WHY THE HERALD IS LATE THIS WEEK.

For the first time in many months the subscribers to the Tawas Herald failed this week to get their paper on time. However, this was no fault of the publisher, but due to the prevailing epidemic, together with an extra amount of work.

Last Saturday Emil Buchholz, the linotype operator on the Herald was attacked by the Spanish influenza and has been compelled to remain at home all the week. The work of setting all the type for the Herald, as well as attending to the job work and the business and editorial work, has therefore devolved upon the proprietor, and though he has worked double shifts all week he was unable to get the paper out on time. Indeed, except for the kindly assistance of the former Herald editor, L. J. Patterson, the paper would be later than it now is. Though Mr. Patterson has been out of the business for some years, he still retains the "hang of it" and his timely help on press day was greatly appreciated.

We trust that under the circumstances our readers will bear with us for any lack in the amount of news and for the delay in receiving their paper.

DR. A. S. WARTHIN COMING SOON.

Owing to the influenza a date cannot be fixed at this time.

Dr. Warthin will lecture at the following places:

Alabaster to men only.

Whittemore, men in the afternoon.

Lincoln, men in the afternoon.

Mikado, men in the forenoon.

Harrisville, men in the evening.

This is a patriotic lecture and every man is asked to be present. The topic is "Hygiene and Morality."

The U. S. military authorities are very anxious that all men of draft age hear Dr. Warthin before going into the service.

This will be the only time that we will be able to have Dr. Warthin this year, so let us make the most of our opportunity.

SPLENDID TALENT TO BE HEARD HERE AT POPULAR PRICES

Lyceum Course for This Season Fully Outlined.

AN INSPIRATION IN WAR TIME

Entertainment of the Lyceum Platform Has Vital Place in Keeping Up the Spirit of Our People.

The local auspices of the Lyceum course for the season of 1918-19 have secured some splendid talent which will be offered to our people at popular prices.

More and more as the days go by, the importance of the Chautauqua and Lyceum in times of war becomes apparent. It is not only a question of the great service which these institutions render in connection with the work of the Red Cross, the Liberty Loan, the Smilge campaign for the entertainment of our soldiers, and the creation of public opinion as a part of our national defense, but many people are also coming to an appreciation of the fact that it is important that our people at home keep in good spirits in so far as possible if they are to do their best work and accomplish the great tasks of this hour.

The entertainment and especially the inspiration for which the Lyceum and Chautauqua platform is noted, have a most vital place in keeping up the spirits of our people. It is a mistake to think that our best work can be accomplished amid gloom. Indeed, gloom should be dispelled just as much as possible. Our soldier boys at the front go at their gigantic tasks with a smile. We should go about our tasks in the same way.

OFFER FERTILIZER TO MICHIGAN FARMERS

East Lansing, Mich.—The Michigan Agricultural college through the agency of which the fertilizer produced in the Camp Custer barns was made available to farmers last season, has been advised that this supply of soil-enriching product is obtainable again this fall. Agriculturists in need of it to enrich their land are advised to get in touch with their county agricultural agents, or write direct to Ezra Levin, East Lansing, who has charge of the project for M. A. C.

The manure produced at Camp Custer amounts to several carloads a day.

OFFICERS FROWN ON SMOKING AT M. A. C.

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 7.—Orders now in effect in the student army training camp of the Michigan Agricultural college have deprived the 75 men who make up the M. A. C. football squad of the solace of tobacco. Lieut. J. S. Lessig, athletic officer for the camp, has informed the football boys of the S. A. T. C. that cigarette and football can't mix in the army any more than elsewhere, and as a result, an ironclad smokeless rule is now in effect.

A number of the youngsters who comprise the squad imagined that when they joined the army they would be permitted to take a whiff or two whenever the mood struck them, despite the fact that football training rules have always forbidden the use of tobacco by members of the squad. Inasmuch as prospects at the college are unusually bright for a good team, Lieutenant Lessig issued the no-smoke order as a measure intended to help members of the team work themselves into the necessary long-winded, hard-as-nails condition.

OWNERS URGED TO CONVERT LIBERTY BONDS INTO 4 1/2 S

Holdings of 4 per cent bonds of the first Liberty Loan, converted, and of the second Liberty Loan should promptly avail themselves of the privilege of converting them into 4 1/2 per cent bonds. To date only about one-sixth of the 4 per cent bonds distributed in this district have been presented for conversion.

