WE MUST HAVE SOUVENIRS.

The common supposition of constituents that the congressional committees which visited the battlefields of France had brought home the entire crop of souvenirs is incorrect, according to Variety, the alert journal of the theatrical profession. We learn from its Paris correspondent that professional guides in the devastated regions will soon have a new supply on hand for the rush of American visitors this summer. An American tourist, living up to his role, recently demanded of his guide, according to this correspondent: "But where, M'sieu, are the souvenirs?" To which M'sieu replied demurely: "We will soon have them. They are even now being made in America." We are sincerely encouraged. It means profitable work for skilled craftsmen in Brooklyn, Cambridge and South Boston. And it is a sufficient guarantee that Americans who swarm to France this summer will be able to bring back the only original helmet worn by the first side to Von Hindenburg, says Boston Post. How poorly paid would be the efforts of French guides, how disappointing the impressions of American tourists, if the passion for souvenirs were to be denied.

It is well to be a pillar in the church, but do not be a sleeper in the church. If the average man did not put more energy into his business than he puts into his religion, he would be bankrupt inside of three months. Never was there a time when the church was any richer or any stingier than it is today. Millions of dollars go into the pockets of professed Christians of America every 24 hours and never was such a small percentage of their incomes being given for religious purposes. The mission secretaries of all denominations are constantly compelled to beg money enough to keep the work going in multitudes of needy fields. The country last year spent more for gun than for the Gospel, says Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette. Men in our churches today spend more for tobacco than they do for religion. If a man spends more on gasoline and joy rides than he does for Christian work, no matter to what church he belongs, there needs to be an awakening.

A man in Pennsylvania has taken an energetic step towards suppressing hazing. He has written the authorities of a township school which his children attend that he will enter suit for any damage to his children or to their clothing done by hazing, says Baltimore American. It is more than probable that his children will be let alone. If parents were more determined to protect their children from this species of persecution, there would be less of it and more benefit to the schools and colleges.

A Canadian Indian was credited in the Ottawa parliament with the killing in France of 378 Germans. It was not stated whether he took all the scalps of his victims, but if he did, those he managed to attach to his belt must have hung there merely as samples of his abilities in the lightning line.

The whippet tanks, which did such execution in the late world war, are now being used in Arizona in the great pine forests, doing work impossible for horses and mules. The discoveries and inventions of the war are now being put to service in the interests of peace.

An English scientist, it is reported, spent six days and nights in a hermetically sealed glass case, and if he is one of those scientists who is always announcing terrifying discoveries, it would have been just as well if he had concluded to remain there permanently.

On the other hand, there should be nothing to prevent your arranging your risings up and lyings down so as to save a little daylight on your own hook. There is no more charming hour of the day than the early morning.

Producers of apparel are trying to blame the weather for the indifference of the buyer to their blandishments. Is it going to take a hard blow to a hard head before they realize the consumer is permanently against high prices?

GREAT FUTURE FOR WIRELESS

Boys Who Plan to Make It Their Life Work Should Know and Appreciate Its Value.

Before going into practice instruction it is important that the boys who are to become the wireless men of the future should appreciate the value of such work. Wireless transmission of messages and of the human voice is becoming daily more common. In a few years the entire system of communication throughout the world may be transformed by wireless electricity, and it is important that boys should be able to take their part in it. The amateur wireless station is a great educator and gives the boys who equip and operate it an excellent education in the wonderful new science.

HAS BOTH MEMORY AND SCAR

Two Excellent Reasons Why One Man Will Remember That He Was Kicked by a Mule.

A kick from a mule is guaranteed to make just about as much impression on the memory as it does on the anatomy. Yet Clyde D. Jarvis has made sure that he will not forget the kick he received from a Missouri beast of burden for the rest of his natural life.

Jarvis applied at Houston, Texas, for enlistment in the marine corps and was accepted. He exhibited a scar about six inches long on the left side of his abdomen, and explained it was the result of an operation he had undergone some six months before, following the kick from the mule.

The operating surgeon had made the wrong diagnosis, however, and found that Jarvis' spleen was O. K. Tattooed above the scar in large letters were the words, "Opened by mistake."

An Old Street Directory.

An odd reminder of the past turns up in the list of duplicates that the Massachusetts Historical society has decided to sell from its collection of historic miscellany in the form of the first street directory of Boston, and for that matter the first street directory ever printed in what is now the United States. In 1708, when the broadside was printed, 110 names were enough for all the streets, alleys, lanes and squares of the town; and many of them read the same nowadays. For some years prior to 1708 the process of preparing the list had been engaging the authorities, and when the selectmen published it they were doubtless well satisfied with Paddy lane, Frog lane, Cow lane, Pudding lane and other quaint titles which a modern municipal government might regard as undignified and trivial.

What He Thought.

Company had just gone and Mrs. A. had changed from her company talk to that of the every day variety. Speaking plainly she was nagging her husband. He endured it for a little while and then he said, "Maria, do you know why I call my queen bee to the boys at the office?" "No," snapped Maria, not the least bit mollified by the title of queen. "Well," patiently explained Mr. A. carefully discerning the shortest way to the door as he spoke, "while we have company you make me honey all the time and then just as soon as they are gone you begin to industriously use your stinging abilities."

