THE MAHOGANY BOARD

Strike unionists and salaried officials of union labor organizations who started in by envying the mahogany tables around which the capitalists gathered to hold counsel, have for a long time been holding their own conferences around their own mahogany boards; and whether it is the influence of the wood or the same kind of intoxication that brought on the downfall of the autocratic capitalists of the country does not appear. But in any event class-capital has had its big day in American industry and has been obliged to pass on to make way for more democratic methods in finance and business; and the same kind of bragging that class-capital did about "owning" railroads, giant industries, and "running" cities, counties and states, has been adopted by the professional plutocratic strike-unionists who have been trying to bluff the country into the false belief that a calamity in national industrial affairs is at hand.

The steel strike and the coal strike have demonstrated the fallacy of attempting to coerce the public and the government; and regardless of the results as they affect the employers and the employees, these strikes are apt to be like the thunder shower that is followed by clear weather. It is not a time to feel too optimistic, because there are wide gaps to close between employers and employees, and big economic problems must be worked out. Nevertheless the "unrest" in industry appears to have had its origin principally around the mahogany tables of boards of directors of workmen's federations, brotherhoods and unions, and the warnings against "revolution" and the like seems to have pictured an imaginary, rather than a real menace. The refusal of the Government to be stampeded by the strikes in the coal mines, and the failure of the steel strike is not as many have judged, a failure of union labor. It is a triumph for union labor since in the show-down it must be reasonable apparent to all people who think that two conditions exist in the labor situation of this country. First: That there are too many autocratic labor leaders sitting around mahogany tables. This is a very important disclosure which labor itself may be depended upon to remedy. Secondly: It has been clearly proved, in the course of these strikes, that the wage earners of the country are wholly loyal to the government.

True, a few strike-unionists and salaried officials of union labor organizations, picking out industries filled with foreigners, have thrown quite a scare into the people of the country, but there is a clearing up of the showers right now, and it discloses organized labor massed shoulder to shoulder to sustain its rights and its principles. While at the same time there is a disposition to accord capital the privilege to "live and let live" that it claims for itself.

"Industrial unrest" appears daily to have been principally the artificial respiration of the mahogany-tabled gentlemen who have grown into ease and comfort as the "leaders" of labor.

FARMERS SCRATCH HEADS OVER INCOME TAX REPORT

East Lansing, Nov. 10.—Many Michigan farmers are already pondering over the details of the income tax reports which they must fill out during the next few months, and many of them are finding that the job is going to be a difficult one. The man who does his bookkeeping in his head is finding that the tax report sheets call for much more fact than he has at his command.

"These reports are simple," says C. H. Graves, farm management specialist at the Michigan Agricultural College, "if the farmer has kept an account during the year and taken an annual inventory. If he has no record of his year's business, however, making the report is a difficult process."

"Rulings of the Commissioners of Internal Revenue permit farmers to report on the inventory basis, provided they keep some system of farm accounts that is accredited by the department. This is by far the easier and better method, because each year's business is reported according to actual income and not according to the cash receipts."

Simple and practical farm account books, suitable for this purpose, can be secured from the county agricultural agents in any part of the state.

WISE SPENDER IS WISE SAVER

It is as hard to make young people to save. It is also more fun. But money that is spent does not work for you.

It is as hard to make young people realize the necessity of saving as it is to make them realize they are not always going to be young. It is so easy to be young and reckless.

But habits of thrift have to be taught. They also have to be formed by practice. That means that the rising generation must be taught to capitalize its youth, and in childhood shown how to distribute and allot such income as they may have.

That, indeed, is a large part of civilization. The savage lives today. The civilized man lives today with an eye upon tomorrow. In order that tomorrow may be as secure as today, he saves some of today's goods for tomorrow's use.

The war taught some people how to save; it taught other people how to spend. The wise spender is the wise saver, but the emphasis is on the "wise" and not on the "spending."

Education in thrift is an education in good citizenship and in good morals. The person who is being taught to forecast the future and to make tomorrow better because of the living today.

The government of the United States in offering to men, women and children the opportunity to invest savings in that which will last until the latest tomorrow is becoming a great educator. It is helping its citizens to help themselves by giving them the chance to make today help tomorrow.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION

It must have occurred to mostly everybody that when the President and his cabinet decided to fight the coal strike, and when the Senate and the House of Representatives by their unanimous votes declared their unqualified support to the Administration in the course it had taken, that under such circumstances the Government cannot be all wrong. It is an inevitable deduction that the men in this Government, selected as they are from every walk of life, and from every part of the country, are good men, as a whole, and are truly representative of the people of this great country.