These bonds are not convertible after Nov. 9, even if subsequent series of bonds should be offered at a higher rate. Therefore, the conversion privilege must be exercised, if at all, on or before that date, and failure to convert the 4 per cent bonds described above will result in a loss to the bond holders of interest at one-quarter of 1 per cent per annum for the entire unexpired term of the bond.

Every bondholder is urged to exercise the conversion privilege immediately. All banks will accept 4 per cent bonds for conversion and will deliver in exchange, without payment of accrued interest, bonds bearing interest at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent from the last interest date—that is, May 15, 1918, or June 15, 1918, on the second Liberty Loan and first Liberty Loan bonds, respectively.

FOOD VALUE OF NUTS

In connection with the campaign for gathering nut shells for gas masks, it should be borne in mind that nuts are among the richest and most wholesome of our foods. Wherever possible the kernels of the native nuts should be added to the home supply of foods.

The hard shells, not the husks, of black walnuts, butternuts, hickory nuts, Persian (English) walnuts, Japanese walnut, and the seeds of such fruits as peaches, plums, prunes, apricots and olives are exceedingly useful in the making of carbon for gas masks. The shells of pecans and almonds cannot be used.

Seven pounds of hard nut shells, or two hundred peach pits, will make enough carbon for one gas mask. Thousands of tons of coconut shells and shells of coihune nuts from tropical America, and carloads of fruit pits from the Pacific Coast are being used. Still the supply is not sufficient.

Nuts which cannot readily be cracked, those which have become stale with age, or those which have failed to develop plump kernels should be turned over to the Red Cross. Black walnuts and butternuts which are not to be cracked may be sent in without removing the outer husk. Arrangements for gathering and shipping nuts, nut shells and fruit pits can be made through the local Red Cross.

WAR SAVING GAME

European Conflict Takes Sportsmen Out of the Field.

Increase in the Price of Guns and Ammunition Makes Hunting a Rich Man's Sport.

Despite the war the permanent wild life protective fund is continuing its battle to save American game from extinction, writes Frederic J. Haskin. War is a benefit to wild life in that it takes many hunters out of the field and has raised the average price of guns and ammunition about 50 per cent, making hunting what it is rapidly becoming in this country, anyway—a rich man's sport.

The wild life protection fund, in its literature and the lectures of its campaigning trustee, William T. Hornaday of the New York zoological park, is seeking to spread the idea that the sportsmen must act to save the game, that they are robbing themselves and future generations if they do not. This idea has been well set forth in a poster of the New Mexico Game Protection associations, which have set out with determination and success to save the wild life of that state. The poster is as follows:

"Your grandfather hunted elk and buffalo until there were none.

"You are hunting deer. There still are some.

"What do you want your son to hunt? Rabbits?"

The average New Mexican reading that sign knows that it is true. He has heard from the old-timers what the abundance of game used to be; he sees in a flash the long generations of ruthless destruction, the inevitable end when the mountains where he loves to hunt will be lifeless.

Another difficulty in the path of game preservation lies in the opposition in congress to federal action in the matter. Nothing but federal action saved the wild fowl. By reason of the migratory game law, drawn by government scientists and providing protection for waterfowl from Canada to Mexico, they are now believed to be safe for a hundred years.

The fact which the average sportsman does not realize is that when a species of wild game is reduced to a certain point it cannot "come back" no matter how much it is protected.

For example, in 1884 the buffalo hunters said and believed that there would always be plenty of buffalo. In 1885 they went out to hunt them and there was none. It took them two years to realize the fact that the buffalo was practically extinct. Wolves and hunters destroyed the remnant much faster than it could breed.

Of course the buffalo has been overworked as an object lesson in game protection. As opponents of protective measures have pointed out, the buffalo could not have survived civilization except in very limited numbers anyway.

But this is not true of deer, elk and mountain sheep which inhabit the high mountain ranges that will always be a wilderness. There is only one measure which can save them, and that is the provision of game refuges in national forests where these animals can breed unmolested, and the increase restock the surrounding country.

Dress in London.

Something might be said of the changes that three years of war have brought about in our clothes, says the Manchester Guardian. Evening dress is not abolished, but it is becoming much less customary in theaters and restaurants, and people coming up to London who used to bring evening clothes with them no longer do so.