Good-by, Gunga Din.

The picturesque water vender with his pleskin pack on his back, as well as the more charming picture of the native virgin carrying a water jar on her head, will soon be but a memory in Jerusalem. It is hoped that the terrible water-borne diseases, so common when Palestine was under Turkish rule, will likewise disappear into the forgotten past.

HANDICRAFT FOR GIRLS

By DOROTHY PERKINS

A PAPER BASKET OF PAPER ROSES.

For the basket shown in Fig. 1 you will need twelve pieces of wire 30 inches long, and some brown crepe tissue-paper. Cut the paper into strips 1 inch wide, wind each wire with a strip, and paste the end to keep it from unwinding. Take the remaining strips and twist them from end to end into tightly twisted strands, then take these strands in pairs and twist together to form paper rope.

Separate the twelve wires into two sets of six each, cross them at their corners (Fig. 2), and tie them temporarily with strong thread to keep them in position. Then bend out the wire in pairs, so there will be six pairs spaced equidistantly (Fig. 3), and begin weaving by running a strand of the paper rope, alternately, over two wires and under two wires (Fig. 3) until six rows have been woven; then cut off one of the wires close to the sixth row, because from this point we use a different weave, weaving alternately over one and under one wire. Spread the wires to make the spaces between equal; then continue weaving, running the rope in and out around the wires. When the bottom is as large as you want it, bend up the wire ends and continue the weaving, bending the wires in and out to form whatever shape of basket you wish. At the top cut off the wires and bend over the ends. For the handle, twist together several lengths of paper rope, and sew to the basket. Shellac the basket to harden the rope and give it a glossy surface.

Two shades of pink crepe-paper—salmon pink and apricot—moss green crepe-paper, and fine wire are needed for the paper roses. Figure 5 shows a full-size pattern for the rose petals. Five petals for each rose are enough, but you can add more if you like. Cut two sets of petals, one out of each of the two shades of pink paper, and lay the dark petals upon the light petals; then, holding a pair of the petals between your thumbs and first fingers (Fig. 6), with the dark petal toward you, stretch the paper into a concave shape. When each pair of petals has been stretched into this shape, curl the upper edges with a hatpin, by rolling the edges over the pin, toward you. Figure 4 shows a pattern for the calyx. Cut this out of the moss-green paper.

To build up a rose, take the double petals one by one and twist their lower end around the stem, lapping the edge of each over the edge of the preceding petal. Then wrap and paste the calyx around the petals, (Fig. 7). If you can get artificial rose leaves where you buy your crepe-paper, you will find them more perfect than any you can make. Figure 8 shows how to arrange the leaves upon a wire stem. If you cannot buy leaves, cut them out of green paper by the pattern of Fig. 9. Make the leaves double. Use fine wire for a stem, let this stem run along the center of the leaf for a center vein, and paste the halves of the double leaf to opposite sides of the wire.

Arbor Day was originated by J. Sterling Morton in Nebraska, January 4, 1872. This day was first observed in Missouri in 1880 when the legislature passed a law fixing the first Friday after the first Tuesday in April as a day when trees should be planted. In many of the schools in the country the day is observed.

Patience.
A phlegmatic insensibility is as different from patience, as a pool from a harbor. Into the one, indolence naturally sinks us; but if we arrive at the other it is by encountering many an adverse wind and rough wave, with a more skilful pilot at the helm than self, and a company under better command than the passions.—Dilwyn.

HANDICRAFT FOR BOYS

By A. NEELY HALL

(Copyright by A. Neely Hall.)
A STEP-LADDER STOOL.

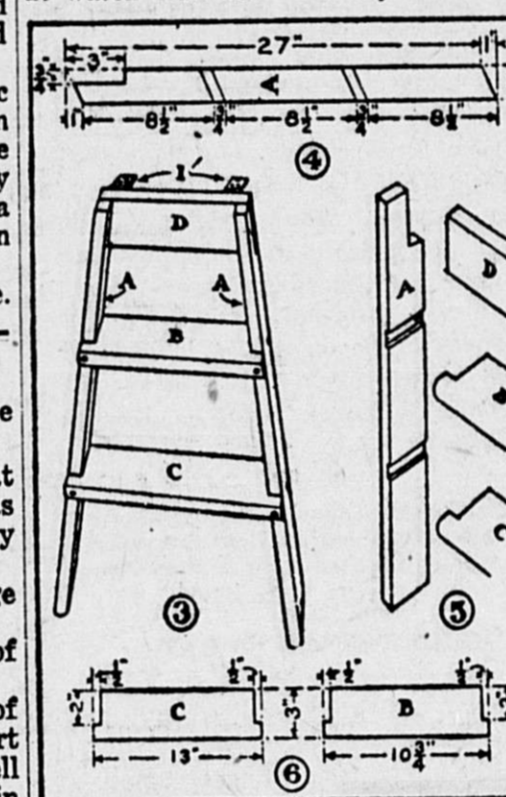

The three-step ladder is of just the right height for general household use, for washing woodwork or for reaching upper shelves in the pantry.

