HONEYBEES MAKING A RECORD
The honey crop of the United States was 92.1 per cent of normal on July 1, according to the estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. Reports to the Bureau of Crop Estimates warrant the estimate that the yield of surplus honey per colony was 25.8 pounds and that about one-half of the annual products per colony was realized by July 1. At the same date in 1918 the estimated surplus was 21.4 pounds per colony. At the same date in 1917 it was 13.5 pounds. The high condition of 92.1 per cent of normal on July 1 this year compares with 86.7 and 86.3 in 1917.

COUNTY AGENT COLUMN

C. P. Milham

Now is the time to locate the best heads of pure Rosen Rye. If the rye is pure, more than 90 per cent of the heads will be completely filled with greenish gray kernels, while the other 10 per cent will be nearly filled. Common rye is easily distinguished by the brownish kernels, and the heads seldom more than half filled. Everyone knows common and Rosen Rye will cross when sown near each other, so be sure no common rye was grown near the fields from which seed is secured for this fall sowing. The largest rye crop ever, has been harvested in Iosco county this year. Lets improve the quality by sowing better seed.

Three men in Iosco county are growing Red Rock wheat, another development of the Agricultural College Experiment Station. It looks fine, and doubtless all of it will be used for seed purposes.

The Agricultural College is carrying out a number of demonstrations this year for the benefit of agriculture in the State, and some day the data will be available. Demonstrations are being carried out with soils, crops, fertilizers, sprays, and with livestock.

Iosco county has fared well as far as crops are concerned this year. Last week the county agent was fortunate in being able to see the crops in the southern part of the state from a car window, and the dry weather there has curtailed the yields of oats, barley, corn, hay, potatoes, pastures, and with the exception of winter wheat and rye this county has crops which surpass anything seen in the state south of Lansing.

The premium list for the fair is out. Get a copy from John A. Mark or Len J. Patterson at Tawas City. Every man who has exceptionally good crops, or who has something which no one else has, should exhibit it at the fair.

Bring in sheaf samples, or small bundles of grain and grasses, they improve the looks of all exhibits. Remember the dates, September 24-25-26.

COUNTY PICNIC
It has been decided to hold the Picnic on Thursday, August 21st. The picnic is managed by the Grange but is for the people of the whole county. Farmers and business men are planning on making this day one of the best in the year. Miss Jennie Buell, Secretary of the State Grange will be the principal speaker. There will be a series of contests and a ball game, prizes being offered by the merchants. It is planned to hold the picnic either at Sand Lake or Watts Grove, sentiment favors Sand Lake however on account of the bathing facilities, and a good ground for contests and the ball game. Make up your mind to take a day off, enjoy a good time. You will live the longer for it.

FERTILIZER PRICES NOW SHOW BIG DROP
East Lansing, Mich., Aug. 1.—Fertilizer price lists for fall delivery which have recently been issued show a drop in prices which ranges as high as 25 to 30 per cent for mixed goods. Acid phosphate is only one dollar a ton lower than last spring's price, but there is a decided drop in all mixed fertilizers. Prof. A. C. Patten, experiment Station Chemist at M. A. C., says that prices are set now and predicts that there will be no further drop this season. This means that farmers are safe in buying now for fall delivery.

HOW A "SUCKER" WAS SAVED
A city man got a very glowing circular from a Chicago "development company" offering him 10 acres of land in Florida for the surprisingly small sum of $2,500—a "peanut unit" the circular called it. He could grow, the circular said, a thousand bushels of peanuts on his 10 acres and could sell the peanuts—allowing for low prices—at $2 a bushel. The city man was impressed; but he sent the circular to the United States Department of Agriculture with a query as to whether or not the investment was a good one. Following are some sentences from the letter he got in reply: "The literature is of the kind designed to deceive city people in the North and West who do not know anything about farming." "The average return from 10 acres of peanuts would not exceed $300 to $500." "You could buy a 100-acre farm in almost any of the counties of western Florida, including the one mentioned in the circular, for the price these people ask for 10 acres." "The whole unit system, whether it is pecans, peaches, figs, cane, peanuts, hogs, or what not, is simply a means of selling land at three to five times what it is worth to ignorant or unwary small investors." "To pay $2,500 for this 10 acres of land would stamp you as a 'sucker' of the rankest class." "All this is without reflecting in any way on Florida, for it is a good State and lands are comparatively cheap there."

