BAPTIST CHURCH

If a man passed judgment on a meal he had neither seen or tasted you would consider him an unqualified ignoramus. Then what about the person who blatantly speaks against Christ and His church without firsthand information. Something wrong with him, of course.

ONE HUNDRED CARS OF COTTON-SEED MEAL

Use of cottonseed meal as an intensive protein food for cattle has been increasing for several years in Michigan. The latest evidence of this tendency is the collection of an order for 100 cars of this product by the Michigan state farm bureau. The bureau reports that most of this order is for meal containing 43 per cent protein, which, though it costs a little more than the 36 per cent, is cheaper in the long run because of its extra value as a food.

Cottonseed meal is cheaper this year. In normal years there is a large export trade. The inability of foreign countries to buy, and the vast difference in exchange between the United States and other countries, has cut down most of the export trade this year, consequently loading the domestic market with the product.

The young couple have many friends in Tawas City and vicinity who unite in wishing them all happiness and prosperity in their married life. They left on the morning train for a short wedding trip through Ohio and at other points.

DEATH OF MARTIN KIRBITZ

As announced in last week's Herald, Martin Kirbitz died at his home in Baldwin township on Sept. 8, 1920. He had been ill for about four months and was at the Bay City hospital for three weeks preceding his death. The cause of death was gall stones.

Martin Kirbitz was born in Posen, Germany, Oct. 29, 1851. He was married after coming to the United States to Katherine Lerch at Port Huron, Mich., where they resided for one year previous to coming to Iosco county.

Mrs. Kirbitz preceded her husband in death in 1914. One daughter is also dead, and there are left to mourn his demise three sons and four daughters, Oscar Kirbitz of Millington, John and August of Flint, Mrs. George McCone of Detroit, Mrs. George Rippey of Ellis, Kansas, Mrs. Leo Slikko and Mrs. Robert Smith of Tawas City.

The funeral was held Sept. 11 at the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. H. J. Reithmeier officiating, and the remains were laid to rest in the Lutheran cemetery.

PREACHIN' AND PRACTICE

It is related that the dry goods merchants gathered in large numbers at one of their association meetings held recently in New York, and they "resolved" that they would purchase at once twenty-five per cent of the goods required to cover their fall business. But after the "preachin'" was all over, and even before the "whereases" and the "resolves" grew cold, the merchants went home without having individually executed actual orders.

This is a concrete illustration of conditions that manufacturers are compelled to face. Is it any wonder that they are showing timidity about production?

In May last, consumers everywhere and as though by common consent, ceased to make purchases on the same liberal scale as previously. Why this movement took form at this particular time rather than at another is difficult to say. The forces that govern such mass action afford an interesting subject for psychological study, but its effects rather than its causes are the matter of chief practical concern.

The recession in demand has made itself felt in practically all lines of business. Not only luxuries but such necessities as clothing, materials of manufacture and, finally food commodities were affected in turn. Wages have not been materially influenced and in some lines, such as transportation and construction, have recorded further advances. This is in line with the usual course of events in a declining market. Reductions of wages are resisted to the last possible moment and usually occur only after unemployment has become extensive. Judged by past experience of similar conditions, the present situation bears all the evidence of a genuine movement toward a deflation in values.

CAPTAIN BEST WANTS WURST MARINE

When Captain Newton Best, commanding the company of Marines at the Pearl Harbor naval station in Honolulu, read that Private C. R. Wurst had been declared by Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler as the smartest sea soldier at Quantico, Va., he immediately filled out a requisition blank for Wurst. The form followed, although not strictly according to General Hoyle, read: "It is requested that Wurst be put in Best's company."

Now it is up to Wurst whether he wants to serve a few thousand miles from his home in Elizabeth, N. J. Out in Honolulu the ukeleses are tuning up to the refrain, "The Wurst is yet to come."

The boys are preparing for return game this week.

AMERICAN CANNING POPULAR IN FRANCE

Thousands of women and children in France are learning to can in the American way this year. All classes, from the peasant in the cottage to the lady in the chateau, are reached by the four American canning specialists who are giving the canning demonstrations. This is the second year the United States department of Agriculture has lent canning specialists to the French government for the purpose of teaching the French people the American art of canning and drying. The same group has been sent both years.

