MEMORIAL DAY

In spite of the inclement weather a large crowd gathered at the cemetery on Memorial day to observe the day in a suitable manner.

The school children gathered at the school house and marched to the cemetery in double file headed by the Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls, and followed by a large number of automobiles carrying old soldiers, soldiers' widows, and others.

N. C. Harting officiated as chairman and after the singing of a couple of patriotic songs by the audience he introduced Rev. MacAndrew, who delivered the address of the day. At the close of this address Mr. Harting, who is one of the Four-Minute men of Iosco county, gave a short but stirring talk, addressed mainly to the younger people present. Another patriotic song was then sung and the program concluded by the usual decorating of the graves of the old soldiers.

Guest day will be remembered by those present as one of the pleasantest and most entertaining meetings of the year. Much praise is due the committees who so ably planned the affair.

FATALLY BURNED.

Clark S. Day, aged 42, an electrician employed by the Eastern Michigan Power Co. at the Five Channels dam, was the victim of a fatal accident during the severe electric storm last Sunday evening. Mr. Day was testing out some fuse with a drop cord and lamp at about 9:30 p. m., when in some manner his clothing became ignited from a flash of the electricity. He was alone at the time and rushed outside the house calling for help, but before aid could reach him was so severely burned that death resulted at about five o'clock the next morning.

Dr. Stealey was summoned immediately after the accident and rendered what relief was possible. He intended to take the patient to the hospital at Bay City on the morning train, but the injury was too severe and death intervened.

The body was brought to East Tawas Tuesday morning and taken to Olivet for burial.

Mr. Day was a member of the Masonic fraternity and had several times visited the local lodge. He had gained many friends during his residence in Iosco county who were sincerely grieved to learn of his terrible death.

ANNOUNCEMENT To Herald Subscribers

In common with all other forms of business The Herald during the past three years has been forced to contend with the upward trend in prices. Everything that goes into the making of a newspaper, paper, inks, type, and all other materials have steadily increased in price until at the present time the cost of these things is double and in some cases more than double what they were three years ago. During this time we have kept the subscription price at the same figure, in the hope that there might soon be an end to the increases and that prices would begin to take a downward trend. However, there seems to be no relief in sight, and paper and other materials keep on climbing in price. Added to this the U. S. government has passed a new postal rate law which goes into effect July 1, 1918, and which gradually increases the rate on newspapers from this date until July 1, 1921.

For these reasons, and because we believe that every business man is entitled to a fair return for his investment, we have decided that the only recourse is to raise our subscription price. We believe that this action will be more acceptable to our subscribers than to decrease the size or lower the quality of the paper we are publishing. Therefore,

Beginning July 1, 1918, the Subscription Price of the Tawas Herald Will Be $2.00 Per Year, in Advance

This increase will not affect any subscriber who is paid in advance, nor any who may pay up before July 1. We will not, however, accept more than one year's subscription in advance at the $1.50 rate. If you are in arrears you may, by paying up to July 1 and a year in advance, secure your Herald until July 1, 1919, at the rate of $1.50 per year. Or if you are already paid in advance, by sending us $1.50 you may have your subscription advanced one year from the date to which you are now paid. This MUST be done before July 1, 1918, however, as after that date all subscriptions, whether new or renewal, will be charged for at the higher price.

FOLLOW DIRECTIONS

You would give your life for your country. You would scorn an American whose patriotism ended with waving flags, cheering the troops and standing up when the band plays. You want to serve your country.

Are you willing to do what your Government asks? Are you willing to follow directions?

Are you so comfortably fixed that you can afford to eat what you please? Ah, but you can't afford to eat what your country needs. Follow directions.

Are you saving now of your slender means all you possibly can? Still, as far as your circumstances permit, follow directions.

Have you servants who can't be made to understand? It is your chore to see that they do. Follow directions.

Follow directions. Today the directions is to save two slices of bread, an ounce of meat, an ounce of sugar, a pinch of butter. Tomorrow as conditions change there will be new directions. Follow directions.

Follow directions. If Germany wins you will be obeying orders given by some one you will not care to obey. Your government asks you to prove that free people can follow directions.

Follow directions. If we fail in this the war will drag on. As we succeed, we shall sooner have peace. Follow directions.

MUST WORK OR FIGHT

Every man of draft age must work or fight after July 1 under a drastic amendment to the selective service regulations announced by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

Not only idlers but all draft registrants engaged in what are held to be non-useful occupations are to be haled before local boards and given the choice of a new job or the army.