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES OF CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM

There seems to be only one question on which members of the local Committee who are working so hard to make a success of the coming Chautauqua cannot agree and that is to which phase of the program offers the greatest attraction—lectures or the entertainment features.

Those who hold out in favor of the lectures point to the great interest commanded by such brilliant orators as Ex-Governor Frank B. Willis, George P. Bible, James S. Knox and "Mother Lake."

Others call attention to the marvelous entertainment features that have been provided and assert that they are every bit as instructive as the lectures themselves.

They point, for instance, to the fact that the Harry Bennett Scotch Entertainers, who open the Chautauqua, not only entertain with Bennett's clever impersonations of Harry Lauder and his own portrayals of Scotch comedy characters, but that the singing of this talented group is a real education in the music, dress and customs of the bonny land of the Highland.

They point, too, to the combined entertainment and instructive features of such a musical program as that offered by the Mozart Orchestra Ladies on the second day. This group of winsome ladies present a succession of charmingly costumed vocal and instrumental numbers that is positively captivating. Their solos, duets, and trios are brilliantly executed and their ensemble numbers have all the volume of a full ten piece orchestra.

The third day features the charming and talented Hettie Jane Dunaway, one of the most brilliant dramatic readers of the day, in a tabloid drama "Just Plain Judy" that is an adaptation of the great dramatic story of laughter and tears, "Daddy Long Legs," with other stories, spoken songs and cartoons introduced. In this production Miss Dunaway takes all the parts, with ten distinct changes of costume. She is a whole play by herself.

The clever Misses Ringold and Major provide delightful musical settings for Miss Dunaway's program.

On the fourth day the Chautauqua goes will be transported to Hawaii through the dulcet harmonizing of the Hawaiian Singers and Players. All the color of the tropics, all the weirdness of the ukulele, all the soft-throated harmonies of the real Hawaiian melodies are brought out at their best by this group of dusky entertainers from Island of Romance.

And at the end of the week comes a whole day of such band music as you have seldom heard. The great Victor's Columbian Band produces music that keeps feet tapping and hearts soaring. And it also produces music of the softer, sweeter sort, with many novelty and descriptive numbers. This is a most unusual band and employs a number of instruments that are seldom used by band organizations yet contribute a wonderfully effective result to the program.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE OPEN FOR ALL SUMMER
East Lansing, August 1.—For the first time its history the Michigan Agricultural College is to remain open during the full twelve months of the year. A second summer term, opening on August 4 and continuing until September 12, is the innovation which is rounding out this active year for the college.

Demad by returned soldiers for an additional term in which to catch up their college work, and a general election of courses by rural teachers and others who can get work only during the summer months, led to the opening of the second summer term. The advance registration has been even heavier than anticipated by the college authorities.

Courses from the regular college curriculum will be given, with special emphasis on the agricultural subjects. Prospective "hot weather" students will be able to choose their work from among courses in animal husbandry, political science, and a number of engineering subjects.

Information regarding courses and registration may be had by writing to Prof. E. H. Ryder, Director of the Summer School, M. A. C., East Lansing.

MONTANA LIVESTOCK FOR N. E. MICHIGAN
Secretary Marston, who attended the conference at St. Paul called by the agricultural department to devise plans for the relief of stockmen in Montana and adjoining states, learned so much of the unfavorable conditions under which the men are operating in the districts where there have been no rains in two years that he left, early last week, for Miles City and Billings, Mont., where he planned to remain a week or more getting in personal touch with stockmen and calling their attention to what North-eastern Michigan offers in the way of ranges for sheep and cattle, what stockmen have already done in the district, and the vast amount of range which they can secure.