The first demonstration this year was given early in June at a chateau near Versailles. At this demonstration an exhibit was also held of the products which were put up during the past year by French housewives under the instructions of the French teachers who attended the school conducted by the Americans in 1919. Several commercial canners competed with the home canners for the prizes, but the housewives carried off the bronze medal—the first prize.

At Morsain large numbers of farm girls attended the demonstration given there and carefully watched each step in the canning of cherries, peas and beans, in the drying of peas and beans, and in the extraction of pectin to use in jelly making.

All during June, July and August the little group of Americans moved from place to place in France, teaching those who were anxious to learn the American methods. The work was carried by them into practically every section of France.

EXILED IN THE CAPITAL

The country has been thrilled by the news that Miss Mabel Boardman has been appointed by the president as one of the three commissioners of the District of Columbia. Former President Taft has been particularly joyful in commenting the appointment. Miss Boardman was at the head of the American Red Cross Society for many years, and her fame has not been increased by the fact that she has been designated as a commissioner of the District. The appointment is, however, a fine recognition of Miss Boardman's sex, all of whom outside of the District of Columbia will be entitled to vote.

But Miss Boardman is the same kind of a political exile as are all the other residents of the District of Columbia. There are a little less than half a million inhabitants of the small area, which has been set down along the shores of the Potomac to be used as a capitol for more than a hundred million people. By some extraordinary method of reasoning all the residents of the District are disfranchised from voting, and although they may see their president riding about mostly any day, still the price of living in this little spot known as the District of Columbia means that one must forego all political rights.

The three commissioners take the place of the common council and a mayor such as are provided in ordinary cities, and they have broad powers with reference to the local government. They appoint most of the subordinate officers including the police heads, assessors and one dog-catcher. They are, however, separate from the school board which has special powers, and their members are appointed by the president. Taxpayers, public utilities and others who have grievances take them to the District commissioners, and if the commissioners do not give them a fair deal they have no redress, as there are no electors or public tribunals to appeal to. The commissioners are most always friends of the president, or some member of his family, and while they are usually high types of citizens, yet they are not responsible to the public which they are supposed to represent. None of them take the active part in civic matters that falls to the lot and duty of a mayor.

Notwithstanding the Tennessee legislature and the appointing powers of the president of the United States, Miss Mabel Boardman hasn't any more vote than a man in her old home town, even though she is one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia. However, she has distinction and renown, which is in striking contrast to another appointment to a commissionership of a man almost unknown to the residents of the capital. How this latter appointee secured his job has not been explained. The Washington newspapers could find nothing to print about him except that he was an enthusiastic club member and an ardent devotee of golf.

This living in Washington, "the parlor of the nation," is a very poetical existence—but the meter is disjointed in a good many different ways.

WOOL MARKET BRIGHTENING SLOWLY

The wool market has improved a little and there are signs that it will be still better in the near future, according to the state farm bureau, which has close to 4,000,000 pounds of wool in its pool.

The state farm bureau gives out the following report from the Boston market: The outlook for the wool market is brightening; slowly. The announcement that the American Woolen Company displayed its line on Sept. 9 and started its wool sales on Sept. 13 is a good sign. Factories at London show a better strength.

No wool has been sold by the state farm bureau. The total amount graded up to date is 184,169 pounds. Wool is still coming in both from organized and unorganized counties. August saw an increase of 205,795 pounds.

AUTO PARTY VISITS Y. CAMP AT VANETTAN

On Friday afternoon of last week a number of prominent citizens of East Tawas, Tawas City, Harrisville and Mikado visited the Detroit Y. M. C. A. camp at VanEtan lake.

Good roads and fine weather made the drive pleasant and the party was met at the camp by Mr. Phillip H. Gray, president of the Detroit Y. M. C. A. and conducted over the grounds and through the buildings.

