ideals disseminated by the Imperial German Government.

Why, then, do we fight? Because this same Imperial German Government has forced war upon us; has ruthlessly destroyed the lives and property of our citizens; has incited the lawless elements of our population to riot and disorder; has plotted against our Government and the peace and prosperity of our people. These alone are sufficient causes for any nation to wage war, but it would then be purely a war of revenge, and as such lacking in all that atones for the terrible waste of life. Realizing this, our Government was not easily provoked to arms, did not enter the universal conflict until it was certain that the very principles and ideals upon which our Government was founded were at stake. Then we took our stand to maintain—as far as it rests with human power—our high ideals of liberty and democracy, not only for ourselves but for all the world.

In fighting for such a principle there can be no hatred or antagonism toward the people of any nation. Such a purpose calls out all that is best and highest, and to the manufacturers of the United States the appeal shall not be in vain. They pledge to the Government all that they possess of material resources, to be organized and mobilized for its immediate needs; their services in the field of business and battle—and, if need be, their very lives. The offer is made without conditions, without reservations, without equivocation. We are confident that it represents the sentiment not only of the members of the National Association of Manufacturers, but of the manufacturers in every line of industry throughout the entire country.—From American Industries for May.

PATRIOTIC SERVICE ASKED OF HOME WOMEN.

The following excerpt from a statement of Secretary of Agriculture indicates the service which may be rendered by home women:

"Demonstrate thrift in your homes and encourage thrift among your neighbors.

"Make saving rather than spending your social standard.

"Make economy fashionable lest it become obligatory.

"Waste in any individual household may seem to be insignificant, but if only a single ounce of edible food, on the average, is allowed to spoil or be thrown away in each of our 20,000,000 homes over 1,300,000 pounds of material would be wasted each day. It takes the fruit of many acres and the work of many people to raise, prepare and distribute 464,000,000 pounds of food a year. Every ounce of food thrown away, therefore, tends to waste the labor of an army of busy citizens."

Rich Rumania.

MICHIGAN BEANS FOR NATION

10,000,000 Bushels of Beans Are Wanted From Leading Bean Producing State

The task of raising 10,000,000 bushels of white pea beans this year has been assigned to the state of Michigan and from every section the farmers are responding enthusiastically. There will be triple the bean acreage in Wayne county this year of the average crop as very large cash returns are in sight. The Michigan Food commission has informed the United States department of agriculture that sufficient acreage will be planted to insure the amount asked if the season is anything favorable.

The bean crop of 1916 was the best payer Michigan ever produced, the price never being below $5 per bushel. Right now the big canners are contracting for beans at that same price for delivery after harvest which would indicate that the price for the crop this year will yield big bank accounts.

M. A. C. Advice

J. C. Cox of the Farm Crop department of the Michigan Agricultural college has issued the following special bulletin on bean raising in Michigan:

The varieties most widely grown are the pea bean, medium bean, and white and red kidney beans. Of these the white pea bean is the greatest demand and the most dependable to grow, being most widely adapted.

Clean, plump, properly stored seed should be planted. The loss caused by diseases (anthracnose and blight) is very largely due to planting infected seed. No dips, sprays or seed treatments are known which are effective in making a disease-spotted sample fit for seed.

Fertile, well prepared soils are required for good yields. A well drained, fertile loam, such as will grow good corn, is usually well suited. Muck soils and poorly drained soils are not adapted.

A good clover sod to which has been added a dressing of about five tons of manure, preferable re-enforced with 250 pounds of acid phosphate, furnishes good preparation for a big crop of beans. Corn or potato land to be seeded to beans should be manured and treated with acid phosphate at the rate of 250 to 300 pounds per acre, applied broadcast before seeding, or through fertilizer attachment at time of drilling. At present prices, acid phosphate is the most profitable to use.

Planting should be done as early in the spring as possible. The land should be frequently harrowed until planting time. Beans require a well settled, well worked, weed free seed bed which can best be prepared by plowing in the fall or early spring, and harrowing frequently previous to planting.

Planting time ranges from June 1 to June 20 in Michigan. About three pecks per acre of pea beans in usually drilled at shallow depth, one to one and one-half inches, using the ordinary eleven hoe grain drill, with every fourth cup open. This will give rows of 28 inches apart. Special bean drills planting rows 28 to 32 inches apart may be used or corn planters may be adjusted to drill beans.