He believes that he will be successful in getting many of these men to move at least a part of their herds to territory where there is always grass and water.

STILL HAVE BARN-RAISINGS

Good Old Custom Has Not Died Out, Though the Conditions Have Greatly Changed.

The Connecticut Valley Advertiser tells its readers that on Saturday of last week a barn-raising was held at Hadlyme with about everybody in Hadlyme and East Haddon present. That seems much like the old type of barn-raising, but something new comes in the statement that three kinds of liquors were to be had for the asking, one being water and another root beer. Formerly there were but two, one being hard cider and the other West India rum.

From early times up to 40 years ago dwellers in the country did not have the knack of erecting a building with no more timber in it than could be carried on a wheelbarrow; hence, to erect the frame for a barn or house was a work which taxed the strength of all the men and boys in the community and which brought the local carpenter into a place of proud importance. It was considered altogether out of the question to do the work without stimulants, and these were furnished generously, for, though a man might be "close" about many things, he could not afford to ration those who came to the raising if he hoped to spend the rest of his life in the community.

Having this in mind, he bought rum liberally, while the sour cider was brought from his own cellar, but, though its ability was recognized, it was hardly regarded seriously because everyone had an abundance of it at home, while drinking rum at the expense of another was something altogether more important. It was hard to raise a building without it, and, on some occasions, fairly difficult to raise one with it. Not infrequently it was found necessary to continue the work to a second day because the spirits from St. Croix had done their work not wisely but too well. Changing manners have modified the work, for the Advertiser's account says that the barn was raised in a single afternoon. It is a pleasure to know that the work was done successfully and that this old form of communal living survives.—Hartford Courant.

Now It's Bottomless Pie.

When is a pie not a pie? is a question which will tax the wits of some wartime Solomon to solve in squarely facing the issue of "bottomless pies" as a measure of war saving of food-stuffs in the latest Hooverized ignevation of baking for the nation. The movement to remove the bottom crust from pies is being taken hold of by housewives and bakers generally, and is gaining wide support. New York is a pie-eating city. It is estimated that an entire pie is eaten between 15 persons daily, or a total consumption of 500,000 pies each day in the metropolitan district. In one year the collective stomachs of New York's pie-eaters absorb 182,000,000 of the dainties. Some one with a penchant for large figures has gone so far even to state that the bottom crust of those pieces, if rolled out with a large rolling pin across a 40-acre lot, would in a week cover the surface of the field and lap over the fence posts. On the basis of 4,000,000 pies eaten by the entire nation each day, at the end of the year the bottom crust of the pies would form a strip of crust nine yards wide and long enough to encircle the globe at the equator. Some crust.

Brave Milk Girls of Reims.

The little milk girls of Reims are given high rank by Paul Dramas of that martyred city, in an article he has written praising the heroism displayed by the women of Reims. "The little milk girls," he writes, "will never be forgotten at Reims. Milk was a necessity for the children, the aged and the sick. Thanks to the little milk girls they never went without. The tinkling of their little bells announced their arrival and for 44 months they traversed all the streets of the city. Many a time they were taken by surprise by a storm of shells. Three of them had to be carried away on stretchers, yet the others continued on their route so that the children and sick should have their milk all the same. On February 28 we heard the tinkling of their bells for the last time. The little milk girls were sent out of the city. They had filled their mission to the very end, for after that there were no longer in Reims either children, aged or sick. All had left."

Original "Gag Rule."

"Gag rule" was a phrase applied to a resolution passed by congress in May, 1836, that three-fourths of all petitions, memorials, resolutions, propositions or papers relating in any way to the subject of slavery or the abolition of slavery should lie on the table without being printed or referred. The rule was abolished a few years later.

Try New Preventive for Rabies.

The production of a new serum with which animals and man can be made immune to rabies may result from experiments recently conducted by a French scientist. The brain of a rabbit which had died of rabies was treated with sulphuric ether and then mixed with a special preparation, forming an emulsion. By injecting a weakened solution of this emulsion under the skin, immunity to rabies has been produced which appears to be both lasting and effective. No bad effects, it is said, result from giving the injection. The serum has, so far, only been tried on animals.—Popular Mechanics.

