DEFINITE NEWS OF JESSE HODDER RECEIVED

Mrs. Frank L. Novess of this city received a telegram last Saturday, Nov. 30, from the war department, stating that her son, Jesse C. Hodder, had been killed in action in France August 29, 1918. He had been previously reported missing.
Jesse C. Hodder was born in Fraser township, Bay county, July 12, 1886. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. F. L. Novess, three brothers, William and Charles of Fraser, and George of Bay City, and one sister, Mrs. Ralph Crowl of Bay City.
The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family, from whom the war claimed one of the sons.

HOW THREE FARM BOYS WAKENED FATHER

One of the outstanding results of boys' agricultural club work in Tennessee has been its effect upon the parents of the members. Three sons of a Madison County farmer joined the corn club last year. One son produced 144 bushels on his acre, another 139 bushels, and the third 120 bushels, the profit from the 3 acres being $464.64. This demonstration awakened the father to the opportunities at his very door. He has pulled out of the rut, adopted progressive ideals, and has become a "live wire" and a recognized leader in his neighborhood.

COUNTY AGENT COLUMN

C. P. Milham.

A meeting of great importance to the future of the farmers of Michigan was held in Cadillac last week, where nearly all of the county agents were present to outline a constructive program for the 1919 season.

Last spring when the allies were being driven back, everything looked rather gloomy. But at the darkest moment the Allies hung together and their united efforts resulted in complete success. Michigan farmers have been in the same position in the past, pulling against their neighbors and therefore their own interests. Just as the soldiers are uniting over there the farmers are uniting here. It is the time of "get together" feeling.

At the conference, Mr. Graves spoke on Farm Management, saying more than 5000 farmers account books had been ordered. The printer has been rushed and the books are being delivered slowly. No farmer wants to raise crops at a loss, and the only way to know whether there is a loss or gain is to keep records. The books cost fifteen cents and can be secured through the banks or this office. The books are not to be used because of the income tax; but there will soon be a law compelling farmers to keep accounts, no more estimates, but figures must be sworn to, so it will save trouble and will let every man know where he himself stands. Farming should be on a business basis the same as any industry.

Mr. Freeman spoke on the sheep project for 1919 pointing out that a higher percentage of twin lambs can be secured by having ewes in good condition at breeding time. He also advocated better dog laws.

Mr. Turner brought out the fact that more work should be given the future farmers through better boys and girls clubs.

Mr. Wheelan gave methods of grasshopper control in northern Michigan. The loss was great this year, and early organization to combat the pest this next season is necessary.

The Michigan Potato Growers Exchange is now well established in Northwestern Michigan and the rest of the state will be organized as fast as the farmers desire to get into the organization. Three places in Iosco county would benefit greatly through this organization, whose local branches would be Hale, Whittemore and Tawas City.

Facts brought out were that better markets will increase production, and improve quality of standardized products. The more farmers interested in the organization the larger the business, therefore lower selling costs. A strong organization is the only protection farmers have so it is for their interest to get into the organization. The organization is opposed, as is all good business, but that is all the greater reason for backing it. Everyone knows the present marketing system in cumbersome and the gap between producer and consumer great. It will mean a great deal in saving to consumers and increase to farmers when this great organization is complete. It will not stop in Michigan, but will spread itself over the nation before many years. The organization not only markets all kinds of produce, but buys all kinds of produce and necessities.

The local exchange was visited and Mr. Bloom gave a demonstration of the grading rules laid down by the Food Administration. Any information desired may be secured through the office in the court house.

It is to be regretted that the wrong impression of the farm bureau as an organization was formed at the meeting held this fall in the court house. The purpose was not brought out and the benefits were not shown. However, community meetings will correct this impression. The only way to get together on any proposition is to meet together at any time it is possible to discuss problems and arrive at a solution of them. A county is a large unit thought, and there are over thirty communities, so once in two months is about all that can be expected. Township meetings may be better, and where desired they can be held in the town hall. If you do not attend these community meetings you are missing something. Have you had a meeting in your community?

REAL STUFF IN THIS GIRL

At one of the Wyoming boys' and girls' club conference held recently in Star Valley was a leader of one of the local canning clubs, who had ridden horseback 15 miles to a neighbor's, left her animal to rest, borrowed another horse, and continued to the conference, many miles farther, arriving at Star Valley at 9:15 in the morning. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon this girl started on her return, exchanged animals at the neighbor's house, went on to her home, did regular chores of the night, and reported on the happenings at the conference to the other members of her home. Traveling thus by relay, the girl attended all three days of the conference.