Frequent shallow cultivation, as for corn, is advised. Four to six cultivations are usual, deep cultivations particularly near blossom time, injure the plant through root pruning. Cultivation should be avoided when beans are wet with dew or rain, since disease spores are more easily spread.

Queer Corpse.

A western senator of burly appearance was passing an undertaker's shop when a roughly dressed man came out and said: "Say, mister, will you give me a lift with a casket?" The senator shuddered and asked hesitatingly: "Is there—is there anything in it?" "Shure!" came the hearty reply; "there's a couple of drinks in it."—Boston Transcript.

Get to the Front.

Here's an adage as old as Adam, but not as old as the sun: "The wise old birds don't gather in herds, but get there one by one." The motive of this is certain as the moral of it is true: If you would succeed you must take the lead, and leave the crowd to follow you.

Platonic Friendship.

"Do you believe in platonic friendship?" "Well, not altogether. My personal opinion is that I'd believe more in platonic friendship if it were carried on with the full knowledge and consent of the husband of the one and the wife of the other."—Detroit Free Press.

OPIMUM AND OLIVIA

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

As young Doctor Rylance stepped swiftly out of his office, a shining bauble caught his eye with its glister in the bright morning sunshine. He stooped and picked it up.

Even to his eyes, ignorant as to the price of feminine adornment, the locket fairly screamed aloud its worth from the costly mass of jewels in the gold frame.

There was a mysterious catch that gave the doctor no little amusement and trouble before he could open the tightly closed locket. When his fingers discovered the secret and the locket flew open his eyes expanded, then contracted, in professional scrutiny.

"Dope!" muttered the doctor. Involuntarily he sighed. There was so much wreckage floating about the world. Here was startling evidence of human tragedy. Some wretched woman was no doubt suffering the tortures of the condemned because she had lost her opium.

His inner conviction was that the woman, whoever she might be, would never claim the locket for fear her ghastly skeleton should become public property.

Skeptical though he was as to results, he inserted a well-worded advertisement in the daily papers.

She arose and took up the telephone. The number she called was the one given in the advertisement.

Doctor Rylance was in his office. When he took up the telephone receiver a little snatch of song was wafted along the wire. After that delightful sound Olivia's voice reached him.

"I am most anxious about my locket," she said.

"I am sorry I opened it," Rylance said to her. "But as you may know, a man's curiosity is a thing quite beyond his power to control." He appreciated the little laugh that bounded along the wires. "When can you call for the locket?" He was conscious of keen desire to study this opium fiend at close range.

"I will call this afternoon," Olivia said eagerly.

The growing tone in her voice caused the doctor to sigh as he hung up the receiver. It was evident that she was joyous over the prospect of regaining her lost property.

When the neat little nurse who acted as office attendant ushered in Olivia it was nearing the twilight hour. The doctor was forced swiftly to his feet. Having expected human wreckage in one of its most terrifying forms, the sight of Olivia was frightfully unsettling.

"It was silly of me to lose my precious locket," she said. "I don't know how it happened. It is usually so secure." She gazed calmly, if admiringly, at Rylance.

"Neither am I," she told him. "I am only a poor, harmless writer whose brain has been squeezed dry of every plot that it ever possessed. I hadn't written a story for ten whole days." She turned tragic eyes full upon Doctor Rylance without heeding the effect on his masculine senses. "I deliberately lost my locket—just to see who would find it and—"

"But what thieves are you associated with from whom you obtain opium?" he questioned. "It's a crime, you know."

"My brother," said Olivia loftily with flaming cheeks, "is a chemist."

"And a fool if he gives you opium to make plots for stories out of."

"He—he didn't give it to me. I knew where it was kept." She glanced up swiftly in defense of her brother. "He thinks me all kinds of a foolish person because of the things I do to get atmosphere for stories."

Doctor Rylance was looking at her in a way entirely uncalled for, considering the newness of the acquaintance. Olivia feared, from the manner in which her heart had taken to beating, that something other than a short story was going to be the outcome of her act. Never had it acted in this unusual way in the search for material.

"You may be silly," Rylance finally voiced some of the thoughts running riot in his brain during that long meeting with Olivia's eyes. "but you are also—many other things—of much nicer order." He rejoiced at the swift rush of color into Olivia's cheeks. "I don't get much time to read the magazines, but I suppose they occasionally take a story of love at first sight. If you want any facts or suggestions regarding the emotions of a man who has fallen suddenly, unexpectedly and completely in love at first sight—just you come to me—will you?" There was a hint of pleading below the laughter in the doctor's voice.