Boys of the Detroit Y. have been coming up to Van Etan since 1916 and camping in tents with one club house and the dining hall for a rainy day shelter. Mr. Gray saw from the beginning the possibility of developing the camp, and last autumn plans were made for extensive improvements. Comfortable framed huts, with screened windows, good floors, and equipped with electric lights now take the place of the tents. Modern plumbing arrangements with a sewer system are being installed, and a water tower is being erected to supply a pressure system for the whole camp.

Two separate camps are operated simultaneously, one for men and the other for boys. Each camp has its own boat and swimming dock built of concrete, and each has its own dining hall with a separate recreation building. The stone fire places and chimneys are worth going a long way to see.

A large auditorium is to be built with a stage for entertainers, and men of national and international fame will visit the camp along with the best entertaining talent that can be obtained.

Mr. Gray, whose generosity and vision have made this camp one of the best in the world, is building a modest cottage for himself and family on the grounds adjacent to the Y. property, and when this is complete and the grounds improved it will be another addition to the beauties of VanEtan lake.

A French writer predicts a great and bloody war between the sexes, with the Amazons in superior numbers. There are so many real crises confronting the world that it is amazing to see any reasonable mind wasting time and energy in conjuring myths to fight with.

With eggs coming down and cotton and woollens due for a drastic tumble because of the falling off in exports, the long-suffering individual is not going to take much interest in plans to finance Europe. Selfish, perhaps, but self-preservation is the first law of life.

Kentucky tobacco growers may be correct in their assertion that the manufacturers are holding down the price of raw tobacco, but it is very certain that the manufacturers are not holding down the price of the finished product.

With the ballot for lovely woman almost realized, candidates are already preening themselves like matinee idols and, besides the issues of the day, are considering the effect of marcel waving upon their personal charms.

According to a fashion authority, men's coats will have no waist next year. Whether this indicates cheaper food or higher-priced tailoring is for the philosophers and economic experts to figure out.

Washington statisticians figure out a 100 per cent crop next summer, according to the law of averages. The profiteers' by-laws figure out 100 per cent absorption, according to the law of necessity.

What advantage there is in isolating a discredited monarch on an island in these days of wireless communication and fast marine craft is not so apparent as in the Napoleonic days of St. Helena.

An optimistic economist advises the women who have beautiful last year's hats to wear them. But what woman will admit that there is such a thing as "a beautiful last year's hat?"

A society composed of states that have no favorite son in the presidential race would be a decidedly exclusive organization.

LONDON MOURNS FOR ITS KIWI

Only Apteryx in England Is No More
—Wingless Bird Is Believed Nearly Extinct.

The total extinction in England of the kiwi (or apteryx) has become a reality. The London Daily Mail announces the death of the Regent's park zoo's only specimen. The species is nearly extinct in New Zealand now, but the British Zoological society has written to the New Zealand government asking if just one more kiwi can be spared from the island sanctuary. Zoologists will mourn the loss of the dwarf wingless ostrich more than the zoo visitors, for not one in ten thousand ever saw it while it lived there more than nine years. The keeper would turn out this queerest of birds every now and then, but the long-billed bundle of apathy and sleepiness scrambled back into its box as soon as released.

A curious point about the kiwi is the fact that its nostrils are at the tip of its long worm-hunting beak, and in the arduous of the chase it emits an unpleasant snuffling noise. Its mating call is a pig-like squeal.

England is responsible for the virtual extinction of this rare bird. British ships brought rats to New Zealand, so weasels were sent to exterminate the rats. When they had nearly wiped out the kiwi, the New Zealand government found a ratless island and consecrated it to the poor bird. But the problem of saving an idiot bird that puts all its eggs into one shell, so to speak, was a difficult one. The kiwi laid one egg a season, nearly as big as itself. Exceptional mothers would lay two eggs and then find it almost impossible to hatch both, as the ends would project out beyond their feathers as they sat on them.

FEW IDEAS OF REAL VALUE

Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony Are Still Comparatively in the Stages of Infancy.

"As every one knows, it is a comparatively simple thing to get a patent on anything, so long as you have a good patent attorney and are able to incorporate a few new knickknacks in your device. But such a thing as a really new idea, not to speak of a basic one, is scarcer than the proverbial hen's teeth."