DR. ELWOOD T. BAILEY TO DELIVER FIRST LECTURE

An announcement from the Redpath Lyceum Bureau states that Dr. Lewis Thurbur Guild, who was to appear as the first number on the lyceum course in this city Dec. 9, will not be able to deliver any lectures this year. Regarding Dr. Elwood T. Bailey, who will take his place, the Redpath Bureau has the following to say:

Elwood T. Bailey, just back from six months in France, England and Italy, where as a welfare worker he came into intimate contact with thousands of Uncle Sam's soldiers, comes here next Monday evening on the Lyceum course to deliver his great lecture "From Transport to Trench" which treats authoritatively many of the great reconstruction problems especially that of what we shall do for the returned soldiers.

Mr. Bailey was in charge of welfare work on the transport on which he went to Europe and his work "over there" was to speak in the different camps. He talked to over a million soldiers in France and learned from close acquaintance how they lived, what they said and thought and how they fought. When he talks about the question of the future of the soldiers here in America he talks from an intimate knowledge of soldier psychology.

For thirty-two days Mr. Bailey was in the front line trenches. He was with the American marines at Chateau Thierry when they turned the tide and repulsed the great German advance.

Mr. Bailey is a vividly eloquent speaker. Endowed with a keen power of observation he brings to his lecture wonderful descriptive ability. Few can tell more interestingly or more understandingly of the soldier and his problems.

BETTER ROADS

In providing work for discharged soldiers and sailors and munition workers, road building offers a solution of many problems. The United States as a whole is behind most foreign countries in the matter of good highways. Poor roads are a reason for high prices of farm produce in many cases. They are a reason why more automobiles are not purchased and used. They are a reason for heavy upkeep cost of vehicles of all kinds. They are a cause of many accidents. They are a hindrance to suburban and country development; a cause of low prices of real estate in country sections; a reason, in short, for slower development of national industry and production than should be expected of a country as progressive as ours claims to be.

Colonel Robert H. Tyndall of the 150th Field Artillery, U. S. Army, writing from France says: "There will be a couple of million real road war boosters when the war is over." He speaks in glowing terms of the splendid highways they found in France comparing them much to the detriment with the average highway found in the United States.

In the same article containing Colonel Tyndall's views, it was stated that there is undoubtedly a big road plan developing in this country. Chairman George C. Diehl of the A. A. A. Good Roads Board says: "$100,000,000 a year appropriated by the Federal Government on a definite, tangible highway system will work wonders in the form of from 5,000 to 10,000 miles of splendid highway, partly made up of sections already sufficient in quality; partly in sections to repair; partly of sections rebuilt and partly of entirely new construction. State and local appropriation should be encouraged and the construction of federal roads should enormously increase road expenditures. The thousands of otherwise unemployed labor can be used to the most excellent advantage in this way."

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed and circulated in county.

DAVID DAVISON,
A true copy. 51 Judge of Probate.

The vast sums that would otherwise have been spent in destruction can be expended for highway construction to the end that trade may be increased between rural sections and urban points. Hundreds of thousands of returning soldiers and men that have been employed in munition manufacture can be employed profitably to themselves and to the communities of which they are a part in this highway work with the result that tradesmen will enjoy increased trade, laborers will be contented, farmers will have more accessible markets and the community as a whole will enjoy increased prosperity.

FROM OUR SOLDIER BOYS

FROM MAJOR CHAS. V. CRANE

Somewhere in Happy France.

Nov. 11th, 1918.

My Dearest Ones at Home:—
I would be very ungrateful to you, to myself and to France if I did not take time tonight and record what I have seen today. Let me say at the outset that were I to live a thousand years I am sure it would not be my lot to be present on an occasion that will be recorded in all history to come. Again to be a part of a machine that has surely and steadily beaten back the dirty Hun until he cries mercy. Last night, to the north and east our huge cannons spat out their crash of hate, of defiance and death. A blare of noise and light demanding and obtaining their toll of death. Our valiant army ever pressing on and the Huns retreating. We giving no quarter and they asking none. Tonight all is changed. The cannons are silent and cold, and quiet reigns along the lines.

The day dawned bright and clear with a wonderfully bright sun and we watched the wires for news. At last, we received the news that the Huns have signed the armistice and that they also have on their hands a revolution.

