MICHIGAN TO PLANT ROADSIDE TREES

The Michigan Legislature recently passed a law to encourage the planting of nut bearing and other food-producing shade trees along State trunk highways and other roads built in that State. The law makes it the duty of the State Highway Commission and the State Commission of Agriculture to look after the setting out of such trees and of the State Agricultural College and the Public Dominion Commission to distribute stock at nominal cost to local officials and private individuals who will set it out. Trees are to be planted at intervals of 20 to 40 feet along the roads. Injuring roadside trees or affixing notices of any kind to them is made a misdemeanor punishable by fine of $1 to $25 and imprisonment of not more than 30 days. This law is in keeping with the policy of encouraging tree planting announced by the United States Department of Agriculture, the department of the Federal aid road law, in cooperation with the States.

SUGAR FORECAST ABOVE AVERAGE

The sugar season of 1919-1920 begins with a forecast of production of about 1,108,000 short tons, made by the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, or about 73,500 tons more than the average of the preceding six years, during which time the total of the two crops of beet and cane sugar has slightly exceeded 1,000,000 tons every year except in 1914-1915.

The beet-sugar forecast for this year is higher than the record crop of 1915-1916 by nearly 75,000 tons and is above the average of the preceding six years by about 169,000 tons, but the cane-sugar crop of this year is forecast at only 159,069 tons, compared with which is the average of about 254,500 tons of the preceding six years. During many years the cane-sugar crop of only 1915-1916 has been lower and of only 1912-1913 has been nearly as small. The low prospects of this year's crop, at the date of July 1, are due to a wet, cool spring and to a somewhat low acreage. In recent years cane sugar has usually been about one-quarter of the total of cane and beet sugar produced in contiguous United States, but this year the prospect is that it will be only about one-seventh.

The area planted to sugar beets this year is the largest one on record and, it is estimated, reaches 890,400 acres, or 200,700 acres more than last year and 83,800 acres more than the largest previous area in 1917. The condition of the crop July 1, was low, on account of advertise weather conditions.

Remember the Chautauqua dates, Aug. 15-19, inclusive.

UNUSUAL TALENT AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

Now that the big days are drawing near it is beginning to be evident that success is to be the due of the committees in charge of the Chautauqua work in charge.

And well it should, for there should not be a vacant seat for any of the unusually strong attractions offered us this year.

In an article of this length it is impossible to do justice to the multiplicity of unusual talent we shall be privileged to hear during Chautauqua week. From first to last the features are of a most unusual type, offering the very highest class of talent to be seen anywhere on the Chautauqua circuits.

For instance, a group of the most eloquent and informative lecturers of all Chautauquodrom are to appear here. Most interest centers in the great oratory of Ex-Governor Willis of Ohio, whose reputation as a brilliant and convincing speaker is nation wide. Governor Willis will speak on "Perils and Problems." Other lecturers and their subjects are George P. Bible, the Chautauqua favorite, who speaks on "New Fads and Fancies," James S. Knox, the community expert, who discusses "Community Efficiency," and Mother Lenora Lake in her stirring appeal for "The Divine Rights of the Child."

As for the entertainment features, it is difficult to say which is creating the greatest amount of enthusiasm. Because of its novelty, one of the most talked of numbers is that of the gifted Hattie Jane Dunaway, who is a whole drama in herself. This talented dramatic reader presents a tabloid production entitled "Just Plain Judy," which is an adaptation of "Daddy Long Legs" and other stories. Miss Dunaway takes all the parts, making ten distinct changes of costume. She is ably assisted by the playing of the two charming musicians, Margaret Ringgold and Rachel Major.

Two of the entertainment features ought almost to be called musical travelogues. They are the piquant program of "That Man Bennett," a Scotchman himself, and two Scotch lassies. And the romantic music of the Hawaiian Singers and Players. Both companies appear in the costumes of their far distant native lands and render the melodies that prove life in Scotland as different from that in Hawaii as are its snow-capped crags from the dreamy, drowsy Waikiki Beach.

Other great musical features are provided by the Mozart Orchestral Ladies and by Victor's Columbian Band. The latter is one of the really exceptional bands of the country. It promises to close Chautauqua week with a sunburst of truly magnificent music.

DEATH OF MRS. HELEN WALKER

Helen Jahraus Walker, wife of R. L. Walker, died July 17, in her thirty-eighth year at her home in Detroit. She had been in poor health for several years, but grew rapidly worse about two months ago.