Stiff white collars are disappearing, and the soft collar is worn by all classes. The democratic process had already set in at the house of commons. One remembers the shock that Mr. Keir Hardie's cloth cap created on its first appearance there, but it has advanced immensely since the war began. Frock coats are in small and diehard minority. Spats are on their last legs. Top hats survive miraculously, it might seem, until one remembers their enduring qualities, so that their persistence is only a form of war economy after all.

Dining With the Private.

It has come at last—the offense of an officer dining in public with a private. It was bound to come, soon or late. The present writer, notes the London Daily Chronicle, met not long ago a private in uniform and two men in mufti. Of the two, one who should have been wearing the uniform of a second lieutenant, explained: "Private Blank here, is my uncle. He is up for a visit, and according to regulations I ought not to be seen about with him. Since I joined the army I have grown bang out of my civilian rig, so I've borrowed a suit from the gov-nor, haven't I, dad?" "Yes, you have, and it's my best, your villain," answered the second civilian.

Mostly So.

"You're under arrest," exclaimed the officer, as he stopped the automobile. "What for?" Inquired Mr. Chuggins. "I haven't made up my mind yet. I'll just look over your lights, an' your license, an' your numbers, an' so forth. I know I can get you for somethin'."

No Alarm.

"Did you hear there was a great breaking out at the jail?" "What was it? The worst characters there?" "No, the messengers."

MAKING NO BONES ABOUT IT.

The town's champion liar had just fallen on the pavement, and they had carried him to the corner drug store and called the doctor. A few minutes' examination revealed the fact that his leg had been broken. Regaining consciousness, he asked the doctor, "How is it, doc? Am I hurt pretty bad?" "Well," returned the medical man, "it might be worse, but I think that you have broken your fibula."

On Safe Ground.
They inquired about his trip abroad. He began enthusiastically, but stopped short.

"Has everyone here been to Europe?"
"No."
"Well, then I can speak freely,"—Christian Register.

A Sad Distrust.
"A dog is man's faithful friend," "Perhaps," commented Miss Cayenne; "and it may be, after all, that the doggie doesn't talk about you behind your back merely for the reason that he lacks the power of articulation."

A DIFFERENCE.

The Cigar Dealer—I can recommend these cigars.
The Customer—Give me some of the kind you smoke.

Unwise.
Your right to blow your horn may be a fact beyond dispute; but it's not wise, to say the least, to go upon a toot.

Ingratitudes.
"Do you regard republics as ungrateful?"
"Such historical reading as I have done," replied Senator Sorghum, "does not lead me to think so. Sometimes they are only naturally resentful of being persistently flim-flammed."

The Ambitious Bride.
Bill—Hello! Home from your honeymoon trip already?
Gill—Oh, yes.
"Rather short, wasn't it?"
"Oh, yes. My new wife seemed rather anxious to get home and try her cooking on me."—Yonkers Statesman.

Her Mean Friends.
He—So you refuse to be married on Friday. Are you superstitious?
She—No, but a lot of my girl friends are, and they would say I only consented to a Friday wedding because it was my last chance.—Boston Evening Transcript.

A Lost Friend.
"I'm up against it. I like Brown very much, but I see no way now to avoid losing his friendship."
"What's the matter?"
"He has asked me to lend him money. If I refuse he'll hate me; if I lend it to him I shall hate him."

COMMON ENEMIES.

Bright for Him.
She—Brother Jack lost at cards last night.
He—Oh, well, every misfortune has its bright side.
She—I'd like to know the bright side of that?
He—I won it.

A Big Difference.
She—What is the difference between a detective in a novel and a detective in real life?
He—The story book detective invents a crime to fit his theories and the detective in real life invents theories to fit a crime.

Cause for Anxiety.
"How now, Geraldine?"
"I am investigating the conditions that surround poor working girls."
"Their lot is often trying."
"Indeed it is. Why, half of them go to work without chaperons, Clarice."
—The Lamb.

Two Sizes Too Large.
Bix—You lost your head completely at the banquet last night.
Dix—That accounts for it, then. I felt sure the head I got on this morning wasn't mine.—Boston Evening Transcript.

For Sure.
"Is he lazy?"
"He is. He'll go into a revolving door and then wait for somebody to come along and turn it around."

Mean of Him.
Wifey—You used to want to hold my hand before we were married.
Hubby—I'd like to now, but it would keep you from your housework, dear.

Self-Treated.
The doctors all gave Jenkins up. He cannot live, said they. Then Jenkins gave the doctors up and he's alive today.