Thus H. Gernsback, in the Radio Amateur News, comments on the rarity of anything new in wireless telegraphy or telephony. Inventors, he says, content themselves with making improvements in existing devices. These are good, but inventors should not get the idea that the last word has been said in basic principles. He says some one will probably discover a more sensitive detector than the vacuum tube; some one will invent a better transmitter; some one will invent a receiver that makes use of the eyes instead of the ears. "Get off the beaten path," he says.

To Give China a Bible.

Americans have spent $132,000 so far to give China a Bible in its own language, the Mandarin. And just now they are agreeing to spend $31,000 more to put the Bible into type and plates and to print and bind an edition. However, it is expected that copies will be sold to sufficient value to pay the printing bill, and it is further explained that these sums for expenditures are Mexican, which money is the standard of China at this time. It has been found by American scholars that the Chinese Mandarin is a wonderfully flexible language, capable of expressing almost every shade of meaning. More than twenty-five years has been the period of preparation, and foremost American and Chinese scholars have had part. The aim has been not only to give the Chinese people a Bible but to give them one that is pure in language and will set the standard for the republic that English translations set for the English-speaking world. This new Bible is for people who number more than a fourth of the world population.

Palestine to Have Stamps.

Palestine is the only country which has no postage stamp of its own. But representatives of the Zionist government have informed London philatelists that this anomaly promises soon to be rectified, for, with the establishment of Palestine as the national home of the Jewish nation, it is believed little time will be lost in emulating the examples of other small nations called into being by mandates of the peace conference by the issuance of distinctive stamps. Stamps sold by British army post offices in adjacent former enemy territory are being utilized by overprinting with the word "Palestine."

Material for Bridges.

Bridges now needed in national parks and forest reserves are to be built of the steel girders and trusses, and other bridge material, which was ready to be shipped to France, for the use of the American army, when the war ended. There is a vast amount of this material on hand, ready drilled and quite portable, 2,856 pounds being the maximum weight of any part.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Burden of Public Debts.

The annual interest on the debt of Great Britain is 12.82 per cent of her income, that of France 32.17 per cent, that of Italy 14.43 per cent, that of the United States 2.53 per cent, that of Germany 20.96 per cent, that of Austria 25.92 per cent, that of Hungary 24.78 per cent, that of Bulgaria 21.80 per cent, and that of Turkey 17.60 per cent.

SEES GOOD IN THE TEA CUP

Doctor Elliot, Aged Educator, Goes on Record as Having Faith in That Moderate Stimulant.

Dr. Charles W. Elliot, now in his eighty-sixth year, confesses to a deviation from the strict rule of abstinence which cannot be caused by concern in the inner circles of moral reform, says the New York World. Though he has always indulged in "stimulants like tea, coffee and alcohol," and in tobacco not at all for more than half a century, he yet finds a certain virtue in tea drinking. "I have used tea most," he says, "because it seems to me to facilitate the mental effort of writing and speaking."

If the venerable ex-president of Harvard university had merely said that he derived some dietic benefit from tea, no exception would be taken to the statement. It is his frank admission that he uses tea as a stimulant and finds that it helps his mental processes which will be challenged.

Can there be good in any stimulant? Can the willful excitation of the mind by any kind of brew be other than immoral in its essential nature? All sinner-pure reformers of the drink evil will feel sure that the use of tea has dragged Doctor Elliot's intellect and robbed it of its highest productivity. But what the world has lost in that particular will count as nothing to the self-revelation that this distinguished champion of temperance is not 100 per cent perfect in his prohibition views.

NEW ROUTES OF NEAR EAST

Railroad Lines Will Be Materially Extended as the Result of Operations of the Great War.

The military operations of the war gave a material boost to railroad development in the near East, says Lewis Heck, in Asia. After their successful campaign at the end of 1917, the British extended their track line from Egypt to Palestine, connecting at Ramleh near Jerusalem. The line then on to Haifa, which the British are planning to make their great port in the East and the principal terminus on the Mediterranean for a new short-line railroad to Bagdad and India, connecting Egypt and the African possessions with India. The war gave the Bagdad railway extensions in Cilicia, northern Syria and Mesopotamia—British prisoners of war furnishing much of the labor. The tunnels through the Taurus mountains were completed. Trains now run from Constantinople through Aleppo to Nisbin. At the eastern terminus of the line—Bagdad—trains run northward as far as Tekrit. Between Nisbin and Tekrit is an unfinished section of a few hundred miles. Before the war, trains did not run at night on this line, but this was changed by stern necessity. When normal traffic conditions are re-established, the journey from Constantinople to Bagdad and on to the Persian Gulf can be made in a few days.