The ladder consists of three portions, the steps (Fig. 3), the rear legs

(Fig. 7), and the seat or top step (Fig. 10). The side rails of the steps (A, Fig. 3) should be cut to the dimensions shown in Fig. 4. Mark the ends to be cut to the angle shown, the top to be notched to receive an end of the crosspiece D (Fig. 3). The diagram shows the positions for steps B and C. The steps must pitch at the same angle as the rear ends. Groove the side pieces to a depth of 3/8 inch, to receive the ends of the steps (Fig. 5). As you will see by Fig. 3, the sides of these grooves must not be cut down at right angles, but at a pitch corresponding to that of the side rails, to accommodate steps B and C.

Fig. 6 shows the dimensions for cutting steps B and C. The ends of these pieces must be beveled slightly to make them correspond to the angle at which side rails A are placed. In assembling, first set the ends of the steps in the grooves in side rails A, and drive screws through the projections on the ends of the steps into the front edges of the side rails, also through the side rails into the step ends. Cut crosspiece D of the width and thickness of the notch in the upper ends of side rails A, and of about the length of step B; slip it into the notches, nail it to the edges of side rails A, and saw off the ends flush with the surface of the rails. The rear legs of the ladder must be spaced the same distance apart and be placed at the same angle as the side rails of the steps (Fig. 7). Cut the legs of the dimensions shown in Fig.

Scots Spurn Sunday Work.
Lord Leverhulme has encountered the religious prejudices of the Scotsmen who live on the extensive property he has purchased in the Outer Hebrides and has suffered a rebuff. He had planned to make Stornoway, on the island of Lewis, the headquarters of a huge fishing fleet that would sweep the seas for 500 miles around. The project involved Sunday labor, and the islanders, who adhere to the strict and intense form of the Presbyterian faith, rejected it. Commenting on the incident, the London periodical, Common Sense, says: "Lord Leverhulme is a man of big ideas and new ideas, while the population over whom he has declared the rights of lordship are folk of old and intense ideas. Hence the inevitable collision."

"Cook Grabber" Meaneast Criminal.
What is unofficially considered to be the meanest type of crime in England in the last five years is the "cook grabber." It is a crime from which men have held aloof. The crime consists of luring a cook away from one's neighbor. So great has been the shortage of cooks that desperate housewives have resorted to quietly engaging their neighbors' cooks in conversation at the kitchen doorway and promising higher wages and better hours. In any gathering of women the consensus of opinion is that a cook in the kitchen is worth a hundred anywhere else.

Precautions.

S, and the pair of crosspieces F and G of the dimensions shown in Fig. 9. Use the steps as a guide for fastening together legs E and crosspieces. With the steps and rear legs assembled, prepare the seat or top step H by the pattern shown in Fig. 10. Then screw one flap of a pair of hinges (I) to the inner face of crosspiece D of the steps, the flap of another pair of hinges (J) to the outer face of rear legs E, and screw the other flaps to the under side of seat H in the positions shown in Fig. 11. The pair of struts K prevent the legs from sliding further apart when the ladder is opened to the position shown in Fig. 11. Cut these strips of the size shown in Fig. 12, bore a screw-hole near each end, and screw the ends both to rails A and rear legs E, as shown in Fig. 1. If struts K have been adjusted carefully, the step-ladder will fold into the form shown in Fig. 2.

The family of the bride and other Hale relatives attended. Mr. and Mrs. Mauer will make their home in Detroit.

Mrs. Walter Humphrey of Alma, who for many years made her home in Hale, died on May 19th after an illness of but a few weeks. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and six children, the youngest a babe of but a few weeks, her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Button of St. Louis, Mich., two brothers, Burt and Henry of Lansing, one sister, Mrs. Hazel Cheverier of Alma, and a host of friends in this community who will lose in her passing away a devoted wife, mother and daughter and a faithful friend. We extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

A large crowd gathered at the M. E. church last Thursday evening to attend the commencement exercises of the Hale high school. The church was prettily decorated in the class colors, pink and gold, two little pink wagons filled with cowslips carrying out the words of the motto: "Jog On." The program consisted of the welcoming address by Mabel Rehil, the class will by Iva Bielby, the valedictory by Vivian LaBerge, several excellent musical numbers and an address by Rev. Dixon of Rose City. Every number on the program was fine and was appreciated by the audience. Considering the fact that three principals have been in charge of the high school room during the year, the five members of the class, Iva Bielby, Mabel Rehil, Vivian LaBerge, Donald Glendenin and Charles Kocher, deserve much credit for having finished so creditably the last year's work in school. Much praise is also due the county commissioner of schools, Miss Bradley, who took charge of our school as principal four weeks ago and assumed the duties and responsibilities of final examinations and commencement. After the exercises a banquet was given by the 9th graders at the town hall. The tables were decorated with flowers in the class colors and a large crowd was in attendance.

One of the big problems in Washington concerns the getting rid of the surplus war workers, who apparently regard their positions as "related to immortality." Members of congress are constantly using their influence to "save the scalps" of some of the workers (?) from their districts.