The funeral was held at Oxford from the home of her sister, Mrs. Leon Randall, the services being conducted by Rev. Jones of Cheboygan. She was laid to rest in the beautiful Oxford cemetery at four o'clock Sunday afternoon. All of the near relatives of the deceased were present to pay their last respects to the member of the family who had left them, with the exception of her aged grandfather, Mr. Stevenson, who was too frail to stand the trip.

Helen Jahraus was born at Urbana, Ohio, but all her school days and girlhood were spent at Tawas. She was married at Tawas City in April, 1902 and since then has lived at Cheboygan, Grand Marais, and other Northern Peninsula towns.

MICHIGAN TO HELP SAVE WESTERN STOCK

Secretary Marston of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, attended a conference at St. Paul, Minn., last week which was called by the bureau of animal husbandry of the department of agriculture, for the purpose of discussing relief measures for the live stock of the drought stricken districts of Montana and adjoining states, in some sections of which they have had little or no rainfall in two years while this is the third season for a few sections.

About 100 representatives from Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota were present and the conference lasted practically all day. At its close, Mr. Bomel, chief of the animal husbandry bureau, left for Billings, Montana, the center of the district. It is proposed to establish a clearing house at this point, under government charge, and another at the St. Paul stockyards.

Reports showed that the districts most affected by the drought are eastern Montana, part of Idaho, northwest part of North Dakota and reaching up into Saskatchewan. Among the statements made by agricultural advisers and others were that in the wheat growing sections the crop is about one-seventh to one-eighth of normal production is 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 bushels, it will not be over 1,000,000 bushels this year," said Mr. Marston. "At one point hay is so scarce that it is selling at $50 per ton."

"Live stock is said to be in fairly good condition, not starved, and of good quality, as much up-breeding has been done in recent years, but the ranges are now practically used up and there is so little in the way of forage crops for carrying the stock through the winter that it must either be killed before it is fit for killing, be moved to other territory where feed is plenty or starve to death before the winter's half over."

"One report from the west was to the effect that 50,000 steers, an equal number of cows and 500,000 lambs must be shipped and some sections must ship out 50 to 45 per cent of their stock in order to have feed enough to carry the remainder through. Another statement was to the effect that 500,000 cattle must be moved and that orders are already in for 2,700 cars for this purpose."

"From another section it was reported that the small farmers are so hard hit that they are moving out, abandoning their farms, debts and all, at the rate of 50 families per day."

"For the purpose of conserving the livestock the government proposal is that animals fit for killing be shipped to the stockyards as rapidly as possible, that choice breeding animals be retained and that the remainder be shipped to localities where feed is abundant. It is proposed to ask the railroad administration to give a 50 per cent reduction on freight rates on feed shipped in and an equal reduction on animals shipped out of the district."

"The upper peninsula, Wisconsin and Minnesota were well represented at the conference and gave glowing accounts of what they could do to care for large numbers of animals, but northeastern Michigan had a little more to offer than the others, because of the number of fenced ranches and the feeding in transit rate which the Michigan Central gives on stock shipped from the west and pastured in the state during the grazing season. The saving in freight under this plan is a big item each year."

"The average western livestock man is somewhat fearful of unfenced cut-over ranges, owing to the difficulty in keeping track of the animals and the fenced ranges will appeal strongly to the battle-men while there are hundreds of thousands of acres open to those who are willing to herd their stock. Another fact which appeals to them is that there is plenty of feed obtainable in lower Michigan for wintering stock and much of that brought to Michigan ranges would be absorbed through that channel."

SILAGE FEEDING PAYS

Statistics show that the percentage of profitable farms is almost three times as high among herds that are fed on silage as among herds that are not fed silage.

While there may be some possible question as to the economy of putting up silos under extreme high prices, there can be no question about the economy of filling to capacity those that are already up.

Every man who has a silo should aim not only to put up enough silage to carry his herd through the winter but to have some for summer feeding, at least in case of emergency.

Even in the best of pasture regions, cows frequently drop 20 to 50 per cent in production—even more sometimes—in midsummer when drought cuts the pastures short.

When the rains come later, these cattle do not return to 100 per cent production.

If there is some stuff in the silo when the dry weather comes, the cows can be kept up in production through the drought and carried on at maximum production through the season.

Living high has laid many a family low.

CHECKING UP THE PACKERS

In order to cure the drastic processes of prosecutions under the Sherman law the Federal Trade Commission was created, and in its equipment were soft pedals. Its purpose was defined to prevent persons, partnerships or corporations, except banks, and common carriers subject to the acts to regulate commerce, from using unfair methods in competition, etc.