Shakespeare Farm to Be Sold.

Among the numerous landed properties which are coming into market during the next few months is one of more than ordinary interest, namely, the Grendon Underwood estate, Buckinghamshire, says the London Telegraph. This belongs to Mrs. Pigott, a member of a family resident in the district for centuries, who has decided to sell. This village has many historical and literary associations, which chiefly center round its westerly portion, where stands the old Elizabethan habitation now known as Shakespeare farm.

It was here, when the house was a wayside hostelry, then named the Old Shippe, that Shakespeare, it is affirmed, used to stay when journeying to and from Stratford-on-Avon.

Find New Fertilizer.

An important addition to the fertilizer supply of the United States is to be made.

About 2,500,000 acres of lands in Wyoming, Idaho, Utah and Montana, containing valuable phosphate deposits have been divided into areas not exceeding 2,500 each, according to the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

For years these lands have been awaiting congressional legislation in regard to the leasing of phosphate deposits in public lands. Regulations in this connection have now been approved by Secretary of the Interior Payne. Applications for leases are to be filed with the local land office for transmission to the secretary of the Interior.—Chemical Round Table.

Peanut Production.

Alabama is the leading state in peanut production, with 6,840,000 bushels to her credit in 1919, while five other states produced from 3,400,000 bushels to 5,500,000 bushels each. The total production of peanuts in the United States last year was 33,363,000 bushels, having a cash value of $80,000,000. Last winter the average price paid for peanuts was $2.40 per bushel.

Trucks Grow in Favor.

There were 953,063 trucks in use at the end of the year 1919, as compared with approximately 700,000 for the preceding year. This is a gain of 27 per cent, 16 per cent greater than the increase shown by passenger cars. Only eighteen states make compilations of truck registration. New York leads with others following in this order: Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California, Iowa and Texas. Nevada with 700 is at the foot of the list.

The Green Heron.

The green heron which is sometimes called the fly-up-the-creek, is about one and one-half feet long, and is common throughout the United States and Canada. It feeds mostly on fish, frogs and other aquatic animals, and may be seen, particularly in the morning and in the evening, standing patiently motionless in some shallow water, waiting till prey comes within reach.

Easy to Thread

A Redditch needle maker has invented a new kind of needle which makes "threading" much more easy than with the orthodox type. His needle, instead of having a complete loop for its eye, has a tiny gap in the loop, into which the thread can be slipped instantly without the wearisome dodging that the present type requires.

NEED OF FOREIGN MARKETS

New York Business Man Tells How in His Opinion America May Control Trade Markets.

"If the United States expects to obtain its share of the world's commerce," a New York broker was overheard to say, "it must keep pace with other world powers with which it has to compete. Trained men are necessary in any line of business and foreign commerce is one line in which training is absolutely essential."

"I believe that the United States merchant marine is again to come into its own," continues the same broker in the Washington Post, "but the finest lot of merchandise on earth, coupled with the greatest fleet of merchant vessels ever known, is of no avail unless backed up by the selling ability and understanding of trained men who know how to place American goods in foreign markets."

"All the large mercantile firms are taking steps to train men specially for each country in which they expect to do business. The prospective salesman or manager for any particular country is educated in the language, history, traditions and peculiarities of that country, so that he can in a sense meet the people on their own ground. He knows just what to do under given conditions and is of vast value to the firm that employs him."

"The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is doing a great deal of good in aiding in the introduction of American goods abroad, but I think the government should go a step further and have a regular school for such experts, maintained on the same standing and in the same relation to commerce in general as West Point stands to the army or Annapolis to the navy. The students should be taught every possible fact regarding European, Asiatic and South American countries, so that they could step forth as experts, each on some particular country. Such a school would amply repay the government in the large increase in volume of foreign business which would be attained."