"My imagination is rather good," Olivia told him, "so I think it will not be difficult to weave some kind of story out of this situation."

The doctor smiled knowingly and Olivia made good her escape. It would be rather curious, even in a story, should both the hero and heroine capitulate to love in the first paragraph.

(c) That all citizens, of what station soever, do lend their aid and assistance to the President, the Governor, and to their appointed agents, and representatives in these matters, as becomes the dignity and welfare of this state and of the nation at large.

And I do further request that Tuesday, the fifth day of June, 1917, the date appointed by the President for such registration, be observed as a Holiday throughout this State, and urge upon all persons to lay aside their customary labors upon that date, and to celebrate the day with such suitable exercises as may be provided in each locality, in order that the work of the general government may be properly carried out without interference or hindrance in this state.

And I hereby appoint the Mayor of each city, the President of each village and the Supervisor of each township as chairmen of their respective communities to head committees and to prepare such form of celebration as may be deemed suitable for the observance of the day of registration.

Bulletin No. 3.

Following is published for the guidance of all concerned:

1. Following information received May 25, from the Provost Marshal General:

"Errors in Registration Regulations page 22. Entering group 'C' on Summary. This paragraph should require alien enemy cards to be entered in column 16 and aliens, not declarants and not enemies, to be entered in column 15, page 24, sub-paragraph 'D' line 2, the word 'Sheriff' should be 'County Clerk.'"

2. The Provost Marshal General under date of May 25, also holds that no member of the National Guard whether in the federal service or otherwise will be required to register June 5. The only persons not required to register are: "Persons in the military or naval service of the United States, which includes all officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the regular army reserve, the officers' reserve corps, the enlisted reserve corps, the National Guard and National Guard Reserve recognized by the militia bureau of the war department, the navy, the marine corps, the coast guard, and the naval militia, naval reserve force, marine corps reserve, and the national naval volunteers recognized by the navy department." Instruct all registrars as to this fact and also give publicity in local newspapers.

If troubled with sleeplessness try holding the eyes open instead of keeping them closed. In a short time the lids will droop. Do not allow them to close at once, but hold open until they become tired. Very often sound sleep will come.—People's Home Journal.

About Deep Breathing.

Many people act on the principle that because deep breathing causes dizziness it does not agree with them. But if they will practice the breathing less vigorously they will find that gradually they can take all the deep breaths they want without the slightest discomfort. Take ten breaths in ten seconds and gradually decrease the number of inhalations.

Simply Solved.

He had been calling on the Widow Smithers for some time, and it could not be said that he had made an impression, although he had failed to realize the fact. She decided to speed him on his way at the first opportunity, and it came that night. He heaved a sigh and said, "I have only one friend on earth—my dog." "Well," she answered, calmly, "if that isn't enough, why don't you get another dog?"

ARE FORBIDDEN TO MARRY

The Twentieth Century New Year club of Strausstown, 18 miles northwest of this city, at its annual business meeting recently imposed fines on two members who had broken the chief of the club's commandments, "Thou shalt not marry," the Philadelphia Ledger says. They were Charles Balthaser and Miss Beulah Betteiger. Each was fined $1 and each paid the money, following which they were formally expelled. Whether they were married, to each other does not appear in the minutes. The fact remains they entered the forbidden state and were duly fined out of the circles of the single and select remainder.

Since the formation of the club on December 31, 1909, 11 couples have broken the rules. The membership is growing all the time, however, so that 100 young people of northeastern Berks are now on the roll. The club is not an anti-matrimonial society. It is the only association in existence, so far as known, that encourages members to break the rules and bring about their expulsion. Any members thus expelled make an honorary exit. The more marriages the more popular do the members consider their organization and the more effective do they rate its purposes.

Resolutions aimed at the bachelor members were passed. The resolutions committee is composed of girls, and Carrie Unger is chairman. The resolutions expressed regret that not more of the male members had married. It was leap year and not enough of the girls got results from their proposals to make the record satisfying. All the bachelor members voted against the resolutions, but the feminine opposition was too strong.

BORN IN DIFFERENT YEARS

In Inverness-shire, Scotland, there live—or lived until recently—a pair of twins who celebrated their birthday in different years. The eldest of these Scotch twins was born on December 31, 1886, while the junior twin was born on January 1, 1887. One of them arrived in the world a few minutes before the church bells began ringing out the old year and the other was born a few minutes after midnight.