Right Out Loud.

The master shipbuilder, Charles M. Schwab, was discussing the trend of the times with a friend who remarked: "Do you follow the food regulations, Charlie, or are they meant for only the little fellow?" Schwab laughed. "To tell the truth," he said, "the food savings policy has been a great thing for me. Now I can go into a restaurant and order corned beef and cabbage and boiled potatoes right out loud, and nobody thinks anything of it."

Diamond Not Most Valuable.

It is a popular error to suppose that the diamond is the most valuable of the precious stones. The relative value of the finer gems places the ruby at the head of the list; the diamond second, and, following this, the sapphire. It is a very common occurrence to find a perfect diamond, but a perfect ruby is rare.

W. S. S.—BUY THEM!

No One to Copy.

Charley had twin cousins of his own age. The twins looked much alike and were neat and clean. Charley's mother said to him, "Why, Charley, look how nice your cousins look and how dirty you are!" Whereupon he answered: "Well, mother, they just need to look at each other to see how they look and I have no one to look at to see if I look right."

Friendships Good and Bad.

There are three friendships which are advantageous: Friendship with the upright, with the sincere, and with the man of much observation. Friendship with a man of specious airs, with the insinuatingly soft, and with the glib-tongued, these are injurious.—Confucius.

Paymaster for the Party.

As an inducement to Cecil, aged four, to attend Sunday school for the first time, she was allowed to carry the pennies to be put into the collection envelope. When the class monitor came around the teacher and the rest of the class were very much amused to hear her say in her most dignified tones, "Here, girls, I will pay the fares."

Young Financier.
Newell entered his father's study one day much excited and out of breath. "Oh, papa," he said, "a man out in the street has some pigeons for sale, and I just lack 24 cents of having enough to buy one. Won't you give me that much?" As the father handed over the desired amount he asked how much the pigeons were worth. As the small boy hurried away he shouted back: "Twenty-five cents."

Plants That Grow in Craters.
In the crater of the extinct volcano, Hallakalau, in the Hawaiian islands, there flourishes a curious plant, locally known as "Silver Swords." They are evidently some kind of cacti. Efforts to propagate them elsewhere have, it is said, always failed. The crater where they are found is a huge cinder-strewn bowl, absolutely dry and devoid of any other form of vegetation.

THE WAY OF A GIRL

By MISS JEANNE M. BLACK.

"Helen, I wonder who that distinguished-looking stranger can be who passes here so persistently every few hours in that gray roadster," said Mrs. Burk as she peered from between the curtains of the parlor window.

Helen blushed furiously and turned a conscious face to her mother. "Oh, yes, mamsey, I forgot to tell you about him. He is a guest at the tavern. I call him my Prince Charming," said Helen, laughing. "His name is Leroy Talmage. They say he made loads of money in Kalamazoo, Timbuctoo or some outlandish place, and came back to civilization to spend it. Then came the war. He has been in France and incidentally covered himself with glory and medals. He wears the military cross and the Legion of Honor upon his breast and looks like a man who really counts," finished the girl with sparkling eyes.

"But what brings such an amazing person to our secluded village? What is the attraction?" asked Mrs. Burk. "Oh, rest and scenery, I suppose; he is on leave for convalescence. He calls these bald old mountains and rocky pastures 'exquisite,' 'a valley of dreams' and one of 'God's beauty spots.' I must say I don't admire his taste; give me the flesh-pots and bright lights. I care not how beautiful it be, if it be not beautiful to me," sang the happy girl as she pinned on her sun hat and gathering up a tin pal and lunch basket, she opened the door to the wind-blown morning.