Couldn't Harm the Dog.
"Tommy, you shouldn't hug that dog."
"Why not?"
"Flegs."
"Oh, that's all right. He's got 'em already."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Sounds Good.
"What's your dog hanging around with that expectant look for?"
"He heard you say something about leaving a bonus."

Nearly Done.
Jimmie was going out with his mother one afternoon and had been sent upstairs to get ready. After a long wait the mother called up the stairs: "Hurry down, Jimmie, we're late now. Have you got your shoes on yet?"
"Yes," replied the boy; "all but two."

Scientifically Considered.
"I think a man derives his mentality and character from his mother," remarked the student of heredity.
"Then," commented Miss Cayenne, "the mother of a slacker must have been one of those girls who manicure their nails and eat chocolates while mother does the housework."

Seems Fair Enough.
"Would you die for your country?"
"Yes, I would," answered the patriotic citizen, "and if I'm ever called on to make such a sacrifice I hope the fact that I don't know a single stanza of the national anthem will not be held against me."

Excusable.
"Remember," said the floor walker, sternly. "The customer is always right."
"But, sir," expostulated the clerk, "in this case I was exercising a privilege to which I am entitled."
"What do you mean?"
"The lady I was arguing with is my wife."

ONE MAN'S CONCLUSION.

Failure.
Fame's ladder none would want to climb For there'd be nothing to it. If men succeeded every time They tried to do it.

The Burglar's Profit.
Householder—I give you my word three seventy-five is all I have in the house.
Burglar—Well, say! When ye figure me time an' me tools, how d'ye expect me to make any profit at that rate?—Life.

Bright for Him.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Tawas City, Mich., Oct. 15, 1918
Mr. John Sullivan,
East Tawas, Michigan.

Dear Sir:—

Replying to your article in the Herald of October 11th, 1918: I had no intention of making any campaign for the office of County Treasurer, although I have known since the first few days after the Primaries that you intended to run on slips. You are certainly hard up for an excuse and I am going to confess right here that some things you claim are so.

I did say that you were not qualified to fill the office of County Treasurer, and if you want the proof, you might look back over the records of your township to the time I was employed to audit its books. Your books, which only comprised four accounts (as I remember it) were in such shape that I had to go to the County Treasurer's office and get the data and make an entirely new account as I could not check the accounts you kept; also, you were short over $60.00.

Also, perhaps it is a lie that the last time you were Township Treasurer you were short in your account $150.00 and that you hung around my office (with tears in your eyes) and after everyone else had turned you down, I loaned you the money to make good, the last of which you did not pay until after you became a candidate for County Treasurer.

Regarding the statement that you could not make your tax roll, I did not make any such statement, but I now say that there are plenty of errors in it.

Regarding your work on the Board of Supervisors, I have not said anything, nor have I anything to say, ony, God help the County if the Supervisors were all like you. I have not asked anyone to look at the two men in any such way as you try to put it, and anyone that knows me, knows that I have never in my life looked at a man's sunburned face or his clothes, to decide whether he was a man or not.

I have not asked any taxpayers if they were going to trust you to handle the County money; they, themselves, can decide the matter.

Regarding making a family matter of the County Treasurer's office: I made the statement four years ago, also two years ago, and again this year, that if any Republican (that was qualified to fill the office) wanted to run for it, I would step down and out.

Now Mr. Sullivan, as I said before I have no intention of making any canvass of the County, as I have something else to do, and if you will confine yourself to the truth and go on and make your own canvass, I will be very grateful to you.

Respectfully yours,
adv. JOSEPH G. DIMMICK

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Webb visited at Mrs. Frank Ulman's last Sunday evening.

Last Thursday the M. E. Ladies' Aid had a bee to dig their potatoes. They turned out fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Shotwell visited relatives and friends on the Townline the first of the week.

Remember, the church and Sunday school have been closed until this influenza epidemic has run its course.

We are all pained to hear of the illness of Mrs. Nereada Ulman, who was taken to the hospital at Bay City last week to have an operation for appendicitis. At last reports she was getting along finely on the road to recovery.

How He Slept at the Fort.

Ed Jackson, secretary of state, who is one of the students at the United States army officers' reserve training camp at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, had to spend one of the cool nights in the trenches, as that is a part of the training given to the embryo officers, notes the Indianapolis News. As he emerged from his "bunk" the next morning he was met by one of his fellow students.

"Well, how did you sleep last night?" inquired Jackson's friend.

"In sections," gruffly replied the state official.