Bankers and common carriers have recognized the value to them and their affairs of a form of semi-public control—and they want more of it.

Big business, and little business, which behaves itself, has learned that it has nothing to fear from Government; and progressive minds welcome the new relations being established between commerce, finance and industry and the federal government. One by one the problems of commerce are being straightened out. Just now one of the most perplexing phases of economic conditions concerns the regulating of methods of unfair competition. The Federal Trade Commission points to the packing trust as the chief offender against this principle.

Mr. Louis F. Swift, the Chicago packer, talks about the policy of the Government, in the fashion of the antique politicians who adorn their titles with the prefix "ex-". "The manner in which the Federal Trade Commission juggles figures and resorts to sensationalism betrays the insincerity of the commission," declares Mr. Swift.

The complaint of Mr. Swift doubtless refers to the discovery by the Commission that the big five packers jointly or separately wield controlling interest in 574 companies, minority interest in 95 others and undetermined interest in 93—a total of 762 companies—and that they produce or deal in some 775 commodities, largely food products.

MANY REASONS WHY NATION DESIRES HOUSEHOLD THRIFT

Household thrift helped win the war. It will fortify the peace, making America powerful, its people prosperous, and its homes happy.

Thrift is steady earning wise spending, sane saving, careful investing, and the avoidance of all waste.

What the members of one family produce in outside industry and in the home adds to the national products or "wealth heap" of food, clothing, and all desirable goods; this national wealth heap is divided among us all, and out of it every family, each one of us, gets his living.

What one home wastes is taken away from the nation's wealth, and makes all homes that much poorer.

The war taught us to practice thrift together in food, in clothing, and in all goods, in order to serve America and save the world. Our country asks continued thrift in the home as a guarantee that we shall remain a prosperous, progressive, independent, and dependable nation.

By thrift every household can take its part gladly in every government loan; by investing in government securities it can safeguard its future, and increase its income so as to fulfill the American ideals of personal independence and constant progress toward better living.

Thrift is a permanent service which the household can render to the nation.

WAR RISK INSURANCE

Uncle Sam is certainly a good old scout, for he doesn't even get sore on the soldier boys for the manner in which they have scoffed at his bounty in the way of insurance. War risk insurance is the greatest bargain ever put on the life insurance counter. The Government supplies it at less than cost. Still most of the soldiers have dropped their policies, and Uncle Sam, instead of getting peeved, has just put out a new offer to reinstate the policies; and the only penalty is that the insured shall pay one month of insurance for the lapsed period, and then begin all over again.

There has been a good deal of dissatisfaction because of the delays and confusion in handling the insurance matters of the War Risk Bureau. Really, though, how could it be expected that an arrangement to cover the affairs of 4,000,000 men would be put through in a few weeks, and work smoothly? It could not be done.

The one "best bet" that was offered to soldiers, sailors and marines, was their insurance. Any policyholder who sticks to his contract will get full money returns from the Government for the time he spent in the service on small pay.

As we read day after day the statements of Director R. G. Chalmers-Jones fairly imploring the boys who were in the service, to restore their contracts, we cannot help but admire the patience of the Director; but the thought often suggests itself, that there is no sensible excuse why young men should not avail themselves of so fine an opportunity to carry out a plain duty which they owe to themselves and their families—and if they do not avail themselves of that opportunity in carrying Government insurance, then they fail to recognize a good bargain.

WAR ORPHANS OF FRANCE DYING FROM MALNUTRITION AND SHOCK

The children of France have not yet emerged from the shadow of the war. With peace assured, and a happier future opening before them, it becomes increasingly evident that the child life of France has suffered a shock from which it is difficult to rally; while the birth rate has dropped to 8 to each 1,000 population.

The Fatherless Children of France, an American organization co-operating with a similar one in Paris of which Marshall Joffre is the head, reports that of the children receiving American aid to the extent of 10 cents a day under its plan or securing American godmothers for the little French war waifs, its records show an average of 700 children's deaths per month since the armistice. The help of the American godmother came too late to save these undernourished nerve-shocked little ones.