A much more remarkable case occurred in England a few years ago. On February 24 the wife of a workman, at Barrow, in Lancashire, gave birth to another child, a girl. Six weeks intervened between the birth of the first and second twins. Under the insurance act the father was entitled to a maternity benefit of $7.50. The sum is the same for twins as for single babies, however. The father alleged that an interval of six weeks was sufficient to destroy the twinning of the infants and applied for a second maternity benefit, thus giving the commissioners a hard problem to solve.

The most remarkable instance of this kind was reported in a medical journal several years ago, when a physician described a case in which triplets were born a month apart. The second baby followed the first after a little over a month had elapsed and the third was born almost a month after the second.

Glass and Razor as Diet.

Were it not for the fact that glass and hardware have taken such leaps in prices Charles Cooper, a big colored fellow of Spokane, Wash., would have the high cost of living eliminated from life's worries, says the Spokane Chronicle.

Cooper was arrested for larceny and while confined in jail heard that his sweetheart had gone back on him. He thereupon smashed up a jelly glass and ate it. The county doctor set the date for his death as the glass slowly ground into him. But Charles only had a bad stomachache. Later he ate a hatpin, some safety pins and other pieces of metal, according to the disclosures of the X-ray.

After it seemed that Cooper had become reconciled to a diet of bread and potatoes he suddenly became ravenous, one day and ate a safety razor blade, broken in small pieces. The doctor told the coroner to be ready, but Cooper fooled him again and was reduced once more to meat and spuds and hardtack.

Millions of Eggs From the Nile.

News that Egypt has exported quite recently some 7,000,000 eggs caused one to realize quite suddenly that the Nile is becoming the world's greatest henery. One has generally associated the Nile with wheat and sand, but the land of the Pharaohs is really well adapted and fitted for the poultry business.

The grain is near at hand, but above all the climate is constantly mild and generally uniform. The days are long and there is no need of keeping the hens under cover during the winter months. Long days and out of doors the poultry journals tell us are the two great prerequisites for egg production. Egypt having them both, the egg export does not seem so staggering. Also eggs have never approached a value nearer their weight in gold than at present. Egyptian eggs are selling in the London market at 35 cents a dozen.

MOLLY STOPS PAYMENT

By JANE OSBORN.

Molly Bell had intended to keep Brad Simpson in suspense. She would say to him that she had known, of course, that he liked to be in her company, but that he actually wanted to marry her—really the idea was so strange, so novel, so unexpected, that she would have to have time to think it over. That was what she planned to say, but when the moment came Molly, in her excitement, forgot all her plans and told the undoctored plain truth. In a few timid, half sentences, and not with the easy nonchalance she had planned, she told him that she had loved him always, and that now she was the happiest girl in Bennington.

"And isn't it wonderful," she said, "how everything I have dreamed about and waited for comes the same day—May 20—the greatest day of my life?"

"Why the very greatest?"

"Besides this most wonderful day," she said, still forgetting the role she had planned, "there's the—" Then she stopped short. No, she wouldn't tell him the rest. He mustn't know about the check she had received from the magazine that had accepted her little story. "Well, then, besides this," she added, confusedly marking off the events on her fingers, "the first white rose bloomed today, and we got the new vacuum cleaner and the cook left."

Molly had literary ambitions and for three long years she had been working, dreaming and scribbling with her funny little ambition always uppermost in her thoughts.

The next day Molly went to Bradford, the nearest sizeable town, to begin to buy the things for the trousseau. She had forgotten to have the check cashed in Bennington before she started, so all her little purchases were sent C. O. D.

When she arrived home after the shopping trip it was two o'clock.

Then Molly thought of the purse with the check! Where was it? It could not be found, but where had she lost it? The purse itself was old and it contained little of value but the check, which Molly had foolishly enough indorsed after she had asked Brad the night before how checks should be signed. Brad, she was sure, would know because he worked in Bennington's only bank and knew everything about banking.

First she telephoned all the way to Bradford, to the store she had visited, but she heard no news of her purse. The man who answered her call at the department store suggested that since the check was indorsed she had better write at once to the editor who had sent it and request him to have payment stopped. And this Molly did without, of course, knowing what the words meant.

Once or twice that evening when Brad came to call he accused Molly of being abstracted and surely she was.

It was two evenings later that the tables were turned, and when Brad called that evening it was he who was accused by Molly of being abstracted. "It isn't that you have actually displeased me," Brad began quite seriously after Molly had coaxed him to tell her the cause of his anxiety, "but I am afraid I don't understand you. That's all. I would be so happy if I thought I had your confidence."