Gambblers, race track and bucket shop attendants and fortune tellers head the list, but those who will be reached by the new regulation also include waiters and bartenders, theater ushers and attendants, passenger elevator operators and other attendants of clubs, hotels, stores, etc., domestics and clerks in stores.

Deferred classification granted on account of dependents will be disregarded entirely in applying the rule. A man may be at the bottom of class one, or even in class four, but if he falls within the regulation and refuses to take useful employment he will be given a new number in class one that will send him into the military service forthwith. Local boards are authorized to use discretion only where they find that enforced change of employment would result in disproportionate hardship upon his dependents.

THE FLY AND THE EPIDEMICS

Reams have been printed about danger from the house fly. Despite all that has been said, it is a self-evident fact that people do not understand how real and how great is the danger from these pests; otherwise a single season would be sufficient to wipe out the dangerous nuisances. When people once understand the part that the fly plays in the transmission of disease they will look upon anyone who maintains a condition which breeds them as a public enemy, to be summarily dealt with. At least they should do so.

There is much wasted advice about swatting the fly and trapping the fly. What we must learn to do is to exterminate it, by doing away with all breeding places.

Stables with manure piles that are left unremoved for weeks, garbage dumps and unscrubbed and carelessly constructed outhouses are the sources of the fly pest. Unpleasant as this may be to hear or read, it is true. Any community which wishes to free itself from flies must eliminate these offensive features.

That flies can and do carry the germs of typhoid fever and other diseases is a matter of definite knowledge. It is a wise mother who screens the baby's crib.

The lives of thousands of children under one year of age would be saved annually if the fly were eliminated.—Public Health.

SCHOOL PATRIOTIC DAY A SUCCESS

The school patriotic day celebrated at the fair grounds last Friday was one of the most successful affairs of the kind that has ever been seen in Iosco county. While the weather was rather unpropitious it did not appear to affect the attendance to any great degree. The various schools of the county were well represented, it being estimated that there were over two thousand children, teachers and visitors present.

The schools met at the court house at 9 o'clock and formed in line for the parade, which was more than a quarter of a mile long. They marched to the fair grounds, where the day was spent in athletic sports, games, and the singing of patriotic songs. Exhibit work from the various schools was shown at the Floral hall. ### ICE PRICES HAVING ATTENTION

Lansing, May 27.—Many queries are being received at the office of the State Food Administrator on the question of ice prices. Boiled down the new regulation simply means.

No dealer in ice is permitted to charge a price for ice during 1918 in excess of the cash price charged for ice during the same period in 1917, unless he gets a permit from the United States Food Administrator for the state, after a proper hearing and the presentation of evidence to prove the necessity of such an increase.

Following is the official clause requesting the information upon which the Food Administrator will either grant or deny the dealer's claim for a higher price: "If you have advanced the price of ice manufactured or harvested by you over that of last year, you must at once file with this office your schedule of increased prices, with a statement showing the necessity of such increases, or in case you contemplate raising the prices of ice this season over that of last year you must submit to this office your proposed schedule of increased prices in advance of putting them into effect, with a statement showing the necessity of such increases, and before putting increased prices in effect you must have the approval of this office of the proposed increases."

Useful Banana Plant.

It must not be thought that of the banana plant the fruit alone is eaten, for in tropical countries the pith of the stem, the top of the floral spike, and also the young shoots are used as food. The fibers of the leaves are used for thread, cloth and ropes.

ADDRESS OF CORPORAL BEATON

As announced last week, the Herald publishes herewith a stenographic report of the address of Corporal Beaton of the Canadian army, delivered at the patriotic meeting at the court house on Saturday, May 18.

This stenographic report was furnished us by Mr. W. J. Trembath of the U. S. Forest Service, who has our thanks for the same:

Mr. Dillon then requested Private Patterson of the 20th battalion of the Canadian army, who had received 32 wounds, to address the meeting. It was soon apparent that the veteran in speaking labored under considerable difficulty, the result of his wounds. He said he had lost a leg but he was not sorry, as he had brought down a man. If it were not for the Red Cross he would not be there, he said.

The chairman then called upon Corporal Beaton of the 44th battalion, Canadian army.

Corporal Beaton was "gassed" on the western front, but he is not short of wind, judging by the length of his address. Nevertheless, he was interesting, and the audience, though they were standing, would have welcomed more of the western front history.