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster of Chicago, vice-chairman of the Fatherless Children of France, has been appointed chairman of a campaign to secure American aid for the 60,000 little war orphans whose names were on the lists of the organization as "underadopted" before the signing of the armistice. Ten cents will care for a child for an entire day; $3.00 for a month; while for $36.50 a year the donor may select a child from the lists at the organization's headquarters and be placed in correspondence with it. To adopt a child or make a donation write for information to Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Room 634, 410 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

"NO PATENT, NO FEE"

One of the long standing abuses in the relations of the public towards the patent system is the method of patent lawyers who take cases on the basis of "no patent, no fee." Most of this ilk may be put down in the common phraseology used in describing fakes, for by their processes its "heads they win and tails you lose." This class of "lawyers" would satisfy your demands for a patent on a trolley car by securing an allowance on the depth of a notch in a wheel of the steering gear—and since many applicants for patents don't know the difference, they "get away with it." Some of these firms have grown fat and rich in Washington, and their prosperity is proof of the theory that "one is born every minute." These lawyers will furnish patents for about one-quarter, or less, than the fees of reputable attorneys. Their goods are somewhat similar to those of the dentists who furnish "a brand new plate for $5." The public long ago decided that such dentists should be taken out and dropped in the center of the ocean—and so they should; but the fake patent lawyers should go with them.

A patent, worthy of the name, must be one that clothes the invention from infringement. The fake patent lawyers dress up theirs with cast-off B. V. D.'s whereas reputable men in practice in the profession cover every joint and spot with essential protection. Steer clear of the "no patent, no fee" men. The Patent Office forbids this class of advertising, and is trying to stamp out the practice. Nevertheless this custom is common enough.

BE BRIEF

When you have nothing to say, it is usually a good plan to say it in as few words as possible.

WE'RE LUCKY

A lot of us complain that we are not getting as much as we deserve in this country. We're probably lucky.

Some clergymen deal in rhetoric, some in logic, some in common sense. The first is popular with women, the second with most men, and the third with but precious few of either sex.

JUST LIKE TIMES OF PEACE

Correspondent Finds That in Warfare It is the "Little Things" That Really Count.

A few hundred yards to the rear we came upon a soldier sitting on a stump. From the waist up he was as naked as a skinned rabbit. In his hand he held his shirt turned inside out, and he was studying the garment as intently as a young son of one of the best families stealing a chapter of a forbidden dime novel. But the expression was more that of a man digesting bad news.

"What are you doing, son?" the captain called out. The soldier on the stump slowly raised his eyes and looked as over. His expression was that of a detached and world-weary man breaking under the burden of a secret sorrow. We didn't seem to ease his mind much, for he sighed deeply and returned to his intent inspection.

"I'm readin' over the personal column o' my shirt to see if there were any new arrivals las' night," he answered the captain's question finally. "I think I must be in a convention, the way they're flockin' in on me. If I'd been a small town a week ago, I'd be a big city by now."

"Are you finding any?" "Findin' any? I ain't lost any yet!" He raised his tired eyes and studied me carefully.

"You're a newspaper reporter, ain't you?" "Yes."

"You lookin' for news to print?" "Sure."

"Well, listen. Did old General Misfortune ever billet a whole army corps o' starvin' cooties on your personality an' leave 'em there to fatten up an' multiply an' replenish your shirt?" "I've had 'em."

The soldier immediately lost all interest in me and took up his duties anew.

"God-by," he mumbled. "If you've had 'em, you know all the news there is to know around here."

In war as in peace it's the little things that count!—William Slavens McNutt, in Collier's Weekly.

Jonah Vark.

Well Al one of the burgs along the line is where Jonah Vark was born when she was alive. It seems like France was mixed up in another war along about one hundred years ago and they was getting licked and Jonah was just a young gal but she dressed up in men's coat and pants and went up to the front and led the charges with a horse and she carried a white flag and the Dutchmens or whoever they was fighting against must of thought it was a flag of trunants and anyway they didn't fire at them and the French captured New Orleans and win the war. The Germans is trying to pull the same stuff on our boys now and lots of times they run up and holler Conrad like they was going to give up and when your back is turned they whang away at you, but they won't pull none of that stuff on me and when one of them tries to Conrad me I will perculate them with a bayonet—Ring W. Lardner in the Saturday Evening Post.

Dogs of War.

The canine department in the French army is a command in itself; its four-footed recruits are enrolled almost more carefully than real soldiers. They have an official record, a number, an identity plate, and are never lost sight of. The dogs already have their roll of honor. Several have been cited in orders for having saved whole companies by their sagacity; others have enabled surprises to be brought off as well as avoided. As liaison agents they are invaluable, while as ammunition carriers they are practically indispensable. While a few of them can never get used to shot and shell, the majority quickly get as case-hardened as old soldiers. A dog carrying a message through a terrific barrage fire has been seen blown into the air, to come down with a thud that made it senseless, to remain stunned a while, then pick itself up, give itself a good shake, and resume its journey.