"Bye-bye, mamsey, I'm off. I'll take the Marsh baby along for company and give poor Mrs. Marsh a chance to get her jelly made. Baby can roll in the clover while I pick berries." "Well," thought Helen, with a giggle, as she tripped gaily away, "that's the time I put one over on mother. If she dreamed that her unsophisticated little daughter had actually flirted with the handsome stranger, I tremble to think what would happen to little me. But I should worry, everybody talks to soldiers these days."

Within half an hour, the Marsh baby, a pink and white morsel in rompers, was stumbling among the clover on unsteady legs, picking the "pitty-pitties" while Helen picked berries in the pasture on the other side of a rail fence. Suddenly the silence of the summer morning was broken by the low-toned honk-honk of a motor car, and a familiar gray roadster of aristocratic lines came purring along the road and ground to a stop opposite the busy berry picker. A transformed Helen nodded a gay "good morning." Leroy Talmage climbed from behind the steering wheel and with one leap was over the low stone wall, and with widening eyes stood looking down at baby Marsh. "Da da," gurgled the infant, lifting entreating blue eyes and chubby arms. "You rascal," and the tall military man caught the child up, held him aloft, then cuddled the little creature in his strong arms. The rose-leaf mouth was pressed to his bronzed cheek and the busy fingers played with the military cross.

"Why, Baby Marsh, you are altogether too familiar," scolded Helen. "He calls every man he sees 'Dada,'" explained the girl, with a bright blush. "His father is in France and he naturally misses him."

"Don't apologize for baby, Mrs.—er—Marsh; let me play with him. I am very fond of children."

When luncheon was over, the man sat quietly smoking and watching the girl with the sleeping child resting against her knee. "Mrs. Marsh," he began, "I was amazed to find that you were a married woman." After a tense silence he added earnestly: "Would it interest you to know that I have never been in love—not the real thing?" Another silence. The girl stirred restlessly. The man went on huskily: "When I first saw you tripping along your quaint village streets, in your simple white gown and rose-wreathed hat, with your Red Cross bag on your arm—well, I knew I had reached a turning point in my life—that's all. I hope you will not think this confession impertinent. I am not in the habit of making love to other men's wives, and I hope you'll forgive me."

The girl sat with demure, downcast eyes, twining the child's silken curls about her finger. Suddenly she sprang to her feet with an exclamation. "Quick, it is raining; a big drop splashed on baby's nose; we will get soaked. Mr. Talmage, will you kindly motor us home?"

Ten minutes later they pulled up before Burk cottage. Helen turned a roguish face to her companion. "May I trouble you to drive up the street a block further? I must return Baby Marsh to his mother. He was borrowed only for the day. And I would like to introduce myself. My name is Miss Helen Burk."

"Then you are not married?" exclaimed the man, and he turned a transformed face to the girl.

"Not that I know of," returned Helen, with a glance that meant much. "Won't you forgive me, Mr. Talmage?" she said, trembling with emotion.

"I'll think it over, sweetheart. It is a small thing to forgive, when the ending is so wonderful." She looked up at him sweetly. "There's a big life ahead of us, dear." His hand closed over hers in sudden tension. (Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

SAFE AT LAST

When we were young and in our prime, we had a simply rotten time. We dared not loaf a single second, because the future always beckoned, and when we sneaked a day for fishing we knew 'twas crime against ambition. Now life is beautiful and glorious. No more the future lies before us. Each day for us is simply splendid because our foolish toil is ended. No more with jobs we are entrusted. We're safe because we're old and busted.

Like to Be an Alligator?

Alligators have to be fed on meat, but they need no food from September 1 to May 1, for that is their hibernating season, when they do not eat at all. Alligator skins are used for making bags, suitcases, purses, belts, cushion covers, etc., and the teeth and bones are made into cuff links, paper knives, whistles and many forms of cheap jewelry and ornaments. It has been said that the state of Florida receives more than a million dollars a year from trade in alligators.

Cause of Sun's Eclipses.

Eclipses of the sun are caused by the moon coming between the earth and the sun in such manner as to obscure the sun or a portion of it from the view of a section of the earth. An eclipse of the moon results when the earth comes between the sun and the moon so that the shadow of the earth falls upon the whole or a part of that portion of the moon visible to the earth.