These are self-evident truths, and upon the principles involved the life of the American government depends.

For perhaps the first time in the history of the United States popular government as it is regarded by a free people, has been challenged by a class of workmen, and the acts of the coal miners constitute a flat defiance to the government that has shielded and protected them.

There is no longer any question about the rights of labor unions to exist and enforce the demands of their members, and public opinion and the government has been standing back of them. But acting on the same principle that has brought about "trust-busting," the restraint of unfair competition, the dissolution of combinations, and the regulation of other methods of conducting business that are damaging to the public as a whole; the Government first sought to prevent a strike that would bring disaster to the whole country; and when gentle measures failed the drastic processes of maintaining the sovereignty of the United States were enforced. It was the policy Roosevelt defined when he said: "Speak softly and carry a big stick."

BET YIELD ALL OVER DISTRICT ABOVE AVERAGE

One of the big paying crops of northeastern Michigan this year has been that of sugar beets. The factories at Bay City and Saginaw have extended their territory from which they draw their supplies until now beets are raised for them in practically every county in the development bureau district, shipments being made from as far north as Tower, in Cheboygan county.

The price for beets this year is $10 per ton, provided the wholesale price of sugar does not exceed 9 cents per pound. There is to be an additional $1 per ton for the farmers for every cent that the average price of sugar for the months of October, November, December and January exceeds 9 cents and as the price starts out at not less than 10 cents beet growers are certain of $11 per ton for this year's crop.

The yield, this year, is far above the average in nearly every county, some farmers reporting 20 to 22 tons per acre, the latter figure meaning a gross return to the farmers of $242 per acre.

"This phenomenal return per acre is one of the best advertisements for northeastern Michigan that it could receive from any quarter," was the comment of Secretary Marston, of the development bureau, in discussing the subject.

HE CUT RED TAPE

Innocent Request the Prelude to Much Trouble.

After Mr. Temporary's Experience With the Formidable "System" He Preferred to Pay for Anything That He Might Require.

I wanted a wire paper clip. Miss Smith, also new to the ministry, said she would fetch some from the storekeeper. That's what started the matter. I pinned the loose papers together and went on with my work.

The storekeeper had evidently refused to part with any clips without an order. Miss Smith brought me a printed folder containing a request for "paper clips, wire," which she had typed in triplicate on paper headed "Ministry of Economy. For departmental use only." She said it was the right thing to do and I was to sign it, and then Mr. Jones, downstairs, would deal with it. It sounded quite innocent; I initialed it without misgiving.

Later in the week the folder came back. It contained several extra sheets of paper and had evidently traveled.

The first minute was from Mr. Jones: "In reference to Mr. Temporary's request for paper clips, wire, for departmental use, I fail to see what advantage these have over paper clips, brass, which are in use in my department."

Mr. Robinson said that the question opened a wide field, and he had requested the storekeeper to let him know how many paper clips, brass, he had in stock. "See attached sheets A and A1." These were a formal request to the storekeeper, and his reply, to say he had 37 one-gross boxes on hand and one box, partly opened, which he estimated to contain 60. If the exact number was required he would have the clips counted.

Mr. Short pointed out that his colleagues had not noticed that the matter was one which came within the province of the ministry of wire drawing. He had consequently put through a request for a price at which paper clips, wire, could be supplied. He attached a carbon copy of his letter, and a reply from the applied wire department, ministry of wire drawing, to say the matter was receiving attention and would be dealt with in due time.

The next minute was from a gentleman who had evidently set the vast machinery of the directorate of office supplies and sundries at work. Attached were papers from them to say they had paper clips, wire, as well as paper clips, brass, in stock. They wished to be certain that no change in design was necessary, and were sending, by motor, samples of the paper clips (wire) they had in stock, as perhaps one or other might prove suitable. Appended were other papers of which the first was from the chief of the departmental garage to say he had a motor at Huntingdon awaiting a consignment of paper. He had instructed the driver to return at once. On his arrival he would dispatch goods as requested.

At this point Miss Smith entered: "Will you make out an order for a typewriter eraser?" "No," I answered firmly. "You will please give this dime to one of the messenger girls and ask her to go out and buy one!"—S. P., in London Mail.

Two War Heroes.

The two colored soldiers of the American army in France who became famous for their bravery and courage in preventing more than twenty Teutons west of Verdun from executing a well-developed plan to assault one of the most important points of resistance on the American front, have been decorated by the French. Their names are Henry Johnson and Needham Roberts. Both are privates and members of the old New York National Guard. It is said these men have been awarded the war cross by the French general of the division under whom the unit is serving, and that Johnson is scheduled to receive the much-coveted gold palm of the French army commander as well.—Southern Woman's Magazine.