Got Employer's Day's Income.

A woman who was for many years a housekeeper in the family of the late Alfred B. Nobel, the Swedish founder of the Nobel prizes, was leaving to be married. Mr. Nobel wished to reward her services and asked what she would like for a wedding gift, saying that he would be glad to give her whatever she asked. After consulting with her fiance, the woman approached Mr. Nobel and said she had decided what she wanted, but doubted whether she would get it. "Go ahead," said the rich dynamite maker; "I told you to ask for whatever you wished."

"Will you give me your income for one day, then, Mr. Nobel?" It took 11 men to figure it out, but the housekeeper received for a wedding present the sum of $28,000.—Young Ladies' Journal.

"Silver Bullets."

When Mr. Lloyd George used the expression "silver bullets" he probably took the idea from some Welsh legend about witches. It was once believed both in Wales and Scotland that only silver bullets could hurt a witch when disguised as a hare.

FOUND HIS PLACE

Youngster Who Made Good as Food Producer.

Factory Hand Lost, but a Massachusetts Community is Richer Because Boy Decided That He Would Take to Gardening.

Four years ago a garden-club boy in Massachusetts faced what would have seemed even to an adult a hard problem. Born in Italy, but thoroughly inculcated with American ideas of the necessity of education, James was told by his father while in the eighth grade that no longer could he be kept in school. His future path was to lie toward the near-by factory.

Believing, because of his garden-club experience under the auspices of the local leader for the United States department of agriculture, that he could earn as much by potato raising outside of school hours as he could in a factory by devoting his whole time, he finally obtained permission from his father to try it. So successful was he that his father was willing he should enter the ninth grade in the fall.

The next spring the superintendent let him have land to use for a large garden. To ten boys he had selected from the upper grammar grades he made the proposition to pay so much an hour and to give each a garden plot. The following excellent advice he offered them in addition: "If you are going to quit, quit now while it is cool and not when it is hot next August."

By fall he had decided that enough could be earned in the summers to enable him to attend high school and the agricultural college later. Now a junior in high school, he has a good-sized hothouse under lease, where he raises cabbage, cauliflower and tomato plants; he owns an auto truck to handle his produce; has a bank account and pays his bills by check, and owns at least one government bond.

With all the school and business cares, he still has time to look after the school welfare of his younger brothers and sisters, visiting their teachers and watching their progress. A factory hand, probably only a mediocre one, has been lost, but a good food producer has been gained through the vision given James by his boy's agricultural club leader.

Powerful Explosive.

The liquid oxygen explosive appears, from notices in the German technical press, to have been developed as a mining substitute for nitric explosives, which had been all taken for military purposes. It was discovered a score of years ago that when a carbonaceous material is saturated with liquid oxygen and ignited by a fuse or electricity, the carbon and oxygen combine violently, and successful trials were made in blasting. This explosive, called "oxyliquit," is now doing duty quite extensively in breaking up coal and potash. In seeking a combustible, experiments were made with a mixture of gasoline and infusorial earth, pulverized cork, dry wood pulp and dried peat, but the best results were obtained with lampblack. This is placed in a suitable cartridge. In the preferred method the filled cartridge is immersed for half an hour in liquid oxygen in a special container, and then, with an ignition system quickly attached, is placed in the borehole, tamped and exploded. The effects are nearly equal to those from the same weight of dynamite. The serious disadvantage of the method is the necessity of liquefying the oxygen at the place where used; but a very great advantage is safety in transportation, and especially complete lack of danger from unexploded cartridges. The oxygen evaporates in about ten minutes, leaving simply inert lampblack.

Monster Devil Fish.

The announcement is made that a monster devil fish weighing 1,700 pounds, and measuring 12 feet from tip to tip, has been captured three miles out from Deer Island, near Biloxi, Miss., by local fishermen, who brought the fish to Biloxi and placed it on exhibition. The fish, a species which is seldom seen so close to shore, was caught in a trawl net by Pat Moran, and it took three power boats to haul the fish into port. It had a mouth measuring four feet across, and in order to pass a rope through it, fishermen had to use an immense or. When one vessel attempted to bring the fish ashore it played with the boat as with a toy, and two other power boats came to its assistance. Many people viewed the monster.

NO EXPRESSION IN THE EYES

Quite as Much in Those of Glass as in the Natural Ones, is Recent Assertion.