Overcoming Obstacles.

Sir George Reid's golden rule for the attainment of old age: "I have aimed at health and happiness, and when confronted by a formidable obstacle I have first tried to knock it over; failing this, to get around it; if not, then under it; and if all these maneuvers failed, I have been content to lie down in its grateful shade, landing it as a beautiful blessing in disguise."

Frog's Appetite.

The common green frog has been discovered to possess an insatiable greed for wasps. This extraordinary appetite does not seem to be in the least checked by an occasional sting. The protecting color of the frog, which sits motionless upon leaves, no doubt deludes the most wary of insects into a sense of security.

Dead Civilizations.

We think ours a wonderful civilization, and it is, in a way notwithstanding the shadows that rest upon its soul. But there have been civilizations almost, if not quite, as splendid as our own. And they are gone—indeed, so dead that not a tombstone remains to mark the grave.—Christian Herald.

Some Pancake!

If all the wheat that Kansas is raising this year were ground into flour and made into one pancake, that pancake would cover six hundred square miles, says in the issue of August 2—the first you will receive if you send me your subscription today. It would take forty-eight million pounds of butter, and forty-five million gallons of molasses to cover the big pancake. And Kansas boasts that she raises it all.

This year's wheat crop interests every farmer, for every one put in as much as he could to get some of the Government's $2.26 fixed price. What are you going to raise next? Sheep? Here's an article about the Corrie dales. Velvet beans? Here's their story from A to Z. Pigs? Here's their story, too. Berries? Here's all about this year's crop and next year's prospects. Whatever it is you raise—crops, livestock, fruit, truck or poultry—you will find help in THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN. The cost? It's almost nothing at all in comparison. Only one dollar for a whole year, with 52 big weekly issues. Why miss another number? Send your name and your dollar today.

Great Lecturers a Feature Of This Year's Chautauqua

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS

You will respond with fervor to the glowing message of this year's Chautauqua lecturers—for surely never was such a galaxy of great thinkers and gifted speakers presented in a single week!

By reason of his importance in the body politic, and doubly by reason of his nation-wide reputation as an orator, chief attention focuses on the great address of Ex-Governor Willis of Ohio, whose lecture, "Perils and Problems," cuts with the white heat of an acetylene torch to the very heart of our national problems.

George P. Bible is another orator of gifted mind. His lecture, "New Fads and Fancies" gets close to the heart of the man and the nation and helps men steer their course during these trying days.

Jas. S. Knox—community-specialist, comes not only to lecture but to counsel with us to find ways to better our own "Community Efficiency." Mr. Knox is not only a powerful speaker but has the added distinction of being one of the few men in America thoroughly familiar with the problems of the small and medium-sized community, as well as those of the larger cities.

Mother Lake—that eloquent woman who has dedicated her life to overcoming the inequities of life—often unseen and unknown by the parent—that serve to hamper the mental, physical and moral development of the child, brings her lecture, "The Divine Rights of the Child," one of the most sympathetic appeals ever heard on the Chautauqua platform.

Plenty of Entertainment At the Chautauqua, Too

Never since men first planned to carry the very highest type of entertainment to communities such as ours by means of the "big top," has a Chautauqua program offered as high a standard or as great a variety of entertainment features as will be presented this year.

Geographically the program stretches all the way from Scotland to Hawaii—for Harry Bennett's Scotch Entertainers feature the costumes, the comedy, and the melody of the Highlands and the Royal Hawaiian Singers and Players offer the weird music of the tropical islands.

Hettie Jane Dunaway brings her great triumph—the tabloid drama "Just Plain Judy" adapted from the stage success "Daddy Long Legs"—and presents all the characters herself.

The Mozart Orchestral Ladies present a widely varied program of concert numbers that has more than the average appeal.

And Victor's Columbian Band—in a collection of great ensemble numbers, descriptive pieces, picturesque musical novelties, solos and rich instrumental groupings, winds up the week with a grand festival of music.