In the course of his discourse he stated that the phrase "Carry on" meant more to the average soldier than any other order given him by his superior in the trenches. He had seen a regiment with 1040 men, under the usual number of officers, make a dash on a 600 yard front, and for the last 15 yards before gaining the German parapet the men were under the command of a private, who had had the "Carry on" handed down to him by his superiors.

He referred to the "contemptible" British army of 100,000 that held up the Germans in Belgium in August, 1914, when the British were but one man to a quarter of mile front, and compared the allied strength at that time with the present. He was positive the Huns could not reach their goal.

He spoke at some length of German intrigue and propaganda, and said that America was in grave danger because of the underhanded tricks of the Hun, but the allies were playing with their cards on the table. Russia and Italy were examples of this intrigue and propaganda. Only last Friday, he said, the Detroit Free Press quoted as authoritative the statement that the British and allied forces had asked that the American army be placed in reserve, because they were not needed to hold the Hun at bay. That was an absolutely damnable lie, he said, as Lloyd George, the British Premier, had asked President Wilson that the American forces come in because they could not beat the Germans themselves.

In connection with trench life he related a story of two dummies who had enlisted in the 175th battalion. One said to the other: "Dis war shore am changin' one's viewpoint." "What do you mean by dat, nigga?" "Yknow, I nubber knew before I come into dis fight dat a man can be in two places at once. 'Oh, you'm crazy, nigga!'" "Shore, I'm hear where de 75's and 94's is falling. 'Dat is right,'" said the other. "And I've home!"

Corporal Beaton next gave the audience a vivid picture of the work of the Medical Corps and Red Cross. The wounded, he said, would often be brought in on the backs of their comrades, and handed over to stretcher bearers, who would take them to the support trench, and from there they would be transferred to the reserve dressing station outside of the zone of fire, where they could be given more thorough treatment. He stated that the losses of the R. A. M. C. of the British army had been heavy, quoting them for a period of three months as follows:

Officers killed ..... 53
Officers wounded ..... 208
Officers missing ..... 260
N. C. O.'s and men killed ..... 4
N. C. O.'s and men wounded ..... 1212
N. C. O.'s and men missing ..... 3

He then spoke in high terms of the work of the Red Cross nurse and the personnel of the Medical Corps, and said: "I say, do you ever think of the fatigue of those sisters, of the labors of the medical men and their staffs? Do you ever think of what they are trying to do for you and yours? Are you doing your part? If not, you will stand condemned at the bar of the world's history."

From the base hospital the convalescents, who were lucky or fortunate enough, would be marked up for what the British Tommy called "Blighty," for Paris, London or home.

He referred to the clearing station, and said: "It means more than Home Sweet Home to the wearying man of the American continent. Then it is that you get real care, cleanliness, rest and comfort after being in the trenches for 3, 6, or even 12 months. I cannot tell you what it means to have a white spread or blanket on your bed, and find a Red Cross nurse going there in uniform; they are women, girls, of the English speaking tongue; and yet—here let me say a word or two to the young ladies who have boy friends at the front—I do not care whether they are your sweethearts,—for God's sake write them letters. I have seen boys just twenty yards from Heinie's trench, who, while flares and rockets were lighting up the sky, regardless of the danger, when they heard of the mail that had arrived, would jump up on the parapet and run 25 or 30 yards down to the connecting trench to meet the mail man, and on more than one occasion I have seen them drop in the attempt. We are often three weeks and not a line from home. There is a sentiment behind it; the only thing to let us know there is something between us, something worth fighting for. Stand behind them and write letters."

Referring to the tobacco subject, he said: "I also want to say to something about tobacco. Some of the good church people of the state of Michigan have taboored tobacco as being harmful to the constitution, etc. I have been in the army about three years, and I have smoked as many as 30 cigarettes a day, and sometimes a can of tobacco in addition, and I don't look as if it has done me much harm. Let us have anything. We are doing more for you over there than has ever been done for you before."

He mentioned the work of the Red Cross in taking care of Belgian and French mothers and baby girls who arrived by the "stork" train from Germany. The girls and women were captured in Belgium and Northern France and taken to Germany for the purpose of increasing the male population. The boys would be reared as Germans, to fight in future wars.