A writer in the London Chronicle asserts that the human eye never changes its expression, and no doubt he is correct in that assertion. We may take it for granted, if he is just a writer, that he never discovered this for himself, but is merely recording a fact that has been demonstrated by scientific observers. The eye apparently expresses a variety of emotions, and writers as a class are continually recording these changing expressions with all the adjectival wealth they can command. The heroes, heroines and villains of fiction are always registering emotions with their eyes, and when you read the convincing descriptions you simply have to believe them. What is more, any day at the movies you can see the heroes, heroines and villains actually performing these stunts with their eyes. You don't have to take the words of authors for it; the movie-actors furnish the Q. E. D.

So what is the use of contradicting facts that are universally recognized? Most of us meet and talk with several dozen persons every day, and we pass hundreds of others in the streets. If you observe the eyes of any of those persons you cannot fail to note that they reveal one or another mental or emotional state. The eyes are cold, indifferent, questioning, melancholy, petulant, mirthful, mildly amused or what not, as the case may be. They also reflect boldness, timidity, self-assurance, diffidence, coquetry, and a variety of dominant temperamental attributes.

However, we are told that the eyes never behave in any such fashion, and we are forced to believe it. The eyes themselves are incapable of emotional change. Novelists are always having eyes "flash with rage" and all that sort of thing, and most of us are convinced that we have frequently seen eyes flash. But no rage or emotion of any sort can change the glistening of the eye. The flashing or glistening of the eye depends wholly upon reflected light. That light is reflected from two places, the pupil and the white, and neither of these brightnesses is governed by the mental or emotional state. The effect of the changing expressions of the eye is really given by the various flexing of the muscles in the flesh surrounding the eye and by the eyelids. The flashing effect is undoubtedly produced by a wider opening of the lids, which exposes more of the white for light reflection. In a "twinkling" eye it is not the eye but the lids and the surrounding muscles that really twinkle. As a matter of fact, a first-class glass eye would appear to be just as expressive emotionally as a natural eye.—F. H. Young, in Providence Journal.

This Bug Has a Cow's Face.

You would perhaps not notice this cowlike face and fur collar unless you should use a pocket lens, which every scout should have. Then you will find the monohammus or sawyer beetle extremely interesting, says Edward F. Bigelow, scout naturalist, discussing this curious insect in Boys' Life. These beautiful brown and gray beetles are, including the antennae, about an inch and a quarter long. The antennae or feelers are as long as the body in the case of the female and twice as long in the male. Where shall you look for these curious beetles? Search among the needle-like leaves of the pine and fir. The larvae are found in the sound wood of these trees. Sometimes the mature beetles occur in such numbers as to do real injury to the trees, but ordinarily they are not very plentiful, and most scouts are not familiar with them, even where they are fairly abundant.

The Storm.

"Wife, oh, wife!" he thundered. He heard the gentle rattle pitter of her feet as she approached. A cloud of anger overspread his features and lightning flashed from his eyes. "I should like to know why your complexion is so muddy this morning," he demanded. When she saw his rage break forth in torrents she burst into a flood of tears. Stricken with remorse at her grief he seized her in his arms and showered her with kisses. With true feminine forgiveness she allowed a bright, warm sunny smile to play on her face and happiness shone like a rainbow through her tears.

Making Hedgehog Useful.

If a scarcity of metals were to result in a scarcity of gramophone needles an excellent substitute can be found in the spines on the back of a hedgehog. This discovery is due to an officer of the Argyll and Sutherlands. The spines allow one to hear even the words of the singer and every note of the song in the softest of renderings.

Cutworm Killing.

Cutworms which pass the winter as partially-grown larvae are generally starved out by fall plowing, as their food is turned under. White grubs are destroyed more easily by deep, fall plowing because this insect burrows nearly to the plow-depth line during October, and being turned up at that time cannot hibernate again before winter sets in.

Embarrassing.

"What do you think of women in politics?" "Embarrassing," answered Miss Cayenne. "You can't be sure whether a bashful man is going to propose to you or merely ask you for your vote."

Slate Surfaced Roofing

We have recently received a car of roofing and offer a strictly high grade Slate Surfaced Roofing at the price usually paid for inferior material.

The recent fire in Tawas City proved the danger of shingle roofs as buildings blocks away caught fire on their shingled roofs while slate surfaced roofs were in no danger.

With our high grade roofing you can re-roof without moving the shingles, saving much money and muss.

Come in and we will tell you all about it.