"I am sure that what I have been doing is not at all wrong," she said, and then a hot tear trickled down her pretty cheek and another and then her confused little head was on Brad's shoulder and he was explaining very gravely.

"I'll tell you exactly what I know; then there will be no misunderstanding. This morning we had word that a certain check we had honored was worthless—that is, the person who made it out—had ordered payment stopped. Well, I asked Jones, the cashier, about it and he told me that he had honored the check because you had presented it. He also told me that when you came into the bank you asked him not to let me know that you called and to say nothing about the check. I'd patch it up if I understood you better. But something is wrong somewhere or you would have told me about it. It isn't too late. Molly, for heaven's sake, tell me who is this Jane Daw and how did you get into possession of checks made out to her?" Molly sat up very straight and explained minutely about the story she had written, the check and the loss of the purse. "And then," she continued, "after I had telegraphed and asked the editor to stop payment I found the purse after all. The very next day, I hurried down to the bank and got that nice Mr. Jones to give me the money, and of course I told him not to tell you, because I didn't want you to know I had been writing. I thought I would write some day and tell the editor not to bother to do anything about the check as I had found it. Oh, dear, I think banking is very hard to understand. If I ever get to be a really truly writer and have many checks come for my stories, I do hope you'll take care of the business side of things."

"Well, rather," was Brad's reply, "and when you get an answer from the magazine there will probably be a new check. Let me have that before you start to do any more banking on your own account, and maybe then I can straighten things out. But hereafter, remember, I'm the banker of this family. But I'm as proud as Punch that your little story was accepted." (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

FEEDING SEASON AT HAND FOR CUT-WORM.

East Lansing, Mich., May 29.—The many gardens sprouting forth all over the state in the wake of the "more food movement" are expected this spring to furnish fine browsing cut-worms, which under the spur of warm weather are beginning to feel the pangs of hunger resulting from their winter's fast.

But while the cut-worms can do much damage if they are left to themselves, the controlling of them is not difficult, say entomologists of the Michigan Agricultural college. Their recommendations for keeping them in check are these:

"When the plants are to be produced in a garden, and isolated, like cabbage plants or tomatoes, the cut-worms can be kept out by placing a small collar of stiff paper around each plant. The common garden cut-worms seem to be unable to climb such a barrier.

"In case the crops are in fields, then resort must be had to poisoned baits, and of all the poisoned baits in use, the one that attracts the worms most seems to be the 'Kansas Mixture.' This may be made as follows:

"Twenty pounds of bran, one pound of Paris Green, three-quarters of a pound of white arsenic, one-half gallon of molasses or syrup, and a little water. To this is added four oranges or lemons ground up finely in food chopper, skins and all. This can be broadcasted over from two to five acres of land. The material should be thrown out by hand, while moist, so that it will break up into fine particles, and not remain in lumps. Cutworms and grasshoppers as well are strongly attracted to this bait and devour it greedily.

"But a word of warning must be borne in mind. Do not substitute arsenate of lead for Paris Green or white arsenic, since arsenate of lead is much slower in its action and several pounds of it are needed to take the place of one pound of Paris Green. Disappointment is certain to follow an attempt to make a substitution."

Margaret's Thought.

While Mr. B. was conducting family prayers one morning, little Margaret made so much noise and was so restless that he checked her several times; at last, rising from his knees, he called her to him and said: "Margaret, why were you not quiet while father was praying, what could you be thinking of?" Like a flash she replied: "Oh, I was thinking the soles of your shoes need mending."—D. M. Cox, Nebraska.

TAWAS WINS FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON.

Wednesday afternoon was the opening day for the Northeastern Michigan League and Tawas started the season by winning from Alabaster the new club in the league, by a score of 14-1. Up to the sixth inning the game had all appearance of being a first-class ball game, Alabaster holding Tawas to a 1-0 score. But then the Tawas boys started to hit the ball and kept on going round the bases for two innings. In the sixth there were nine men at bat and in the seventh 12 men faced the opposing pitcher, netting 13 runs in the two innings. O. Johnson, pitching for Alabaster, had the Tawas boys guessing for the first five innings, but then he weakened and the game was lost. Byron Mark, our veteran, had the Alabaster boys at his mercy all the way, and the way he worked deserved a shut-out, but Umpire Patterson called a man safe in the ninth, who managed to get around, thus escaping the whitewash. Following is the box score: Tawas AB R H O A E Koffman, 2 ..... 4 0 0 2 0 0 J. Johnson, lf, 2 ..... 6 4 4 0 0 0 A. The game will be called at 2:30 sharp.