The speaker said that while in the hospitals of France he saw a number of instances where the nurses spent more on the soldiers than the amount of their pay, and more than their pay by those nurses who received money from their parents. The soldiers needed the little things, after being stripped of everything, and had no money to buy. The base hospitals received all nationalities of the allies, French, British, Canadians and Italians, and he related that he was taken to an English hospital but being a Canadian soldier could not draw a cent of pay. "Unless a fellow happens to be lucky enough to get money from home, he is often up against it," he said. "We've got to have paper, toilet necessities and a few extra cigarettes, because the Red Cross do not supply these articles. We have to provide our own tooth paste, tooth brushes and other articles."

He proceeded. "I went from Boulogne to Dover and asked one of the artillery officers how many casualties went through a day, and he said approximately 4000. Dover is only one of six such ports where the wounded are taken; there are others, as Southampton, Portsmouth, and Belfast, in Ireland, and some are larger than Dover. Taking 4000 as average, you have 24,000 casualties from the war zone. That will give you an idea of what the Red Cross is up against. As I said before, the boys have got nothing when they arrive at the hospital, but the hospital authorities, through the Red Cross, are now being provided with pillow slips, pajamas, socks, and the various equipment that the army does not provide. Then you are sent from one hospital to another. When we were sent we had just one uniform suit, one pair of socks, one suit of underwear, one pair of shirts, and that is all. The reasons the hospitals did not have these articles when we were there was because the Red Cross did not have the money to get them. They need the money now; and those of you who have freedom, those of you who come up in your automobiles, and who go to bed between white sheets, remember that you have all of these because we are standing between you and the Hun."

The corporal did not altogether agree with President Wilson, and said: "The German kaiser is not alone to blame, even if he is at the head of the Huns; he is not alone to blame for the treachery of this war. It has been said that the German people are not to blame; that they are forced to do these things. But I tell you a Hun is a Hun, because he is yellow, dirty, and a barbarian, and nothing else! We hear of Kultur, when they spell it with a C we will believe in it, not before."

He then read some of the maxims of the Germans: "Ye shall love peace as a means to war, and a short peace rather than a long." "Be not considerate of thy neighbor."

One of the great writers: "Teutons are the aristocracy of humanity." Corporal Beaton. "God help humanity!" And here's another.

"As regards Belgium and Holland, it may be said openly that such little states have lost their rights to exist because only those states should exist that can assert their rights by the sword."

Corporal Beaton continued: "There is only one thing a Hun is good for, and that is to run a bayonet through Maximilian Harden, the distinguished German writer, has said: 'One principle only is to be reckoned with—Force—that is what rings loud and clear.' This is from a minister of the Gospel: 'Anyone who cannot bring himself to a praise from the bottom of his heart for the sinking of the Lusitania and give himself up to honest joy, is not a true, noble German.' That is what they are taught. Then you say, 'It is the leaders' but I tell you the only thing you can do is to wipe the whole nation off the face of the earth. Germany is wrong with its standards of morality for a nation. There is a difference in the standards of the different nations. I believe with Dr. Hillis of the United States, that if there is a God in Heaven, Germany cannot and will not win this war."

The speaker then spoke of the status of the various allied nations in the war. He believed that Russia was coming back, as the Cossacks were the dominating people in that country, and they were no friends of the Germans. He says there is not a soldier but that feels positively that Russia will come back.

"What of England? Let's run from East to West. On the western shores we have the great military camps. Then we run through the center of the country and we have warehouses and manufacturing plants. On the west coast are the hospitals, as at Blackpool, where some of the 24,000 casualties are being cared for. What of France? When I was leaving Boulogne I noticed a lady, fashionably dressed, talking with a young officer in French uniform. The next time I saw her she was crying. While I was waiting for the boat to take me over to 'Blighty,' I asked her why she was dead, four of her brothers were dead, and one was then in France, and her husband was just going back after a leave. France has done splendidly. What of America in the war? You have got 150,000 American Sammies now in the front line trenches, four divisions of them. And 600,000 or 700,000 more are now, or will shortly be, in training in France. You have sent these men over there to stand between democracy and autocracy. For God's sake, after sending them there, bring them back! bring them back! The world owes you a debt. You are the mother and father of freedom. You hold the birthright of democracy, and now it is up to you to maintain it. We have done our part. The British line has been broken. You hear of peace from the Germans, but there is no use trying to make peace with a pestilence. The devil and the Almighty cannot sit at the same table in conference. We are going to beat the Hun, and we are going to beat him so he will never come back. Not wanting to break up Germany? She stood for everything that is base, dirty and treacherous, and such a country we will wipe off the map. I have told you what the Red Cross has done. At the front we have three lines, the front line, support and reserve. And there are three in this drive, the pockets, bureaus and banks. When the solicitors for the Red Cross come next week, remember what they are doing over there; they are giving their lives, bodies, everything they have got. If you could see the loyalty and confidence among all ranks over there, and the spirit of sacrifice that exists in all ranks from the lowest to the highest, then you will not hold back, but would give some of the rusty coins you have laid away, and would let the boys have at least a part of the pleasures you are enjoying over here."