"How's that?"

"Well, first my right foot was asleep and then my left one; then one arm and then another and so on. But I guess if I added them all up I got in a pretty good night's rest."

Leopard Ship of the Sea.

Fooling the enemy is a remunerative and interesting pastime with the allies, says Popular Science Monthly. They have their camouflage on land; now comes the camouflage of the sea. A ship is painted with spots which fade out into a glittering and shimmering haze in the sunlight. A submarine commander one or two miles distant might look straight at the ship and never see her.

The spots are of light gray and navy blue, which, even on a sunless day, blend with the waves of the ocean. The indistinct outline which this gives makes the ship a poor target.

Chart for New York Harbor.

A revised chart of New York harbor, on a scale of 1-40,000, has been issued by the United States coast and geodetic survey. The labor involved in bringing such a chart up to date is illustrated by the fact that in one year there have been for this chart 263 different items of change, which required 233 working days to compile and engrave. Marked changes in the contour of the bottom, disclosed by recent surveys, are shown at the entrance between Sandy Hook and Coney island.

Pay for Harmful Butterflies.

Butterfly catching was converted from a schoolboy's amusement into a serious business at Solingen and Dusseldorf, in western Germany. The communal authorities offered a premium of one pfennig apiece for every butterfly of the harmful varieties caught, with the result that the school children have already handed in 50,000 at Solingen and 150,000 at Dusseldorf. The method was adopted to combat the consequent caterpillar plague.

Gladstone a Hard Worker.

Gladstone was a hard worker, with no dreads with regard to work, says the American Magazine.

He turned from political responsibilities of the heaviest to Greek for recreation, and lived his four-score years and more, just as Pope Leo XIII, turned to Latin poetry for his relaxation from world-wide burdens, and lived on beyond four-score and ten, living so hopefully that when, at the little dinner given him on his ninetieth birthday, one of the cardinals said, in proposing a toast to him, "Here's that you may live to be a hundred, holy father," the old pontiff replied: "But why limit me to a hundred?"

They were contemporaries of Ranke, the German historian, who at the age of ninety-one proposed to write a history of the world in 12 volumes, one volume to be completed each year, and actually lived, I believe, to complete nearly half of it.

These men had no dreads; but they allowed their energies to work on, without any fear of exhausting their vitality.

Almost the Speed Limit.

"At Chattanooga," said a veteran of the Civil war, "one of the men in my company left early in the action, and no one saw him till after the battle, when he appeared in camp un wounded and unshaken. Some of the boys accused him of running away; but he wouldn't admit it.

"I only retreated in good order," he declared.

"I heard of the matter, and a few days later I asked him if he had any idea how fast he had 'retreated'."

"Well, I'll tell you, cap'n," he said. "If I had been at home, and going after the doctor, folks that see me passin' would have thought my wife was right sick!"—Harper's Monthly.

Intoxicated by Freedom.

Magistrate—"Prisoner, the evidence shows that after being a model husband for twenty years, you threw your wife out of the house and ran amuck, attempting to murder everybody you met." Defendant (sheepishly)—"It was only a peaceful revolution at the start, your honor, but after I had overthrown the autocracy I lost my head."—Puck.

Common Weakness.

"What have we here?"

"A group of savants have met to discuss the foibles of the human race."

"Well! Well! Incidentally, they are showing themselves not much above the common herd."

"What do you mean?"

"They dropped everything to pose for a newspaper photographer."

Politics as She Is Did.

Political Leader—How does Bump stand?

Henchman—All right, I guess. He belongs to the same political party as we do.

Political Leader—Confound it! That's no sign. Is he with us or against us?—Puck.

Hitting Back.

Wife—If a man loves his wife as much as she loves him, he will stop wasting his money on cigars if she asks him.

Hubby—Yes, but if the wife loves him as much as she ought to love a man who loves her enough to stop if she asks him, she won't ask him.

Great Expectations.

"Great things are expected from him."

"So?"

"Yes. Any number of men expect that some day he will pay back the money he has borrowed."—Detroit Free Press.

One Explanation.

"The Eskimos like phonographs."

"I can easily understand that."

"Yes?"

"The walls of an Eskimo's igloo are so thick he can't hear his neighbor's phonograph playing the tunes he abominates."

ART REPARTEE.

First Art Critic—They say Miss Dauber is wedded to her art.

Second Art Critic—Guess she'll have to get a divorce on the grounds of non-support.