This of course was the best news we could ask for, because we knew what the terms will be. Unconditional surrender and an army of occupation. As the news drifted through it was wonderful to see these brave French people, and the way they took the news.

Church bells rang and a meeting was called for and at this occasion was demonstrated the heart of France. Our band gave a concert. First playing the national anthem of France, followed by the British, and then the Star Spangled Banner.

I looked around and saw all with tears in their eyes. All happy yet crying. I saw still further and realized that they were all asking, "Why have we had to suffer so?"

One French soldier, who stood in front of me with a hole in his shirt and blood stains on his coat, (telling an eloquent story) turned to another soldier and said in French, "The war is finished."

"Vive Americans our brothers." This is the sentiment through all this wonderful land. In Paris, Bordeaux, Lyons and LeHavre they will have big demonstrations tonight.

Tonight I am in a wonderful old chateau surrounded by the richest of old French art, and can look out of my window to the west through the moonlight and across the seas and say to you. I too am happy and am not sorry that I came.

As to the news I still feel I can't write much. However, I will say that there have been many, many changes since I left the U. S.

That I am no longer with the 342nd Infantry, or what is left of it. I have moved several times since I last wrote to you.

I still have the same officers and men, (with some exceptions) and that my future as to location very uncertain.

Some one has placed a bunch of violets on my table and I will send you some in remembrance of this day.

It may be that I will be sent back to the U. S. this winter. I hope so as I am anxious to get back to you all, Chas.

On active duty with The A. E. F.
Maj. Chas. V. Crane.

FROM LEE GRIGGS

Hampton Roads, Va., Nov. 2, 1918.

My Dear Mother:—
I suppose you will be wondering why I haven't written, but I tell you mother, we were on the road from Monday until Thursday. We left the Lakes on Monday. It sure was some trip. All through the Blue Ridge mountains, and the mining centers of both West Virginia and Virginia.

This is just a little out of line, but I'll write you a real letter Sunday and tell you all about it. Don't worry, I'm alright and feeling fine.

When we got here Thursday, the first thing we did was got our summer underwear on. It is so nice and warm here. The leaves are still on the trees and are nice and green. Many of the gardens are green, but most of them are ready for harvest. Oh, this is certainly a wonderful place. I have such a lot to tell you.

I am writing this on Uncle Sam's time. We are in school learning the different parts of the machines and boilers. I would write more tonight, but we have to go to school after supper. But I'll write a whole newspaper Sunday.

How is Cora and the rest? Tell her I send my love and tell her to write, but not to send anything very valuable, as it is liable to get lost.

We got a whole new outfit again. Two suits of blues, one white, and two pairs of overalls, much different than you think. They are all in one piece and button close to your neck. I guess they are getting us ready for the sea. Believe me mother, I feel proud to think I am with Uncle Sam, if I only get twenty five cents a day. I feel right at home. I'm not a bit lonesome, but I never forget you when I say my prayers.

Tell Gladys to write and give Cora and Carrie my love.

Have you got the pictures yet? Let me know.

I guess mother I had better ring off, before I get caught.

Give my love to all, and don't worry, I'm alright and feeling fine.

Your loving son,
Lee Griggs

What Determines Meat and Live-Stock Prices?

Some stock men still think that Swift & Company—and other big packers—can pay as little for live-stock as they wish.

Some consumers are still led to believe that the packers can charge as much for dressed meat as they wish.

This is not true. These prices are fixed by a law of human nature as old as human nature itself—the law of supply and demand.

When more people want meat than there is meat to be had, the scramble along the line to get it for them sends prices up. When there is more meat than there are people who want it, the scramble all along the line to get rid of it within a few days, while it is still fresh, sends prices down.

When prices of meat go up, Swift & Company not only can pay the producer more, but has to pay him more, or some other packer will.

Similarly, when prices recede all down the line Swift & Company cannot continue to pay the producer the same prices as before, and still remain in the packing business.

All the packer can do is to keep the expense of turning stock into meat at a minimum, so that the consumer can get as much as possible for his money, and the producer as much as possible for his live-stock.

Thanks to its splendid plants, modern methods, branch houses, car routes, fleet of refrigerator cars, experience and organization, Swift & Company is able to pay for live cattle 90 per cent of what it receives for beef and by-products, and to cover expense of production and distribution, as well as its profit (a small fraction of a cent per pound), out of the other 10 per cent.