PATRIOT DOLLARS

All the dollars in the world can not buy victory. Victory is not purchasable—it is won. Dollars can work for victory only in so far as they are converted into labor and materials. A dollar hoarded is a slacker; a dollar wasted is a traitor; a dollar saved is a patriot, doubly so when loaned to the Government.

A hoarded dollar represents idle power; a wasted dollar represents wasted power; a dollar saved represents power saved, labor saved, materials saved. Loaned to your Government, it represents power, labor, and materials in action, on the firing line, over the top. And more—it represents reserve power, energy stored, purchasing power conserved for its owner.

There are now 20 uniforms for women in war work in the United States. They are for munition workers, telephone and radio operators, yeomen, employes of Shipping Board and the Food Administration, Red Cross workers, Y. M. C. A. workers, Woman's Motor Corps, Girl Scouts, and students of the National Service School of the Woman's Naval Service.

LEG COLOR CLUE TO HEN'S PRODUCTIVITY

East Lansing, Mich., May 18.—A clue to the laying abilities of a hen is afforded at this time by the color of the legs and beak, according to the department of poultry husbandry of the Michigan Agricultural College. The department is mentioned in this fact in connection with a plea to owners of birds to cull their flocks of non-producers.

"If a hen has not laid well during the winter and spring," Prof. C. H. Burgess declares, "her beak should be white now and her shanks a pale yellow. If a hen or pullet began the winter with bright yellow legs and beak, and has laid well during the winter and spring, her shanks and toes, as well as her beak, will be white at this time."

During the coming summer, beginning on July 1, a representative of the college will be sent out into the state to demonstrate to farmers how his culling can be conducted. An appeal to co-operate is being made to farmers by the department.

The Treasury Department has extended to Great Britain an additional credit of $75,000,000, making the total of American loans to that country $2,795,000,000, and the total to all co-belligerents $5,363,850,000.

ENDORSE WILD GREENS AS EFFICIENCY AIDS

East Lansing, Mich., May 18.—Spurn not the heretofore despised pigweed—and have a heart for the fragrant dandelion and the wild mustard. Once thought "weeds" by the uninitiated, these and a number of other wild greens have been given a clean bill of health by the food specialists.

"Eat 'em," these officials are advising. "If your system is out of tune and you feel the need of a change of diet, don't forget the wild greens. Eat 'em." Besides pigweed, dandelion and wild mustard, the food specialists are also endorsing dock, pokeweed, purslane, wild lettuce, lamb's quarter, sorrel and water cress.

"These greens," declares a bulletin from the department of home economics of the Michigan Agricultural College, "deserve a place in the diet at this time of the year for medicinal purposes. Iron is a common constituent of them, and in this organic form is a far more useful tonic than that found in famous mineral waters or in medicine. Other minerals, such as lime, which is necessary for building bones, are present also. The large amount of water which greens contain render them valuable for flushing out the system, thus performing the same service as the herb teas of former years. We ought to balance our diet also, so that we may have a desirable alkaline condition in our blood and tissues. Greens help to bring this about."

MICHIGAN FARMERS NEED MORE SILOS

East Lansing, Mich., May 27.—A tendency on the part of numerous Michigan farmers to abandon their plans for the erection of silos is being reported from many sources in the state, according to Prof. F. Cox of the M. A. C. department of farm crops. Acting on this information, the department is warning corn growers who lack silos that it will be during the present season that these storing structures are likely to be of most use.

"The presence of a silo on a farm makes corn a sure crop, even under adverse conditions such as we had a year ago," Prof. Cox declared. "If it had not been for them, much of our 1918 crop, which failed to mature, would have been lost completely. This season has seen the planting of much corn not adapted to Michigan conditions such as that from Delaware and New Jersey, and large amounts of red cob ensilage and corn from the corn belt.
"The building of silos will insure much of this crop, and will constitute one of the safest investments a farmer can make at this time."