"I Like Gravy."

At a recent dinner party that included the little folk in their high chairs, the guests fell to talking of that custom of the dark ages—making children wait until the second table. "When I was a little shaver," said a prominent attorney, "my brother and I were holding forth in the kitchen. Twice the gravy bowl had been refilled. The third time it was returned to the dining room my brother stuck his head through the door and yelled: "Don't eat up all the gravy. I like gravy."

"Fish Meal" for Cattle.

On the shores of the North sea there has recently been started a factory for the manufacture of what has proven to be a very satisfactory food for live stock from the refuse of a fish-packing plant. A "fish meal" is turned out which contains 55 per cent of albumen and 12 per cent of fat. It is eaten by swine and some cattle accept it readily. Besides making use of a refuse, it releases much grain otherwise demanded for food by these animals.

TURNING MARINES INTO GHOSTS WAS NOT AN EASY JOB

New York—A method of transforming Marines into ghosts has been discovered at last! This has nothing to do with the late war in which the majority of the men of the Corps were busily engaged in transforming Germans into spectres. By this new method the marine who takes on the ghostly appearance remains alive and well throughout the process.

A new war play, which will soon be produced in the New York theatres has in its cast several actors who play the parts of Marines at the front in France. In order to carry out the plot, the men must be transformed into ghosts on the stage before the eyes of the audiences.

The producers, after many experiments, were in despair when Q. M. Sergt. Lyman Fuller of the Marines, came to their rescue. He suggested that the Marine uniforms be reproduced in a changeable silk of a steel-blue color on which calcium lights could be played. These silk suits were worn under the real uniforms, which were tailored so that they could be ripped off in a few seconds leaving the men in their ghostly clothing. It was a complete success, and now the play can be put on with a scene the like of which has never before been produced.

M. A. C. MEN DEFEND COLD PACK CANNING

East Lansing, Nov. 10—Canning experts of the Michigan Agricultural College have added their voices to the chorus of denial that there is anything wrong with the cold pack method of canning food products, or that the recent deaths from botulinus poisoning in Detroit of people who had eaten ripe olives were in any way connected with cold pack canning.

The Boys' and Girls' Club leaders, under whose direction a great deal of this type of canning has been done in Michigan, have the backing of the State Dairy and Food Commission, the Washington authorities, and the Bacteriology Department at M. A. C. in their assertion that the cold pack method is safe. R. A. Turner, State Leader of Club Work at the college, has the following to say about botulinus poisoning.

"Investigation has proved that though botulinus poisoning is exceedingly rare, it is just as likely to occur in foods preserved by the open kettle method as in those put up by the cold pack canning process. Only two cases of poisoning have been traced to beans canned by the last named method. In fact, the first cases of this poisoning known were traced to sausage, indicating that canned goods are not the only foods in which this germ may occur. However, because of the length of time of cooking in cold pack canning, all authorities are unanimous in pronouncing this method as the one most likely to stop the development of the germ, and therefore the best method for preserving known at present.

"According to the bacteriologists, the poisoning is due not to the germ itself, but to the toxin which it produces. This toxin can be destroyed by heat. The organism, which can grow in both brine and sugar solutions, produces gas in the process of forming the toxin. If the germ has grown in the can long enough, food so infected will give off a putrid odor.

"In the case of the olives, which caused the recent trouble this odor was obscured by the characteristic odor of the brine in which the fruit was canned. That gases had been formed was borne out by the statement of one of the guests that the olive "popped" when he picked it up, and so, thinking that it was over-ripe, he laid it aside."

The advice given to all housewives concerning the eating of their canned food is: First: the canned food should look clear. There should be no evidences of the products having "swelled." The jar must have a good seal. Experiments show that canned foods inoculated with the botulinus germ soon look milky and swell. About the top of the glass jar there are soon visible signs of "working."

Second: note the odor of the food. It should not be putrid or have any "off" odor.

Third: If it is at all suspicious, do not taste food. Heating the food to boiling (212 degrees F.) for ten minutes, will destroy the toxin, making the food safe. If it is desired to serve the food cold, it should be boiled and then chilled before being served.

Charles James Fox.

Charles James Fox was one of the progressives of English politics, as well as one of the most brilliant orators and statesmen in the history of England. Like most thinking people of his day, he favored the cause of the American colonies and was constantly in opposition to the German King George III, who was then sitting on the English throne.

TRIBUTE TO FRENCH WOMAN

American Traveler Tells of Her Good Qualities and the Great Debt the Nation Owe Her.