SAVING DID HIM NO GOOD

Fate Had Laugh at Man Who Practiced Self-Denial in the Use of Tobacco.

"Six years ago," said Smithson, "I made up my mind that I was smoking too much. It didn't seem to affect my health in the least, but I thought it a foolish waste of money, and I decided to give it up."

"A very sensible idea," remarked Brownlow.

"So I thought at the time, I reckoned up as closely as I could how much I had been spending each day on cigars and tobacco. That sum I set aside each morning, and started a banking account with it. I wanted to be able to show exactly how much I had saved by not smoking."

"And how did it work?" inquired Brownlow.

"At the end of six years I had $150 in the bank."

"Good! Could you let me—"

"And a few days later," interrupted Smithson, "last Tuesday, in fact—the bank failed. You haven't got a cigar about you, have you?"

She Objected at Last.

He had just gone into the grocery business and did nothing except talk "shop-shop-shop" when he went to see his best girl. At first she endured it because she did not wish to offend him; later merely because she could find no way to reprove him.

But her chance came. One night when he was at her house he picked up the telephone book and began idly to glance through it. His idle manner became one of interest as he scanned one page. Then her wrath overcame her. "It's been bad enough to hear you talk about nothing else but that old store," she stormed, "but it's too much for you to come to my house and go through the telephone book hunting out prospective customers."

Praise for High-Heeled Shoes.

Women's high-heeled shoes, regarded by medical science for years as production of nervous troubles, paralysis and other ills, have at last come in for professional commendation. That high-heeled shoes may be regarded as a preventive of consumption was the declaration of Doctor Gautiez before the Academy of Sciences.

Doctor Gautiez, following experiments, found, he declared, that the action of standing or walking on the toes is conducive to chest breathing as opposed to abdominal breathing. Many cases of consumption, he pointed out, have their origin in the fact that the upper lungs of abdominal breathers become diseased through lack of complete use—a condition from which the wearers of high-heeled shoes seldom suffer.

Tractor Which Walks.

A new type of tractor that has recently been developed has a series of legs and walks like a horse. There are four cranks, each having a set of four legs, giving the tractor sixteen legs on which it walks. In addition there are four wheels automatically operated by the tractor engine, so that they can be lowered to the roadbed, thus converting the machine into a motor truck. The feet are shod to conform to the ground conditions.

It is said that the tractor may be used to plow, seed, cultivate, harrow, mow and harvest, rake, furnish power for other machinery as a tractor and power plant and also to act as a truck for road work and heavy hauling.

The Blanks Explained.

A strange phenomenon was observed when taking some exceptionally rapid pictures in New Jersey recently; every third film was found to be blank and on inquiring into the cause it was discovered that alternating current had been used for illumination and that the novograph had actually photographed the alternations of the current, which are too rapid to be perceived by the eye.

To Put Out Gasoline Fire.

While pure sawdust gives excellent results in putting out a small gasoline fire, a mixture of ten pounds of bicarbonate of soda with 12 pounds of clean sawdust is the best medium to have on hand, says Everyday Engineering. Have the sawdust dry and free from chips. The sawdust forms an airtight blanket as it floats on the burning liquid, and at the same time the heat of the flame generates carbonic acid gas. This gas, together with the sawdust, keeps the oxygen in the air away from the flame and quickly smothers it.

USING THE SUN AS A STOVE

Device invented by American Scientist is Acknowledged Valuable Fuel Saver.

Baking bread and roasting meat on the summit of a mountain without fuel is possible by the use of a device invented by a scientist of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C. The intensity of the sun's rays is harnessed, the unusual energy is capitalized, and food can be cooked beyond the line of perpetual snows.

An astronomical mirror at the Smithsonian Institution is capable of receiving and measuring the energy of the sun rays, calculating that in summer the solar luminary transmits upon each acre of land energy equivalent to 7,500 horse-power.

The so-called "solar cooker" consists of a half-cylinder of iron lined with mirror glass, which catches the rays of the sun and concentrates them upon a metal tube that is the half-cylinder's axis. The tube contains oil, which expands and becomes lighter, by the heat as it passes through the tube. The latter is continued to form a loop outside the half-cylinder, thus making a sort of endless chain.