POTATOES $1.00 NEXT FALL.

W. K. Prudden of Lansing a member of the Food Preparedness Board, a manufacturer and banker, gave an order for 50,000 bushels of potatoes at $1.00 per bushel, fall delivery, f. o. b., Lansing or Detroit, subject to commercial rules of grading and inspection. This order will be distributed in different counties to be grown under contract. These contracts for growing are pronounced by bankers as substantial aids for credit purposes. Additional orders from other large manufacturers and for private supplies are expected. Leading citizens in their respective counties will be asked to act as inspectors to insure square dealing. Contracts for filling this and others will be in readiness soon. This will in all probability control the price for Michigan potatoes next fall.

Men Who Provided in Time

Every one of us must die. We realize this in a dumb sort of way. But it strikes one as a dash of cold water or a slap in the face to read a list of people who died within twelve months after taking insurance. Even to us in business it is startling. The New York Life in 1916 paid claims on 173 male lives in the United States and Canada, all standard risks all apparently in good health at the time they insured, but who died in the very first year after insuring. One person lived only four days, another only nine, and four less than a month. Sixteen passed away in less than two months. Who can be callous enough to disregard such a warning?—Insurance World.

PRESENT SPRING JUST TO LIKING OF PLANT PESTS.

East-Lansing, Mich., May 21.—A discreet reminder cautioning Michigan farmers to keep a "weather eye" open for insect pests has been made to state agriculturists by Prof. Rufus H. Pettit, head of the M. A. C. department of entomology. Professor Pettit, recalling Michigan's costly experience with the army worm in 1914, is pointing out that much of the present spring has been attended by weather conditions almost identical with those which were a fore-runner of the worm visitations of three years ago. "The present spring," said Professor Pettit in a statement from the college, "has opened with cold, wet weather of the sort particularly favorable to plant lice, cut worms and army worms, though it is not yet too late for bright, warm weather to overcome, in part, the influence of present conditions. "These pests normally are held in check by insects which feed upon them, parasites, in other words, which work inside the bodies of the worms and plant lice and multiply right along with them. The parasites, however, require warmer weather than the pests, and a cold wet spring for this reason produces conditions favorable to the parasites, a state of affairs which usually results in the pests getting a good start before the parasites can commence work. "For this reason, it would be well this season for farmers to at least be prepared for plant lice on fruits, garden vegetables and ornamentals, and for cut-worms on various crops. Special watch should be kept for the latter on spring-plowed grass sod. "Cut-worms can be controlled by poisoned bran bait, the formula for which can be procured by writing in to the college for bulletin 73. Plant lice can be checked by spraying with a solution of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate, diluted at the rate of one pint to 100 gallons of soap suds, or one ounce to about six gallons of soapy water. Use about four or five pounds of laundry soap to make 100 gallons of soap suds, and spray very carefully to hit every louse."

SOME SUGGESTIONS ON HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Scraps of left-over meat or fish can be combined with cereal or other mild-flavored food, both to give flavor and to add nourishment to the total dish. Vegetables properly prepared tempt the appetite. When they are soggy cooked or poorly seasoned, much of them will be left on the table. Many persons are unaware that the green and tender tops of many vegetables, such as radishes, turnips, celery and beets, contain valuable mineral and other food substances, and are excellent cooked as greens, or even as additions to salads. That vast amounts of nourishing material are thrown out from American kitchens and so made useless for human consumption is well established by the returns from garbage and fertilizer plants showing the amount of fats and nitrogenous material recovered from city garbage. Many persons regard the saving of small amounts of left-over food as unimportant. If they kept accurate account, however, for any period, many families would be astounded by the amount of good food they are throwing out and by the sums that they are paying to the grocer, the butcher, and the milkman to replace good food being absolutely wasted. Skim milk, too widely looked down upon as a food, although it contains practically all the nourishing elements of whole milk with the exception of the cream or fat, can be used as a beverage, in cooking cereals, or as a basis for milk soups or sauces. Sour milk also, so often thrown away, can be used in making hot breads or in the home manufacture of cottage cheese. Vegetables and fruits often are stored in quantities in hot, damp and poorly ventilated bins and under conditions which hasten wilting, fermentation, and decay. Buy a "Liberty Loan" bond.