The French woman is brought up to neglect none of the arts that attract men. Even in munition plants the woman worker knows where the mirror hangs, often has her powder puff at hand, and gives unconsciously the deft touch to the hair, writes Lyman Powell in the Designer. If it has sometimes seemed to us that the French wife overlooks too easily the unconsciousness of a husband, it is because we have failed to understand that French women are expected to keep themselves so attractive to the mate after marriage as well as before that he will not want to wander over fields.

If it be asked what woman is sufficient all through life for the double duty of being a good wife and a good mother, I name you France, and add that French women are in this regard the marvel of their sex and the strongest bulwarks of monogamy.

And all talk about the lower birth rate in France is beside the mark. The child is held so precious in the French mind that he usually remains a dream child till the right conditions are in sight for his upbringing. If allowance be made for that fringe of the unproductive found in every land, it is doubtful whether the birth rate among the high-minded and responsible is lower over there than over here.

The French woman cannot be summed up in a phrase. Contrary to the general opinion, she is simple, practical, sensible, tenacious, deliberate, cautious, farsighted and affectionate. She is sensitive but not sentimental. She is talkative but not superficial. She is ebullient but enduring. She is a compound of heart and head, which explains Joffre, Petain, Foch and the Poltu, who have fought these four years past our battle as well as their own and have been the surprise of every friend as well as the exasperation of the foe.

If Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, Rugby, Harrow, certainly the Marne, Verdun, the Somme were won in the French house where the French woman lives and manages, smiles and plans, suffers and "carries on."

Fish Trapped in Tomato Can.
Early in November Allen Wilfin of Blairsville, N. Y., filled a tomato can nearly full of worms and went to the lake to fish for pike. He anchored his rowboat near Lone Bar and proceeded to fish.

Late in the afternoon Wilfin placed his catch in a bag, picked up the can, which has half-full of angleworms, and threw it into the water. He says that when the can struck the water a large fish jumped out, hit the can with its tail, and the can filled with water and sank.

A few days later Wilfin again went to the lake to fish. He anchored his boat 50 rods from shore and had fished for nearly an hour when he discovered a tin can floating on the water. The peculiar motion of the can attracted his attention, he says, and he rowed the boat to it, and with a landing net scooped the can into the boat. Great was his surprise, he says, when he raised the can from the water to see a large fish with its head in the can.

Lafayette Home Shelters Orphans.
The old home of General Lafayette, at Chavaniac, a town in the department of Haute-Loire, is being used as an American home for French war orphans. The Lafayette fund conducts the shelter.

A hundred children from the devastated regions are at Chavaniac. A modern schoolhouse and a hospital have been built near the old chateau. The orphans learn English. They are being brought up with the aim of sending them to America after the war for the completion of their professional or commercial education. They are learning American ways and ideas. In America, each child has a godfather who will take over its education later.

The best care that American science can give is afforded the children. The Lafayette fund is a wealthy organization and intends to greatly extend its work.

Accidents Notably Decreased.
Accidents in the iron and steel industry have decreased by more than two-thirds during the last ten years as the result of a movement to enforce safety regulations, according to a report by the bureau of labor statistics. In 1907, the report shows, 245 men were killed or injured out of every 1,000 employed, while in 1917 the accident rate was reduced to 81 per 1,000. A further reduction would have been recorded in 1917 but for the dislocation of industrial processes to meet war needs, the report says.

Hemp Raised by Convicts.
Penitentiary officials at Lansing conducted an interesting experiment on an island in the Missouri river by planting 50 acres of hemp. The Leavenworth Times reports a bumper crop was raised. Experts declare it may be used in making binder twine at the penitentiary plant. The hemp may be substituted for the sisal imported from Yucatan, in making twine. The result would be a big saving in cost to the wheat farmers.—Kansas City Star.

are apt to become wearisome; wise expressions grow trite through repetition. Seers of all ages have preached economy; pointed to the savings habit as the secret of success and happiness. As their sayings fall familiarly on our ears, let us be heedful of their significance. Thrift and savings are essential. Are you thrifty—do you save? Let us safeguard your savings.

Camel Cigarettes

They Win You On Quality!

Your enjoyment of Camels will be very great because their refreshing flavor and fragrance and mellowness is so enticingly different. You never tasted such a cigarette! Bite is eliminated and there is a cheerful absence of any unpleasant cigaretty after-taste or any unpleasant cigaretty odor!

Camels are made of an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos and are smooth and mild, but have that desirable full-body and certainly hand out satisfaction in generous measure. You will prefer this Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

Give Camels the stiffest tryout, then compare them with any cigarette in the world at any price for quality, flavor, satisfaction. No matter how liberally you smoko Camels they will not tire your taste!