Passing through the loop, the oil cools. However, the sun's heat forcing the oil through the portion of the tube inside the half-cylinder, compels the cooled oil to follow it, otherwise there would be a vacuum. So while the sun shines there is a continuous circulation of oil. The "loop" passes through a box which contains an oven. Heat from the oil warms the oven and does the desired cooking.

POSITION CALLS FOR ABILITY

Englishman Chosen to Administer Affairs in Jerusalem Has Been Given a Hard Task.

The office of governor of Jerusalem, once occupied by Pontius Pilate, is now held by Col. Ronald Storrs, a graduate of Cambridge university and son of the dean of Rochester college, England.

His task is one to test the administrative ability of any man. Jerusalem is a city of disunions, where whatever may come of the future, for the moment Zionists and Arabs are passionately divided, and to steer a just path between them and induce them to join him on that path is thankless work.

It is to that task, however, that he chiefly devotes himself. Twice a week he has meetings of his favorite Jerusalem society, where French, Italians, British, Americans, rabbis, Zionists, leaders, commercial men of standing and others who are in any way prominent in the life of the city are brought together and in the course of debate led to see that they have in common a single citizenship. His motto as governor is "unity and be friends."

Colonel Storrs was one of the prime movers in the establishment of an independent Arab kingdom. He is thirty-eight years old.

Searching for the Point.

John George, executive secretary of the High street M. E. church of Muncie, who is a Scot, was listening attentively to a story about two fishermen who had been having good luck fishing from a boat in a lake. They wished to remember the spot where they had caught the fish, but looking shoreward they saw no landmark that would assist them in finding the spot on another day.

"Finally," said the story teller, "one of them had a happy thought and cut a notch in his boat at this spot."

The crowd laughed, except George, who appeared puzzled. Finally, he, too, burst out laughing.

"I was just thinking," he explained, "what a good joke it would have been on these fishermen if the next day they were unable to get the same boat!"—Indianapolis News.

Incendiary Bullets.

The incendiary bullets used during the war, mostly fired from machine guns carried by airplanes, were in effect miniature high explosive shells. Those supplied to our armies (millions of them were made at the Frankford arsenal) were of brass, hollowed out to hold a composition of which the principal ingredient was barium nitrate. To set this off, each bullet had a priming charge of magnesium and red lead.

An ordinary rifle bullet, of course, is solid. The incendiary bullet is of wholly different construction, though of the same caliber, being meant to carry flame. Its discharge sets fire to the explosive stuff contained in it.—Kansas City Star.

New Grade of Rubber.

Chrysil, a new high grade rubber, is vulcanized without difficulty. It is produced by the Chrysothamnus, or rabbit bush, a genus of shrubs yielding in different species from 1.93 to 2.83 per cent. and in one individual plant as high as 6.57. Of Chrysothamnus nauseosus, the chief species, 22 varieties are known, 12 of them containing chrysil. The plants are large shrubs, maturing in six or eight years, with an average weight of four to six pounds, and abound in many parts of North America. The rubber occurring in the cells and not as a latex concentrates near the soil line.

A Strike.

"I'll show 'em," said the hen as she kicked the porcelain egg out of the nest.

"They can't make a brick layer out of me."—Carnegie Puppet.

Not So Nice When He Was Mad.

Ethel was wheeling her little baby brother about the yard and I stopped and exclaimed over him, saying how smiling and good natured he looked. But Ethel interrupted with: "Oh, he isn't always so nice—when he's mad he stiffs himself so you can't even make a crack in him."—Exchange.

Pollen Carried Far by Wind.

Wind-blown pollen ("sulphur rain") is known to be carried far. Hesselman, of the Swedish experiment station, reports a quite extensive rain of tree pollen on two fire ships 20 and 37 miles from shore; and the pollen of algae is known to have been carried even as far as 200 miles.

Everything New.

Robert's father had just been married the second time. One afternoon Robert had a friend of his over to his new home. After he had shown the little boy all through the house he said: "Do you know, Clark, everything in this house is new, even my mother."