Cranial Distinction.

Sometimes the crown a forehead shows. Sometimes a laurel wreath. And sometimes nature will disclose Gray matter underneath.

Almost Equal to Divorce.

"Ole Bill sez 'e 'ardly never sees 'is missus nah."

"Oh! 'Ow's that, then?"

"'Cos she's all mornin' an' arternoon in a sugar cue, and 'e's all evenin' in a beer cue."—London Punch.

No Hysterics.

"What would you do if I should kiss you?"

"I'd take it calmly," said the girl. "This weather is too hot for hysterics, and besides I've been kissed before."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Difference.

"Did you say that suburban land agent had a scheme for a frame cottage?"

"No; I said he had a frame-up scheme."

Misplaced.

He—At the club a motion was made to buy a handsome velvet carpet, but it was laid on the table.

She—What a queer place to put a velvet carpet!

A Painless Death.

Frisk—What a tender-hearted creature Mrs. Softleigh is.

Brisk—Very. She always chloforms her clams before eating them.

Busy.

Mrs. Wickson—Did you attend the Mothers' congress?

Mrs. Dickson—No. I had to stay at home and look after the children.

Those Hairpins.

Beacon—Does your wife use invisible hairpins?

Egbert—Why, yes; I think her mouth is full of them now.

IS CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP

Court Prosecutor, insisting on Prisoner Demonstrating How Hard He Assaulted Man, Is Speedily Shown.

It happened in the courtroom during the trial of a husky young man who was charged with assault and battery, relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Throughout an especially severe cross-examination the defendant stoutly maintained that he had merely pushed the plaintiff "a little bit."

"Well, about how hard?" queried the prosecutor.

"Oh, just a little bit," responded the defendant.

"Now," said the attorney, "for the benefit of the judge and the jury, you will please step down here and, with me for the subject, illustrate just how hard you mean."

Owing to the unmerciful badgering which the witness had just been through, the prosecutor thought that the young man would perhaps overdo the matter to get back at him, and thus incriminate himself.

The defendant descended as per schedule, and approached the waiting attorney. When he reached him the spectators were astonished to see him slip the lawyer in the face, kick him in the shins, seize him bodily, and, finally, with a supreme effort, lift him from the floor and hurl him prostrate across a table.

Turning from the bewildered prosecutor, he faced the court and explained mildly:

"Your honor and gentleman, about one-tenth that hard!"

STORY MADE EMERSON LAUGH

Recalled incident of Young Man Sending Letter Intended for His Washerwoman to His Sweetheart.

Young Conwell was sent by Horace Greeley to interview Ralph Waldo Emerson for the New York Tribune. He was pleasantly received by Emerson in his home in Concord, surrounded by his family, recites the Kansas City Star. In the course of the conversation he asked Mr. Emerson what he laughed at. In all the writing of the Concord philosopher there is not a joke nor even a trace of humor.

Parliamentary Privilege.

Parliamentary privilege means the almost complete freedom from arrest that is accorded members of parliamentary bodies. The Constitution of the United States says that senators and representatives "shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place." Similar provisions appear in the constitutions of most of the states. The constitution of Indiana makes the provision broader. It says: "Senators and representatives, in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during the session of the general assembly, and in going to and returning from the same, and shall not be subject to any civil process during the session of the general assembly nor during the fifteen days next before the commencement thereof. For any speech or debate in either house a member shall not be questioned in any other place."

Law of the Family.

No man lives for himself alone. Whether we will or not, we are dependent on the exertions of others and others are affected by our good or evil acts, says Parris T. Farwell in the Congregationalist. We belong to a family, a town, a state, a nation, to the great family of mankind. Absolute liberty is not possible even for the members of a family except as the liberty is guided by good will. If in a home each member considered himself alone, disregarding the wishes and welfare of others, the result would be destruction. That is the best society in which the law of the family is applied on the largest scale. The Golden Rule is the only law by which ideal society can be obtained. "We are members one of another."

Useful Parrot.

Uncaged and unattended, a parrot perches throughout the day on a chair outside of a store in Seattle, Wash., and advertises the wares to be purchased therein to all passersby. During the summer time he is particularly useful, his owner having taught him to make this announcement: "Ice cream cones—five cents. Right inside." The appearance of a pedestrian in the vicinity of the store is a signal for the bird to repeat his announcement. The parrot has proven a great advertising card and has greatly boosted the business of the store to the advantage of the owner.
